During the screenings, physicians who specialize in skin care and treatment will examine specific suspicious areas on clinic visitors. If the need for follow-up care is indicated, referrals can be made to a local dermatologist. Literature and information about the causes and prevention of skin cancer will also be available at the clinics.

Appointments for a free skin cancer screening on either May 18 or May 25 are required. For further information, or to register for either clinic session, contact the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at 773-6100, ext. 4016, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Nurses Recognition Week

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed this week "Nurses Recognition Week" in Quincy.

The proclamation reads:

"Nurses are the largest group of health care providers in this country; and,

"Nurses are committed to the promotion of health, the prevention of disease, and the delivery of quality nursing care; and,

"The scope and depth of the nurses' responsibilities are expanding rapidly; and,

"COBRA"

On April 7, 1986 a new law was put into effect. The technical name of this law is "Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act," now known as "COBRA." It effects all firms that hire 20 or more employees.

"COBRA" guarantees continued medical coverage for qualified participants of their companies plans. A qualified participant is a person who was terminated for reasons other than gross misconduct, and for a spouse and dependant children whether the employee is deceased, divorced or legally separated. Coverage will be lost to any recipient if they are covered by any other medical plan.

When an employee is terminated, he and his dependents must be offered continued medical coverage for 18 months. If the employee dies, his spouse and dependent children must be offered a continuance of medical coverage for up to 36 months. In either case, the premium must be paid to the employer plus an additional 2% for administrative costs.

Firms not complying with "COBRA" will be penalized and also lose the right to deduct the plan's contribution as a business expense.

Too Early To Call

Assistant City Clerk Tom Burke thinks this year's mayoral race will go down as one to remember.

"I can't remember four such powerful candidates in one mayoral race," he says.

BURKE

And, his memory covers a few years.

He's been around City Hall 30 years and around Quincy a lot longer than that. He follows elections like some people follow the horses.

Burke, one of the city's early Democrats, goes back politically to the days when Quincy was a Republican stronghold. Back to the 1940's when there were so few Democrats in town they used to say they could caucus in a telephone booth.

"If anyone can predict the winner of this one now, he's much better than me," he says.

He says the four major contenders -- Councillors Steve McGrath and James Sheets, former mayor Joseph LaRaia and businessman Peter O'Connell -- represent the most powerful mayoral contender lineup he has ever seen.

He notes there was a lot of political power in 1959 when a young rising political star named James McIntyre (29) challenged a powerhouse incumbent, Amelio Della Chiesa and lost by something like 2100 votes.

"There was lots of power that year," says Burke. "But they were two. This year there are four."

There have been some pretty good battles -- brawls, too -- since 1959.

There was Joseph LaRaia's controversial recount upset victory over incumbent Walter Hannon in 1975. And Arthur Tobin's ouster of LaRaia in 1977.

And Frank McCauley's win over Dan Raymondi for the vacant mayoral seat in 1981. And, of course, the McCauley-LaRaia thriller two years ago with McCauley barely hanging in there.

But, says Burke, there are four -- not two -- strong contenders for the preliminary election. And right now he thinks "it's anybody's ballgame."

KEVIN BURKE hasn't made a decision yet on whether to run for City Councillor at-large.

K. BURKE

"A lot of people have told me I should run," he says. "They say I would have a good shot at it. But I just haven't had the time to really think about it.

"All I can say right now is that I am leaning toward running but I am still undecided."

Burke, you'll remember, lost a Ward 5 City Council nomination to John Keenan by a single vote two years ago. Keenan then lost to Charles Phelan in the final.

□

THIS WILL BE the first time in 10 years that the name Koch won't be on the ballot as a candidate for City Councillor at-large.

Richard Koch, Jr. ran four times between 1979 and 1985, winning three after losing the first. He gave up his seat in 1987 when he moved to Cape Cod.

T. KOCH

"North Quincy," he says, "is wide open for a councillor at-large candidate."

NOMINATION PAPERS FOR this year's city elections will be available May 22 at the Election Department in City Hall.

Deadline for filing them is Aug. 8. And you can take them out as late as the Friday before -- Aug. 4.

All you need are 50 valid signatures of voters to get on the Sept. 12 preliminary election ballot.

JUDY BRAMS gets her campaign for School Committee off to an official start Friday at an 8 p.m. to midnight reception at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall, Hancock St. and Hollis Ave.

BRAMS

Tickets are $10 per person and available at the door.

This will be her first run for public office but she's been sort of preparing for it being active in the community.

Mother of two daughters, one a student at Woodward and the other at Central, she was a member of the Squantum PTO, is now a member of the Central PTO and the City-wide PTO and a member of the Elementary School Report Card Task Force.

She says changes have to be made to improve the public school system including such areas as budget, plant maintenance, and incomplete programs.

"I'm totally commited to being an advocate for the children," she says. "To stand up and fight for them. That's me!"

□

WARD 6 Councillor Tom Nutley kicks off his re-election campaign with a social Friday night, 7 to 10 p.m. at Walsh's Restaurant, Billings Rd., North Quincy.

NUTLEY

Tickets are $10 at the door. They're also available by calling 328-6220.

□

YOU MIGHT SAY that in court or on court, Quincy Atty. George Burke has had his share of success.

Of the two, Burke waxes more warmly about his first love, basketball. And right now, he's smiling.

G. BURKE

He's one of 25 former players and coaches who have been selected to be inducted into the newly established Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame May 23 at the George Bryan VFW Post.

Burke was an outstanding player at Quincy in the early 1950's. He then went on to the University of Massachusetts where he set scoring records that held until a fellow by the name of Julius Erving came along.

The Quincy Hall of Fame will be his second. He's already a U-Mass Hall of Famer.

Burke, incidentally, was a Boston Celtics rookie after his U-Mass days. They could use his shooting eye today.

This Week In History

This week in 1626, Peter Minuit bought Manhattan Island from the Indians for a mere $24.00 on May 6 ... In 1820, Henry Clay's Missouri Compromise Bill was passed on May 3 ... Readers Forum

It Was North Junior In 1926 Not Atlantic

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As an avid reader of The Sun, I had to communicate to make a correction.

February 12, 1959 all of the 7th and 8th grade students and faculty marched from North Quincy High School to the new Atlantic Junior High School under the leadership of Principal John A. Evans. I'm positive of the date because I served as the school's first head counselor.

Atlantic Junior High School (now Middle) was dedicated April 5, 1959 and students and teachers moved in Feb. 12, 1959 as described by reader Forsyth.

Louise B. Forsythe
75 Monroe Rd.

(Editor's note: Reader Forsyth is correct. The item she refers to appeared in the Quincy's Yesterdays column April 27. According to North Quincy High School historian Dorothy Poutree, the cornerstone at North Junior High School and not Atlantic Junior High School was dedicated in 1926.

Six City Employees To Be Recognized At Mayor's Award Ceremony

Six city employees will be recongized at the seventh annual Mayor's Employee Appreciation Award Ceremony Thursday, May 11 at 10 a.m. in Mayor Francis McCauley's office at City Hall.

Instituted by McCauley, this program recognizes dedicated and loyal municipal employees whose service to the city is outstanding and consistently exceeds what the job description requires.

This year's recipients come from Quincy Hospital, Thomas Crane Public Library, school department, Public Works Department, law office and Quincy Junior College.

They are:

Valerie Palmer of Mount Vernon St., Quincy, a registered nurse in the emergency room at Quincy Hospital. A 32-year employee, she has worked nights in the emergency room since 1973.

Palmer is cited as a professional who consistently finds challenge in her work and practices clinical excellence in her position.

A CPR volunteer instructor, she also works with the homeless by collecting clothing and providing support activities.

Palmer has been a speaker to community groups as a member of the Norfolk County Secual Assault Team and is active in many community and family activities.

A graduate of Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing, she is married to retired firefighter Gino Palmer. They have three children, Paul, Peter and Jean.

Ann E. McLaughlin of Hinckley Rd., Milton, assistant director of the Thomas Crane Public Library. Employed for 18 years, the last six as assistant director, she is cited for her "no nonsense" approach to all tasks. She earned her masters degree in library services.

She reaches out to the community to provide new, better and more services. She created the library's successful Adult Literacy Program, a state-wide model program.

McLaughlin serves on unpaid committees and commissions and is currently the coordinator of the city's Gateway Cities program. She actively works to preserve inter-racial harmony and speed the assimilation of the new Asian residents.

McLaughlin is married to Gerald Aronson and they are the parents of two children, David and Nathaniel.

Patricia Ryan of Spring St., Hanson, the assistant Dean of Alied Health at Quincy Junior College. Employed for 21 years, she will be honored for being a key leader in the building of a health education program which prepares individuals for careers leading into the 21st century.

Her abilities as a planner and organizer have given leadership in revision of curriculum and organization of allied health program. She has also pioneered and developed an important outreach program in association with tow major medical facilities.

Ryan is a departmental chair, in both LPN and RN programs and has worked to provide a solid career ladder for students and increase their personal worth to the health field and community.

She and her husband Joseph have two boys, Joseph and Michael.

She has a B.S.N. from Fitchburg State College and a master of education from Bridgewater State College.

He is cited for the high standards that he applied to his daily duties, and his personal concern he showed to the many individuals he came in contact with on a daily basis.

He consistently and quietly went out of his way to insured that the smallest details of his responsibilities were done so that each individuals, whether citizen or co-employee would enjoy their stay at City Hall.

He and his wife, Celia, have four children: Ralph, a Quincy firefighter; Lucy, Irene Lipinski and Debbie Connell. He also has two grandchildren.

He is a World War II Army veteran.

Mary (Curtin) Pace, Sachem St., Quincy, a teacher at the Atherton Hough School for the past 31 years. She is cited for many valuable contributions to the Quincy Public Schools.

Known as a classroom teacher who always has gone "one step beyond," she often spends non-school hours with small groups of students taking them on special trips at her own expense.

She has a sincere interest in talking and listening to her students and imparts her positive philosophy and sense of humor to all she comes in contact with.

She has been involved in countless screening and interviewing teams, and as a former president of the Quincy Education Association, she has fostered open lines of communication and productive relations between the school committee administrators and the association.

She is active in the Atherton Hough PTA and has a bachelor of arts and a master of arts degree in elementary education.

Janet Ellis, Palmer St., Quincy, equal opportunity administrator for the city. Employed for 10 years, she began her employment with the Department of Planning and Community Development and was appointed the Equal Opportunity Administrator by Mayor McCauley in March, 1986.

She is cited for her excellent professionalism in a position which has undergone substantial changes, as well as close public scrutiny. She has shown poise and sensitivitiy at a time when the city has most needed these qualities.

She is a member of the Quincy Housing Partnership, the Human Relations Committee and Asian American Committee. She is co-chairperson of the Fair Housing Committee. She has one daughter, Janet.

There are approximately 3,500 persons employed by the city. There have been 36 previous winners in the past seven years.

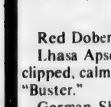
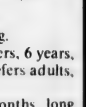
MWRA Nut Island Plant Tour Saturday

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) will host a tour of the Nut Island Treatment plant on Saturday, May 6 at 10 a.m. to discuss some of the on-going and planned changes for the plant as part of the Boston Harbor project.



The MWRA plans to demolish the 40 year old treatment plant and convert the essential portions into a headworks station. The tour will spotlight construction of the pier project, proposed landscaping of the plant which will begin this summer, and the location of the new headworks.



Once conversion of the plant is completed, the remaining land and pier will be turned into MDC parkland and revert back to area residents for recreational use.

Houghs Necks residents are invited to tour the facilities to learn more about the MWRA's current operations and plans for the future.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Lights Dimmed For World War II

May 4-10 1942 47 Years Ago

E.J. McEwan, coordinator of the Civil Defense area, ordered all lights in the seaward sections of Houghs Neck to be dimmed for the duration of World War II.

Also all lights within three miles of the coast that shine seaward were directed to be shaded so that ships at sea would not be silhouetted for enemy submarines.

McEwan, giving communities one month to perfect their dimout regulations, said if those measures were insufficient a complete blackout of critical areas would be ordered.

Meanwhile, Capt. George F. Fallon, blackout officer for the Quincy Police Department, said the ban on display and other outdoor lighting in Quincy was 90 percent effective.

QUARRY SEARCHED

Carlson's Quarry in West Quincy was drained in search of clues in the slaying of Mrs. Helen Cullen, 42, of Boston, who came to Quincy in a taxi cab with her apparent slayer.

All the search of the quarry turned up was an automobile identified as one stolen in Dorchester in 1938 and an unidentified safe that had been smashed open be robbers.

A Quincy man was held on a first degree murder charge in the death of Mrs. Cullen and Dist. Atty. Edmund Dewing said he would be placed on trial sometime in September.

Katherine Crossman Honored On 100th Birthday

Katherine May Crossman was honored twice recently at the First Church of Squantum on the occasion of her 100th birthday. First, during the Sunday service on April 16, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, asked her to stand with all of her relatives. He then led the congregation in a special birthday prayer for her.

Later, in a reception at the church that lasted all afternoon, she was honored by friends and relatives. Among the well-wishers were Robert and Juanita Anderson from Chicago; Candita Anderson, New Jersey; Vern and Margaret Ann Catton, Ontario; Andy and Ariel Welling, Shediac, New Brunswick; Ruby Slater, Moncton, New Brunswick; Howard and Viola Cannon of Carver; Norman and Paula Cannon, Syracuse, N.Y., Russell and Mary Jane Crossman and their family, from Jacksonville, Fla.; Ward and Jo Anne Crossman, Cranston, R.I.,

KATHERINE CROSSMAN

Raymond and Brenda Crossman and their family from Warwick, R.I.; Laverne Crossman, Cranston, R.I.; and Averill Jackson and her daughter, Meredith, from Middleboro.

Katy, as Mrs. Crossman is known, was born Katherine May Mitton in Alberta County, New Brunswick, April 16, 1889. Her parents were Council and Mary Mitton, her mother's maiden name having been Mary Gould. She married Ward Crossman and lived in new Brunswick until he died in 1942. She came to live in Squantum with her daughter Hazel and has lived here ever since.

Katy's children were Hazel Mayne and Earl Crossman (now deceased). Hazel's children are Margaret Ann Catton and Ellen Ogivie. Earl's children are Russell Crossman, Ray Crossman and Ward Crossman. Katy has eleven great-grandchildren including Ray Crossman, Jr., Roger Crossman, Russell Crossman, Kevin Crossman, Karen Crossman, Lisa Crossman, Gine Crossman, Steven and Scott Catton (who are twins), Andrew Ogilbie and Lori Ogilvie.

Among the birthday greetings that Katy received were special ones from President George Bush, Willard Scott of NBC's "Today" show and state Senator Paul Harold.

Katy's advice to the younger generation: "Just live a good clean life, that's all!"

Applesauce: Taste The Harvest All Year Long

With a couple of jars of applesauce on your kitchen shelf, it's easy to enjoy the delicious taste of the fall apple harvest all year long. Applesauce is light, nutritious and blends well with a wide variety of ingredients, so you can use it to create an unlimited number of delicious, easy to prepare treats. Here are a few ways to enjoy the homey taste of apples anytime.

• Breakfast with applesauce: Heat chunky applesauce, flavor with cinnamon, ladle over French toast and dust with confectioners' sugar.

• Johnny Applesnack: Place applesauce in waxed paper cups, top with granola and treat your children to a healthy snack they'll enjoy. Serve it with a plastic spoon, and it's great for taking outside.

• Taste a trifle: In a trifle bowl or in individual champagne flutes, alternate layers of applesauce and crumbled pound cake. Top with whipped cream, sprinkle with cinnamon sugar and garnish with a sprig of mint.

• Pair up with a pineapple: Wash a ripe pineapple. Cut in half, lengthwise, through the pineapple and foliage. Remove core from both sides and discard. Cut pineapple pulp into small chunks and place in a small bowl. Add one cup of applesauce, one teaspoon of vanilla extract and one teaspoon of crushed, dried mint. Mix and return to pineapple halves to serve. Garnish with toasted slivered almonds and mint.

• Applesaucy gravy: Place a small amount of margarine in a skillet and reheat a large slice of fully cooked ham. Remove it to a heated platter and add 1/4 cup of apple juice and 1/4 cup raisins to the pan. Simmer, while stirring, for two minutes. Add 1/2 cup chunky applesauce, mix and heat through. To serve, pour applesauce over ham slice.

• Applesauce Dressing: In a small bowl, mix one cup applesauce, one cup of low-fat vanilla yogurt, two tablespoons honey, one teaspoon ground cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves and a dash of nutmeg. Prepare a fruit salad, top with cottage cheese and drizzle with applesauce dressing.

• Applesauce-cheese melts: Enjoy apple pie taste anytime by lightly toasting English muffins. Top with applesauce and sharp Cheddar cheese. Broil just long enough to warm applesauce and melt cheese.

• Delicious dipping: Soften bleu cheese and mix in applesauce until mixture is of dip consistency. Add curry powder to taste and serve as a dip, surrounded by fresh apple slices.

As you prepare these easy applesauce dishes, you'll add a new dimension to your cooking. But don't forget: Applesauce is good all by itself, too!

GREAT AMERICAN COOKING IDEAS

Fire Up The Grill

The beginning of summer is fast approaching. What better time to break out the grill, call up some friends and celebrate with a barbecue. By making a party out of cooking the meal, entertaining will be easy as well as fun.

And to kick-off the outdoor cooking season, why not try some new recipes? "Simple variations can turn traditional grilled favorites into something truly special," says Faye Egan of the Nabisco Brands Consumer Food Center. "And with a very small amount of advanced preparation you can enjoy the festivities as much as your guests."

SAVORY GRILLED TOURNEDOS
Makes 8 servings

1/3 cup A.1. Steak Sauce
1/4 cup tomato catsup
1/4 cup orange marmalade
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
8 slices bacon
8 beef tenderloin steaks (tournedos), cut 1-inch thick*

In small bowl, blend steak sauce, catsup, marmalade, lemon juice, onion and garlic. Wrap a bacon slice around edge of each steak; secure with string or toothpick.

Grill steaks over medium-high heat, 4 inches from heat source, about 10 minutes for rare or until desired doneness, turning occasionally and brushing frequently with prepared sauce. Or, broil steaks 5 to 10 minutes for rare, turning once. Arrange tournedos on serving platter; garnish as desired with mushrooms, radishes and parsley.

*8 (6-ounce) hamburgers can be substituted.

GRILLED ONION-CHEESE BREAD
Makes 8 servings

1 loaf wide Italian bread, about 10 to 12 ounces
1 (8-ounce) container Cheddar cheese spread, softened
1/4 cup A.1. Steak Sauce
1/4 cup chopped scallions
2 tablespoons margarine, softened
1 teaspoon dried basil leaves

Slice bread crosswise into 16 slices 3/4 of the way through. In small bowl, blend cheese, steak sauce, scallions, margarine and basil. Spread mixture on each cut side of bread.

Wrap loaf in foil. Place on grill over medium heat 15 to 20 minutes or until cheese melts and bread is heated through, turning once. Or, bake at 400°F for 15 to 20 minutes.

NOTE: Makes about 1 1/2 cups cheese spread which may be used on crackers or as a topping on cooked vegetables or baked potatoes.

Saucy Cornbread

• Saucy cornbread: In a medium-sized bowl, mix together 2/3 cup of applesauce, one egg and 3/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon. Mix in one 8 1/2-ounce package of cornbread mix. Pour into greased 8x8 inch pan, sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar and bake in a 350°F oven for 15 minutes.

Food Sources Of Vitamins A and C

(Provided by A.I.R.C. American Institute for Cancer Research).

Consumption of foods high in beta-carotene (which is converted to Vitamin A after consumption) and Vitamin C has been associated with lower rates of some cancers.

Certain fruits and vegetables are generally the best sources of these nutrients, and suggestions for expanding their use in your diet follow. It is not essential that you eat these particular fruits and vegetables daily, but they do provide high levels of other vitamins and minerals in addition to beta-carotene and Vitamin C, and are also good sources of dietary fiber.

So try to consume them as frequently as possible. Perhaps by preparing these foods in a greater variety of ways you will expand your enjoyment of them.

- The best sources of beta-carotene are dark green and deep yellow fruits and vegetables. These fruits include apricots, cantaloupe, nectarines, papayas, and watermelon. Vegetables high in beta-carotene include broccoli, carrots, sweet potatoes, winter squash, and all dark leafy vegetables such as spinach and chard.
- Vitamin C-rich fruits include cantaloupe, grapefruit and its juices, oranges and their juices, and strawberries. The best vegetable sources of this vitamin are broccoli, collard and turnip greens, peppers, and tomato juice.
- Try eating these vegetables raw or cooked quickly by either steaming or stir-frying. As well as staying crisper and more flavorful, less of their nutrients are destroyed with rapid cooking.
- Try salads made of dark greens such as spinach or non-leafy vegetables such as green peppers, carrots, broccoli, tomatoes and cauliflower.
- Marinate cut-up vegetables in a container with lemon juice or vinegar, herbs and spices. Serve them at meals or as snacks.
- Increase the amount of vegetables in meat-vegetable casseroles while decreasing the amount of meat. Remember, large amounts of meat are unnecessary and contribute extra fat to the diet.
- Try the natural sweetness of fruit instead of cookies or candy. Substitute fruit or vegetable juices for tea, coffee and soda pop.

Rainbow Trout With A Southwestern Flair

From San Francisco to New York, one of today's hottest food crazes is Southwestern cuisine. Influenced by foods from New Mexico and Texas as well as the cuisines of Mexico, Spain and Native America, Southwestern recipes take advantage of the bounty of fresh produce, meats and fish available.

Here's a rainbow trout recipe that features fresh corn, tomatoes, cilantro, tortillas, and jalapeno pepper for a distinctive Southwestern flavor. A splash of cream and snow peas make it unique.

First the trout is quickly sauteed. Next, the vegetables are simmered for just a moment or two with a splash of cream. When done, the rainbow trout is topped with this almost-firev cream sauce and garnished with homemade tortilla chips for a festive meal that is ready in just minutes.

For more rainbow trout recipes, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Recipes of the South, c/o SY&T, 1000 Sansome Street, Suite 375, San Francisco, California, 94111.

RAINBOW TROUT SANTA FE

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 4 Idaho rainbow trout fillets (4 ounces each)
- 2 teaspoons butter
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- ¼ cup chopped green onion
- 1 small tomato, peeled, seeded and diced
- ½ cup fresh or frozen corn kernels
- ½ cup snow peas, cut in half, diagonally
- 2 tablespoons chopped cilantro or parsley
- 1 to 1½ teaspoons finely chopped jalapeno pepper
- 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- Dash white pepper
- ¼ cup heavy cream
- Homemade or purchased flour or corn tortilla chips

Heat oil over medium-high heat in large skillet. Saute trout 1 to 2 minutes on each side until done; set aside. Melt butter over medium heat. Saute garlic and green onion, about ½ minute. Add tomato and next 7 ingredients. Simmer about 2 or 3 minutes. Stir in cream; gently simmer about 1 minute more. Top trout with sauce. Serve immediately with tortilla chips. Makes 2 to 4 servings. About 331 calories per 4 ounce serving. Kitchen-tested recipe courtesy of Clear Springs Trout Company.

QUICK QUIZ

Have you digested a lot of facts about food? Taking this little test can help you tell.

1. Which fat contains cholesterol? (a) animal (b) vegetable

2. Cookies and crackers are always high in cholesterol. (a) true (b) false

3. Which fat is less expensive? (a) animal (b) vegetable

ANSWERS

1. (a) 2. (b) Some crackers such as Cinnamon and Honey Grahams and others from Sunshine, have absolutely no cholesterol. 3. (a) Nevertheless, Sunshine has been baking exclusively with vegetable shortening for over a decade. With so much concern these days about consumption of saturated fats, it's a wise idea to read labels carefully. This makes it easier to choose products that contain little or no cholesterol and saturated fats.

According to some researchers, celery has negative calories. It takes more calories to eat a piece of celery than the celery has in it to begin with.

Rev. Gordon Benson Interim Pastor At Covenant Congregational

Rev. Gordon Benson will preach at the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

He will be the interim pastor until a new minister is called.

Rev. Fred Lawson, who retired April 30, was named Pastor Emeritus by a vote of the congregation at the recent quarterly business meeting. The proclamation was read by Chairman Kenneth Nelson at the worship service Sunday.

Sunday School, with classes for all ages, nursery through adult, will begin as usual at 9:30 a.m.

The choir will be directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music. Louisa Dano will be soprano soloist.

A nursery is available for children age five and under. Attendant will be Lori-Anne Facella. For children up to age twelve, there is junior church, led by Linda Day.

The Naomi Society will meet Monday, May 8 at 7:30 p.m. Hostesses will be Gitta and Martha Dano. The program will be songs by Luisa Dano.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

Membership Recognition Sunday At United First Parish Church

This Sunday the congregation of United First Parish Church, "Church of the Presidents," will recognize during the 10:30 a.m. service new members who have joined since last year.

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister, will deliver the sermon "The Courage To Choose."

Also during the service, there will be a ceremony to recognize Church School children who have completed the "Growing Up Unitarian" program. The year long project involved learning about Unitarianism and the history of United First Parish Church as well as becoming familiar with the elements of an adult worship service. The recognition ceremony involves the children lighting their own flaming chalices, leading the congregation in singing "We Live in a Family," and being presented by the minister and a parent with Flaming Chalice pins. Mary Vallier, outgoing President of the Alliance, has donated a flowering plant for each participant as well.

Those who have completed "Growing Up Unitarian" include third graders Bethany Savela, Miranda Bohl, Justin Adams, Marisa Ross and Stephanie Williams and second graders Caitlin Sullivan and Elizabeth Bennett.

The Church Choir will sing selections by Gibbs and Pasquet and Norman Corey, Music Director, will play organ works by Scheidt, Peeters and Arauxo. Ushers will be Mark Sullivan and Thomas Hurlebaus.

Following the service there will be a ceremony to dedicate a new pink dogwood tree given by Mary Vallier, in memory of her husband Frank W. Vallier, Sr. who died a beloved member of the Church.

Historic United First Parish Church is located at 1306 Hancock Street, Quincy Center (opposite Quincy City Hall). Church School and child care are provided. Visitors are welcome — call 773-1290 for information.

Rev. Fred Lawson Honored On Retirement At Covenant Congregational

The Rev. Fred Lawson, pastor of Covenant Congregational Church for the past 12 years, and Mrs. Lawson were honored at a retirement reception Sunday at the church attended by more than 200.

Rev. and Mrs. Lawson will move to Enfield, Conn., where he will continue as an interim pastor, filling in when needed.

Rev. George Elia, superintendent of East Coast Covenant Churches, brought greetings of the denomination.

City officials attending included Mayor Francis X. McCauley and Councillor Lawrence Chretian, along with Senator Paul Harold. Church organizations were represented by members of the Sunday School, Ladies Aid and Naomi Society.

After graduating more than 40 years ago from North Park Tehological Seminary in Chicago, Rev. Lawson completed his internship at Covenant Church in Granby, Conn. He later served five churches in other sections of the country.

In Quincy, Rev. Lawson initiated the Tuesday Morning Chapel at Granite Place Senior Citizen complex and was instrumental in providing a parking space in the church lot for the Quincy Crisis Center Mobil Home.

CDA To Elect Officers

Court Corpus Christi, Catholic Daughters of the Americas, will elect new officers tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall. A reception for new members will follow.

On Saturday, May 6, a Morning of Recollection at Most Blessed Sacrament Church will open with a 9 a.m. Mass. Rev. Richard DeVeer from St. Boniface Church will officiate.

Sermon Series On Prayer Continues At Squantum Church

The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, preached a sermon entitled, "What It Takes to Pray," at First Church of Squantum Sunday.

It was the second sermon in a three-part series on the subject of prayer.

Dr. Langevin led the children in a special prayer for those in the church who were sick, particularly Jennie Preston and Helen Miller, and those taking care of them.

Greeters for the morning were Luther and Ruth Swenson. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes. Edna Swanson and Hazel Mayne hosted the Fellowship Hour.

This Sunday the service will begin at 10:30 a.m. The Sunday School and nursery meet during the service. The sermon will be entitled, "But How Shall We Pray?"

'Latin America' UN Council Topic

The United Nations Council of the South Shore will conduct a lecture entitled "Latin America: Update" Thursday, May 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Parish House of the Church of Presidents, Quincy Square.

A nationally recognized authority on the subject, James Nelson Goodsell will be the speaker. His radio and television commitments are familiar to many listeners and viewers.

For many years, Goodsell has been Latin American editor of the Christian Science Monitor.

Point Congregational Honors Two With 'Churchmanship Awards'

Dr. Ella Harris and Robert Gohl received the awards for demonstrating exemplary leadership in and through the church. Since 1952, the local congregation, through the Executive Board, has presented one or more awards each year.

Both awards were presented by Church Moderator William Neil and the pastors of the church, the Reverends Fred and Carol Atwood-Lyon.

Dr. Harris is a resident at the Senior Citizen's Center at 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy, a facility and program built and sponsored some 23 years ago by the Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Her framed, hand caligraphered certificate recognizes that her entire life has been devoted to God and the Church, including 20 years at the Quincy Point Congregational Church.

She has served on a Pastoral Search Committee, the Mission Board, as a representative of Church Women United, the Women's Fellowship of the Metropolitan Boston Association, as a member of the Teaching Parish Committee and as chaplain of the church's Women Union.

The certificate also recognizes her service beyond the local church, serving as a doctor and friend at the Senior Citizen's Center.

The citation also reads:

"You are an outstanding example of Christian grace and leadership. And, while you chose to engage in parish ministry with your husband, the Rev. Dr. Pierson Harris, rather than embark to other nations as a medical missionary, you have been a most gracious and loving missionary to us."

Gohl, of Burgin Parkway, Quincy, was the other recipient of this year's "Churchmanship Award."

The son of Donald and Helen Gohl of Weymouth, he was recognized for more than 23 years of active membership in the church. Gohl has served with devotion and energy as a youth advisor, disc jockey for youth fellowship dances, as a member of a Pastoral Search Committee and as a member of the church's Diaconate, it was noted.

His certificate recognizes his hospitality and leadership as head usher for Sunday congregations, as a member of the Board of Trustees, member of the Music Committee, long-time member of Camp Winni and Camp Kingsmont staff and as a movie and video historian of the Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Gohl's "Churchmanship Award" also reads:

"Both within the church and community, you have always demonstrated your readiness to serve when called upon. The members and friends of the church thank you for your Christian commitment and many years of service."

He is employed by The Quincy Sun as the producer of the Quincy Sun Channel 26 Video News and Features Report.

TWO PARISHIONERS at Quincy Point Congregational Church were recently presented "Churchmanship Awards" for 1989 for their many years of contribution and service to the church and community. Robert Gohl and Dr. Ella Harris received the awards from Rev. Carol Atwood-Lyon and the Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon during the church's annual meeting.

Obituaries

Joseph T. Madden, 76
Retired Printer

A funeral service for Joseph T. Madden, 76, of Quincy was held April 28 at the Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home.

Burial was in Fletcher Cemetery, Knox, Ind.

Mr. Madden, a retired printer for the Linotype Co., Boston and a life member of the Squantum Yacht Club, died April 25 at the Carney Hospital, Dorchester after a brief illness.

Mr. Madden was a communicant of St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

He was a Coast Guard veteran of World War II.

He was a member of the Typographical Union Local 13.

Mr. Madden is survived by his wife, Waltrude (Twyman) Madden; two daughters, Joanne M. Madden of Quincy, and Maureen D. LaFaive of North Judson, Ind.; a brother, Frank Madden of Jamaica Plain; a sister, Margaret Callahan of San Diego; and two grandchildren.

Gerald J. Galvin, 69
Retired Firefighter

A funeral Mass for Gerald J. Galvin, 69, of South Yarmouth, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated in St. John's Church April 29.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Mr. Galvin, a Quincy firefighter for 32 years, died April 26 at Cape Cod Hospital, Hyannis, after a brief illness.

Mr. Galvin was president and coach of the North Quincy Apaches with the Pop Warner football league for 20 years.

He retired in 1978.

He was a member of the Quincy Fire Relief Association.

An Army veteran of World War II, he was a member of the Cyril P. Morrissette American Legion Post.

Mr. Galvin was born and educated in Quincy and lived in the city until moving to South Yarmouth six years ago.

Husband of the late J. Patricia (McMahon) Galvin, who died Feb. 11, he is survived by two sons, Gerald J. Galvin Jr. of Norwell, a Quincy firefighter, and Dr. James M. Galvin of Boston; a sister, Mary Harvester of Quincy; and several nieces and nephews and grandnieces and grandnephews.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to a charity of choice.

Simon W. Foley, 71

A funeral Mass for Simon W. Foley, 71, of Quincy, was celebrated April 27 at Sacred Heart Church.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Foley, a Navy veteran of World War II and a retired sheetmetal worker, died April 25 at Quincy Hospital.

A Quincy native, Mr. Foley graduated from Quincy Trade School and worked as an apprentice at Pneumatic Scale Corp. before going to work at the Fore River Shipyard.

Mr. Foley's late father, John Martin Foley, worked at the shipyard from 1902 to 1942 as a framebender.

During World War II, Mr. Foley saw duty in Alaska and in the South Pacific.

After his tour with the Navy he returned to the shipyard and later went to work for the former Kelek Company with whom he was employed for over 30 years before retiring.

Mr. Foley was fond of gardening and especially enjoyed growing tomatoes in his yard. He was also an avid cook and frequently built doll houses for his grandchildren.

Mr. Foley was a member of the Eagles Club and a former member of the Holy Name Society at Sacred Heart Church. He was also a member of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

He is survived by his wife, Margaret E. (Shea) Foley; two sons, Charles M. Foley and James M. Foley, both of Quincy; two daughters, Martha Foley-Locke of Quincy and Loretta M. Cairns of Canton; a sister, Katherine Sparling of Middleboro, and two grandchildren. He was the brother of the late John Foley, Thomas Foley and Margaret M. Foley.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to a charity of choice.

Edward C. Kamps, 84
Retired Railroad Electrician

A memorial service for Edward C. Kamps, 84, of Sedgewick, Me., formerly of Quincy, was held April 27 at the United First Parish Church in Quincy. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Mr. Kamps, a retired New Haven railroad electrician and a Coast Guard veteran, died April 26 at the Ellsworth Convalescent Center in Ellsworth, ME after a brief illness.

Mr. Kamps was harbormaster in Sedgewick.

He was a member of the Sea Scouts and Experimental Air Craft Association and was also active in Camp Fire.

Mr. Kemps was an active member in the Unitarian Churches in Wollaston and Ellsworth.

He is survived by his wife, Irma (Bell) Kamps; three daughters, Adele Gormley of Quincy, Meredith Kennedy of Beverly and Gretchen Ashton of Dorchester; two brothers, Albert Kamps of Pawtucket, R.I. and Harvey Kamps of Dedham; three sisters, Helen Kamps and Pauline Webber, both of Dedham, and Elma Jacklin of New Hampshire; nine grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Memorial donations may be made to the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, Boston.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

It seems that every day, every month and every year has been given to someone, something or some cause. Pick a cause, there's a week for it! May is no exception. It is, among other things, "Senior Citizens Month." We would like to share some thoughts with you on this ...

If you are a Senior Citizen, take a good look at yourself and your peers, and be proud of all you have accomplished ... in the past and now, in your prime. You have the time to do all those things you put off in your youth because "the kids" or "the job" came first.

If you aren't one, take a look at all the senior power that fills your life. You, your family, your town, would be less today without those wonderful folks called "seniors." Take care of "Senior Citizen Month," and hug your favorite seniors today ... and every day ... THEY DESRVE IT!

John Fuller, 81
Active In Scouting 69 Years

A funeral service for John Fuller, 81, active in Quincy scouting with his twin, Buell Fuller, for nearly seven decades, was conducted April 29 at the Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy, by the Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern, pastor of Wollaston Congregational Church.

Mr. Fuller, one of the oldest scouts in the country, died April 27 at Quincy Hospital.

He had been ill for three weeks. He had lived alone since his brother's death in December, 1987, just 17 days after their 80th birthday.

Born in Brooklyn, the brothers moved to Quincy in 1921.

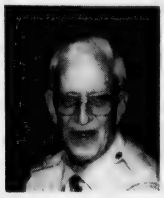
In June 1987, the twins were headed in separate cars to a scouting camp in New Hampshire when Buell's van was hit from behind. After the accident, Buell spent several months at Massachusetts General Hospital and was then transferred to a nursing home.

Aside from Buell's two years in the Air Force more than 40 years ago, the two had never been separated. They even worked for the same company 30 years, Northeast Airlines, retiring 25 years ago.



At age 12, they enrolled as scouts in Milford, Conn., and remained active, making them among the oldest scouts in the country. They danced and sang at jamborees.

While living in Quincy 66 years, they organized the first scout troop for the retarded, Troop 51 of Quincy, and the first Explorer post for the retarded in New England, Post 2 of Milton.

Scouting was so much a part of their lives that the twins' home became a kind of scouts' museum. Binoculars, batteries, a 1916 Boy Scout yearbook and a 1948 Scout Field Book were piled on top and underneath tables.

They never bought just one of anything. They had twin chairs, twin beds, twin coffee mugs, twin hats, coats, shoes and slippers. The first one up in the morning would decide what to wear that day.

They collected everything from Styrofoam Christmas angels to wind-up toys and old clocks and radios.

JOHN FULLER

In 1921, they joined Troop 4, sponsored by Bethany Congregational Church in Quincy, became Eagle Scouts in 1924 and received the Silver Beaner in 1959. In 1927 John became assistant scoutmaster of Troop 14 in Wollaston Congregational Church and was a staff member of Massasoit Camp 1 and 2.

Active in Quincy and Boston Boy Scout Councils, John ran committees for handicapped scouting and was the scouting coordinator for Troop 151, a handicapped scouting troop sponsored by the Quincy Kiwanis Club.

He was a member of the Blue Granite District Committee, the Camp Massasoit Development Committee and was a vigil member of the Order of the Arrow.

Mr. Fuller was a member and a deacon at Wollaston Congregational Church and a former member of the executive board of South Shore Retarded Citizens.

He retired when he was 65 from Northeast Airlines after working in management for more than 30 years. He also operated the Fuller Studio of Marionnettes and Puppets.

He attended Quincy public schools and was a graduate of Quincy High School. He attended the former Vesper George School of Art in Boston's South End.

He is survived by a nephew, David Noel Fuller of Connecticut; and a grandnephew, Jason Fuller. He was the son of the late Almon and Elizabeth Fuller.

Burial was private.

Donations may be made to the Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston, MA 02170.

John J. Ryan, 54

A funeral Mass was celebrated Tuesday at Sacred Heart Church for John J. Ryan, 54, of Quincy. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery, West Quincy.

Mr. Ryan died April 28 at University Hospital, Boston, after a long illness.

Mr. Ryan, a Navy veteran, was a security officer at the Gillette Co. He served for seven years as historian of the Cyril B. Morrisette American Legion Post, was a member of the Bryant VFW Post, the Quincy Veterans Council and the Navy League. He is listed on the Navy Memorial dedicated in 1988 in Washington, D.C.

He was a member of the Quincy Historical Society.

Mr. Ryan, born in Brooklyn, N.Y., lived in Charlestown before moving to Wollaston nine years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Joanne V. (Shaughnessy) Ryan; a son, John J. Ryan of Brooklyn, N.Y.; two daughters, Margaret M. Gates of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Arleen Ryan of Brooklyn; a stepson, William Monaco of Quincy; a brother, Edward J. Ryan of Brooklyn; a sister, Grace Kraft of River's Edge, N.J.; two granddaughters, and several nieces and nephews. He was the son of the late Thomas Ryan and Lillian Ryan and the brother of the late Thomas Ryan and Virginia Bacas.

Austin F. Wilson, 58

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday at St. Nicholas Church in West Abington for Austin F. Wilson, 58, of Quincy who died at home April 28. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery in Brockton.

Mr. Wilson, a courier for Minuteman Messenger, Inc. in Boston, was born in St. John, New Brunswick, Canada, and lived in Cambridge before moving to Quincy.

He was a graduate of St. Mary's Grammar School and Rindge Technical School in Cambridge.

He is survived by two brothers, Alex Wilson of Arlington and Robert Wilson of Lexington; a sister, Mary Breton of Brockton, and 15 nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements are by the Farley Funeral Home in Stoughton.

Keith Westerman Candidate For Ward 4 Council Seat

Keith F. Westerman, business owner, educator and civic volunteer, officially announced his candidacy for Ward 4 councillor Saturday at the Hollow Restaurant in Quincy.

Joined by family, friends and supporters, Westerman pledged to run an aggressive campaign on the themes of "competency, compassion and qualifications."

Regarding his ability to serve competently on the council, Westerman cited his experience in working in the private sector and running his own business.

"Government needs men and women who understand the value of a dollar and how hard it is to make ends meet. As the councillor from Ward 4, I will see to it that fiscal responsibility will serve as my guide when it comes to spending my neighbors' hard-earned dollars," Westerman said.

"I also believe that government exists in order to make a better life possible for all and if that belief requires the expenditure of some city funds to help others, I will vote to do so," he added.

Continuing, Westerman said, "We are a community and compassion requires that we help each other during troubled times. And I am not afraid to say so or do so. It seems that many politicians today refuse to acknowledge that truth when it comes to budgets, be they the state's or the nation's.

KEITH WESTERMAN

"I'll not only tell the truth, I'll let you know that problems are looming. I'll stop the practice of spending without thinking."

Westerman holds a master of science degree from Boston University in mass communications and a bachelor of arts degree in English from the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

Presently studying for an MBA from Lesley College, he is a teacher at Boston University and Suffolk University.

Westerman said his background in state government, national and regional politics, education, community action groups and private business give him a unique perspective and understanding of the issues facing Ward 4 and the rest of the city.

"I know what it takes to run a government body that is part legislative and part political. I have seen it first hand.

"When I served at the highest levels of state government as with Democrat Governor Edward King, I experienced the ins and outs of public service," he said.

Joining Westerman at the affair was his wife, lifelong Quincy resident Constance E. (White) Westerman and Quincy newspaper and cable television personality, Marie D'Olimpio, who is the Westerman Committee chairman.

Anyone wishing to work with the committee or seeking more information on Westerman should contact Marie D'Olimpio at 479-4631.

Tardo Kicks Off Campaign For Councillor At-Large

Denis F. Tardo of Merrymount kicked off his campaign for councillor at-large at a party attended by 150 people recently at the Sons of Italy Social Center.

Tardo spoke briefly on what he called an "unscripted from the heart speech."

Tardo said, "My decision to run to Councillor at-large was based on the fact that I see the major issues facing the City of Quincy as effecting the entire City of Quincy.

"Although I may live in Ward 1, I never thought it was a wise idea to accept the temporary sludge plant in Ward 2. I simply feel that sludge treatment should not be done in Quincy. Although I live in Ward 1, I never believed it was proper to tell the people of Squantum the sludge plant should be just off their shore, I simply believe sludge treatment facilities should not be located that close to the neighborhoods of Quincy.

"I do not agree with the MWRA's purchase of the shipyard. If the MWRA needed 40 acres of land, the MWRA should have leased those 40 acres from the shipbuilders. Instead, the MWRA has set a precedence of land speculation, this agency was not formed to be in the real estate business."

"And can you imagine a delegation of public officials went to Georgia to see if a sludge plant smells? Any one of us could go down the street to Nut Island and tell exactly what that sludge plant is going to smell like. Maybe that's why Paul Levy doesn't want his office located at the shipyard.

DENIS TARDO

"Most recently we hear about Councillors proposing the creation of a new position in the city, someone to attract tourism.

"The City of Quincy has already been labeled as the sludge capitol, we have an understaffed Fire Department, the Police Department cannot keep up with necessary overtime costs, and the School Department may have to lay off teachers, and to save a couple of dollars the city wants citizen groups to adopt traffic islands.

All this at a time when the city is sitting on a reserve of money that would easily fund these necessary and vital services. Instead of using that free cash reserve our councillors are talking about creating new agency positions and even raising taxes to pay for services that should be funded before any money is spent frivolously.

"I believe that before we create new positions and propose new taxes we should first look at our situation, label our priorities, get our basic city services up to par, then let the state Division of Tourism say 'gee, crime is down in Quincy, the streets are safe in Quincy, the neighborhoods are clean the the education system is absolutely the best in Quincy.'

"The State Tourism Department works with the local cities and towns and our city officials should work with the state. In fact the state Film Bureau should be invited to Quincy, with a little cooperation from the city the movie makers would probably come to Quincy and be glad to spruce up the traffic islands, or assist with tourism."

Also in attendance was State Senator Paul Harold, mayoral candidates, James Sheets, Stephen McGrath, Peter O'Connell and Joseph LaRaia. Ward 1 candidates, Peter Kolson and Marcia Olinto, Ward 4 Council candidate, Thomas Frabrizio, School committee candidates, Michael Preble, John McDuff and Gary Fine.

QCA Backs Satellite Treatment Plants

With their own solution in mind, the Quincy Citizens Association is fighting the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority's plans for Boston Harbor and a sludge treatment plant in Quincy.

The QCA "fervently believes the only solution to the Boston Harbor clean up is to build community-group satellite treatment plants upstream, instead of bringing all sewerage to Deer Island and sludge to Quincy."

According to a recent QCA newsletter, the association has contacted Judge A. David Mazzone, Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry and Congressman Brian Donnelly as well as Paul Harold and the city's three representatives, Robert Cerasoli, Michael Morrissey and Steve Tobin.

The QCA wants these officials to intervene with the MWRA's plans before the authority's plans "can't be stopped."

Law Day Awards Presented At Quincy Court

Delahunt: McIntyre Ultimate Public Servant

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Describing him as the "ultimate public servant," Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt accepted the James R. McIntyre Humanitarian Award during the 15th annual Quincy District Court's Law Day ceremony last Friday.

Delahunt, who has been district attorney since 1975, was presented the award by Mrs. Sheila McIntyre and Clerk-Magistrate Arthur Tobin, last year's recipient.

The ceremony was attended by approximately 150 people, including court officials, attorneys, police officers, family and friends.

Other awards presented were the Robert F. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement, Jason Feldman Special Citizen Award; South Shore Chamber of Commerce Award and the Dennis F. Ryan Essay Contest Awards.

In accepting his award, Delahunt paid tribute to McIntyre, calling him a rare individual, a true leader. He also said the award is important to him because McIntyre was the ultimate public servant whose impact has gone beyond the Quincy-South Shore area.

McIntyre, a former mayor and councillor in Quincy as well as state senator, died in March of 1984. He is thought of as the architect of modern Quincy.

"This particular award is particularly important to me and not just because Jim McIntyre became a dear friend of mine and not just because he was my political mentor and not just because I enjoyed his humor, his wit and not just because he gave me good advice but because to me Jim McIntyre was the ultimate public servant, Delahunt said.

"Jim McIntyre made a contribution to this community, and I don't just mean the city of Quincy. I mean this region, this area, the South Shore.

"He made an impact on people's lives," he said, adding that McIntyre's impact went "far beyond" his service as mayor and state senator.

"He really did alter the course of history in this little piece of the world. What Jim McIntyre did during his lifetime has made this area a better place for all of us."

Continuing, Delahunt said McIntyre attained what other public officials should strive for: a higher quality of life for people and a stronger sense of community.

"Those of us who are in public service, I think we all measure ourselves in terms of our legacy, by that standard of how did we impact people.

"Did we change things for the better? Did we, with our efforts, bring a higher sense of community?

"Jim McIntyre certainly did."

Furthermore, Delahunt said that the late mayor-senator is probably the only person, aside from his parents, who impacted his life so significantly.

"I know he is here today and I know he is smiling. I know he's enjoying my belated eulogy because I know I speak for all of us who knew him that we care for you, we still love you, Jim McIntyre and we miss your wit, your humor, your counsel and your guidance.

"It is a sad day when that rare individual, that true leader leaves us behind," Delahunt said.

"But I hope that all of us collectively can fill that vacuum and make you proud of us, Jim McIntyre."

"There's nothing so strong and safe in any emergency of life as the simple truth. I just thought it would be kind of appropriate for a district attorney that cherishes the simple truth," she said referring to Delahunt.

Tobin, who was mayor of Quincy before becoming clerk magistrate and last year's award recipient, said McIntyre was a role model for both him and Delahunt.

"I know he's very proud of you this morning, Bill," Tobin told Delahunt.

"We have a lot to be thankful for and grateful for because in this jurisdiction we have the finest police departments in the state and probably the country."

Six South Shore police officers received the Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award for Law Enforcement. The award is named in honor of a Metropolitan Police officer who was killed in the line of duty on March 25, 1984.

In his memory, the award is presented each year by the court.

This year's recipients were: Lt. Detective Donald M. Murphy of Braintree Police, Officers John E. Lank, Michael A. Devin and Richard B. Mearn of Milton Police, and State troopers Robert P. Blazuk and Joh J. Maloney.

Locally, four Quincy police officers were among 26 officers from the South Shore area who received the Jason Feldman Special Citizen Award for outstanding service and contribution to the Quincy District Court.

They are: Lt. Donald Riley, Det. Barbara DiNatale, Det. Paul Hussey and Det. Kathleen Roche.

In addition, three Quincy students were honored for finishing first in the Dennis F. Ryan Essay Contest.

This year's theme was "If Convicted, Should Oliver North Be Pardoned by President George Bush?"

The final presentation was the awarding of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Award to Emerge, a men's counseling center on domestic violence.

The group's goal is to end assaults by men against their mates. Composed of 20 members and volunteers, they provide counseling to assist men to understand the causes of their violent behavior and find other ways to deal with their frustrations and anger.

In making the presentation, Kramer lauded the group's efforts and thanked the Chamber for sponsoring the award.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Tax-deductible home equity loans best bet for home improvements

With the most sweeping federal income tax overhaul in more than 40 years in effect for only a few months now, many consumers are still bewildered by its many changes.

If you were planning a home improvement project, and have temporarily put it on hold because you thought you could no longer deduct the interest from charging such work, consider a home equity loan.

The interest on home equity loans, which are loans secured by homes or condominiums, is still deductible under the new tax plan. Therefore, home equity loans have become a better way to finance home improvements than credit cards and other types of bank loans.

With a home equity loan the amount you can borrow is calculated on a percentage (usually 75 to 80 percent) of your home's appraised value minus the unpaid balance of your mortgage.

One of the best home improvement projects to consider right now, in terms of increasing your home's resale value, is the addition of energy-saving products such as fiber glass insulation.

Increasing your home's energy efficiency pays immediate dividends in the form of lower fuel bills. Adding CertainTeed's Fiber Glass Batts or Rolls yourself to an entire house will cost roughly $1,200, but will add approximately $1,000 (83 percent return on your investment) to its equity financing value in the eyes of a mortgage lender.

If you're interested in more information on insulation home improvements, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482, for a free copy of "How To Insulate."

Hardwood kitchen cabinets improve home's resale value

Americans spend $8.7 billion a year to remodel their kitchens, and what's their overwhelming preference for kitchen cabinets?

Hardwoods. Oak, ash, maple, cherry, hickory and alder are among the hardwoods that make up some 70 percent of remodeled kitchens in the U.S.

The reasons are clear: Hardwoods are natural materials that improve a home's resale value.

With infinite variety in color and grain patterns, solid hardwoods add warmth and character without the artificial and perhaps dated look of some synthetic materials.

In fact, real estate appraisers say homeowners can recover close to 100 percent of their investment if they update and renovate their kitchens with upgraded appliances, efficient work areas and hardwood cabinetry.

It's a rule of thumb that the higher the quality of material used when remodeling your kitchen, the greater the cost recovery when you sell your home.

Hardwood cabinets aren't the only ways to add value in your kitchen. Hardwoods also are the preferred choice for natural value in:

- Countertops;
- Flooring;
- Doors;
- Paneling, decorative moulding and wainscoting.

For more information about hardwood cabinetry, write for this free booklet from the Hardwood Manufacturers Association: Heart of the Home, Department H, Hardwood Manufacturers Association, 4240 Greensburg Pike, Suite 103, Pittsburgh, PA 15221.

Convenience is the ultimate bathroom luxury

Today's upscale consumers demand bathrooms that are beautiful. Contemporary baths have evolved from small, clinical spaces with minimal fixtures into grand showpieces.

These baths include fantastic whirlpool tubs, his and her pedestal lavatories, separate showers, marble floors and gold faucets. The fixtures and surfaces are opulent and elegant, but alone cannot achieve true luxury.

BATHROOM STORAGE can be beautiful.

True luxury is convenience and comfort... a bathroom that provides not only escape from society's pressures but also creative, time-saving storage solutions to ease a hectic lifestyle.

Imagine the luxury of everything in its place... accessible storage for health and beauty aids, linens and clothing.

Imagine the luxury of bath cabinetry flexible enough to store cleaning products and fitness equipment; creative enough to prevent morning traffic jams in the bathroom.

This luxury of convenience is achieved with built-in cabinets, such as ALNOSPA, the bath line from ALNO Kitchen Cabinets, Inc.

ALNOSPA offers storage convenience in a beautiful way. The soft shapes and colors of this European cabinetry enhance the elegance of other bath products.

European bath cabinets are available in durable, easily cleaned laminates, lacquers and veneers to harmonize with any decor.

Shades that turn off summer heat

"We want to keep the sun out and cool air in." "We'd like to keep our rooms cooler without blocking all natural sunlight." These comments are being echoed by consumers, as they plan ways to keep their homes cooler while reducing air conditioning costs.

Pleated fabric shades were invented by Verosol to insulate homes stylishly on scorchy summer days. In fact, a recent study of rooms subjected to intense summer sunlight found that Verosol's metallized pleated shades were the most effective of seven window coverings tested in keeping rooms cooler.

The metallized pleated fabric shades reduce directly-transmitted solar energy by up to 80 percent. Other window treatments tested ranged from draperies to aluminum blinds. In addition, research shows that, during winter months, pleated shades provide insulation equal to a storm window.

The key to the energy efficiency of pleated shades can be traced to an ultra-thin layer of aluminum bonded to the fabric. In addition to keeping rooms cooler in summer, metallized pleated shades protect against sunlight which can fade furnishings.

Consumers, troubled by other window treatments that soil easily and are difficult to clean, have discovered that metallized pleated shades actually repel dust and require little care.

While pleated shades are quite functional, fashion remains a significant reason for their surging popularity. Pleated shades offer a stylish, flexible design in colors and textures that complement any decor from Art Deco living rooms to country kitchens.

Also, while taking the heat off homes, sheer metallized pleated shades allow a view to the outside so that the beauty of a window can still be appreciated. Pleated shades are also available in opaque fabrics for optimum privacy.

Pleated shades by Verosol USA are available in more than 300 colors. For the retailer nearest you, contact the Marketing Department at Verosol USA Inc., 224 RIDC Park West Drive, Pittsburgh, PA 15275 or call 800-252-2512.

Former Resident Fighting Leukemia With Courage And Help

By JANE ARENA

George Murray, 16, a former Quincy resident who moved with his family to Hanson about 12 years ago, is fighting a difficult battle.

He was admitted to the New England Medical Center where he stayed for eight weeks undergoing chemotherapy treatments in preparation for a bone marrow transplant.

when he first entered the hospital, George, an avid Celtics' fan, told the doctors that they could do whatever they needed, but that he had to be able to go to a Celtics game he had tickets for in January. The doctors told him they couldn't promise anything.

As the day of the game approached, George, determined to go to the game, never had any doubt taht he would — chemotherapy or not. The doctors said they would give him a pass to go to the game if they were sure he was well enough to leave.

Doctors were amazed at George's positive attitude and say that this and his sense of humor have greatly aided his fight. But George is not fighting alone.

When a neighbor told the Sullivan Tire Company about George's situation and his determination to go to the Celtics game, the company made sure that he want in style. The arranged for a limousine to Boston Garden and a sky box for George and his family. After the game, George was invited down to the court where he met some of the team and was presented an official team jacket.

Back at the hospital, George received a visit from Bruins star Ray Bourque.

Another neighbor told the Children's Happiness Foundation, a Marshfield-based organization to help seriously ill children, about George's condition. They were able to fulfill George's wish for a state-of-the-art family entertainment center — complete with TV, VCR, CD player and stereo system.

Fr. Ed. Mclaughlin, pastor of St. Joseph the Worker Church in Hanson, was able to make another wish come true when he gave George a purebred Labrador Retriever.

George's high school held a benefit dance which raised $1000 for him, and his classmates have sent him hundreds of cards.

George's parents, Diane and George Murray, are overwhelmed by the outpouring of community support they've received.

Although they had medical insurance to cover the illness, his parents must pay for the prescription drugs George will be on for the rest of his life. The policy also does not cover the incidental costs of the illness such as the $150 in gasoline and parking expenses so that they can be with George at the hospital.

His mother, Diane, has taken a leave of absence from her job as a bookkeeper for Purity Supreme in Weymouth so that she can visit him daily. His father, a letter carrier for the Wollaston Post Office for 18 years, also makes the trip daily.

In March, George underwent the bone marrow transplant. His 20-year old sister, Diane was the donor for the operation. She was the only one of his two brothers and three sisters whose bone marrow exactly matched George's.

Now he will remain under care at the Child's Medical Center Bone Marrow Unit until doctors are certain that the transplant will not be rejected. He won't be able to return to school until October.

Through it all, George has maintained his sense of humor and his positive outlook. He is a brave and determined young man.

For anyone wishing to help him in his fight, a fund has been established and contributions may be sent to The George Murray Fund, c/o Rockland Trust Company, Hanson Branch, Hanson Shopping Plaza, Hanson, MA 02341.

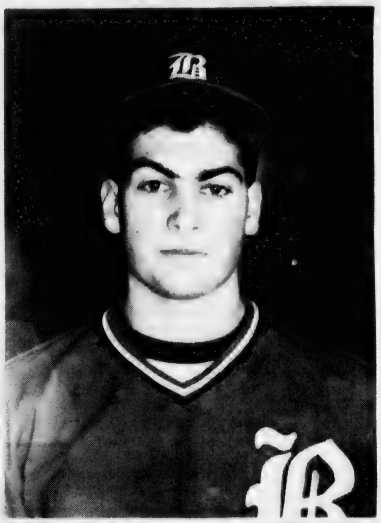
Ineffective Pitching Hurting Winless Quincy

With the season half over and Quincy's baseball team sporting a 0-9 record, coach Bob Sylvia is looking to next season and is using more and more of his younger players.

The Presidents, who were walloped by undefeated Brockton, 10-0, Monday, face North Quincy today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Adams Field, will host Newton North Monday at 3:30 at Adams and will play at Waltham next Wednesday.



Last week Quincy had its best hitting day of the year, but more ineffective pitching gave Brookline a 13-8 victory.

Mike Noonan had three hits and Steve McGinnis had two for the Presidents. McGinnis' double drove in Rich Kisiel and Pat Gallagher to make it 9-8 but Quincy was stopped after that as Brookline added four more runs.

"I'm now using our younger players in hopes that it will pay off for us next season," said Sylvia. "We are going nowhere this year and I feel it is more positive to use the younger players and look to the future."

—TOM SULLIVAN

STEVE HAPPAS of Quincy is a sophomore pitcher-catcher for the Bridgewater State College baseball team. Happas graduated from North Quincy High, where he played baseball and football. He is the son of George Happas.

North Finding Going Rough

The North Quincy baseball team continues to find the going rough and a 5-2 loss to Newton North Monday dropped the Raiders' record to 3-8.

Leo Donovan's North team faces Quincy today (Thursday) at 3:30 at Adams Field, will play at Brookline Monday and will be home to Brockton next Wednesday at 3:30 at Adams.

North got off to a good start Monday, scoring both runs in the top of the first at Newton, but was stopped the rest of the way.

Jeff Calvert singled, went to third on a double by Tony Anderlionis and both scored on George Rozanitis' double.

Kevin MacDougall was the losing pitcher, giving up 10 hits and giving four walks.

North was edged by Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 4-3, last week with Erik Deboer the losing pitcher, evening his record at 2-2. DeBoer gave up six hits, walked two and struck out six.

Rozanitis had two singles, Billy MacDougall a triple and Anderlionis a single.

After Batting Feast Famine Sets In On North Girls

After scoring 45 runs in three games last week and winning two to even its record at 3-3, the North Quincy softball team was blanked by Newton North, 8-0, on Monday.

The Raiderettes play Quincy today (Thursday) at Faxon Field, will host Brookline Monday and will play at Brockton next Wednesday.

Last Friday North rolled over Notre Dame of Hingham, 21-11, in a non-league game as Soyon Park had five RBI with a triple, double and single.

Kristen Golden had four hits, Crystal Moffett three RBI and Kristen Drake and Kerry Tolson had three hits each. Drake was the winning pitcher, going all the way.

In their previous game the Raiderettes topped Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 13-5, with Drake pitching a three-hitter and hitting a grand slam home run.

Paula Tolson went three for five and Michelle Lynch had two hits.

Earlier the North girls dropped a 12-11 decision to Everett.

Terry Goodwin's three-run triple capped a six-run rally in the six inning for North, but Everett pulled out the win with a run in the seventh.

Park went three for four for the Raiderettes.

Meanwhile, the Quincy girls, who lost to Brockton, 8-1, Monday, pulled out a wild 21-20 decision over Brookline last week. The First Ladies are 2-5.

Christine Barrett and Jen Dondaro each were three for four for Quincy as the team had leads of 8-1 and 14-6 before Brookline tied the score at 14-14 in the fourth. Quincy took a 21-16 lead into the seventh. Janee McMakin contributed two hits for RBIs for Quincy.

The First Ladies play North Quincy today (Thursday), will be at Newton North Monday and will host Waltham next Wednesday.

Morrisette Tryouts Saturday, Sunday

Tryouts for the 1989 Morrisette Legion baseball team will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 6 and 7, at 1 p.m. at O'Rourke Field, Quarry St., West Quincy.

Any Quincy resident who will not become 19 before Aug. 1, 1989, regardless of the school they attend, is eligible to attend the tryouts.

Should it rain, tryouts will be held every Saturday and Sunday during the month of May at O'Rourke Field at 1 p.m.

This year's league is comprised of ten teams from the South Shore area. Competition starts June 7 and continues through the last week of July with each team playing an 18 game schedule.

Purdy Wins Decision

Danny Purdy of South Quincy won a unanimous decision over Juan Gonzales of Coventry, R.I., at the Coventry Community Center to win the New England Junior Olympic 60-pound championship.

Purdy is coached by Dick Mullaly.

Quincy Girls Blank North

The Quincy High girls' tennis team bounced back from a 3-2 loss to Silver Lake to blank North Quincy, 5-0, last week in its Suburban League opener.

Shirley Laing's First Ladies host Brookline today (Thursday) and will play at Waltham next Tuesday.

Jennifer D'Allessandro, a sophomore who played last year, is Quincy's number one singles player and another veteran, Elizabeth Vo, is number two.

Patricia Stewart is the third singles player but Arlene Amo filled in for her and did a fine job against North Quincy.

Laing has a solid first doubles team of Mary Vo and Carolyn Busby, that the second doubles team is up in the air. Maureen Cloonan is one of the players and the other one will be either Alina Mak, Debbie Brown or Kelli Galligan.

Sarah Joyce and Sandy Mak are other girls who will see action.

"We had a fine turnout of 25 and the girls are working very hard," said Laing. "We didn't have all our players against Silver Lake and the girls did very well in the win over North Quincy."

—TOM SULLIVAN

Wollaston Legion Tryouts Scheduled

The Wollaston Legion baseball team will hold tryouts this Saturday at 9 a.m. at O'Rourke Field, Sunday at 1 p.m. at Merrymount Park, May 13 at 9 at O'Rourke and May 14 at 1 at Merrymount.

Under 12 Team Wins Two Shutouts

The Quincy Youth Soccer League boys' under 12 Division II sponsored by Flemming and Langlois, team, blanked Sharon, 2-0, and Rockland, 9-0 last weekend.

Tommy Sullivan and Chris Erler scored against Sharon with assists for Peter Johnson and Anthony Chella. Tom Cunio had a fine game in goal and Matt Jarnis, Jared Rowland and Randy Milburn played strong defense.

Chella had two goals against Rockland and Johnson, Sullivan, Erler, Geoff Meade, Joe McCarthy, Brian Littlewood and Eric Wirtz one each. Meade and Danny Stone had two assists apiece and Cunio, Milburn, Rowland, Jarnis, Joe Tucker and Paul Princiotto one each. Stone, Littlewood and Johnson held the midfield in control, limiting Rockland to just two shots on Sullivan in the first half and no shots against Cunio in the second half.

Girls Under 10 Tie Raynham, 2-2

The Quincy Youth Soccer League girls' under 10 Division I team, sponsored by Mul's Restaurant a South Boston, played to a 2-2 tie with previously unbeaten and unscored-upon Raynham last weekend.

Fullbacks Jill Picardi, Colleen Donahue and Jennifer Starsiak played tenacious defense in front of goalie Erin Barry. Halfbacks Betsy Stone, Brenda Linehan and Lauren Lumaghini played position soccer, controlling the midfield and Kristyn Stenberg and Christine Goff provided excellent support on the outside. Siobhan O'Connor gave the team speed on the wing and solid inside passing.

Special Needs Team Defeats Weymouth

By BRUCE WOOD

The Quincy Youth Soccer League Special Needs team defeated Weymouth, 4-2, last weekend.

Billy Skehan, Stephen McMahon, Kenny Duncan and Debbie McGrath scored the Quincy goals and Katlyn Loiter had an assist.

The results of the weekend's QYSL games:

MacLennan, Matarazzo Teams Tied In St. John's League

With only one week remaining, Lew MacLennan's team and Joe Matarazzo's team are tied for first place in St. John's Holy Name Bowling League.

Jim Mastrantonio rolled the weekly high single of 121 and Bud McAllister had 313. Mastrantonio and Saluti tied for the high three of 313.

Matarazzo's team rolled the high team single of 482 and the high team three of 1360.

Shaughnessy Shines At Curry

He recently pitched all the way to defeat Salve Regina, 6-3, in a qualifying game for the Commonwealth Coast Conference playoffs.

Curry lost to Wentworth, 6-5, in 10 innings in the first round of the playoffs.

Shaughnessy is also one of the top hitters for the Colonels and in the game against Wentworth he had three hits.

Cambridge Too Much For North Boys

The North Quincy boys' track team opened last week and proved no match for Cambridge Rindge and Latin, annually one of the best in the state, bowing, 109-33.

The Raiders will face Brockton, another powerhouse, Friday at Brockton at 3:30 and will meet Brookline Tuesday at Newton North, also at 3:30.

North had only two individual winners, John O'Donnell in the high jump (5-6) and Patrick Renzi in the discus (109-8). The 4x100 relay team of Wayne Sit, Mike Murray, Andy McPhee and Rapuzo also won (50.07).

Placing second were Sit, 100; George Gavros, 880; Brian Barrett, two-mile; and Adam Strout, javelin.

Taking third places were Quan Le, 440; Peter Wildes, 880; Jim Chou, 110 hurdles; Desmond Bellott, high jump; Evan Kiley, shot put, and Mark Cocuzzo, javelin.

And Girls, Too

The North Quincy girls' track team made a good showing against perennial Suburban League power Cambridge and Latin, but Cambridge's dominance in the running events led to a 77-54 victory over the Raiderettes (1-1).

The North girls will be at Brockton, another league powerhouse, today (Thursday) at 3:30 and will host Brookline next Wednesday at 3:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium. They also will compete in the Falmouth Invitational meet this Sunday.

Karin Reister competing in her first meet, was a double winner and led the Raiderettes to sweeps in the discus and javelin. She qualified for the state championships in both events.

North's winners were Reister in the discus (91-5) and javelin (91-9); Kara Sullivan, two-mile (13.52.1), and Deirdre Murphy, shot put (30-0).

Second places were taken by Robin Guilfoy, 100, 200 and shot put; Janet Corrigan, two-mile; Amanda Young, 300 hurdles and triple jump; Murphy, discus, and Sullivan, javelin.

Placing third were Tricia Hughes, long jump and 400; Karen Cashman, 800 and triple jump; Joanne Moriarty, mile; Danielle Lewis, two-mile; Tristen Mastrogiacomo, 100 hurdles; Sullivan, 300 hurdles; Guilfoy, discus, and Tara Miles, javelin.

"I was pleased with the team's performance," said coach Jeff Hennessy. "We have so many inexperienced people, and they are doing great, but we'll take our lumps early and often with the league as tough as it is. We are planning for the future.

"I'd like to single out freshman Tricia Hughes as a bright star against Cambridge. She cleared 4-6 in her first high jump ever in competition, only to have Cambridge sweep the event, she ran 65.4 in the 400 and did 14-5 in the long jump. She'll be heard from very soon. My assistant, Earl Metzler, has been working with her closely and is doing a great job."

Pratt Directing Clinic For Women Coaches-Officials

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's Mary Pratt, longtime physical education teacher and coach in the Quincy school system and a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame, has been outspoken about the lack of women coaches and game officials.

Mary, one of the outstanding female athletes ever to come out of New England, a player in the old Girls' Professional Baseball League and a member of the MIAA Games Officials Committee, plans to do something about it.

She will direct a softball camp and coach/officials clinic conducted in conjunction with New Agenda: Northeast (advancing the role of women in sports) Monday through Friday, June 26-30, at the Braintree High School fields.

Morning sessions will be held from 9 to noon, afternoon sessions from 1 to 4 p.m. and evening sessions from 6 to 8 p.m.

Tuition for the softball camp is $50 with a non-refundable deposit of $25 and a coaching/officiating school $25 with a non-refundable deposit of $10.

Registration and deposit are due by June 1 with the balance due on June 26.

Checks made payable to New Agenda: Northeast Play Ball Softball Camp should be mailed to Mary Pratt, director, 1428 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy 02169.

Other camp clinicians will include Barbara Webster, North Quincy softball coach and former Quincy coach, a physical education teacher at North Quincy and an executive board member, Boston Board of Officials, and Mary Lydon, a physical education teacher and coach in the Quincy schools and a director of New Agenda: Northeast.

Also, Maureen Connolly, physical education teacher and coach at Braintree High; Cindy Hemengway, physical education teacher, college varisty softball player and a member of the Boston Board of Officials; Barbara Mahar, physical education teacher and coach at Braintree High,

MARY PRATT

"Back in 1987 we held our first conference at the Park Plaza in Boston as part of a nationwide project and we designated ours as New Agenda-Northeast," Miss Pratt said. "This New Agenda project is currently under way in Colorado, Kentucky, and Pennsylvania.

"We held our second conference last fall at Smith College and will hold our thrid at Simmons College next Dec. 2-3 as a part of their dedication of the new athletic complex. The motive behind New Agenda is to bring an awareness to the fact that although Title IX mandated equal opportunities to all, there has been a decided decline in the numbers of women involved in coaching, officiating and administration of their sports. Many more girls and women are competing as evidenced by the increase in leagues and tour increase in leagues and tournament play on both high school and college levels.

"Our previous conferences have organized in the form of seminars at which time we have had speakers from all New England states and other states who have addressed our concern over the decrease in the involvement of women in leadership roles. They have also been planning strategies in an attempt to overcome this state of affairs.

"My contributions will be our first operation at the "grassroots." We hope to attract high school, college and women working inside and outside of the home who might be interested in becoming coaches or officials. This will be the workshop phase of our week-long endeavor.

"We also hope to attract middle school and high school girls who would be interested in improving their skills in the game of softball. The unique feature will be that all the clinicians are women experienced in every facet of the game. All are professionally trained physical educators, all have coached, some are officials and all have played the game and all recognize the importance of offering to girls a positive female role model for competitive sports.

"Coaching and officiating offer a wonderful opportunity for women to experience the fun and enjoyment that can come from working with young people. Current pay and fees offer women an opportunity to earn extra money, a situation that didn't always exist. For many years women coached with no renumeration for their services."

Those attending the softball camp should come each morning with proper attire, preferably shorts and a warmup suit, sneakers or any rubber cleated shoe. No lunches will be provided so campers should bring a brown bag lunch and something to drink. A softball glove is a necessity. Balls and bats will be provided, as will other essentials necessary for officiating.

Underwater Dive Team Seeking Funds To Replace Old Truck

The Quincy Underwater Recovery Dive Team, a division of the Quincy Civil Defense Agency, is launching a fund raising drive to replace its worn-out truck.

The Dive Team assists the Quincy Police Department, the U.S. Coast Guard, and other Eastern Massachusetts police departments. Its most important task is the recovery of drowning victims, but it also assists in the recovery of evidence required by the courts and performs other underwater tasks requested by law enforcement agencies. The team members also participate in other Civil Defense duties such as pumping out basements and cleaning streets after floods or hurricanes.

The present truck is over thirty years old and beyond repair. Without a truck the team is operating under a severe handicap. The Dive Team is appealing to area citizens and businesses for contributions.

Contributions may be sent to: Quincy Underwater Dive Team, 55 Sea St., Quincy 02169. For further information call 472-6118, ext. 241.

Lombardi's Leads Olindy's All-Stars

Lombardi's Auto Cleaning continues to lead Olindy's Junior All-Star Bowling League with a 59-19 record, followed by Mike's Auto Body at 52-26.

The rest of the standings: Scarry Realty, 43-35; Goodhue's, 41-37; Marchionne Insurance, Eco Muffler and Tony's, 39-39; Fore River Motors, 38-40; Quincy Savings Bank, 37-41; Dom's, 32-46; Finian's, 23-55, and Patriot Glass, 22-56.

Team of the week was Marchionne as all bowlers rolled over their average and took four points from Goodhue's. It had a high single of 390 and high three of 1109. Tim Johnson bowled 117-276, Greg Campbell 85-258, Leanne Gundell 89-249 and John Swett 76-257.

Bowlers of the week were Campbell, who rolled 69 pins over his average with his new high single of 92 and high three of 258; Michael Lombardi, 50 pins over his average with a personal high three of 323; Michael Kennedy, 48 pins over his average; Chris Cohen, 45 pins over his average with a high single of 79 and high three of 213; Dianne McGunigle, 48 pins over her average with a personal high single of 84 and high three of 248, and Sharon Durgin, 29 pins over her average.

Mass. Patriots Team 18th In Texas Tourney

Quincy High's Amy Guidice, North Quincy's Deirdre Murphy and Holly Rendle and Abp. Williams' Erin Murray led the Mass. Patriots traveling elite volleyball team to an 18th place finish in the Texas Tournament which featured 45 of the top teams in the country.

The tournament was won by Las Vegas, the number two team in the nation, which has players from three different states.

Coach Ray Whitehouse of Quincy had high praise for his team in general, but especially for the three Quincy players, whom he has coached since they were in the seventh grade at Central Middle School.

"Amy and Deirdre were dominating at times against national competition," he said. "Both never gave up and would fit in well with any top ten team. Holly is an outstanding defensive player who is the glue of our defense. Erin is a well-rounded player who hits, blocks and sets well.

"This team could be the best I have coached. I'm not sure if people realize how dedicated these kids are. There are seven players on the team and all are high school captains, all are Globe All-Scholastic and all will play volleyball at Division I colleges next year, four on full scholarships."

The Patriots were 6-3 in the Texas tournament, being eliminated by the Houston Juniors in the quarterfinals.

"Amy and I exchanged a few laughs when we met Las Vegas," Whitehouse said, "She is a 5-10 leaper and was expected to block Las Vegas' 6-4 middle blocker. The first two balls hit went right over Amy's head and both of us were amazed."

Guidice and Murphy then were assigned to block the 6-4 middle blocker and the 6-3 right side hitter. "We did shut them down, but that left their two outside hitters pretty much alone and they killed us," Whitehouse said. The Patriots lost, 15-9, 15-6.

The Patriots then won six in a row to sweep into the playoffs, their victims including Audtin, Westside (Houston area), Louisiana and a Colorado team.

"This was a good tune-up," Whitehouse said. "We need some offensive help and we plan on emphazing Erin Murray more. We feel she can become a dominant offensive force."

The Patriots will travel to Michigan this month and California in June. They also will compete for the national championship in July, one of the top 50 teams in the country.

"This is great training for the kids," said Whitehouse. "They need this to be able to step right in and contribute for their colleges. These kids have goals to start for us and to start for their colleges, so motivation is no problem."

Guidice will attend Drexel University, Murphy will go to Seton Hall, Rendle will go to Colgate and Murray will attend Georgetown.

'For Kid's Sake' Bowl-a-thon May 7

The South Shore Big Brother/Sister Association, 772 Hancock St., Quincy, will hold its second annual Bowl for Kids' Sake Benefit Bowl-a-Thon Sunday, May 7 from noon to 4 p.m. at the Bowl-A-Way in East Weymouth.

Proceeds raised through sponsorship will be used to strike up matches for the many boys and girls waiting for Big Brother and Big Sister volunteers on the South Shore. The organization is in its fourth year of matching area children with positive adult role models.

Local businesses are invited to participate through team sponsorship, lane sponsorship, donations and door-prize contributions.

Bowling participants will enjoy free food, free bowling, free shoe rental and prize giveaways.

In addition, New England Patriot Quarterback Steve Grogan will keep the excitement rolling with a special guest appearance. The veteran quarterback will be available to sign autographs, announce the team captain prize winner and meet the bowlers.

According to Big Sister Branch Administator Laura Kuperman, the organization hopes to exceed the $13,005 it raised last year.

"It takes up to $1,000 to maintain a match," Kuperman said.

2 Quincy Students On Xaverian Headmaster's List

Two Quincy students at Xaverian Brothers High School, Westwood, have been named to the Headmaster's List for the second marking period of the 1988-89 academic year.

5% To 9% Hike In Water Rates

The city's water rates will increase five to nine percent depending on usage effective this July, announces Paul Anderson, commissioner of Public Works.

Anderson cited a 24 percent increase in the MWRA water assessment as the chief reason for implementing the increase. The MWRA assessment, which is the city's wholesale cost for water, will rise from approximately $1.8 million to $2.3 million in fiscal 1990. This represents 83 percent of the total increase of the cost of purveying water.

Anderson pointed out that Quincy continues to use an increasing block rate structure in an effort to encourage conservation.

The new rate will hold the minimum bill at the current $21 flat fee. This means most very small water users, such as senior citizens and single persons, will see no increase.

The average family will see a five percent increase while the largest users such as the MWRA will see a nine percent increase, Anderson noted.

Council Shoots Down Excise Tax On Motels

Instead, Nutley said the council should be encouraging the mayor to "spend a little of the free cash" in order to get some of the specialty officers back to their training duties.

Last week, after Finn announced the reassignment, McCauley said he would not give police more money. That situation could change when the city's local aid amount for fiscal 1990 is known at the end of the summer or the early fall.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, who said he supports more funding for public safety and schools, said he supports a sewer user fee over the hotel tax.

"I don't think (the hotel tax) is going to help us any. Let's face it, $76,000 is just a drop in the bucket," he said, adding that a sewer user fee would raise more money and be fairer to the entire community.

Also speaking against the idea were Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets.

Although he knew he didn't have the support, Cheney still called for a vote becaue he felt the matter had been in committee long enough. He said it would be unfair to the hotel community to leave the issue in committee.

Several business owners and leaders also spoke out against the proposal.

Before the council acted, several business owners and leaders said the tax could lead to economic troubles in Quincy.

Noting that his motel has tried to keep its prices low enough to attract customers, President's City Motel Owner Loren Strout said the new tax would run him out of business by 1990.

Maureen Rogers, community development manager for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce said that tax would be a "disservice to the four motels in Quincy."

However, the issue of taxing motels in Quincy may not be over. There was some discussion on the possibility of a tax after two large hotels, one at Crown Colony and another at Marina Bay, are built.

Rogers said "It would be beneficial to wait until the two proposed hotels are built" before deciding on a tax.

George Riley, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association said, "We think at this point just taxing smaller motels doesn't make any sense."

Request For Vending Cart License Withdrawn

On the advice of the License Board Tuesday, Mark Campbell withdrew without prejudice a request for a common victualer license to operate Supreme Sausage, a mobile vending cart, from 10 Ash St.

Campbell told the board he intended to serve area business men who were on foot during the summer and that his hours of operation would be from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The board said that a vending cart business for take out only in not permissable in the area, which is zoned Business 'C' and that only a permanent structure with seating would be allowed in the area.

Campbell noted that the Marina Bay area currently has two such vending carts in business.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said that those carts are permissable because they are extensions of existing restaurants on Marina Bay. No independent vending carts have been allowed to operate from Marina Bay, she said, and the board must be consistent in the matter.

Chairman John Gillis suggested that the request be withdrawn without prejudice so that Campbell can look into the matter further and reapply if necessary.

Burger King Seeks To Serve Breakfast

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday continued for two weeks a hearing on a request from Burger King, 670 Adams St., to extend the operating hours of the store from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. so that the store can serve breakfast to their customers.

Randi E. Eisner of Heale and Dorr in Boston, attorney for Burger King, noted that the Adams St. store is the only Burger King in New England not presently serving breakfast.

She also told the board that the license currently held by Burger King limits only the closing hour of the restaurant and not the opening hour, but that permission is being sought by the board.

Chairman John Gillis said that before a decision is made, the residents of the area and Ward Four Councillor James Sheets must be notified and a neighborhood meeting held.

Eisner agreed to the need for a neighborhood meeting, but told the board that her own traffic study of the area concluded, in her opinion, that traffic flow would not be increased by the extended hours. She said that customers frequently drive into the restaurant in the morning assuming that it is open for breakfast.

She also explained that several other area businesses, including Montilio's Bakery and a Curtis Store, are currently opened during the breakfast hours.

Burger King is planning a total renovation of the establishment which will include the addition of a landscaped buffer zone to aid in the reduction of trash in the area, she added.

The board continued the hearing for two weeks to give time for Councillor Sheets to hold a neighborhood meeting on the matter.

Sheets Says Residents Most Concerned About Sludge Plant, Education

Ward 4 Councillor and mayoral candidate James Sheets told the Quincy Lions Club that residents seem to be concerned about a proposed sludge plant at the former General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy Point.

While speaking at a recent club meeting at the Neighborhood Center in Quincy, Sheets also said education is also a major and increasing concern among residents.

During his address, he once again urged Mayor Francis McCauley to adopt his council recommendation for a task force to "zero in" on the fact that compost plants are "primitive" and simply do not work.

He also referred to MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy's comment that the compost plant in Akron was more in keeping with the design for the one in Quincy.

Sheets indicated that the director of the plant had been contacted in Akron, and that first of all, the plant was located well outside suburban Akron in a very remote area.

Secondly, there were reports of an odor problem and $10 million is needed to be spent to correct it. Sheets said he doubts that it can ever be corrected and the task force must collect these facts and present them to the governor, the legislature, the state and federal environmental agencies and the courts if necessary.

Quoting Charles Dickens' Tale of Two Cities, Sheets said "It was the worst of times, it was the best of times." Unless the city stops the MWRA in its tracks, the worst of times will be ushered into Quincy, he said.

LaRaia Asks Hearing On 3-Year Term For Building Inspector

Mayoral candidate Joseph LaRaia has requested a public hearing on an ordinance that would create a three year appointment of current building inspector, Matt Mulvey.

In a letter dated May 2 to Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, the city's Ordinance Committee chairman, LaRaia also said he opposes the appointment.

"The council order establishing a three year term for the current building inspector is to be acted on by your committee. This matter was held in committee (Monday night) for further deliberation by the council before it takes a vote.

"I am requesting that your next hearing will include public notification for purposes of public participation in further discussions on the important matter.

"I am personally opposed to the appointment for a three year term and will provide my testimony at that hearing. I am also aware of several residents who want the opportunity to address this matter before your committee.

"I am sure that your committee wants to assemble all comments and testimony before taking a vote on this important matter," LaRaia said.

Arthritis Education Day At Quincy Hospital

Quincy Hospital will hold an Arthritis Education Day, free and open to the public, on Monday, May 8, from 10 a.m. to 12 noon.

In recognition of National Hospital Week and National Arthritis Month, experts from Quincy Hospital (QH) and the Arthritis Foundation (AF) will offer an overview of arthritis diagnosis and treatment and discuss means for coping emotionally with this often debilitating illness.

Due to limited seating, pre-registration is advised. For further information, call 773-6100, ext. 4016.

Instructional Materials Exhibit

The Quincy Public Schools will hold its 16th annual Student Centered Conference and Instructional Materials Exhibit on Tuesday, May 9 from 11:30 to 4:30 at Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd.

The event will feature over seventy five educational publishers from across the country who will display materials geared to various learning styles and levels.

Several workshops in two time blocks, 1 and 2 p.m., will also be available.

The conference is free and free parking and light refreshments will be available.

WEEK OF: May 4

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Good-natured, idealistic, and eager to make the world a better place. These qualities more than compensate for your lack of practicality and self-indulgent streak. A more independent stance, however, can make a major difference in your career. Interesting travel is spotlighted all year.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Small financial disappointment may be balanced by some good news in that department. Avoid on-the-job conflicts, especially after the weekend. Enjoy opportunity for family reconciliation.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Pursuing goals with added determination is week's prime activity. Catching up on overdue calls, letters, etc. is also on tap. Partner may be mellower, thanks to your influence.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Avoid shortcuts, especially in work arena. Domestic scene brightens with the arrival of a friendly face. Weekend offers good opportunity for comparison shopping. Monday may be financially favorable.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Small financial windfall may blow your way shortly after the weekend. Avoid making impulsive investments. Sense of humor is in great form and can be used to advantage at the workplace.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Watch tendency to combine too many tasks; each project should be seen in it's own light. Good prospects for meeting a new friend who shares your way with words and love of travel.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Last-minute cancellations may be unavoidable, but the week by and large is productive, especially where educational pursuits are involved. Spontaneous travel may prove a highlight of the weekend.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Week has a festive air, possibly owing to the arrival of of cheery friends or family members. Sports activities are spotlighted--a fine week for launching a commonsense fitness program.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Week may find you slipping into a rut--real effort is needed to get you back to the real world. Domestic tasks are shared. Romance gets a boost from the planets.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Athletic and recreational events are highlighted at this time, for you and/or family members. Mental exercise also is featured. All in all a good week for entering competitions.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Lively week for traveling. Skills can be upgraded, but some initial research is needed on your part. Important ally comes to your defense; the timing could not be better.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Solution to domestic problem may be more obvious than you realize. Recent work efforts start to pay off. Travel or cultural events blend favorably with romance.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Good week for bringing together individuals from diverse backgrounds. Week has an exotic flavor; perhaps you're experimenting with new cuisines. Good week for tracing your family tree.

BORN THIS WEEK
May 4th, actress Audrey Hepburn; 5th, singer Tammy Wynette; 6th, actor Stewart Granger; 7th, singer Teresa Brewer; 8th, actress Melissa Gilbert; 9th, actress Candice Bergen; 10th, singer Donovan.

Garden Clubs Flower Show Saturday At NFPA

"Earth, Wind, and Fire" is the theme for the May 6 Standard Flower Show of the South Shore District of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts.

The Saturday show is being held at the National Fire Protection Building off Willard St. in Quincy from 12:40 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Donation is $5. Tickets are available from local Garden Club members and will be sold at the door.

Proceeds from the Flower Show will be given to the South Shore Natural Science Center in Norwell. The Center is now having a building campaign to enlrage their facilities and programs.

Giant Ferris Wheel At Benefit Carnival For DeVanna Center

A carnival featuring new rides, attractions and games began a two-week stand Tuesday, and will continue through Sunday, May 14 at the former Braintree Drive-In Theatre grounds across from the South Shore Plaza.

Included in the lineup of rides for the first time will be the Giant Gondola Ferris Wheel, said to be America's largest. The wheel stands approximately eight stories high and is capable of carrying 120 riders at one time.

In addition to the carnival attractions the show will present a free petting and feeding zoo including movie animals and exotic species from all parts of the world.

Patrons can touch, pet and feed such animals as pygmy goats, Barbados sheep, Sicilian donkeys, zebras and a giraffe. Along with the zoo display, elephant, camel and pony rides will be available for the children.

The huge carnival is being sponsored by the South Shore Dianne DeVanna Center for the Prevention of Child Abuse and Neglect.

Douglas A. Mohns of the Executive Board said the Fiesta Shows has New England's largest midway and is truly a family entertainment."

"In addition, we are grateful to Tom Flatley who has donated the grounds for this major event thus enabling the Center to expand its Hot Line and counseling services to the community."

Kathleen Hughes In Musical

The Fontbonne Academy Chorus will present its Spring Musical Friday, May 5 at 8 p.m. in the school Auditorium, 930 Brook Rd., Milton.

The concert will feature songs from Broadway musicals including Lady Be Good, West Side Story, 42nd Street, and Les Miserables.

FORTALEZA, A TRADITIONAL BOLIVIAN musical group, will perform at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., on Tuesday, May 9 at 1 p.m.

Bolivian Musical Group At Beechwood Center

The Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., will present a performance by Bolivian musical gorup, Fortaleza, on Tuesday, May 9 at 1 p.m. as part of the Cultural Enrichment Program for Youth (CEPY).

Fortaleza, a four man band formed in Bolivia in 1979, uses traditional native Bolivian instruments and colorful Spanish attire to recreate the roots of the ancient Amara and Inca civilizations.

Their performance teaches about the culture and heritage of the Bolivan people and audience participation is an integral part of their show.

Admission for the performance is $2.

The CEPY Program is funded in part by the New England Foundation for the Arts, The Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, and the National Endowmen for the Arts.

'Hot Shots' At Woodward Theater

"The Hot Shots" classes from the Children's Theatre Workshop will perform two plays and an audience singalong in celebration of spring at the Woodward School Theater, 1102 Hancock St., Saturday, May 6 at 5 p.m.

Cast members, aged three to seven, will perform plays entitled "Mayday in Maypole, Mississippi" and "Naughty Natalie's Nightmare."

Face painting and photos with the cast are available to the audience and all are invited to join the cast party after the performance.

Tickets are $3 and are available at the door.

At Imperial Terrace It's Tasty Dishes And Hospitality

By FRANK GROH

The next time you find yourself craving Oriental cuisine, think "Imperial Terrace." You'll be glad you did.

It it owned and operated by partners, Wally Chung and David Chan from Boston. Both have spent all of their adult working years in the restaurant business.

Whatever your preference may be, you'll discover the end result is always the same. A nicely prepared dish served with great care and hospitality.

Personally, my favorite is from their Polynesian style of cooking "Gai Poo Lo Mein." Served on a generous platter, starting with a bed of homemade egg noodles sauteed with sliced roast pork, bean sprouts and water chestnuts. The topping includes a colorful array of Chinese veggies, jumbo shrimp, chicken, pork and beef, surrounded by golden fried chicken fingers. With fresh rolls and butter, and a pot of Chinese tea included, you get a delightful feast for two for less than ten dollars.

Luncheon Specials are served daily from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Flea Market At Bethany

Bethany Congregational Church will hold a flea market at the church, corner of Spear and Coddington Sts., Saturday, May 6 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Admission will be 50 cents. There will be a snack bar.

Whist At Beechwood

Beechwood Community Life Center's Elder Action program is offering a whist on Wednesdays starting from 11:30 to 1. Those interested may show up at 11:30 or phone 471-5712 for further details.

High School Student Volunteers On 'Coastal Concerns'

Find out how Quincy's high school students are servicing their community on "Coastal Concerns," to air Thursday, May 11 at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 3.

As part of "Volunteer Awareness Month" in Quincy, Quincy Community Television recently taped this program which highlights students in the city who donate their time to social service organizations, tutor other high school students, and work together to deal with problems such as racial tensions in the city.

Guests include Jeff Coolidge, president of the Jefferson Forum High School Volunteer program; Alicia Coletti, the assistant director of Personnel for Quincy Public Schools and founder of "Project Start;" Martha Turner, faculty member at Quincy Vocational Technical High School and advisor for the Jefferson Forum program; and high school students participating in the Jefferson Forum and Project Start.

There is also an audience for the talk show consisting of students, parents, faculty and community organization members.

Topics discussed include the nationwide need for volunteers and efforts to protect the rights of people who participate in volunteer programs; why it is so important for students to have the opportunity to participate in volunteer programs and how communities benefit from volunteer efforts.

QJC Student President On Ch. 3

Newly elected Student Government President Michael Villanova is the featured guest on this week's edition of the Quincy Junior College Video Magazine to air tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. on Channel 3 in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

Villanova is questioned by Host Frank Cammarata about his plans for the Student Government Association, student activities and conditions of the college.

Also included in this week's edition will be a presentation by college administrators to area guidance counselors explaining the many programs and courses of study available at the college.

The program's final segment describes the famous hurricane of 1938 from an individual who survived the great storm. The segment was taped at last year's environmental fair.

Proposed Statement of Community Development Objectives and Projected Use of CDBG Funds
1989 - 1990 Program Year

I. The City of Quincy will receive $1,854,186 in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) Entitlement Funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development for the 1989-1990 program year. This statement describes the community development objectives of the City of Quincy and projected use of 1989-1990 CDBG funds. Public comments regarding this statement are welcome and should be addressed to the Department of Planning and Community Development, Quincy City Hall.

II. COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT OBJECTIVES

As the City plans and implements its community development activities, it aims to carry out the CDBG Program's primary national objectives which include decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunity, principally for persons of low and moderate income.

To this end, the City has established several objectives for its CDBG program:

1. Housing:
   - Maintain decent, safe and sanitary housing conditions for all residents;
   - Preserve and rehabilitate the City's housing stock;
   - Create affordable rental and homeownership opportunities for low and moderate income residents.
2. Public Service:
   - Provide a variety of health programs, social services, educational and cultural opportunities and recreational activities for residents of all ages.
3. Economic Development:
   - Foster economic stability and growth in the City's commercial areas;
   - Leverage private investment with the community and create additional employment opportunities for the City's low and moderate income residents.
4. Public Works:
   - Reconstruct roadways, upgrade traffic signalization and improve traffic channelization to promote commercial area growth and revitalization;
   - Upgrade existing parks and playgrounds to provide expanded sports and recreational opportunities, particularly for low income youth.

Through the establishment and pursuit of these objectives, the City of Quincy makes a firm commitment to all components of its neighborhood - housing, infrastructure, parks and playgrounds, public services and commercial development. At least 60 percent of the 1989-1990 program funds are to be allocated toward activities which will benefit low and moderate income persons. Remaining funds will aid in the prevention of slums and blight.

III. PROJECTED USE OF CDBG ENTITLEMENT FUNDS FOR THE 1989-1990 PROGRAM YEAR

Housing Commercial Rehabilitation	$494,655
Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services: Quincy Point	$80,000
Homeownership Opportunity Programs	$127,500
Public Works Improvements:	$378,880
- Park Improvements for Kincaide Park and Germantown Tot Lot;
- Pedestrian walk renovation in Houghs Neck;
- Street and sidewalk renovations for targeted low and moderate income areas;
- Traffic and pedestrian improvements for the downtown area.
Neighborhood Social Services:	$278,127
Planning and Administration	$370,837
Contingency	$124,187
Total	$1,854,186

In addition to the above entitlement funds projected for use in 1989-1990, the City anticipates additional program income from rehabilitation loan repayments as well as additional current year program income, in the amount of approximately $251,300 to be used to fund additional residential rehabilitation loans.

Expenditures proposed under the 1989-1990 CDBG program demonstrate the City's continuing commitment to the goal of providing decent, safe and sanitary housing for all residents. Funds are provided to continue the City's housing rehabilitation loan and grant program, along with handicapped grants. Support for a rehabilitation specialist at the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, Inc., will be continued, along with additional funding for a revolving loan pool which provides low cost loans or grants to eligible homeowners in the Quincy Point area.

A new housing initiative is planned which is intended to create homeownership opportunities for affordable housing for low and moderate income persons in the City of Quincy. The Quincy Housing Partnership Development Corporation (QHP) will administer the program with existing staff and volunteers. The QHP will purchase units, and with the assistance of local banks which will underwrite and provide mortgage loans for the units, use the CDBG funding to close the gap to make the units affordable.

Funding for the reconstruction of streets and sidewalks, park improvements and traffic improvements will be carried out in various target areas throughout the City at substantially the same level as in the current year.

Finally, the City's continued commitment to human services, particularly to addressing the needs of the elderly, is reflected in this year's budget. The City's proposed allocation, which reaches the maximum level of expenditures allowed for public services, once again provides funding for the City's elderly outreach program and for operation of seven community centers providing health, educational and social services for residents of all age groups.

IV. CDBG ENTITLEMENT FUNDS EXPENDED DURING 1987-1988 PROGRAM YEAR

The following expenditures are for the program year ending June 30, 1988.

Housing Rehabilitation	$606,528
Historic Preservation Rehabilitation	$115,650
Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services	$80,600
Public Improvements	$1,019,768
Parks and Playground Improvements	$71,250
Neighborhood Social Service Programs	$176,905
Elderly Outreach Van Program	$114,153
Commercial Development Loan Fund	$270,393
Planning and Administration	$155,548
Total	$2,610,795

The above expenditures were drawn from the CDBG allocation for the 1987-1988 program year and from previous years' allocations. The major objective established for the past year's CDBG program was the upgrading of Quincy's infrastructure and renovation of existing parks and playgrounds which serve low and moderate income residents. A review of expenditures indicates the City's commitment to carrying out this objective. Completion of a sizeable construction project, the Ross Parking Deck created 217 additional parking spaces, alleviating a major factor restricting growth of the City's Central business district. Upgrading and re-design of Downtown's traffic signalization and channelization to relieve worsening traffic congestion also began under this past year's CD program. Substantial funds were expended for reconstruction of streets and sidewalks and construction of a new tot-lot in the City's low and moderate income areas.

The City's commitment to preservation of its housing stock, particularly to those residences located in low and moderate income neighborhoods is continued under this past year's program. Nearly thirty percent of total expenditures was expended toward realizing this goal. Programs include a low-cost loan and grant program for eligible homeowners and landlords and an energy inspection program run by Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services. In addition, a major affirmative housing study focusing on linkage and inclusionary zoning was conducted.

The City continues its efforts toward the goal of commercial area revitalization through its commercial development loan fund. This program provides local businesses with low cost loans for expansion and rehabilitation. Business receiving assistance under this program, in turn, create job opportunities for low and moderate income persons or assist in eliminating slums and blight. Finally, provision of basic and necessary human services again is addressed with CDBG funding. This component includes operation of seven community centers providing health, educational and social programs for residents of all ages and operation of a senior citizen's outreach program. While public services expenditures are capped by CDBG regulations, the City consistently is at the maximum level of expenditures allowed.

V. DISPLACEMENT

The City of Quincy undertakes all CDBG programs and activities in a manner which either eliminates or minimizes displacement of persons. A copy of the City's displacement plan is available through the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development

HN Past Commanders Night Postponed

The Past Commanders Night of Houghs Neck American Legion Post has been postponed to Friday, May 19. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m. Music for dancing will follow.

The Night was originally scheduled for April 22.

Schedule For Paper Recycling Pickup

As part of the education effort, the city's Recycling Committee has published a pamphlet explaining the program and pick-up procedure.

The night before designated recycling days or no later than 7 a.m., residents should place bagged (not plastic) or tied newspapers at the curb next to — but separate from — normally placed trash.

There are two neighborhood pick-ups: Schedule "A" which began Monday and Schedule "B" which will begin Monday, May 8.

Collection will continue every other week.

The collection schedule for "A" which began May 1 is:

Monday "A"

Post Island, Rock Island, Houghs Neck, Germantown, Manet Beach and Great Hill.

Tuesday "A"

Norfolk Downs, Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston Beach, Atlantic.

Wednesday "A"

Thursday "A"

Quincy Center, Broad Meadows, Hole Point, east side S. Artery (Fore River to Washington St.) east side Washington St. (S. Artery to Elm St.), north side Elm St. to School St. (Washington St. to Burgin Pkwy.) the Point, shipyard and Butler's Pond.

Friday "A"

Turning Mill, Mt. Ararat, Cranch Hill, north side Ricciuti Dr., north side Quarry St., Dunns Hill Rd., Filbert St., north Pkwy. (Hancock St. to Campbell St.) Furnace Brook Pkwy. (Adams St. to Quarry St.), City Hall, Adams St. area (south of Shirley and Eddie Sts.), north Common, Hospital Hill and President's Hill.

The "A" schedule will repeat itself beginning Monday, May 15.

The "B" schedule, which begins Monday, May 8, is:

Monday "B"

Tuesday "B"

Wednesday "B"

West side Newport Ave. and west; north side Beale St. and north; Wollaston Hill, Alvin Ave. and east.

Thursday "B"

Friday "B"

Carini said he was concerned when he learned what was happening and that there were no adults at home, and was about to go to the house himself. Instead the school called Beth Crowley, Ryan's aunt, and alerted her to the situation.

"When I got there," Crowley said, "there was just a note from the police and firefighters saying that they had brought Mrs. West and the boys to the hospital."

She went straight to the hospital where she found Ryan and Collin eating crackers and milk with some of the nurses.

"He (Ryan) was completely calm," she said, "and he was very reassuring to Collin, who was a little nervous about coming home with me and leaving his grandmother."

"Ryan was very matter-of-fact about the whole thing," Crowley said, adding that he even identified her as his aunt to the nurses so that she could take the boys home.

"Ryan was so calm and so comforting to Collin. He just did what he had to do and that's all there was to it."

After a morning like that one, no one would blame Ryan if he wanted to take a day off from school, but, Crowley said, he wanted to go, and she dropped him off for his afternoon session.

"He was also pretty excited because of all the attention he was getting at school afterward," she added.

When she notified Ryan's mother, Crowley said that Ryan's parents knew that he could handle an emergency, "but any parent would be surprised when a child handles the situation that well."

And, although Ryan may feel that he only did what had to be done, there are a lot of people who must see him as a true hero.

Republican Committee To Meet May 9

The Quincy Republican Committee will meet on Thursday, May 9 at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

On the agenda will be a discussion of upcoming meetings, candidates for political office in this year's election, as well as a guest speaker from the Republican State Committee.

A $3 donation will be requested on a raffle to defray the costs of running the meeting.

All interested Republicans are welcome to attend.

Barking Complaints

Dogs Face Deportation Or Devoicing In Dispute

By JANE ARENA

King and Tiny may be the only dogs in the city with their own lawyer. And they apparently need one.

The dogs, Tiny, a one year old purebred German Shepherd, and King, a two year old German Shepherd mix, have been accused of being a nuisance under Massachusetts General Law Chapter 140, due to "excessive barking." Subsequently, after a hearing with Police Chief Francis Finn, the dogs have been ordered either "permanently removed from the city or devoiced," according to a letter signed by Chief Finn.

City Dog Officer, Phyllis Berlucchi explains that devoicing dogs, a simple operation which she says does not hurt the dog, but only makes his bark hushed, is a relatively common occurance in the city.

"I've had lots of dogs devoiced on the orders of Chief Finn in barking cases in the past," she says.

But the dogs' owner, Brian Godbey of 160 Winthrop St., Houghs Neck, is determined that it won't happen to his dogs, and he's hired a lawyer to see to it.

Through the MSPCA, Godbey got the name of Atty. Steven Wise of Boston, who specializes in dog law, and Wise, Godbey says, sees a good case.

Godbey's home is right in the middle of a close knit cluster of four other houses. Although three of those houses apparently do not perceive the dogs as a nuisance, Ronald and Carol Copsetta made a formal complaint to the dog officer Dec. 12, 1988.

During the day and for a short period every night, Godbey says, the dogs are kept on a run on one side of his house. The Copsetta's complaint was that the dogs bark while they are on the run, which is located directly under the bedroom window of their two year old son.

Berlucchi issued two barking citations to Godbey, one $20 fine for each dog, the normal amount for a first offense.

Godbey didn't pay the fines, but appeared instead before the Clerk Magistrate

If City Gets More State Aid

Schools, Safety Top Priorities

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The areas of education and public safety will be the first to receive additional revenue if the city receives more than a level-funded share of state local aid this year, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

McCauley, who is optimistic the city will eventually receive more local aid than it did last year, said he would recommend additional appropriations in the police, fire and school budgets if his prediction is right.

"Those are the three areas where I would like to see more money, especially in the fire and police department's personal services accounts," the mayor said.

However, McCauley said it is unlikely the city will receive a large amount of additional local aid.

"My own feeling is that we'll probably get some additional money over this fiscal year. I don't feel it will be a large amount of money," he said.

The mayor said he is optimistic because many communities will be lobbying the state legislature for additional money this year.

"When push comes to shove and there's enough pressure being exerted on the state legislature then we'll probably get some additional revenue, but not as much as we did in the early 1980s."

Quincy's share of local aid for fiscal 1990 is not expected to be known until late August or early September. Meanwhile, the mayor said he is trying to finish up this year in the best fiscal shape possible.

He pointed out that the city will finish with a surplus after this fiscal year ends June 30 but added the additional money would be used to offset a potential $6 million shortfall next year.

McCauley also said it is becoming clearer that the city can no longer rely upon state aid for revenue. "Some day, perhaps some day soon, the City Council and the new mayor are really going to have to approach this situation," he said, not ing that if the council had passed his sewer user fee proposal several years ago, an additional $5 million would have been raised.

The mayor's pledge for more school, police and fire department money came a day after the City Council reviewed those departments at a Finance Committee meeting Monday.

During the meeting, the committee, which has already approved about 30 city department budgets, okayed another 25, including education, fire and police.

The council has the power to cut the budget but not add to it. Finance Committee Chairman said the budget could be voted on at next Monday's council meeting.

Generally, the council understands the constraints the department heads are operating under and is hoping the city receives a substantial share of local aid.

In formulating the entire city budget, the mayor reduced the school department by $438,000 and reduced the fire and police overtime accounts by a total of $400,000.

Speaking on the school budget, Superintendent Dr. Robert Ricci said the cuts "were painful." He also noted the budget is short in supplies, materials and school improvements.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien agreed the

Kinney Or New Parking Lot Contract By June

A decision whether to renew the lease of the current operator of the city's parking areas or award a new contract to another company could be made by June 1, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

The five-year lease with Kinney Systems, which presently operates the city's three parking areas, will expire June 30, the mayor noted.

The three areas are: the Ross parking garage and parking lot on Parkingway and the Hancock lot across from the Quincy District Court.

Last Friday, the city received five bids for the next lease. McCauley said he has not been informed of what companies sent the bids.

A committee, formed by Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom, will review the bids and make a recommendation to the mayor within two to three weeks.

McCauley said a decision on the new contract should be made by June 1, "especially if there's going to be a change."

The new lease would require passage by the City Council.

Since Kinney was awarded the contract in 1984, there have been criticisms on the upkeep of the property as well as the management. Moreover, some councillors have expressed their concern over renewing the Kinney lease.

McCauley pointed out that financially, the Kinney operation has been successful for the city but added there have been problems with litter, broken glass and spray painting of property.

In terms of revenue, Kinney has collected at least $750,000 over four years. That figure could reach $1 million by the time the contract expires next month.

As Kinney collects revenue, the city receives a portion of the receipts. Quincy's share of lease revenue goes into a revolving account which is spent of the parking areas.

Over the years, the money has been spent on such projects as replacing jersey barriers, purchasing toll booths, building an office and rubberizing the Ross deck to prevent leakage.

Commenting on Kinney System's performance, McCauley said, "They have done a reasonably good job but there have been problems, especially in the area of cleanliness.

"It's been a good financial package for the city," he said, noting the lease arrangement pays for the city's parking expenses.

"There's also room for improvement," the mayor added.

Noting that Kinney is a nation-wide firm, McCauley said the city needs qualified personnel to operate the parking areas. "In terms of running the program, they are qualified," he said.

DPW To Help Neighborhoods Beach Cleanup

The Quincy Department of Public Works will be available to assist neighborhood and community organizations with neighborhood and beach clean-ups during the next six to eight weeks, announces Mayor Francis McCauley.

Public Works will provide trucks, loaders and trash bags to any group or organization wishing to initiate a spring clean-up project in their neighborhood.

The mayor urges all citizens, civic and community groups to initiate spring clean-ups and to watch for dates of such clean-ups. McCauley noted that if residents pitch in and help out with projects, Quincy will be a much cleaner city.

Council Puts Hold On Block Grant Budget

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Concerned over the possible loss of two neighborhood service workers and the vagueness of a housing partnership program, the City Council sent next year's proposed Community Development Block Grant budget back to committee Monday.

The $1,854,186 budget funds many city services, including housing rehabilitation, eight public service programs as well as neighborhood improvements, planning and administration.

The council has until Oct. 1 to act on the budget which represents an increase of four percent or $71,000 over last year.

While discussing the budget for close to an hour, several councillors expressed concerns and reservations over two key aspects of the budget.

One part deals with a budget item calling for $127,500 for the Quincy Housing Partnership. As currently proposed, the money is earmarked for six, $21,400 home mortgage loans for middle income families with a combined income of $30,000 or less.

In discussing the loan program set up, it was unclear how and when the loans would be paid back to the city as well as the eligibility for the program.

Several councillors suggested the money could be better used as rental subsidies or down payments for lower income families.

"Eligibility is in question and there's vagueness on how that money would be repaid back to the city," said Councillor Stephen McGrath, the chairman of the State and Federal Funds Committee.

McGrath, who said a more direct rental subsidy may be more adequate, said he and fellow councillors will meet to discuss the program.

"I am confident that we'll be able to work something out," he said after the meeting.

Speaking on the budget proposal, Council President Patricia Toland said, "I'm not comfortable with saying here's six loans for people with incomes of $30,000 or less." She said she favors not having the money earmarked.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, who called the loans "gifts," came down hard on the proposal.

"We have hundreds of people in this city calling us and asking us for assistance. The money should be used to help truly needy people, not middle income families," Nutley said, adding that the set up with "ludicrous."

"I think it's terribly wasteful. I'm for affordable housing but not for six, $21,000 gifts," he added.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said he was concerned about the loan repayment plan as well as people who might meet the $30,000 when they apply for the grant but then make more in the future.

"It seems to me that the people who get the $21,400 are going to take it and run. I see a lot of holes in this proposal," Phelan said.

Saying that the housing partnership tries to accomodate as many people as possible, Chretien stated, "They are trying to figure out what kind of program we want.

"Instead of applauding their work, we take pot shots at them. To vote something down, to take pot shots at it is just ludicrous," he said.

Nutley also said he was concerned about the proposed elimination of two positions at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center. If the two women are laid off, Nutley said the center will be forced to operate with insufficient personnel.

He noted that if the two jobs are lost, the center, which runs a variety of programs through the year, will have just one employee.

"We have to find a way to keep them on. This is a very large center which serves a lot of people, including many senior citizens," he said.

Nutley also said the layoffs would come at a time which the city could least afford because of the city's large Asian population and the need for new services.

"Asians need new services. We have a tremendous need for new services. We have a lot of plans for helping our new citizens but this plan will reduce the staff to one employee.

"We need some kind of help here. I don't want these people to go. It would be a tragedy," Nutley said.

As currently proposed, the Atlantic Neighborhood Center would receive $31,958 of the $278,127 set aside for public services. Of the city's seven neighborhood centers, this is the second highest total.

The Germantown Neighborhood Center is earmarked to receive $35,937.

According to Mayor Francis McCauley, problems are surfacing because there is less money available.

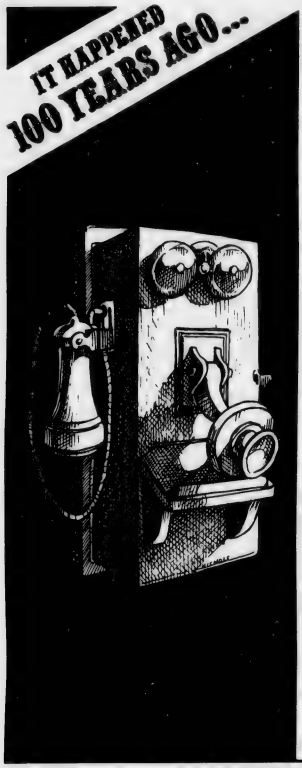
"We're getting less money in community development. We used to get $2.2 million," he said.

As for the proposed layoffs, McCauley said the city must work within a 15 percent cap. That is, the public services funding cannot be more than 15 percent of the total block grant budget.

"When you have that cap,there's only so much money you can spend. Eventually, we've had to cut back. We have to if we're going to live within the guidelines," the mayor said, adding that the cuts are necessary in order to keep the other six centers open.

As for funding the positions with non-grant revenue, McCauley said the city used to do this but "we've reached a point. There's been a tough battle to keep as much as we can.

"We can't expect the city to keep picking up the tab," he added.



On another item, Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets said he was concerned about the allocation of $229,000 for street improvements. Principal Planner Kevin Shea told him that projects are funded as proposals come into the city's Planning Department.

"I understand the rationale but question the wisdom of (the program's set up). I would hope that the Planning Department would take into consideration that not all needs can be identified," Sheets said.

He noted that some projects might lose out on funding because engineering, advertising and contracts delay them.

The breakdown of the budget is as follows:

- Housing Rehabilitation, $269,655.
- Housing Loans and Grants, 225,000.
- Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, $80,000, of which $30,000 is for a rehabilitiation specialist and $50,000 is for a loan fund.
- Quincy Housing Partnership, $127,500.
- Public Services, $278,127 of which, $122,934 is for the Elderly Outreach program; $9,076 is for Adams Shore Center; $18,000 for Beechwood Community Life Center; $35,937 for Germantown Center; $26,522 for Houghs Neck Center; $24,400 for Quincy Point Center; $9,300 for Squantum Center and $31,958 for Atlantic.
- Neighborhood Public Improvements, $378,880, of which, $33,500 is for Kincaide Park and a Germantown Tot Lot; $16,380 for a pedestrian walk renovation on Sea St.; $229,000 for street improvements and $100,000 or downtown traffic and pedestrian improvements.
- Planning and Administration, $370,837.
- Contingency, $124,187.

In Face Of Police Cutbacks

Germantown Starts Own Drug Program

The Germantown Community Council has noted to start a "Drop-a-Dime Drug Hotline" as a result of cutbacks in the Quincy Police Department's street-level drug enforcement office.

According to Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, a separate telephone line will be installed in an unidentified location at a cost of $200 to $250.

The line will be manned by two volunteers hand-selected by the community council. When the line is not being manned, an answering machine will record the calls.

Volunteers will then list all information and forward the data to the Quincy Police Department.

The hot-line, which is expected to go on-line within a month, will help gather information on drug dealings to police. Cheney said the hot-line will "prove that street-level drug officers are wanted and needed on a full-time basis."

Since the drug officers were reassigned, several residents have expressed their concern that the drug problem has already begun to escalate, Cheney noted.

He pointed out that one resident has already witnessed drugs being sold on one of the local corners. "This was unheard of a week ago when the drug officers were on the streets," Cheney said.

Calls will be taken from anyone in the city who wishes to report drug activity anywhere in Quincy.

Cheney reiterated his disappointment that the drug officers have been taken off their street-level assignments. "I urge Mayor McCauley to reconsider funding the street-level drug officers," he said.

"It is imperative that we continue the war on drugs in Quincy. We have to set our goal high. Our objective is to make Quincy a drug-free city.

"Our intent is not to be stopped until that objective is met," Cheney added.

QUINCY AERIAL LADDER was one of three pieces of Quincy apparatus that assisted Weymouth to fight a five-alarm fire Monday at the historic Old South Union Church. Quincy Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, center, assisted in coordinating firefighting operations. The blaze caused more than $1 million in damage.

Bigelow St. Lodging House License Granted

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Leo E. Martin, Jr. of Martin Realty Company, for a lodging house license at 98-102 Bigelow St.

The board had continued the hearing last week to allow time for Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien to speak with neighboring residents on the matter.

Chretien told the board the main issue of concern for residents of the area is a possible parking problem.

"Bigelow is a very narrow street," he said, adding that the intersection of Elm and Bigelow is also dangerous. Chretien said neighbors are worried that boarder's cars may block the street from fire aparatus and snow plows.

Martin said there are presently eight parking spaces for the 11-room house, including a two car garage. He also agreed to have the tenants park their cars in the driveway of the house and said he would write them a letter to that effect and give copies to the board and to Chretien.

Speaking "personally and not as a councillor," Cahill told the board that he lives in a building also operated by Martin located across the street from the lodging house.

"He runs a good operation," Cahill said, adding that Martin is "a good landlord, he's good to all the tenants."

The board granted the license with the stipulation that no more than the 11 rooms presently in the building be added.

Meeting On Building Inspector Term, Motor Bikes Ban May 15

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney will hold an Ordinance Committee meeting and public hearing Monday, May 15 at 6:30 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chambers.

Council Order No. 149 which would allow a three-year appointment of the city building inspector and a proposed ban of motor bikes on public land will be discussed.

As proposed, anyone who illegally operates motor bikes, mopeds and all terrain vehicles on public land would be fined up to $200.

Anyone wishing to testify at the public hearing regarding the all-terrain vehicles ordinance may attend the hearing Monday, May 15 at 6:30 p.m.

Cheney is also soliciting written input on the issue of the three-year term for the city building inspector. However, he noted there is no public hearing on that topic.

Those wishing to submit input on either of these issues may do so by writing Cheney, Ordinance Committee Chairman, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

For more information, call Chretien at 472-1400.

Correction

In an article in last week's Quincy Sun on Ryan McCarthy, the six year old boy who called 911 when his grandmother fell and broke her hip, it was stated by a family member that he gave the police the correct address and they sent the ambulance to the wrong address. According to Quincy Police records, the boy gave the wrong address (17 instead of 70 Kent St.) and the police sent the ambulance there. A spokesperson for the Quincy Police Department said that "Ryan did a very good job" during the emergency.

FUNDED BUY AND SELL AGREEMENTS
(Part 1)

Are you in business with one or more partners or other stockholders? Do you own shares in a Professional Corporation (PC)? If so, do you have a Buy and Sell Agreement? If you have an agreement, is it funded?

A Buy and Sell Agreement is a legal document drawn up by your attorney to protect each partner's or stockholder's interest in a business. The document spells out the exact format to be used in the event of a death or disability, for the buying out of the deceased or disabled partner's share of the business. The agreement must be signed by each of the owners, and in the event of death their heirs are obligated to honor the agreement and sell the deceased's interest to the business or the surviving partners as dictated.

Funding the agreement is done by purchasing life insurance and disability income policies on each owner. If death occurs the life insurance proceeds produce the cash to buy back the deceased's interest, but if it is a disability that strikes they receive the funds from the insurance to serve the same purpose.

Those Mayoral Polls

Political watchers are buzzing a bit about one -- or two -- mayoral polls reportedly taken recently.

The question though is: were the polls actually taken? Or did someone start a rumor that just spread?

None of the four major mayoral candidates -- Steve McGrath, James Sheets, Joseph LaRaia, Peter O'Connell -- are taking credit for any recent poll. Their camps indicate that if a poll or two were taken, they didn't do it. And they didn't have anyone do it for them.

The poll supposedly was taken by telephone to get an early handle on the strength of the four major candidates who will square off in the Sept. 12 preliminary election.

And, what were the results?

There seems to be at least three versions.

First: O'Connell first, McGrath second; Sheets third and LaRaia fourth.

Second: Sheets first, McGrath second, LaRaia third, O'Connell last.

Third: McGrath first, LaRaia second, O'Connell third, Sheets fourth.

Fourth: Write in our own version. You'll probably come as close to the right order as anyone whether there was a poll or not.

A political poll -- real or not -- can create as much gossip as a politician getting caught with a bathing beauty on his lap.

SPOTTED ON THE same car: bumper stickers for mayoral candidates James Sheets and Peter O'Connell. Wonder if someone thinks you can vote for two candidates in the preliminary election Sept. 12? Harold, Tobin Vow:

Fight For MWRA Headquarters 'Not Over Yet'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Despite a recommendation by a panel of MWRA officials not to move its headquarters to Quincy, Senator Paul Harold says the issue is "not over yet."

Harold said a bill pending in the state legislature and an amendment proposed by Congressman Brian Donnelly could force the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to locate their headquarters at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy Point.

"As far as we're concerned, it's not over yet," Harold said in reaction to the news that the MWRA staff wants the authority's board of directors to consider one site in Malden and three in Boston for the 900-employee facility.

Rep. Steve Tobin said he, and other Quincy officials, will continue to fight the MWRA.

"Their tentative decision comes as no surprise. We fully expected it, we anticipated it and knowing their position is why we filed the legislation in the first place.

"The main message we want to convey to the MWRA is that you're not fooling us. We're wise to them and we intend to fight them every step of the way," Tobin said.

The agency's 11-member board of directors will choose one of four sites: Parcel 18, a development site in Roxbury; renewal of their current lease at the Charlestown Navy Yard; or office buildings in Malden or the Fort Point Channel area.

According to Executive Director Paul Levy, the sites are being recommended because they cost the least, are close to downtown Boston and are an easy commute for most MWRA employees.

Of the four sites, Parcel 18 has the strong backing of Gov. Michael Dukakis and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn.

The recommendations were to be discussed at a board meeting Wednesday. A decision is expected later this month.

Several political leaders criticized the panel's analysis and choose a site not among the four recommended. recommendations which were announced last Friday.

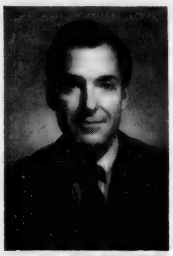
Donnelly, whose congressional district includes Quincy, charged that Levy "has no credibility." State Inspector General Joseph R. Barresi, who favors the shipyard site, accused the authority of "abandoning a prudent and accountable siting process."

The staff recommendation is non-binding, but it is considered highly unlikely the directors would ignore the

Although it appears that Quincy is out of the running, Harold is still optimistic that, one way or another, the MWRA will be required to move to the shipyard.

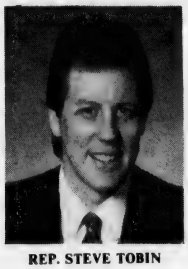
A bill filed by Quincy Representative Michael Morrissey requiring the authority to move to Quincy may come up for a final House vote next week, Harold said.

If adopted by the legislature but vetoed by the governor, the bill would then need a two-thirds override vote to become law.



In addition to Morrissey's bill, Donnelly wants to amend a tax law regarding the taxing of water and sewer authorities.

As it presently stands, water and sewer authorities are able to have tax-free bonds if their headquarters are located on land they own.



However, if Donnelly's amendment is enacted, a water and sewer agency, like the MWRA, would lose the tax-free nature of their bonds if it locates on land they do not own.

"That would be reckless on their part and it would probably cost the rate payers hundreds of millions of dollars," Harold said, referring to the MWRA.

SEN. PAUL HAROLD

REP. STEVE TOBIN

The estimated cost of rehabilitating the shipyard soared by $10 to $12 million after MWRA inspectors found problems with the foundations, asbestos and toxic waste, Levy said.

Besides renovation costs, the MWRA panel also cited a lack of public transportation to the shipyard site.

However, several officials disputed the MWRA's renovation costs and the claim that the shipyard is not accessible.

"They want luxury office space. They want to be in an executive setting as far away from the sludge operation as possible." He also said the shipyard is "50 percent better than existing state facilities," Harold said.

Morrissey said the renovation costs were drastically overrated because the agency "doesn't really need to have first class space.

"The State House isn't first class space, and we do fine," Morrissey said.

Gary Galanis, a spokesperson for Donnelly, said, "If the buildings were good enough for General Dynamics, they should be good enough for Mr. Levy and his gang." He also said Donnelly "will do whatever he has to to protect the people of Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree."

Earlier this year, the MWRA board of directors voted to site two sludge processing operations at the shipyard. One facility would be for converting sludge from Boston Harbor into fertilizer while the other would turn the material into compost.

Many local officials fear the compost operation will give off strong, foul odors throughout the Quincy Point area. Harold, who has spoken with Proctor and Gamble officials about their Quincy operation, believes the MWRA will not be able to contain odors inside the facilities on a continuous basis.

Therefore, Harold said the MWRA should locate at the shipyard to ensure good management practices.

"They're a public entity in charge of water and sewers and they should be right on (the operation). It's not good management to be removed from the bulk of their operation," he said.

As for the authority's claim that the shipyard is difficult to get to, Harold replied, "If 32,000 workers could find the shipyard in the 1940s, then I think 900 (MWRA employees) can find it, too."

The senator also noted that having the MWRA headquarters in Quincy would boost the city's economy. "Obviously while at work (employees) will be doing some purchasing," he said, adding that some businesses near the shipyard have suffered since General Dynamics stopped its operation.

Finally, Harold said the MWRA should move to Quincy out of fairness.

May 11-17 1954 35 Years Ago

Some 3,500 Quincy youngsters in the first, second and third grades from public and parochial schools, received vaccinations in a test of the new Salk Polio Vaccine.

Actress Helen Hayes, whose 19-year-old daughter, Mary MacArthur, died of polio five years before, was on hand to watch the shots administered at St. John's School.

"I have lived for this day," she said, "to actually see the vaccination being done. We all have great hopes for it."

Among the first vaccinated at the Coddington School was Robert Birch, 8, of 27 Woodward Ave., one of the boys chosen to give a blood sample to determine its polio antibodies.

"You're a good boy," said Dr. Frederick W. Manley.

Fair At Historical Society

Those interested in Quincy's long and varied history are invited to attend opening day of the 1989 History Fair Saturday, May 20 from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society in the Adams Academy Building.

The exhibits have been researched and created by fourth grade classes in the Quincy Public Schools and will illustrate the theme, "Quincy: A Past Worth Preserving."

These projects have grown out of the Society's program, "Quincy: A Mirror for the Nation." During the year, museum teachers from the Society spend a week with each class, teaching the students about Quincy's history.

For the fair, each class chose an historic or noteworthy site or area in Quincy and identified and explained the place's significance. The students were then asked to take the project one step further and discuss why the site is worth preserving. For instance, why not tear down the First Parish Church and build a multi-level parking garage on the spot? If a neighborhood is the focus, the class will try to answer why the area is worth preserving and remembering.

In addition to opening day, the exhibits will be on display at the Historical Society from Monday, May 22 through Thursday, May 25 from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Delicious Fiber-Rich, No-Cholesterol Treats

Today's typical American diet is high in fat and cholesterol, and low in fiber. In fact, Americans consume on average only 11 grams of fiber per day while the recommended daily intake is 20-35 grams.

One remedy is better tasting ways to add fiber to the diet. Faye Egan and her staff at the Nabisco Consumer Food Center have created some fiber-rich bran recipes that will do just that.

BRAN STICKY BUNS
Makes 9 servings

1 cup NABISCO 100% Bran
1/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1/4 cup margarine, melted
1 apple, cored and sliced
2 cups buttermilk baking mix
1/4 cup cholesterol-free egg product*
1/2 cup water

Combine 1/4 cup bran, brown sugar and margarine; spread in 8 x 8 x 2-inch pan. Top with apple slices; set aside.

Mix baking mix, remaining bran, egg product and water until soft dough forms. Drop by 1/4 cupfuls into prepared pan. Bake at 450°F for 13 to 15 minutes or until done. Invert onto heat-proof plate, leaving pan over buns for 2 to 3 minutes. Remove pan; cool slightly. Serve warm.

PEACHY DROP MUFFINS
Makes 1 dozen

2 cups NABISCO 100% Bran
1 cup skim milk
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/3 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 cup margarine, melted
1/4 cup cholesterol-free egg product*
1/2 cup chopped canned peaches
1/2 cup dark seedless raisins

In bowl, combine bran and milk; let stand 5 minutes.

Mix flour, sugar, baking powder and baking soda; set aside. Blend margarine and egg product into bran mixture; stir in flour mixture just until blended. Stir in peaches and raisins.

Drop batter by 1/4 cupfuls, 2 inches apart, onto greased baking sheet, or spoon batter into greased 2 1/2-inch muffin-pan cups. Bake at 400°F for 18 to 20 minutes or until done. Serve warm.

Nutrition Information per muffin: 155 calories, 5 gm. dietary fiber, 0 mg. cholesterol.

2 egg whites can be substituted.

The American Kitchen

Add pizzazz to Memorial Day barbecue

Memorial Day signals the traditional start of cookout season. Beef is one of the best meats for the barbecue, and burgers are one of America's all-time favorites. A slow charcoal fire cooks burgers to their most flavorful, tender and juicy best.

In addition to great taste, beef burgers offer a big helping of nutrition. They're high in iron and zinc as well as an excellent source of protein.

BLUE CHEESE STUFFED BURGERS

1½ lbs. lean ground beef
¼ tsp. pepper
⅓ 3-ounce package of cream cheese
1 Tbsp. crumbled blue cheese
1 Tbsp. minced onion
1 tsp. prepared horseradish

Sprinkle pepper over ground beef; mix lightly but thoroughly. Divide meat into 8 equal portions and form into patties 4 inches in diameter. Combine cream cheese, blue cheese and horseradish. Place 1 tablespoon of mixture in center of 4 patties. Top each one with a remaining patty. Press edges together securely to seal.

Place on grill over ash-covered coals so burgers are 5 to 6 inches from coals. Broil 5 to 6 minutes on first side, turn and broil 5 to 6 minutes to doneness desired. Serves 4.

Power Food Of The 90's?

Potatoes—the power food of the '90s? Could be, as more fitness-conscious Americans discover the healthful, delicious taste appeal of the perennially popular vegetable.

Experts say, eating more complex carbohydrates, such as potatoes, may help prevent diseases such as hypertension, cancer and diabetes. Potatoes are low in fat and high in fiber, which is an essential aid to good digestion.

Potatoes are also a big boon to weight-watchers, because they're low in calories (120 in a medium potato) but leave you feeling full.

Especially healthful are Washington state Russet potatoes. They've proven to be higher in nutrition in 11 categories—including Vitamin B-6 and carbohydrates—than the average U.S. potato. They boast a high ratio of nutrients to calories.

Here's a sharp idea for a nutritious side dish that combines the sprightly bite of cheddar cheese with the smooth and healthful good taste of Washington state potatoes:

Cheddar Scalloped Potatoes

2 pounds Washington Russet potatoes
Water
Salt
1/2 cup cooked and crumbled bacon*
1/4 cup sliced green onions
3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon each white pepper and celery seed
1-1/2 cups milk
1 cup shredded sharp Cheddar Cheese

Pare potatoes; slice into 1/4-inch slices. Partially cook 5 minutes in boiling, salted water to cover. Drain. Layer potatoes, bacon and green onion in greased, shallow 2-quart baking dish. Melt butter. Stir in flour, 1-1/4 teaspoons salt, pepper and celery seed; cook until smooth. Gradually add milk; cook and stir until thickened. Remove from heat; add cheese and stir until cheese melts. Spoon over potatoes. Cover and bake at 350°F. 30 minutes. Uncover and bake 15 to 20 minutes longer. Make 6 to 8 servings.

* One and one-half cups cubed fully cooked ham may be substituted.

Toll-free hotline features toddler tips

What do you do when your toddler refuses to eat anything but peanut butter and jelly sandwiches for breakfast, lunch, dinner and snacks? Or, how do you cope with a toddler who holds his nose and cries "yuk!" at the mere sight of anything green on his plate? And what about the child who simply won't try new foods?

The Florida Department of Citrus (FDOC) can help you answer these common toddler nutrition questions. They are sponsoring a toll-free hotline during Toddler Nutrition Week, May 15 to 21.

Just call 1-800-4-BABY-89 to listen to program spokesperson Shari Lewis and her sidekick Lamb Chop deliver a different toddler nutrition tip each day. Some messages include: Breakfast and Working Parents, The Truth About Juice, Dealing With a Finicky Eater and other pertinent nutrition topics.

A "Nutrition FUNdamentals for Toddlers" leaflet is also available free-of-charge by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Nutrition FUNdamentals, Suite 1900, 40 West 57th Street, New York, NY 10019. T5897104

Judy Brams Candidate For School Committee

Mrs. Brams is the mother of two daughters, one of whom attends Central Middle School. She and her husband Bob own and run a business located in Rockland. In the past she has been a substitute teacher and classroom aide in the Quincy School System.

Mrs. Brams has been active in School related activities for a number of years. She is a former secretary, school improvement representative, citywide representative and president of the Squantum School PTO. She was one of the Squantum Schools representatives assisting the school committee to successfully re-open Wollaston School. Mrs. Brams currently is one of the Central Middle School representatives to the Citywide Parents Council and is also a member of the Citywide Board.

JUDY BRAMS

A member of the ongoing Elementary Report Card Task Force, she has served on the Educational Development Committee. Because of her interest in education, she has been attending school committee meetings for the past four years, she said.

Mrs. Brams is a graduate of Northeastern University and has a bachelor of arts degree in Sociology. She is president of her alumni class. She is also a member of the Wollaston Mothers Club.

Mrs. Brams said she believes children need an advocate for them on the School Committee and promised "to have an open mind on issues, to investigate that which she does not know and to listen and be an advocate for our children. She said, "we must send our children out in the world well prepared both academically and socially" and in order to do that we must balance academics, athletics, and extra-curricular activities."

"Our schools must give not only excellent education to all our students but also equal education and our students must take advantage of what this system has to offer. We do have many problems, such as the inadequate budget, maintenance, incomplete foreign language programs, but we, the citizens of Quincy must all work together towards the solutions, she said.

Mrs. Brams said she will bring a positive new perspective to the school committee, and will soon be going throughout the city to meet and talk with our citizens.

7 NQHS Students Receive Regional Science Awards

Seven North Quincy High School students in the Science and Math departments received awards at the South Shore Regional Science Fair held recently at Bridgewater State College.

Matthew Giese, who won the Special Award for progress at NQHS's 21st annual science fair in March, won a first place award at the Regional Fair and was named the Regional Designee to the State. He and five other State Designee students will compete for the privilege of attending the International Science and Engineering Fair. Two will be chosen.

Fifteen NQHS students, who received awards at North's Science Fair, participated in the Regional Fair. David Cawthorne, George Gavros, Maria Gavros and Jonathan Rork received second place Regional Awards, while honorable mentions went to William Chu and Hiep Ngo.

Thomas Nutley Seeks Third Term In Ward 6

THOMAS NUTLEY

Stating he will continue to speak for "the little guy" and the "taxpayer in particular," Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley announced his re-election campaign last Friday at Walsh's Restaurant in North Quincy.

In his announcement, Nutley also outlined his work on the council since he was elected three and a half years ago and stressed that he will not "sit back passively" on issues such as public safety, education, veterans and affordable housing.

Instead, he said he will ask questions of any and all vested interest groups that appear before the council since each of these groups "appear before us for a reason."

"They should be willing, and eager, to present their cause fully and accurately, and not expect us to capitulate weakly because of their status. If their cause is worthy, they should welcome questions," Nutley said.

As an example, he referred to the recent affordable housing proposal to take $127,500 of Quincy's community development block grant monies and award loan "gifts" to six upper middle income people to purchase homes.

"My position is that we could do much more valuable and needed good with this money by helping 150 low-income elderly and working families with rent subsidies. Only by asking questions can we, as I did in this case, determine the worth of these 'vested interest' proposals.

"I'm for affordable housing for the needy, but, this inane proposal would not serve the needy, and so, I asked questions and learned, and now oppose this particular program.

"Let them revise the program as to truly serve the needy, and they will have my support," he said.

In addition, Nutley said he will continue to ask questions and demand answers because there are few officials who speak on behalf of the "little guy," taxpayers in particular.

"I will listen to those with a 'vested interest' but they, in turn, should be ready to provide full and accurate answers to my questions.

"And, they should be aware that my primary concern are those citizens who have no one to speak for them, particularly the taxpayer who ultimately pays all the bills, including the vested interest programs.

"Those are the people: the struggling middle income family, the elderly, above all the taxpayer. Those are the people that I have endeavored to represent and will strive to continue to represent no matter what the cost, or embarrassment, to me."

Looking to the future, Nutley said, "We face some difficult financial constraints in the not too distant future.

"I am opposed to trash removal fees, multi-million dollar sewer fees but not everybody is opposed. It is important that you stay alert to our council actions."

As for his past accomplishments on the council, Nutley referred to several events and issues, such as local development, restoration of the Old Colony railroad, beautification of city property and the influx of Asians into the city.

He also noted the successful fight against relocating the Suffolk County prison at Moon Island, which he called the "first big victory for the people of Ward 6."

As for development, Nutley, who served as chairman of the Zoning Review Task Force, said 34 of 54 recommendations for change were passed by the council.

"We brought sanity back to development in Quincy by reducing height and density of all future construction. Our recommendations included the first to provide affordable housing and protection for the affected neighborhoods," he said.

In addition, Nutley formed an Ad Hoc Committee in Ward 6 which also resulted in reduced height and density and increased construction quality.

Moreover, he rezoned several large areas of Ward 6 to prevent high-rise construction in the area's neighborhoods and along with then Ward 5 Councillor Stephen McGrath, defeated a proposal that would have allowed buildings up to 10 stories high in Wollaston and North Quincy.

Noting that he has worked to protect neighborhoods from "oppressive over-development," Nutley added that "development is not necessarily bad — only uncontrolled development is bad."

"Good, controlled development results in jobs and increased tax revenues in jobs and increased tax revenues for the benefit of us all," he added.

Speaking on the proposed restoration of the Old Colony railroad, Nutley said, "I have led the city's spirited opposition to this proposal which would do nothing for Quincy but would pollute the city with poisonous diesel fumes, and destroy our peace of mind with noisy freight trains rumbling and thundering through the city all night long.

As for parks and beautification, Nutley said he has obtained money to repair and restore area facilities, including the soccer field at the Atlantic Middle School. He also said additional revenue is needed to repair more streets and sidewalks.

In discussing the influx of Asian people to Quincy, Nutley said he has taken a "strong, up-front position to defuse incidents and to protect our new Asian neighbors."

He pointed out that he and the mayor wrote and mailed a letter to all 34,000 city residences "at a time when, perhaps, it was not politically wise to take such a strong action."

The letter was two part: one section strongly stated that civil rights violations would not be tolerated and the second part urged parents to sit down and discuss the problem with their youngsters before they got involved in an incident.

Nutley has also held informational sessions and organized the North Quincy sub-committee on human relations.

Acknowledging that progress has been made, Nutley said "Quincy's citizens can all be proud of their concern and fairness and acceptance of our new neighbors.

"There is still much more to be done, but we are on the right, and humane course," he added.

First Squantum Church Offerings To Aid Weymouth Church Destroyed By Fire

A special offering will be taken at the First Church of Squantum on the next two Sundays to assist the congregation of the Old South Union Congregational Church in Weymouth, much of whose church building was tragically destroyed by fire early this week.

Last Sunday the Squantum congregation heard the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, preach on the topic, "But How Shall We Pray?" It was the third sermon in a series on the subject of prayer.

Early in the service, Dr. Langevin gave a special talk to the children present on "How to Say a Prayer."

Greeters for the morning were Dick and June Hendry. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes. Ruth Swenson and Evelyn Ahearn hosted the Fellowship Hour.

On Saturday, members and friends of the church will meet from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. for a second "Spring Cleanup Fling" to clean up the buiding and grounds of the church. They will bring their own lunch but coffee will be provided. They will be entering from the back door of the church near the kitchen so as not to disturb the deacons of Fort Square Presbyterian Church who are holding a daylong retreat at the Squantum church. The cleanup event is sponsored by the Board of Trustees and the Property Committee. Sally Johnson is in charge.

The morning service Sunday, which is both Mother's Day and Pentecost, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Sunday School and nursery will be held during church.

'Peace And Family Sunday' At Bethany Church

This Sunday there will be only one wervice of worship at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

To focus on the original intent of Mother's Day, which was conceived by Julia Ward Howe shortly after the Civil War, as a day to honor motherhood and the yearning for peace, Bethany celebrates "Peace and Family Sunday."

Linda Palmer of the Protestant Social Service Bureau will be guest preacher for the day sharing her vision of how PSSB ministers peace to individuals and families on the South Shore. Her sermon will be entitled "Christ's Peace and the Work of Reconciliation". The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will conduct the liturgy which will include a "Litany for World Peace" and a "Pledge of Allegiance to the World." The lay Scripture reader will be Linda Massey.

There will be some special music for this celebration. The Children's Choir (preschool thorugh third grade) will sing "Listen" by Red Grammer with Tora Huntington and Margaret Fernald on guitar. The Bethany Folksingers will sing "If the People..." which is a soviet peace prayer. Members of that group are: Lisa Birr, Richie Briggs, Linda Devin, Bob McLain, George Nicholson, Bob Peoples, and Shirley Pyne, with Tora Huntington and Margaret Fernald, guitarists.

Charles Blue, Bethany's organist and choir director, will be at the organ console. He will direct the chancel choir in singing the offertory anthem. Carol Massey and Tammy Vozzella will be the soprano soloists.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for children through eighth grade. Excellent nursery care for babies is also provided. Our Church School Coordinator, Pamela Curran, will be present to supervise the care of our infants and children.

The worship service will be broadcast over WJDA, 1300kc. at 10 a.m. In addition a cassette tape of the service can be obtained for $2 by contacting the church office.

At 11 a.m. there will be a Fellowship Hour in the Allen Parlor. This will include "peace" cookies, distribution of paper cranes, songs from the Folksingers, and other special displays and activities honoring the theme of "Peace and Family." Toddlers and preschoolers will give poem handprints to their mothers, the K/1st grade class will sing "It's a Small, Small, World" with homemade rhythm band instruments, the second-third grade class will display a large "peace mural," the fourth-fifth grade class will share their "rainbow and dove mobiles," the sixth, seventh, eighth grade class will "explode" their "peace bomb" (the "bomb" made of papier mache is filled with symbols of life and is decorated with words and signs of peace. It will be "exploded" like a pinata and all the peaceful goodies will fall to the ground for everyone's enjoyment).

A unique 10 minute video montage created by Ron Rivera will be premiered. This video project was inspired by a scene from Kurt Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse Five" when the hero becomes "unstuck in time" and all the violence of war starts reversing itself with death being turned into life.

Next Sunday, May 21, there will be an "Open House" from 10 to 11 a.m. for all persons in the community who would like to see the Sunday School in action. Refreshments and a special brochure describing the educational ministries of Bethany will be available.

For more inforamtion about any of Bethany's ministries or activities call the church office at 479-7300.

Rev. Gordon Benson Speaker At Covenant Congregational

At the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational, Whitwell and Granite Sts., Rev. Gordon Benson of Natick will again be the guest speaker.

The Choir, directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will sing the introit and two anthems. Smith will play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude.

A nursery is available for all children age five and under. The attendant will be Heather McKim. For children up to age 12 there is junior church, led by Linda Day.

Sunday School, with classes for all ages, nursery through adult, will begin as usual at 9:30 a.m.

On Friday, May 12, the church board will host a Pot Luck supper to meet with prospective pastoral candidates. Those attending should bring a casserole, either a vegetable or salad and dessert.

Coming events include the New England Seamen's Mission harbor cruise Sunday, May 21 at 5:30 p.m.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

NAR Sees Interest Rates Decline In Second Half

Interest rates likely will decline during the second half of the year, in response to a slowdown in the nation's economic growth, according to the latest monthly "Outlook for the Economy and Real Estate" from National Association of Realtors.

The April report, issued by NAR's forecasting and policy analysis division, anticipates that by the middle of the summer, economic growth will have slowed enough to clam the Federal Reserve Board's inflation worries. The February drop reported for many non-farm economic indicators, including home sales and housing starts, shows that the Fed's tight monetary policy appears to be taking hold, the report notes.

The Fed, which has "focused on containing the inflation beast in a cage of tight money and high short-term interest rates," now appears to be evaluating its efforts, according to the outlook. Given the signs of slower growth, the Board likely will not continue hiking short-term rates much longer, it notes. Short-term interest rates have risen at a much faster pace than long-term rates over the past few months.

The outlook says the rate increases likely will prove sufficient to forestall risks of high inflation. "We believe a few more adjustments in short-term rates may be necessary to slow the economy, but that interest rates will trend down beginning in the second half of this year," it says.

A leveling off period, followed by a decline, is forecast for both adjustable-rate and fixed-rate mortgages, which are expected to reach their peak for 1989 during the second quarter. One-year, adjustable-rate mortgages are predicted to average 9.1 percent for the second quarter; fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages are expected to average 11.2 percent for the same period.

Predictions for the real estate industry and the economy in general for 1989:

- Sales of existing single-family homes are expected to total 3.53 million units, dropping 1.7 percent below the sales for 1988.
- Sales of new single-family homes are expected to total 663,000, falling 2.0 percent below sales for 1988.
- Housing starts are expected to total 1.50 million units, increasing 0.4 percent from a year ago. A total of 1.08 million starts for single-family units is expected, slipping 0.1 percent from 1988. Starts for buildings with two-four units are expected to total 64,000, rising 8.7 percent from 1988; and buildings with five or more units are expected to total 349,000 units, increasing 0.4 percent from last year.
- The national median existing-home price is expected to reach $94,100, rising 5.4 percent from last year. The national median new-home price likely will reach $118,000, rising 4.9 percent from 1988.
- Interest rates for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages are expected to average 11.0 percent, rising from an average of 10.5 percent for 1988. Interest rates for one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages are expected to average 8.9 percent, rising from an average of 8.9 percent for 1988.
- The gross national product (the total value of the nation's goods and services) is expected to total $5.23 trillion in current dollar terms, representing an inflation-adjusted increase of 3.0 percent from 1988.
- Consumer price inflation is expected to reach a rate of 4.9 percent, compared to 4.1 percent in 1988.
- The civilian unemployment rate is expected to be 5.2 percent, compared to 5.5 percent last year.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, represents nearly 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

What Exactly Is An 'Opinion Of Values?'

It's not hard to find a real estate broker who will give you an "opinion of value" on your property. Just pick up the phone or send in one of those cards you received in the mail.

But what exactly is an "opinion of value"?

John Nettles, manager of the Jack Conway Real Estate Company's Wollaston office, agrees that this is an important question which the homeowner needs -- and deserves -- answers to in order to make a sound decision about which real estate firm will handle the sale of a property.

"A properly done opinion of value is a combination of market research and the broker's experience in, and knowledge of, the area," Nettles said. "It is determined by the broker taking a look at the property and noting such specifics as land area, age of the home, foundation size, and the number of rooms and baths. The broker then returns to the office and, through the use of the MLS comparable and appropriate area county comparable books, looks for three to five comparable properties in the seller's community which sold within the past three months. This information, including pictures of the comparable houses, should be presented to the seller in a folder along with the opinion of value the broker has arrived at, as a result of this research, for the property. The broker will also acquaint the seller with 3-5 comparable properties presently on the market that will be competition in the marketplace. This package offers the seller a price for the property with the background information on how and why the figure was determined."

Once you have a couple of opinions of value, it's time to make a marketing decision... a decision made more complicated if the two figures are far apart. For example, what do you do if one broker says your home is worth $175,000 and another says $200,000?

"It's only natural to go for the higher figure," said Nettles. "But before you jump, take the time to analyze the way the numbers were arrived at. Make sure the comparables are timely. Timely means no more than three months old. Ask to see the comparables if they aren't given to you. Many times the reason for a large gap is that the comparables are not similar enough -- their location, upkeep or improvements may have increased their value."

A final word of advice: "Unless the broker can back up what he or she says your property is worth with hard facts, look for another opinion."

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Is your home new, old or in-between? At any stage, vinyl siding makes sense

In what stage of its "life cycle" is your home at this very moment? Is is just being built? In need of a complete repainting? Or ready for some extensive repairs to restore its attractive appearance?

Whether you're building a new house or are in the process of remodeling your present home, you should be aware of the low maintenance features and long life of solid vinyl before you choose an exterior siding material.

Once vinyl siding is properly applied, it gives any home a freshly painted look while providing the homeowner with years of freedom from repainting and tiresome upkeep. A simple soap and water rinse is all that is required for maintenance.

Vinyl siding's easy maintenance—combined with the wide selection of designs and colors now available—has made solid vinyl by far the most popular American siding material today.

HOMES OF ANY AGE can sport a fresh new appearance with a professional application of solid vinyl siding. One major manufacturer, Bird Incorporated, has instituted a program to help homeowners find reputable home improvement contractors to be sure that their job is applied correctly.

Widespread appeal

A contributing factor to this widespread appeal is the lifetime warranty that major manufacturers like Bird Incorporated offer for both standard and premium lines of vinyl siding.

Constructed of tough PVC (polyvinyl chloride) compound, it cannot corrode or dent like aluminum and will not chip, peel or rot like wood. Color is molded clear through the panels so that even scratches will not show.

Search out the best

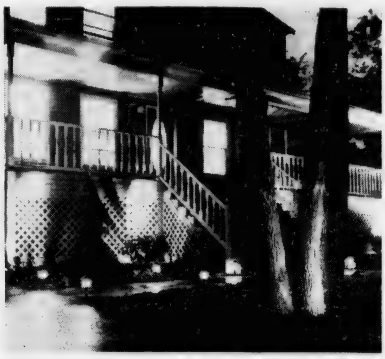
While it is important to invest in good quality siding materials from a reputable manufacturer, it is equally important to select a professional home improvement contractor whose work you can trust.

It's a rule of thumb that the overall quality of a job is only as good as the craftsperson doing the work.

To help homeowners search out the most reputable home remodelers, Bird Incorporated was one of the first manufacturers in the country to institute a Professional Vinyl Siding Contractor Certification Program that acknowledges the best craftspeople in the field.

In order to satisfy the stringent certification requirements, the contractor must meet certain criteria for experience, commitment to ethical practice and professional reputation. Once he or she is certified, he or she agrees to abide by the code set forth by the manufacturer.

For example, a Bird-certified contractor must offer a two-year warranty on installation as a complement to Bird's lifetime product warranty.



He or she is also required to provide clear, written estimates and contracts, and carry insurance for worker's compensation, personal injury and property damage. (There have been many unhappy consumers who have found out the hard way that not all contractors fulfill contracts or carry the necessary insurance.)

When requested, a contractor certified by Bird will provide the names and addresses of satisfied customers for homeowners who may want to inspect work they have completed. There is no better testimonial of a job well done than a satisfied customer.

For most people, their home is the single largest investment they will make in their lifetimes. That is why it is a wise move to go to a contractor who has received the official backing of one of the nation's largest building materials manufacturers.

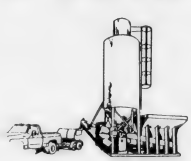
Kitchen Facelift Found To Be Most Profitable Project In Boston Area

Want to get the most out of your home improvement dollar?

Give your kitchen a facelift.

That's what the fourth annual Practical Homeowner Home Improvement Survey found to be the most profitable project in the Boston area.

For the survey, professional appraisers from 10 cities across the country analyzed 27 home improvement projects and ranked them according to recovery (return on the investment). The Top 10 projects, both nationally and by city, are featured in the May/June issue of the building and remodeling magazine.



In the Boston area, a kitchen facelift offered the best return on the investment, followed by a fireplace addition, interior facelift, deluxe bathroom, furnace replacement, standard island kitchen, new roof, standard bathroom, exterior painting and hardwood flooring.

Nationally, this year's survey found that more and more homeowners are looking for practicality rather than luxury — as evidenced by the high ranking of functional improvements such as furnace replacement, central air conditioning and energy upgrade projects.

Most-asked sidewall insulation questions answered

Although high energy costs have presently subsided, energy efficiency is still a prime concern among homeowners today. In fact, according to a recent survey in Professional Builder magazine, it is still a top priority among those buying a new home.

Along with the continued interest in energy efficiency come questions regarding home insulation. Millions of Americans have learned how easy it is to insulate attics and crawl spaces, but the CertainTeed Home Institute has found there is still some confusion about insulating sidewalls.

In response to this, a list of most-asked questions about insulating sidewalls has been developed. Here are the most-wanted answers:

When we're sitting in our den in the hot, summer months, we often find our walls feel warm to the touch. Is this because they do not have enough insulation?

Chances are that's the case — especially if your home is more than 10 years old. Homes built before the energy crisis in 1974 do not have the high R-values of insulation installed in them that homes built today contain.

Can we insulate our sidewalls ourselves?

It's far easier to hire a professional insulation contractor to insulate your sidewalls. Since walls are finished off, it is very difficult and costly for the average do-it-yourselfer to undertake this project.

How will a contractor insulate my sidewalls, and is it a difficult task?

No, it is an easy job for a professional insulation contractor. All sidewalls are basically insulated the same way.

First, some of your home's siding or outside finish is removed. Secondly, small holes are drilled to create an opening for the insulation. Thirdly, loose-fill fiber glass insulation is blown into the stud spacing through a special insulation hose. Lastly, holes are plugged and siding is installed again.

Will the contractor make many holes in my home?

No, generally the rule of thumb is one opening for every 4 to 5-foot height to ensure that the stud space is completely full. Blowing through a single opening in an eight-foot wall, for example, might leave some of the cavity with no insulation if it has a fire stop.

Do we have to wait until we're planning to remodel our home to upgrade our sidewall insulation?

No, this is a common myth. You can have your walls insulated at any time.

How do I find an insulation contractor to insulate my sidewalls?

Ask your utility company for recommendations, consult friends and neighbors and/or look in the telephone book under "Insulation Contractors." Once you've chosen one, you should educate yourself a bit about sidewall insulating to ensure the job will be done properly.

What type of insulation material is best suited for my sidewalls?

There are several types of insulation that can be used in sidewalls. Use only high quality materials like INSUL SAFE III®, a blown-in fiber glass insulation from CertainTeed.

It offers outstanding thermal performance, is noncombustible, will not absorb moisture, and will not rot or decay.

How much can I expect to save by insulating my sidewalls?

That's difficult to pinpoint because the answer is determined by the type of construction of your home and the climate in which you live.

Rest assured, however, that by upgrading the insulation in your sidewalls, you can reduce the amount of air conditioning lost through your walls by up to 30 percent.

For more information about insulating sidewalls, write for the free brochure, "Insulate Your Sidewalls For Added Comfort," CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

SKYLIGHTS ARE A SMART HOME INVESTMENT that can add 100 percent of their cost or more the the resale value of the house within five years.

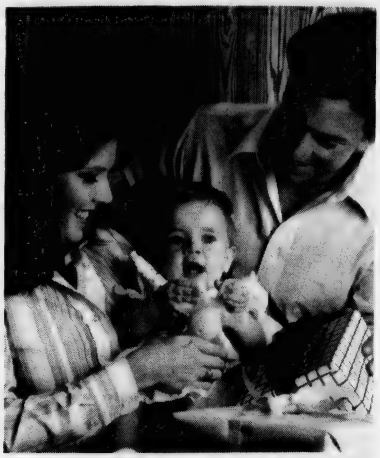
Special Gifts For That Special Mom

Flowers: Always appropriate for Mother's Day

When Anna Reeves Jarvis conceived Mother's Day, she proposed flowers as a token of remembrance.



Her idea was to go out into the West Virginia countryside and pick some of the wild blooms that grew in such profusion in May.

From her humble thought has grown a Mother's Day tradition—sending a floral arrangement to mother on her day. Flowers can come in the shape of a bouquet, corsage or living plant that can keep on giving all through the year.

A great tradition has developed for Mother's Day. It's not just the thought, but also the convenience that fits nicely into your lifestyle. You don't even have to go near the florist's if you don't have the time. Just pick up the phone and order what you think would please mom. Your order will be delivered on request, regardless of distance.

Over the years, wild flowers have been vastly refined. Today, all kinds of cultivated flowers are available on request. The top favorite is the rose—the American rose. The rose is now the national flower, so sending mom roses on Mother's Day is sort of patriotic, too.

Whatever you decide, do it early enough so you can be assured of delivery by Sunday, May 14th, the date of Mother's Day in 1989. Even with mothers getting an average of 2½ gifts, one of them can say it with florals. Research tells us that almost 90 percent of a panel questioned said they send flowers as one of the gifts they lavish on their mothers. It's easy—and the thing to do! MD896605

IF THE CHILDREN are too young to shop for Mother's Day gifts, it's up to dad to do it for them. This dad made sure that no one would feel left out -- he bought gifts for baby as well as for mom.

Mother's Day observations know no national boundaries

Just about everyone observes Mother's Day. It is a national holiday by an act of Congress way back in 1914. It's always observed the second Sunday of every May, and the President annually issues a Mother's Day proclamation, as mandated by the authorizing legislation.

Recent research, conducted among a panel of 1,000 participants, revealed that more than 95 percent of all Americans pause to remember their mothers in the annual tribute to them, as conceived by Anna Reeves Jarvis in 1908.

Her concept was inspired by love of her own deceased mother, and was almost immediately embraced as an emotional expression of gratitude to the mothers of the country.

An earlier attempt to establish Mother's Day, following the horrors of the Franco-Prussian War in 1871, was led by Julia Ward Howe, a leading feminist of the time. It failed to capture the imagination of the public, perhaps because it was lacking in the emotional qualities that reached most people.

Because mothers produce sons and daughters all over the world, Mother's Day, as an observance, has spilled over the borders of the United States into scores of countries.

Practical gifts are always appreciated

Of course, you're creative. You can come up with that different gift for your mother.

According to recent research undertaken by the Mother's Day Council, most gifts for mother are useful and needed. These gifts are ones that mothers will take delight in using day after day, month after month, year after year.

Keep that in mind when you go out to shop for Mother's Day gifts and you'll be on the right track.

Most often-selected gifts are wearable. It could be a sweater, a casual top or jewelry. A scarf or a handsome new handbag are other great ideas. Everything that can be worn is something that mother probably needs.

Cosmetics are this type of gift. One of mother's secrets is her very personal way to always look fresh, young and lovely. And what's a more practical gift than cologne or perfume, a skin treatment or a new makeup kit? That's why cosmetics of all kinds are among the most favored of Mother's Day gifts.

Have you thought of candy? Maybe there isn't a traditional corner candy store in sight anymore, but you'll find some good assortments in your department store, drug store or gift shop.

If your mother has a job outside the house, then what could be more practical than one of today's sophisticated labor-saving appliances? If she doesn't already have a microwave oven, get her one! Or what about one of the new food processors, miniaturized to fit anyplace and still do about any job? It doesn't take much originality to think of buying a toaster oven, but think of all the joy it will bring to her before and after work hours. The list of labor savers is limitless!

You could say it with a photograph. Over 20 percent of people create their own greetings this way. Start with a photograph of the grandchildren—what grandmother ever had enough pictures of her grandchildren? Or take one of the whole family. Or, snap one just of you.

If you're still looking to be different and practical, here are more ideas. A "Faxphone" that both records messages, sends them out and triples as a regular telephone could be just what she needs. Try a compact disc player if she's a music buff.

And, if she uses a computer at work and doesn't have one at home, this may be the time to give her the surprise that will bring new order into her life.

A plant is one way to keep giving all year long. Gift certificates let her pick out anything she wants. Just don't forget Mother's Day—Sunday, May 14th.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Mother's Day! ... A dedicated day of honor ... A day for customary white, pink or red carnations ... A day that binds in common cause all classes and creeds, rich and poor - man, woman and child ... A day in which we recognize the wonderment of motherhood ... A day in which mankind realizes there is no prerogative in the phenomena and sanctity of a one-of-a-kind possession, for everyone had or had a mother ... A day to respect and remember her ... A day to inventory your spiritual assets, to renew your memories of her kindness, patience, sacrifices - and - her tears ... A day of gifts for her if she is here ... A day of thankful remembrance if she is not here ... A day of reflection and sweet recollection ... A day to realize that with adult development, we may think we need her less and less - but - in her aging, she needs our love and respect more and more ...

For all mothers and families everywhere, we hope you have a truly happy Mother's Day ...

Fr. Joseph M. Connolly, 53
Formerly Of St. John's Church

FR. JOSEPH CONNOLLY

Rev. Joseph M. Connolly, 53, pastor of St. Mary of the Annunciation Church, Cambridge, and a former associate pastor of St. John the Baptist Church in Quincy, died Monday after a long illness at the home of his sister, Nola Barnard of Berkley.

Fr. Connolly was associate pastor at St. John the Baptist Church from June, 1970 to June, 1980. He was active in youth groups where "he did a terrific job with the kids," said Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor. He assisted also with Chi Rho, young people from 18 to 30 years.

He conducted Pre-Cana Conferences and was known for performing a record number of marriages. He organized the "Hi Ho" group for the elderly, conducted weekly Masses at the Martensen St. Senior Citizen complex, worked with the mentally ill from Medfield State Hospital and in nursing homes, and was a member of the Quincy Council on Aging. He established the Parish newspaper, St. John's News, which still continues.

Fr. Connolly was ordained Feb. 9, 1965 at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, by the late Cardinal Richard J. Cushing. He served first for five years at St. Julia's Church in Weston, then in Quincy, and since 1985 has been pastor at St. Mary of the Annunciation Church in Cambridge.

"He certainly was a dedicated, prayerful priest and he certainly had a very likeable personality, a true priest of God," Fr. McCarthy commented. "He was compassionate, kindly, and a hard worker, even though not in good health while he was here."

Son of the late M. Joseph and Evelyn L. (Williams) Connolly, he was born in Brockton. He is survived by three sisters, Ann Maguire of Great Falls, VA, Evelyn Johnson of Bridgewater, and Nola Barnard of Berkley.

A Concelebrated Mass of Resurrection will be celebrated in St. Mary of the Annunciation Church Friday at 11 a.m. The Rev. Charles J. Bourque will be Homolist.

A Pro-Burial Mass will be celebrated Saturday at St. John the Baptist Church, Quincy, at 10 a.m. with the parish priests participating.

Visiting hours in the J. Frank Conley Funeral Home, 138 Belmont St. (Rt. 123), Brockton, Wednesday from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. Fr. Connolly will lie in state in St. Mary of the Annunciation Church Thursday from 2-8 p.m. A Parish Mass will be celebrated at 8 p.m. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery, Brockton.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to St. Mary's Memorial Fund, 134 Norfolk St., Cambridge, MA 02139.

James M. Mitchell, 88
Clerk At City Hall

A funeral Mass for Jane M. Mitchell, 88, of Quincy, a clerk in the auditor's office of the City of Quincy for 13 years, was celebrated Tuesday at St. John's Church.

Miss Mitchell died May 5 in Quincy Hospital.

She was also a clerk for the former R.H. White Company in Boston for 30 years. She retired from the Quincy auditor's office in 1970.

She was a member of St. John's Ladies Sodality and the Quincy Catholic Club.

The daughter of the late Elizabeth (Callahan) and Patrick J. Mitchell, she is survived by a brother, James P. Mitchell; and a sister, Gertrude M. Mitchell, both of Quincy; and several nephews, nieces, grandnephews and grandnieces. She was the sister of the late John C. Mitchell, Joseph F. Mitchell, Walter S. Mitchell, William E. Mitchell and Elizabeth A. Mitchell.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy.

Granville C. Olson, 87
Former Defense Dept. Auditor

A funeral service for Granville Claire Olson, 87, of Quincy, an auditor for the federal Department of Defense for 20 years, was conducted Tuesday at the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston, by the Rev. David Hoyt of the Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

Mr. Olson died May 6.

He graduated from Boston University in 1928 and was treasurer of the Alumni Association Class of 1928.

He was a member of the St. John's Masonic Lodge, Boston.

He was a member of the former Atlantic Methodist Church and Quincy Community United Methodist Church.

Husband of the late Hazel Francis (Price) Olson, he is survived by a son, Herbert G. Olson of Louisiana; a daughter, Hazel Olson Brown of Quincy; a son-in-law, Douglass Brown of Quincy; and a daughter-in-law, Hildred Olseon of Louisiana.

Francis P. Duffy, 56
Korean War Veteran

A funeral Mass for Francis P. Duffy, 56, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in St. Agatha's Church, Milton. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Duffy died Friday in Carney Hospital, Dorchester, after a long illness.

A sales clerk for the Joseph T. Ryerson Co., Boston, he was an Army veteran of the Korean War.

He was born in Dorchester and lived there and in Charlestown before moving to Quincy 15 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Mildred M. (Halley) Duffy of Quincy; his mother, Mary (Concannon) Duffy of Quincy; a brother, Paul Duffy of Alexandria, Va.; and a sister, Maureen Kavanaugh of Westwood.

Funeral arrangements were by the Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home.

Mable Annis, 87

A memorial service for Mable (MacKeil) Annis, 87, of Quincy, will be held later in Burlington.

Mrs. Annis died at home May 4 after a long illness.

A past grand chief of the Pythian Sisters in the state of Fermont, Mrs. Annis was a member of the Pythian Sisters in Burlington and the Beatrice Lodge there. She was also active in the First Baptist Church in Burlington.

Mrs. Annis was a bookkeeper for 20 years at Maynard Auto Supply, Burlington.

Born in Boston and educated in Quincy, she moved to Burlington in 1930, returning to Quincy recently.

Wife of the late Lester Annis, she is survived by a daughter, Barbara Gazzolo of Squantum; six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

John A. DeCosta, 67

A funeral mass for John A. DeCosta, 67, of Quincy, was celebrated Saturday at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. Burial was in the Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Mr. DeCosta, formerly of Braintree and former owner of the Iron Kettle Gardner in Braintree, died at home April 30 after a brief illness.

He was a former employee of Bethlehem Steel.

Mr. DeCosta was a Navy aviation metalsmith during World War II and received the Gold Conduct Medal and the Philippine Liberation Star.

He retired in the late 1970's.

Husband of the late Barbara (Scanlon) DeCosta, he is survived by two sisters, Eleanor Moline of Rockland and Mildred Hanson of Michigan.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

WEEK OF: May 11

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Your sign is identified with Venus, the planet of love and beauty. You love your comforts and excel at entertaining, but you can be stubborn to a fault. Turn that stubborn streak into determination and you can make a significant professional advance by late '89. Romance also benefits from your persistance.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Before acting on key information, be certain that your source is trustworthy. Your own investigative activities unearth important findings. Workplace is lively from Monday on.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Travel opportunity may develop unexpectedly. Extra time is required in matters involving shared finances. Home improvement plan may be put on temporary hold before progressing at a speedy clip.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Week sees you involved in a supporting role, and you help make others look good. A token of appreciation comes your way. Weekend offers opportunities for promoting creative ideas.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Being observant can be useful in the job area; this is a key time for spotting trends. Travel and romance may blend well. Pets are currently spotlighted.

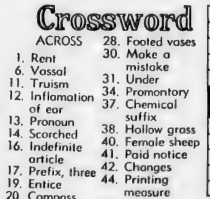
GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Joint ventures are spotlighted, provided all terms, no matter how minor, are agreed on in advance. Creative writing is a present strength; give it a try, and be pleasantly surprised.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Avoid conflicts, no matter how minuscule, with family members. Meanwhile, a sensitive co-worker may be more willing to accept criticism. Community assignment is surprisingly challenging.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Excellent week for working out schedules. You may find yourself dealing with travel agents or accountants; in either case avoid signing contracts before you're entirely satisfied.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
New neighbor and you may have a number of commmon interests. Detective work pays off in the home. You're full of hunches, but only some of them prove correct.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Kids look to you as a role model while older friends and relatives may be too proud to ask for your help. Creativity is a current strength in all areas--but don't get carried away.



SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Week may find you performing, either professionally or for friends. Platonic relationship proves satisfying. A series of invitations may arrive from the weekend onward.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Long sought-after goal may finally be in reach, but patience is crucial at this pivotal time. A bashful acquaintance steps outside of his/her shell thanks to your splendid influence.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Highlights this week include reunion with a friend from long ago and faraway. Important to catch up on correspondance, especially with family members. Travel planning is on tap.

North Edges Brookline For Third Straight Win

By TOM SULLIVAN

After several frustrating losses, the North Quincy baseball team is on a roll and Monday overcame a 6-1 deficit to edge Brookline, 8-7, at Brookline for its third win in a row, improving its record to 6-8.

Leo Donovan's Raiders will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday, will be idle Monday and will host Newton North next Wednesday at Adams Field.

North scored three runs in the top of the seventh Monday to pull out the win as Gary Rawdon pitched outstanding relief ball to gain the victory.

Rawson, relieving starter Billy Warren, allowed only two hits and struck out five over the last four innings.

Jim Glynn drove in four runs with two hits, Erik DeBoer hit a home run, Jim Bryan had a double and single, Jeff Calvert an RBI double and Billy MacDougall, Tony Anderlionis and George Rozanitis a single each.

"This was just a great win and the boys showed a lot of heart in coming from five runs down," said Donovan. "They have been playing good ball but have wasted some fine pitching with a lack of hitting and some poor defense.

"We already have won three more games than we won last year and the year before and hopefully we can win a few more before the season is over. This win at Brookline has to rank with our biggest of the year."

Last week was one to remember for the Raiders as they received a no-hitter from Warren in a 7-0 win over Waltham and the following day defeated Quincy, 4-1.

The Quincy game was one of the best of the year with each team playing excellent ball. North won the game with all four runs in the second inning and Quincy spoiled DeBoer's bid for a shutout with a run in the third.

DeBoer allowed six hits and didn't walk a batter as he gained his third win.

North filled the bases in the first but failed to score. In the second Glynn singled and DeBoer walked. Kevin MacDougall reached on an error and Glynn scored. Calvert tripled to right for two runs and scored when the catcher's throw back to the pitcher went awry.

North was held to four hits as Bobby Austin shut the Raiders down with five innings of outstanding relief.

Warren was tremendous in no-hitting Waltham for his first win. He had speed, control, some help from the wind and received excellent support in the field.

Baker led North's attack as he went three-for-three including a bases loaded triple in the first inning, giving Warren more than enough runs.

Lady Luck Finally Smiles On Quincy

Lady Luck, who has frowned upon the Quincy baseball team all season, finally smiled on it Monday as the Presidents pulled out a 4-3 victory over Newton North for its first victory in 12 games.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team is idle Friday, will host Brookline Monday, play at Brockton Tuesday and will be home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Thursday, all games starting at 3:30.

Rich Burns singled, Steve McGinnis walked and both runners moved up when the pitcher's pickoff throw was wild. Burns scored the game-winner on Mike Noonan's sacrifice fly to center.

Newton took a 1-0 lead in the first but Quincy scored three in the fourth when Tom Balzano walked, John Fahey tripled, Chris Beatrice walked and, following an error, Burns singled.

Newton tied it with two runs in the sixth on a two-out two-run double.

Rick Kiesel pitched well for the Presidents but gave way to Bobby Austin in the sixth and Austin recorded the victory.

"It was a long time coming and I'm extremely happy for the boys," said Sylvia. "They have played some fine games but we just haven't been able to put good pitching and hitting together at the same time. Maybe this will give us some momentum and hopefully we will win a few more games. We certainly have played better than our record indicates."

Quincy played two excellent games last week but they went for naught.

Thursday the Presidents dropped a 4-1 decision to North Quincy as the Raiders scored all four runs in the second inning.

Austin came on and shut North down over the last five innings, but his mates were unable to get to North's Erik DeBoer, who won his third game.

The Raiders scored four in the second on a triple, single, a walk and two errors. Austin came on and North failed to threaten after that.

The Presidents, who out-hit North, 6-4, got the first two runners on in the sixth but a double play helped DeBoer out of trouble.

Quincy led, 4-3, in the seventh when Austin relieved starter Kiesel. Cambridge tied the score and pulled out the win in the extra inning.

Noonan had a two-run double and McGinnis had an RBI single.

Elks Defeat Burgin, 6-3

The Elks bounced back from a 3-1 loss to Houghs Neck to defeat Burgin Platner, 6-3, in the Quincy Little League.

In the win over Burgin Platner, Elks pitcher Terry Bowman and BP's Andrew Joyce pitched well throughout the game.

The Elks received excellent fielding from Sean Tirrell, Mark Glynn and Scott Pyer. Timmy Kunz had a fine game and he cut down the go-ahead run in the second inning.

Glynn paced the Elks' attack with a two-run homer and two doubles.

The son of Sandy and Nancy Rounseville, formerly of Quincy, he will begin his senior year in September.

Rounseville is on the varsity wrestling and football teams and maintains a high academic standing.

After Quincy Win

North Girls Bomb Brookline

The North Quincy girls' softball team got off to a slow start but has been coming along well and Monday defeated Brookline, 13-9, for its second win in a row to improve its record to 5-6.

Barbara Webster's Raiderettes will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday, will be home to Boston Latin Monday and will be at Newton North next Wednesday. All games are at 3:30.

Kristen Drake pitched all the way Monday, giving up six hits and striking out 11. However, she was wild as she walked 10.

Sarah Harrington was three for four with four RBI and hit a crucial base-clearing double in the sixth inning. Drake had three singles and a double and two RBI. Michelle Lynch three for five with an RBI, and Soyan Park a double and two singles and three RBI.

Last Thursday the Raiderettes defeated Quincy, 8-6, with Drake giving up four hits, striking out four and also walking four.

Meanwhile, the Quincy girls were blanked by Newton North Monday, 6-0, dropping their record to 3-7.

The First Ladies play at Notre Dame of Hingham today (Thursday), will play at Brookline Monday, will host Brockton Tuesday and play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Thursday, all games at 3:30.

In last week's 8-6 loss to North Quincy, Amy Baker hit a two-run homer in the seventh. Kim Robertson was the losing pitcher and Kim Holt played strong defense at third base.

Baker had two hits nd three RBI, Chris Barrett drove in three runs and scored three, Lisa Morrell and Aileen Donahue each had two hits and two RBI.

Quincy Girls Defeat Brockton

The Quincy girls' tennis team grabbed an exciting 3-2 victory over Brockton last week as it won three tie-breakers.

It was the First Ladies' second win.

The girls will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday and will be at Newton North next Tuesday.

Quincy's Elizabeth Vo defeated Susan Cayer, 1-6, 7-6 (7-4), and Patricia Stewart defeated Michelle D'Ambrose, 7-6 (7-2), 6-1.

Brockton swept the doubles as Nancy Snow and Liz Danholm defeated Carolyn Busby and Mary Vo, 7-5, 6-7 (3-7), 6-2, and Nancy Keefe and Beth Hall defeated Maureen Cloonan and Al a Mak, 6-0, 6-1.

Nancy Smith Inducted Into Stonehill Hall Of Fame

Nancy Smith, a native of Quincy and life-long resident until moving to Weymouth last year, was one of the first eight persons to be inducted into the newly-created Stonehill College Hall of Fame last Friday night at the Four Hundred Restaurant in North Easton.

Nancy is the only woman to play three sports (basketball, softball and soccer) at Stonehill. She was a point guard in basketball, shortstop in softball and goalie in soccer.

The daughter of Dana and the late Patricia (Geary) Smith attended the Wollaston School and Central Junior High School and was active for several years in the Quincy Recreation Dept.

She graduated from Abp. Williams High where she was a four-year standout in basketball and softball and stood our academically.

The basketball teams won the division championship all four years in which she played.

The youngest of the eight inductees, nancy was introduced at the induction ceremonies by her former coach and also an inductee, Paula Sullivan, who called Nancy a "shining example of leadership and achievement."

Nancy captained the soccer, softball and basketball teams at Stonehill and was all-American selection in softball.

The other Hall of Fame inductees were the late Rev. William F. "Bill" Gartland, longtime Stonehill athletic director; Red Sox general manager Lou Gorman, who played baseball and basketball at Stonehill; Brockton High football coach Armand Colombo; Easton dentist Don Prohovich, who became Stonehill's first Academic All-American in 1980 when he had a 3.7 academic average and hit .441 for the baseball team; Stonehill women's basketball coach Paula Sullivan; Mike Allocco, a three-time All-America selection in basketball and the school's all-time scoring leader, and Angelo Caranfa, the only Stonehill soccer All-America selection.

67 In Wollaston Legion Golf Tourney

The Wollaston Legion baseball team held its first annual golf tournament at Brookmeadow Country Club in Canton to help defray expenses for the coming season.

Sixty-seven players braved the elements to lend their support for the program. Following the tournament a buffet dinner was served at the Imperial Terrace in Quincy.

Eighteen teams teed off in a Florida-style format with the team of Dan Slattery, Tom Slattery, Bob Kenney and Bill Tarr winning with an eight-under-par 64.

The long drive contest was won by Tom Slattery, the awards for nearest to the pin went to Greg Webb on the fourth hole, Rich Higgins on the sixth, where he just missed a hole-in-one by a foot, and the 11th, and Jim Higgins on the 15th.

The coaches, players and post members thank the following groups and individuals for their sponsorship of the tournament and support of the program:

ATS Development, Barry's Deli, Beacon Sporting Goods, Bryant Carter, Colonial Federal Savings, The Cooperative Bank, H. Carr and Sons, the Golden Dome Pub, Granite Rail, Granite Bank, Imperial Terrace, Luke's Lounge, Ron Mariano, Councillor Charles Phelan and Republic Plumbing Supply.

Patriot Volleyball Teams Off To Good Start

The Mass Patriot 16 and under girls volleyball teams, featuring several Quincy and North Quincy girls and coached by Quincy's Chris Prendiville and Tom Henderson, are off to a good start toward training for the national championships.

The Royal and White teams have played in a number of tournaments, starting in Long Island where they faced New York and Pennsylvania competition.

The White team, led by Quincy's Jen Richmond, Lori Novak and Melanie Sullivan and Case's Aimee LeConte, went unbeaten in pool play but lost in the semifinals to South Pennsylvania to finish third.

The Royal team, led by North Quincy's Kara Sullivan, went 0-8 in pool play, but lost close, double-figure games. Sullivan was named to the all-tournament team.

The teams then hosted the second major competition at North Quincy High.

The Royal team was 2-4 in pool play, defeating another Massachusetts team and losing to two Long Island teams. In the playoffs, the Patriots lost to Pepsico, a strong New York team.

Led by North Quincy's Brenda Hayduk, Cambridge's Cindy Hobbs and Masconomet's Allison Block, the Royals showed great improvement in team as well as individual skills.

The White team went 5-1 in pool play, defeating the Mass. Juniors and Long Island 16s and splitting with Pepsico.

Behind solid performances from Brookline's Khuong Ta and Notre Dame's Keri Gibson, the team defeated Long Island 10 in the the semifinals and bowed to Long Island 9 in the finals to take second place.

Next came a tournament in York, Pa., as the Royal team, improving steadily, made it out of pool play, defeating Delaware, Pennsylvania and New York. In the quarter-finals the team lost a close 13-15, 14-16 match to Pepsico to finish eighth out of 15 teams. Sparking the team were Sullivan, Hayduk, Newton North's Rita Tramontozei and Medford's Katie Bositis. Hayduk was named to the all-tournament team.

The White team went undefeated in pool play, defeating Pepsico, 15-5, 15-12; Long Island 10, 15-8, 15-6; South Penn., 15-10, 15-8, and Quaker City, 16-14, 15-9.

After a three-hour layoff, the Whites entered the playoffs and topped Pepsico, 15-1, 15-7, but lost to Bethlehem, Pa., 11-15, 14-16, to finish third.

Christine Barrett of Quincy, LeConte, who made the all-tournament team, and Lowell's Lori Loureiro turned in excellent performances.

The teams again went to New York, playing at Concordia College in Bronxville.

The Royal team, having trouble with its offense, did not make the playoffs, but Rachel Sky-Stiskin of Brookline and Diana Lund of Dighton-Rehoboth turned in outstanding performances.

The Whites finished 5-1 in pool play, topping Rockland, N.Y., Long Island 16 and splitting with So. Tier, N.Y. In the playoffs the team defeated Pepsico, 14-16, 15-8, 15-13, to move into the finals.

After losing the first game to So. Tier, 4-16, the Whites won the next two games, 15-13, 15-5, behind the offensive of LeCon and Barrett and the defense of Richmond.

of the Quincy District Court, along with Copsetta. The fines and citations were dismissed, Jan. 10, according to police records.

"This is customary procedure to dismiss the fine and it usually doesn't come back," Berlucchi says, explaining that the dog owner and the complaintant usually resolve the problem on their own at that point.

"But Mr. Godbey didn't heed the warning," she added. "People seem to think that a dog complaint is not serious. They consider it to be less than a parking ticket."

As events illustrate though, it is considerably more than a parking ticket.

According to Godbey, he "bent over backward" to solve the problem, even voluntarily replacing the chain link fence which once separated his property from the Copsetta's with a $600 cedar screen fence.

"I did this to protect the child (from the dogs)," Godbey said, "and to protect myself from a lawsuit...Tiny could break the child's arm in several places," he added. "A child wouldn't have a chance against the dog."

According to police records though, the complaints were about barking only, and not for fear of the child's physical safety.

Evidently the fence did little good against the barking, and Berlucchi says, she received "telephone complaints (from the Copsettas) that the problem was still going on.

She visited Godbey's property Feb. 1, and, at that time, she says, suggested to him that he move the dog run from the side of the house where the Copsetta's live to the other side of the house.

"He refused," she says, "because he says he was planting on the other side of the house."

When the problem still was not resolved, the Copsetta's filed an official request for a hearing with Chief Finn. The request was filed March 12 and the hearing took place April 19.

"It's a hard decision to make," says Finn of the deportation or devoicing order, "you try to bend over backward in these cases, but when someone doesn't cooperate, there's nothing you can do."

Godbey, however, feels that both Berlucchi and Chief Finn were "extremely bias" in the case. He explains that he brought with him to the hearing signed affidavits from six of his neighbors saying that the dogs do not bark excessively.

Godbey said he also feels the city has violated his rights in the matter, because the decision was based on the issuance of a single barking violation which was since dismissed.

Godbey also says that there was no specific date or time indicated for the barking violation, and feels that he has that fact in his favor.

According to police records though, the date of the violation was written by Copsetta as "every night" and the time as "late at night," and according to the state law, no specific dates are needed for an investigation.

Berlucchi says the case of King and Tiny is simply a case of everyone exercising their rights under the law.

"The problem is a common one," she says, "and one that many people don't take seriously enough."

Godbey must certainly take it seriously now.

"I've got $1,100 invested in this," he says, in reference to the fence and the lawyer. He has also spoken with many city officials on the matter, he says.

He said that Councillors James Sheets, Stephen McGrath and Michael Cheney have all agreed to talk to Chief Finn on his behalf.

"I don't want to have their vocal chords ripped out," he says, "before I'd do that I'd move."

'How Absurd' Opens At Eastern Nazarene May 11

The Communications Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will put on its final theatrical production of the year by presenting "How Absurd" May 11-13 at 7 p.m.

"How Absurd" is an evening of selected pieces by Absurdist playwrights focusing on the resilience of man. Sample authors in these performances will include Samuel Beckett, Jean-Claude van Italie, Eugene Ionesco and Harold Printer.

Absurdism was born after World War II, and somewhat reflected the emotional impacts of the atom bomb "game." Cyclic in nature with seemingly meaningless dialogue, the absurdist genre reveals our despair in trying to share meaning with others in a world of broken-down communication. The absurdists also perhaps ignite our potential for change with a flicker of hope.

ENC's production will be performed in-the-round by a versatile cast of eight.

Co-directed by professor Jeffrey D. Frame and Eunice S. Ferreira, "How Absurd!" will suggest new avenues of achieving communication and perhaps teach us a little more about one another.

'100 Years Of Mayors' Video Presented To City

An informative and entertaining video entitled "100 Years of Mayors" was recently presented to Mayor Francis McCauley and the directors of the Quincy Historical Society and the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Producer John Lyons and Quincy Community Television Program Director Edward Fiddler presented copies of the video to the mayor, Elliott Hoffman, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society, and Warren Watson, director of the Crane Library at a ceremony in the Mayor's office.

The video will be shown on Quincy Community television's Channel 3 in the near future.

Keeping with the spirit of the Quincy City Centennial, Lyons felt his contribution to the city should be in the art form he knows best, rhymes. He is the producer of "Rhymes of the Times," a program which start's Quincy Cable's telecasting each night.

After four months of research at the Historical Society, the Crane Library, City Hall and conversations with each of the four living mayors, Lyons gathered his information to write the rhymes, "Quincy: 100 Years of Mayors."

The program, written in a light documentary style, is educational and entertaining for all ages. It features one fact about each of Quincy's 27 mayors while the closing segment highlights the four living mayors, Walter Hannon, Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin, and McCauley, sharing their thoughts about the city's next 100 years.

For example, in reference to former mayor James R. McIntyre, Lyons says.

"Among his accomplishments were the development of the MBTA.

"Including the Neponset River Bridge and other bridges along the way.

"The technical high school, Houghs Neck Library and the big State Street development.

"Also federal programs for neighborhood improvements, he helped to implement."

The production was part of Quincy Community Television's overall commitment to be an active participant in the city's centennial celebration.

Quincy Community Television is proud to have documented all of the city's official Centennial events and many community television volunteers participated as crew members for all of these productions.

In addition, the Quincy Community Television Council sponsored a 30-minute documentary, "Quincy: The City Century," produced by Community Television volunteer Cynthia Stanton.

The video has since been donated to the city's archives.

Since 1986, Lyons has been recognized by receiving nominations in the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers and the Massachusetts Community Television contest.

He has also been honored at local luncheons and meetings by organizations in Quincy and surrounding towns.

The subjects from "Rhymes of the Times" are from actual headlines in newspapers and magazines. They are then developed into the program by arranging the subject matter into rhymes and choosing suitable pictures to add punch and humor.

Many holidays throughout the year become subjects for the programs which may be serious, humorous or even outrageous as Lyons pokes fun at some of our habits and institutions.

Well-known in the music field, he was formerly the music supervisor in the Weymouth School Department where he wrote and directed many musical productions.

Founder of the Quincy Conservatory of Music, he directed thousands of people all over the South Shore in the area of music and dancing arts for more than 30 years.

He also served as choir director and soloist at St. Joseph's Church in Quincy and St. Bernard's in West Newton.

Tales Of China At Main Library Friday

The Thomas Crane Public Library, Washington St., Quincy Center, will present a performance by internationally known storyteller, Diane Wolkstein Friday, May 12 at 7 p.m. Children age five and older as well as adults are invited to hear tales of China.

Wolkstein travels extensively to collect folktales and cultural stories. She has performed on radio and television and has also made several recordings. In addition, she appears on an American Storytelling Series videocassette telling "White Wave," a tale of a poor young man and a moon goddess.

DIANE WOLKSTEIN

Her books include retellings of classic folktales from several countries.

Wolkstein will also conduct a storytelling workshop at the Library for sixth middle school students on Friday morning. Students from Woodward, Atlantic, Broadmeadows, Central, Sterling, Sacred Heart, St. Ann and St. Mary's Middle schools have read her book "The Magic Wings," and a tale from China in preparation for the workshop.

NQHS Magazine Receives Award For Excellence

A publication of North Quincy High School received an All-New England Award for excellent this year in scholastic editing and publishing at the New England Scholastic Press Association's (NESPA) 41st annual conference recently held at Northeastern University.

High school students from throughout New England attended the conference at Northeastern, which is NESPA's home. They attended seminars and workshops on newswriting and reporting in print and broadcast media, photography and photo-editing, magazine editing and publishing, desk top publishing and the yearbook, and newspaper layout and topography.

Gun Regulations, Firing Range Visit On 'Cable Talk'

State and federal gun regulations and what kinds of guns can be purchased legally will be discussed on Quincy Community Television's "Cable Talk" program tonight (Thursday) at 9 p.m. on Channel 3 in Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

Videotaped at Jack's Gun and Ammo shop on Franklin St., Quincy, host John Noonan questions owner Jack Schmock about the types of guns sold at his shop and the strict regulations he operates under.

The program also features a visit to a firing range where students learn the proper procedures in loading, firing and unloading a gun.

Tuning In by Seli Groves

While NBC's Peacock certainly has a right to spread those tail feathers in pride at having Alan Alda in its nest for the actor's first drama series since "M*A*S*H," the fact is, Alda did not give his old network alma mater, CBS, the bird by electing to go to NBC. The story is that Alda talked with CBS first, but some network nabobs nixed the pitch — which Alda and executive producer Martin Bregman ("Serpico," "Dog Day Afternoon") promptly resubmitted — with success — at NBC.

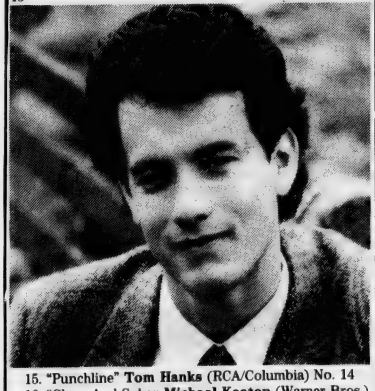
We're going into rerun time which is increasingly becoming a time of decision for many shows. Several major long-running hits might never have survived their first year if not for reruns.



George Wendt of "Cheers" said: "We were low in the ratings in our first season seven years ago, but began to pick up when we went into reruns. Viewers who'd watched other shows tuned us in and, I guess, liked what they saw and stayed with us..."

Schools, Public Safety Priorities If City Gets More State Aid

budget is inadequate. "I think we do have to take a stand and ask the mayor for more money."

"The crunch is coming here because of Proposition 2½," he said, adding that any free cash surplus will quickly dissapate.

"No one is addressing the issue of where the additional money will come from," he said.

Nutley also referred to the current crisis in Chelsea where layoffs and the elimination of city departments could occur this year.

"I look at this Chelsea thing and I see us heading that way. Those department heads who don't reduce by attrition will have to take the blame and shame for layoffs in the future.

"Times are tough. We really have to do some reducing through attrition," Nutley said.

Other councillors, such as Council President Patricia Toland and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, said they support the School Committee's attempts for more school funding.

In discussing the fire budget, Chief Paul O'Connell said a cut in overtime money from $400,000 to $250,000 will probably result in some equipment not being used.

"We really can't run the department without overtime," O'Connell said, adding that he will likely use consolidated forces consisting of the same amount of men but fewer pieces of apparatus.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said the mayor should have funded the overtime account with $400,000.

In his budget address, Police Chief Francis Finn said he too will face problems because of a reduction in the overtime account. Overtime has been cut from $520,000 to $270,000.

Finn also said he would like to see more people working in the department's drug enforcement juvenile department. Since this January, 51 elderly abuse cases, 33 rapes against children and 59 sexual assault cases have been reported.

Because of a shortfall in this year's overtime account, the chief reassigned nine specialty officers to the streets. The move has frustrated the chief and some councillors who believe the mayor should fund the shortfall and put the officers back on their trained duties.

However, Councillor Timothy Cahill told the chief that he appreciates the reassignment because of increase visibility.

"We're in a tough bind. Everyone is going to have to make cuts but I appreciate more officers on the streets.

"There have been a lot less complaints on gangs and I think you made a wise decision in putting more officers on the street," Cahill said, adding that youths are less apt to get in trouble if police officers are more visible.

Other department budget approved by the Financ Committee include recreation, health, and traffic control.

To all persons interested in the estate of HELEN V. TODD late of QUINCY, in said County, deceased.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the first and final account(s) of Helen V. Todd, Administratrix (the fiduciary) of said estate has-have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the 24th day of May, 1989, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this eleventh day of April, 1989.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light all roads so that I can attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and who in all instances of my life are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you and even in spite of all material illusion, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Repeat this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even though it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after favor is granted without mentioning the favor

Mothers Unite To Slow Traffic On Shore Ave.

By JANE ARENA

Concerned Merrymount mothers are trying to slow vehicles on Shore Ave., which has seen an increase in daily traffic from an estimated 50 cars to an average of 3,200, according to a recent count conducted by the City Traffic Commission.

The women, many of them mothers worried for the safety of their children, have taken to the streets during the morning and evening rush hours to alert motorists to three newly installed stop signs at intersections along the street. They say they also call attention to the speed limit of 30 and 20 mph in the area.

Ironically, the dramatic increase in traffic is the direct (and anticipated) result of a city improvement: the repaving of Shore Ave. last October.

Of 27 homes on Shore Ave., 24 of them signed a petition calling for the street to be repaved.

"The street was one massive pot hole," says Roseann Flavin of 112 Shore Ave., "and for years it was kept that way so we wouldn't have this traffic to put up with."

Repaving Shore Ave. created the perfect shortcut connecting Quincy Shore Drive and Sea St. for motorists who want to miss the traffic lights on the main roads.

ROSEANN FLAVIN, EILEEN McDONNELL and Beatrice DiMattia, are among concerned Merrymount mothers trying to slow down greatly increased traffic on Shore Ave.

Retesting To Be Done

Lead Levels Close School Water Taps

MARY PRATT, middle, a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, New York, was recently honored by the Quincy Retired Teachers Association. She was one of some 300 women who played in the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League in the Midwest from 1943 to 1954 and was a long-time coach and physical education instructor in Quincy. On hand to honor her are, from left, Dorothy Gilbride, program chairman; Barbara Berry, treasurer; Dr. Henry Patterson, president; and School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci.
(Quincy Sun photo by Tom Gorman)

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Several emergency steps, including the immediate shut down of water bubblers and taps, are being taken by school officials after learning Tuesday that almost 70 percent of the school's water taps have unacceptable levels of lead.

The steps were being taken after officials learned the results of a preliminary testing of all drinking water taps, including bubblers, sinks and combination of sink and bubblers.

According to School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, 119 out of 334 water locations or 35 percent were found to have 50 (.05) parts of lead per million gallons of water.

A reading of .05 or greater has been determined an unsafe level and requires immediate shutdown of bubblers and those sinks used for washing dishes or used in cooking.

Ricci pointed out that the water was tested before the start of the school day without prerunning the water. "Therefore, we see this report as a worse case reading," he said, adding that officials plan to have the water retested.

Of the 119 outlets deemed unacceptable, Ricci said 65 are sinks and 54 are bubblers or sink bubblers.

The preliminary water tests, conducted by Certified Engineer and Testing Company, Inc., also show that:

- 116 or 34 percent of the taps have 20 parts (.02) of lead per million but are under .05. Ricci noted that some of these locations are sinks not used for drinking purposes.
- 99 or almost 30 percent of the taps are within the acceptable level of less than 20 parts per million (.02).

The acceptable level of below 20 parts per million is set by the State of Massachusetts and the Environmental Protection Agency.

According to Ricci, a second phase of testing will be performed on all bubblers and taps where water is used for drinking, cooking or washing of dishes. All bubblers and taps with an initial reading at or above .02 will be retested, he noted.

- The plan to retest the water and if the tests come back under 2, they will turn the water back on with the general rule that the water be run for 30 seconds each morning," Ricci said.
- That would be a safeguard," he added

However, if the tests come back with the same results, the water will be turned off in at least five schools for the rest of the school year, Ricci said.

Those schools are the Charles Bernazzani School, Squantum, Snug Harbor Community, Point Webster and Merrymount.

"The problem is affecting something in every single school. Something in all of the 17 schools and (Quincy) Junior College is affected by it," he said.

"But what we are most concerned with is the drinking water and any water that is used for cooking or for the cleaning of utensils. In any other cleaning sinks there would be a sign put up reading "This water is not for consumption," Ricci said.

The superintendent said the tests must be redone with the water running for 30 seconds first. "It may just be some sediment that has collected. This was just preliminary testing."

Meanwhile, Ricci has ordered the following steps be taken:

- Where reading is above 50 parts lead per million, immediate shut down of bubblers and taps where water is used for drinking, food preparation and dishwashing.
- Provide portable bottled water coolers to replace bubblers and sinks where water is used for cooking or washing of dishes. A minimum of 30 portable drinking fountains will be set up in these schools:

Quincy High (2), Charles Bernazzani School (4), Squantum (6), Snug Harbor (8), Point Webster (7) and Central (3).

- Place permanent signs over sinks where water is not to be used for consumption, food preparation, or cleaning of dishes. The signs will read "To Be Used for Cleaning Purposes Only."
- All water bubblers with a reading of .02 and sinks used for washing dishes or used for cooking will be retested.

66 City Employees Top Mayor's Salary

Some 119 city employees made more than $50,000 last year and 66 of those employees topped the mayor's $55,000 salary, according to records released by Mayor Francis McCauley's office Tuesday.

The three-page computerized listing of city employees with a combined annual earning of more than $50,000 was provided by Data Processing Director Robert Brennan after a request by McCauley.

The employee earnings include overtime pay and incentives through the Quinn Bill which boosts salaries with each educational degree earned.

The list does not include hospital officials.

About 2,000 people are employed by the city.

In requesting the list, the mayor said he was "curious" to know how many people on the city's payroll topped the $50,000 income mark. McCauley wanted to give a copy of the list to the City Council before Monday's meeting but it was not prepared in time.

McCauley intended to give each councillor a copy of list to help them discuss two proposed salary increases, one for mayor and another for councillors.

In his budget preparation, McCauley had submitted a pay hike of $5,000 for mayor and an increase of $2,500 for each councillor but the Council unanimously defeated the proposal at Monday's meeting.

If the raises had been approved, the mayor's salary would have increased from $55,000 to $60,000 and the salary for councillor would have increased from $10,000 to $12,500 effective Jan. 1, 1990.

Asked why he requested the salary list, McCauley said, "I wanted to find out how many people made more than $50,000 last year.

"If I had prepared it earlier, I would have given it to the City Council. It might have helped them in their deliberations," he said.

Package Store Ordered To Stop Drinking On Premises

By JANE ARENA

The License Board will issue a "very strong" letter ordering Chutney's on Marina Bay to cease and desist the illegal practice of allowing customers to consume alcoholic beverages on the premises.

Chutney's owner, Thomas Gannon, was before the board on a similar violation November 25, 1988.

In November Gannon was before the board because he was selling beer and wine, along with sandwiches from his adjacent delicatessen, which customers were drinking on a patio on his premises. The board told him then that he must enforce the no drinking on premises regulation and post signs of the regulation on his property.

Quincy Liquor Inspector Sgt. Richard Laracy has issued a letter to Police Chief Francis Finn, dated May 13, 1989, which states that Chutney's is still in violation of the regulation.

"I have observed many times over the past couple of weeks customers drinking beer sold to them on the patio adjacent to his establishment Laracy said. "He has also included inside his building a table, counter and chairs where I have also observed customers drinking beer and eating sandwiches."

Laracy also noted that no signs explaining the regulation had been posted.

Laracy told the board that Gannon's wife had stated to him that John Gillis and Police Chief Francis Finn had "come to an understanding with her husband that it is all right to do what they are doing."

Chief Finn noted that the board was very clear on its November ruling that the practice was a violation of the license as well as state law.

Laracy told the board that other licensed establishments on Marina Bay now seek to sell beer and wine for consumption on their properties and that the nine licensed establishments "are all looking to see what is going to happen at Chutney's."

The board voted to send the letter to Chutney's immediately ordering Gannon to cease and desist the practice.

"If he continues to do it," Finn said "he will have to come before the board to face serious consequences."

Houghs Neck, Adams Shore Beach Cleanup

A beach clean up for Houghs Neck and Adams Shore residents will be conducted Saturday, May 20 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The clean up will consist of three beach areas: Post Island Rd. to Sea St., Sea St. in Adams Shore and Perry Beach in Houghs Neck to Nut Island Ave.

All residents are urged to show up at 9 a.m. with rakes, shovels and trash bags. The city will provide trucks for pick up.

Coffee and donuts will be supplied by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney.

According to Cheney, a portion of the beaches were cleaned last year while all beaches were cleaned two years ago. He also said other beach clean-ups are anticipated in other areas of Ward 1 this spring.

Council Asks Mayor To Appropriate $486,579 For Schools

A City Council resolve asking the mayor for an additional $486,579 for the School Department received the support of seven out of nine members at Monday's meeting.

Introduced by Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, the resolve failed to get the support of Councillors Timothy Cahill and Thomas Nutley. Both Cahill and Nutley abstained when the roll call vote was taken.

Chretien, who called the $38 million school budget for fiscal 1990 inadequate, asked fellow councillors to support the School Committee's budget of $38,486,579. That budget received approval from six out of seven members.

Chretien's resolve was the latest attempt to get the mayor to fund more money for the school system. McCauley has said if more revenue becomes available, he will consider supplemental appropraitions in the area of education and public safety.

In abstaining, Nutley said, "I feel very strongly and I don't concur with the School Committee. I side with the mayor.

"I'm for education but the question is, how much money can we afford? There are a lot of things that are important," such as fire and police protection, Nutley said.

"I will not force the mayor to do what I think he is very competent to do," he added.

In joining Nutley, Cahill said, "It's a tough one to vote no on. To vote yes is to say we blindly agree with the School Committee and I think that's a bit rash.

"I don't think there is always a direct relationship with the quality of education and the amount of money spent," Cahill said. He also said he prefers waiting until the city's free cash amount is known before backing calls for additional appropriations.

Several councillors, including Stephen McGrath and Michael Cheney, voiced their approval.

"I am confident additional money will be forthcoming," McGrath said.

"We should be prioritizing. Education is a top priority and we should invest in education," Cheney said.

WARD 2 CIVIC ASSOCIATION recently honored two women for their work in helping the homeless. Vera Daniels, who is confined to a wheelchair, and her mother, Natalie, received a citation from Ron Mariano, president of the Ward 2 Civic Association, and Nancy Traiser of Procter and Gamble. Both women collect and wash clothing to give to the homeless.

Cerasoli MWRA Bill Sails Through House

A bill sponsored by Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy) requiring the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to establish its office headquarters at Fore River Shipyard, sailed through the House this week on a voice vote for the second time after reconsideration, and was sent to the Senate for action.

Cerasoli reported that an 11th hour amendment tacked on to this proposal does not alter its original intent of having the MWRA offices located adjacent to a proposed sludge processing plant at the shipyard. The amended version, said Cerasoli, mandates that the MWRA locate its administrative and executive offices in any community where permanent sludge land filling, sludge pelletizing, sludge incineration or other sludge processing activities were started by the Authority after Jan. 1, 1989. The amendment was sponsored by Representatives from Malden, Saugus and Revere, areas that have been mentioned as possible sites for sludge processing resulting from Boston Harbor cleaning procedures.

"It appears these communities have taken a page from our book" stated Rep. Cerasoli. "They obviously feel the same way Quincy does ... If a community is forced to endure sludge plants, it is also entitled to whatever benefits might accrue, such as a professional office complex."

Pointing to the intense legislating efforts by Governor Dukakis and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn for the Authority to locate at Roxbury, Cerasoli declared Quincy faces ... "a tough but not insurmountable fight ... I like the way everyone has rallied to this issue. The people of Quincy and officials from every level of government. It speaks well for the City."

Sailor's Home Pond Clean-up Saturday

Quincy residents are urged to participate in a clean-up Saturday, May 20 at 9 a.m. at Sailor's Home Pond.

The clean-up is being sponsored by Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and State Representative Michael Morrissey.

The city's Park Department will provide a truck, rakes and trash bags. The Civil Defense Underwater Recovery will provide a boat and volunteers to help rake the bottom of the pond.

$2,607,094 In Construction

One hundred and sixty-four building permits totaling $2,607,094 were issued during April, according to a report issued by the Quincy Building Department.

Four dwelling units were added through new construction and five dwelling units were added through alteration.

In April 1988, 171 permits totaling $22,135,454 were issued.

Last month's breakdown is:

- One hundred and two residential alterations for an estimated cost of $927,943.
- Twenty-one miscellaneous permits, $702,001.
- Seventeen other alterations $515,700.
- Four permits for one-family dwellings, $410,000.
- Thirteen signs, $26,150.
- Five removals, $19,500.
- Two garages, $5,800.

Receipts for last month amounted to $37,294 and public safety inspection fees totaled $120.

QHS Basketball:

A New Hall Of Fame And Fond Memories

Pardon me while I step into the Sports Department for a little change of pace.

Next Tuesday night (May 23) should be a nostalgic and memorable one for those who played or followed basketball the past 60 years at Quincy High School.

The Quincy High School Presidents Basketball Association has established a Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame and will induct the first 25 selectees at a dinner and ceremonies at the Bryan VFW Post, Broad St. (Social at 6, dinner at 7).

Some pretty good names are included. The bodies the names belong to may have weathered a bit down through the years, but the names and the images of them are still young and some always will be as long as they play basketball at Quincy High.

The 25 inductees and the decades they played in:

Of those who were the "best of the best" -- the best players, the best teams? Well, that can easily get you into an argument. There's sure to be agreement -- and disagreement.

LUBARSKY

Dave Lubarsky, local sports historian -- a virtual "walking sports encyclopedia" -- witnessed over 40 years of Quincy High basketball as sports writer, sometimes official scorer and spectator.

That covers the 1920s up to the mid 1950s. His memory is as sharp as though he was talking about yesterday.

The best teams he saw?

"I would have to pick 1928, 1938, 1951 and 1955," he says after careful thought.

But, he has a fondness for the 1925 team.

The 1925 team was the first to play in the gym at the present Quincy High School. Prior to that QHS was what is now Central Middle School.

MacLEAN

"Nichols," remembers Lubarsky, "was also a good football player. He kicked a 23-yard field goal out of his hands late in the game that year to defeat Brockton 3-0.

It was the first time Quincy had beaten Brockton in football in nine years. And it would be 16 more long years before it happened again. That was in 1941 when Glenn "Shorty" Fleischer scampered in with the only touchdown of the game.

Incidentally neither Nichols nor Fleisher (who was also a good basketball and baseball player in the early 1940's) has yet been inducted into the Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame. If they did nothing else they are football Hall of Famers just for beating Brockton. Not many players wearing a Quincy uniform ever did that.

Lubarsky notes that although MacLean is being inducted into the Hall of Fame as a coach, he says he could have made it also as a player.

"We'll never really know how good the 1928 team could have been," says Lubarsky.

The team won six straight games. But in those days there were two graduations, the so-called mid-year graduation (end of January) and in June. The January graduation cost this high flying team three of its starting five players.

The starting line-up: Hobie Robinson and Charlie Gabriel at forwards, Fred Comparato, and Bob "Bones" Greenhalgh, guards and Gilbert "Crum" Crofts at center.

GREENHALGH

Greenhalgh, who died recently in San Diego, was an outstanding shooter.

"In fact," says Lubarsky, "he scored 89 points in the first six games of the season -- outscoring all six teams he played against. The six teams all together scored 79 -- 10 less than him."

Robinson, who later managed a Quincy sporting goods store and was active in basketball and baseball leagues; Gabriel who became a governor's councillor, and Greenhalgh were the three lost by graduation.

Without them, the team won two more to make it eight straight and then lost five in a row.

CROFTS

"That team could score and keep others from scoring with Crofts blocking shots and controlling tips," says Lubarsky. "Crofts was the Bill Russell of his day."

"I think if it hadn't been for that graduation, the 1928 team could have gone all the way to the nationals."

The 1938 team -- the famed Granite Chips -- will always have a sentimental spot in the hearts of Quincy basketball fans.

The starting team, it is interesting to note, is being inducted into the Hall of Fame intact:

PETTINELLI

GRAHAM

All of them with the exception of Joyce came out of Point Junior, products of Bill Bowyer. Joyce came from South, now Sterling Middle.

There weren't any living step ladders on basketball courts in those days who just jumped and dunked.

The Chips were a small team with Joyce the only six footer.

"They were the team that really popularized basketball as a major sport at Quincy," says Lubarsky. "They had a great following. You had to get to their home games a good half hour early to be sure of getting a seat."

The Chips went to the finals in the Tech Tourney, losing to Chelsea. They were 17-3 overall that year.

The 1951-52 team was the most successful in Quincy's history. It won the Tech Tourney and went to the New England finals, losing 62-51 to Bulkely High School out of New London, Conn.

CIRIELLO

The 1951 team had a 23-2 overall record and says Lubarsky: "It came close to being the only team to finish a season undefeated. With a little luck, it could have."

It's only other defeat other than Bulkely was a 73-68 overtime cliffhanger loss to Somerville.

DOYLE

"They could run all day and all night. They could shoot. They had basketball savvy. They could set up plays and were good ball handlers. They were a fast breaking team -- the high school Celtics team of their day."

The 1955 team had a 19-2 record and went to the finals in the the Tech Tourney, losing to Somerville, 60-57.

COLCLOUGH

So, which was the best team?

"You would have to rate the 1951 team as the best," says Lubarsky. "It went the furthest. I say it would be a toss-up between the Chips and the 1955 team as the second best team. And the 1928 team might have been the best of all except for that mid-year graduation."

And who were the best players?

Lubarsky declines to pick the best starting five.

"The players are from different eras," he explains, "and the style of play changed."

DiGRAVIO

DiGravio, who was also a football star, became a well known basketball official.

BURKE

Burke went on to become a star at the University of Massachusetts setting scoring records that held until a fellow by the name of Julius Erving arrived years later at U-Mass.

Burke later was a Boston Celtic rookie.

Centers: Jim Francher (1924-25), Gil "Crum" Crofts (1928), Ozzie Honkalehto (1945) Bob MacDonald (1955).

And, if he had to pick one player as No. 1, who would it be?

"That's tough," Lubarsky says. "But if I had to pick one, it would be Buzzie Ciriello. He was a good all around player. He made the big plays when they were needed -- the big block, the big assist, the big basket." The big whatever was needed."

His favorite coach?

"Munroe MacLean," he says. "He was the best. And he was a perfect gentleman, someone to look up to not only as a coach but as a person."

Lubarsky notes MacLean was a three-sport star athlete at Quincy High School and a unique one.

In addition to playing basketball he was on the track and football teams.

"It wasn't unusual," says Lubarsky, "for him to run for the cross country team Saturday morning and then play football that afternoon. I think he's the only one who ever did that."

Those four decades of Quincy High School football he witnessed are as fresh in Lubarsky's memory as the last four weeks.

He can still rattle off the scores and the records.

If you press him, he could also come close to telling you how many people were in the stands at any given game. And maybe how many were wearing hats and how many weren't.

Mother's Unite To Slow Traffic On Shore Ave.

"We knew we'd have a traffic problem," Flavin says, "all of Merrymount has a traffic problem. Samoset Ave. and Squanto Rd. have had a traffic problem for a long time."

Now though, the traffic has been rerouted to Shore Ave., Norton Rd., Chickatabut Rd., and the surrounding residential area, which includes the Merrymount Elementary School.

Kathy Kane of 63 Norton Rd., has four children who attend the Merrymount School. They used to walk to school, but now she dirves them every day because she is afraid to let them cross Shore Ave.

"There are no crosswalks along Norton Rd.," Kane says, and there's not one thing to slow these drivers down. They have a free expressway all the way to Quincy Shore Drive."

Three three-way stop signs were installed on May 8 at three intersections on Shore Ave.: One at Norton Rd. and Algonquin Rd., one at Norton Rd. and Chickatabut Rd., and one at Shore Ave. and Victoria Rd.

City traffic engineer David Kinnecom said that there is some discussion of putting a fourth stop sign at Narraganset Rd. and Shore Ave., but that "the traffic commission didn't fully agree that some of the signs were necessary."

"What we hope to do," Kinnecom says, "is to make traffic counts to actually monitor the effects of the stop signs." He added that part of the reason the stop signs were requested by the city council was as a deterrent for motorists wishing to avoid traffic signals.

"The stop signs was in hopes of slowing traffic up and make it more inconvenient (for the drivers)," Flavin said.

Since the stop signs were installed, Flavin explains, women in the area, many of them mothers, have been standing in front of the signs and physically pointing them out to motorists.

Linda Fitzgerald of 194 Merrymount Rd. thinks the stop signs are a big help.

"They seem very effective," she says, "I think people coming down Norton Rd. are stopping more than they are on Shore Ave...eight out of ten people stop at them, but they've only been here a week and I think people just have to get used to them."

"Officers have been tagging in the area at the new stop signs," he says. "Mainly it's just warnings, but there have been citations as well. The people aren't used to the traffic signs yet."

"The speed limit here is 20 mph," she says, "and the average speed (of the cars) is about 45 to 50. I think what happens is that they are so angry at having to stop (for the stop signs) that by the time they hit our area, they speed up."

TRAFFIC ON SHORE AVE. has increased from an estimated 50 cars per day to an average of 3,200, according to a recent traffic count conducted by the City Traffic Commission.

THE SPEED LIMIT on Shore Ave. is posted as 20 mph, but, by some accounts, motorists are speeding on the residential street.

ONE OF THREE three-way stop signs along Shore Ave. Are they being obeyed?

Flavin said she and other neighbors have requested that a police car be present during the morning rush hour, but was told that, since that is when the police shifts change over, it was difficult to get a car to the area at that time.

Captain Frazer maintains that the police have been present. "We haven't seen any speeding to speak of in the area," he says, "It's a very narrow road and sometimes it appears that the cars were speeding, but we've had the radar there. There may be an isolated case of speeding."

Despite all the traffic problems though, Flavin is happy that her street is finally paved.

"You axle would fall out of the car every time you drove on the street," she said, "people would drive on your lawns to avoid the pot holes, and drive on the wrong side of the road."

Kinnecom says that some solutions are being discussed to control the traffic problem, if not correct it, including retiming the traffic lights on Quincy Shore Drive.

"The signal timing would be changed to reduce the traffic flow on Quincy Shore Drive to discourage the use of Shore Ave. and (other side streets)," he said, adding that the traffic commission has already spoken to the MDC on the matter. The MDC has jurisdiction on the lights on Quincy Shore Drive.

He said the traffic signals on Sea St. could possibly be looked at "with the same objective in mind, to reduce the traffic on Norton Rd. and encourage them to use Sea St."

In the meantime though, the residents of the area are prepared to keep up their own enforcement efforts.

"We've been doing this every day," Flavin says, "We stand at different places and take turns...we just don't know what else to do, we're just at our wits end."

Water will be run for 30 seconds before retesting.

- Results of second test to be analyzed. Any fountain or tap water for drinking or sink used for preparation, or dishwashing testing at .02 will be placed out of service.
- Determine possible reasons for high lead content of water from bubblers, taps, and sink locations. Develop programs to correct these problems.

School Enrollment Rises By 500

May 17-23
36 Years Ago

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard announced that nearly 1,700 first graders will be starting school in the Fall of 1953, bringing the total enrollment to more than 13,300 an increase of 500.

Dr. Gossard said some of the crowding in the Quincy schools is expected to be relieved when the new four-room wing of the Snug Harbor School is ready for occupancy, probably at Christmastime.

Until then, he said, three classes from Snug Harbor would be bused to the Hunting School and the basement library at the Wollaston School and the auditorium at the Merrymount would continue as classrooms.

BROAD MEADOWS TITLE CLOUDY

Assistant City Solicitor Douglas A. Randall stunned city officials when he gave the opinion that the city's title of 136 acres of land in Broad Meadows is in doubt.

The city was entertaining two proposals to purchase part of the city-owned land in the area.

One was an offer of $500 an acre for 55 acres by Grossman Enterprises, which was planning to move to more spacious headquarters from its current location at 130 Granite St.

The other was from Frederick Bailey and Gilbert Mason, who were offering $2,000 for 11 acres of land on which they operated a golf driving range under a lease due to expire in May, 1962.

Meanwhile, John Marshall of the State School Building Assistance Commission was in town to investigate the Broad Meadows area as the possible site for a proposed new junior high school.

Planning a holiday picnic

For most people, Memorial Day marks the unofficial beginning of summer. This year, why not celebrate with a picnic? It's easy to plan a picnic that's just right for your tastes and budget.

For a romantic picnic, you may need only a secluded spot, a bottle of wine, a loaf of crusty French bread and some cheese and, of course, someone special to share it with.

Or, your idea of the perfect picnic may be an all-American feast, complete with fried chicken, potato salad, hungry kids and ants. You'll want to serve foods that keep well and are easy to eat. Bring lots of napkins and remember to store perishable foods in a cooler so they don't spoil.

SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN

Makes 3 to 4 servings

Cut up:

1 3-pound fryer

You will have 2 breasts, 2 thighs, 2 drumsticks, and 2 wings. Reserve the backbone and any fat to make chicken stock. You will also have the giblets.

Rinse off the chicken pieces and giblets and pat dry. Sprinkle lightly with salt and freshly ground pepper. Set aside for 15 minutes or seal in plastic bag overnight in the refrigerator.

Place in bowl:

¾ cup buttermilk

In another bowl, prepare seasoned flour:

2 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground white pepper

Heat to 375° in heavy 12-inch frying pan:

1 cup lard

The temperature of the lard is very important; it should be hot enough to make a drop of water sizzle when dropped in.

Dip the chicken pieces and giblets quickly into the buttermilk, then into the flour. Be sure each piece is well covered with flour. Lay out all the floured chicken pieces and floured giblets on a tray in preparation for frying.

A 12-inch frying pan should hold one fryer (8 pieces). Place the large pieces of chicken in the frying pan first and then fit the smaller pieces around them, putting aside the giblets.

Cover frying pan, reduce heat to medium, and brown all pieces well on one side, 8 to 10 minutes. Turn pieces over, add giblets, cover, and brown all pieces well again, 8 to 10 minutes.

The final step is the secret to this wonderful southern fried chicken. Add slowly and carefully to the chicken:

½ cup water

Return cover and steam for 5 minutes. Remove cover and turn pieces over once again to make the crust crisp. Remove chicken to warm platter.

POTATO SALAD

Makes 10 servings

Peel, dice, and boil:

6 medium Idaho potatoes

Drain and add:

1 tablespoon salt
1½ teaspoons celery salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground white pepper
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Cool, then add:

1 cup chopped celery
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon plain yellow mustard
3 hard-boiled eggs, sliced
1 cup mayonnaise

Mix, taste, and reseason.

If salad does not seem moist enough, add either 2 tablespoons of cream or more mayonnaise. You may wish to add 1 tablespoon of vinegar, or 1 teaspoon of sugar, or up to ½ cup of pickle relish, according to your taste.

If you fix this a day ahead and leave in refrigerator, it tastes even better.

EASY BROWNIES

Makes 20 brownies

Preheat oven to 350°.
Cream together:

1 stick butter, softened
2 cups sugar

Add:

6 eggs
1 16-ounce can chocolate syrup
3 cups all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ tablespoon vanilla

Pour into greased and floured 9- by 13-inch baking pan and sprinkle with pecans. They will sink into the batter, and you can use as few or as many as you like.

Bake for 20 to 25 minutes, until slightly browned. Cool in pan, then cut into squares.

Microwaved Rainbow Trout Makes Elegant Party Fare

Parties are a snap with rainbow trout dishes that cook in the microwave. Because microwave ovens vary, start with the shortest cooking time suggested in the recipe. When done, trout will flake easily with a fork, but remain moist and succulent.

For your next party, try this simple recipe for Greek-style Rainbow Trout. Because it takes less than ten minutes to assemble and cook, it's a boon to busy hosts.

A colorful mixture of chopped ripe tomatoes, pungent basil, olives and feta cheese tops delicate rainbow trout fillets. Drizzle with olive oil and lemon juice, then quickly cook in the microwave and serve.

For a luscious feast reminiscent of the sunny Mediterranean isles, accompany Greek-style Rainbow Trout with lemony chicken and rice soup, marinated zucchini, and warm honey-nut sundaes for dessert.

For more rainbow trout recipes, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Trout Party Recipes, C/O SY&T, 460 Boulevard Way, Suite 200, Oakland, California, 94610.

GREEK-STYLE RAINBOW TROUT

4 Idaho Rainbow Trout fillets (4 ounces each)
Dash of pepper
1 medium tomato, chopped
¼ cup crumbled feta cheese
2 tablespoons sliced Greek or black olives
2 teaspoons chopped fresh basil or 1 teaspoon dried basil
2 teaspoons olive oil
Juice of 1 lemon

Place trout in microwaveable dish. Season with pepper. Sprinkle tomato and next 3 ingredients over fillets; drizzle with olive oil and lemon juice. Microwave on high power, covered, for 2 minutes. Rotate dish; cook 2 to 4 minutes longer, or until fish flakes with a fork. Garnish with lemon slices. Makes 2 to 4 servings. About 227 calories per 4 ounce serving.

Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

Exercise For Better Health And Effective Weight Control

By NANCY STOLFA
Diet Center of Quincy

Exercise plays a vital role in permanent weight loss, but many people have difficulty staying motivated.

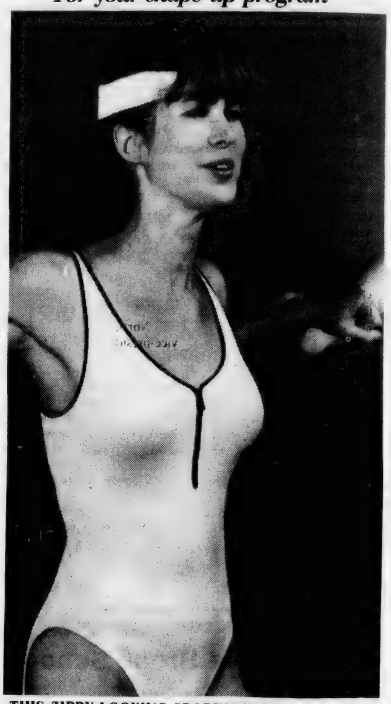
Some causes of waning interest are boredom, pain, and lack of time. If you can alleviate these, you go a long way toward making exercise a part of your life.

To prevent pain, start gradually. If you begin a regimen that is too difficult, you may experience muscle soreness and other stress related injury. This makes it almost impossible to stay motivated. Begin with a few minutes several times a week and increase to longer periods. Enjoy your sense of accomplishment each time you can lengthen the time.

Another problem is doing something you don't really like. If you don't like jogging, don't decide to begin a jogging program just because that's what everyone else in your neighborhood is doing. Walking is one of the best exercises — if you keep up a brisk pace for over 10 minutes. To make it fun, listen to your favorite tape on headphones while you stride along, or get a friend to walk along and chat the miles and minutes away. If music and dancing are your pleasure, find an exercise group that emphasizes that, or just pick out your favorite record and "boogie to the beat" in your own living room. Pick a type of exercise that you really like and do it frequently, on a regular schedule, and vigorously.

When time is a problem, consider getting your family involved. The best gift you can give your children is to consider exercise a pleasure. Unfortunately, in many families, fitness takes second place to eating or sitting around watching TV.

Consequently, we are seeing generations of heavier children as they become passive participants. Federal nutrition surveys report a marked increase in obesity among elementary-aged children during the last twenty years.



There's no time like the present to start a family-oriented fitness program. Involve all members of your family when planning your regimen. A specific time should be set so everyone can plan accordingly. Activities should include something for everyone. Try new forms of exercise.

Remember, variety is the spice of life and variety will keep your exercise regimen from getting boring. In that vein, make it fun!!

Family fitness does not have to be a grueling ordeal. Head for the nearest MDC or "Y" pool or plan a bike ride combined with a picnic. Keep track of each individual's progress. Set goals so they will each have something concrete to work toward. This will also help the younger children not become discouraged by competing against older siblings. As the instigator and motivator, be creative and, most important, stick with it.

Seniors For O'Connell Committee Formed

Peter O'Connell announces the formation of the Seniors for O'Connell Committee to advise and assist him in his campaign for mayor of Quincy.

The committee, he said, is comprised of a cross-section of Quincy residents and includes many prominent and active leaders in civic affairs and senior services.

"The next mayor will face issues of vital importance to the seniors of this city and I want to hear directly from them regarding how they feel on these issues," O'Connell said, citing housing, safety and the need for a revitalized downtown as examples.

The Seniors for O'Connell Committee will begin organizing special events for seniors to meet and discuss their concerns with O'Connell.

"I want every senior in Quincy to know that they are welcome to join the Seniors for O'Connell Committee" said O'Connell.

O'Connell also plans to visit every senior housing facility several times between now and September.

"I am proud to be able to point to a long record of committment to the seniors as I am responsible for building hundreds of affordable senior housing rental units in the city. I look forward to continuing and broadening that committment as mayor."

O'Connell said he would reach out to seniors and strive to involve them actively in the city's activities in an O'Connell administration.

"I strongly believe that seniors represent a huge pool of untapped resources. I plan to call on these resources to help me make Quincy the city we all know it can be."

Betty Anastasi, Pagnano Towers, Quincy Point. A member of the Board of Directors of the Quincy Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), she serves on the Nutrition and Project Council of the South Shore Elder Services, member of Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), and is the producer of "Senior Smarts" on Quincy Community Cable Television.

Alice and Leo Hallisey, 45 School St., both of whom are retired after over 30 years of service for Curtis Farms and Angelo's Supermarkets.

Ethel Carter Lawless, 8 Richfield St., Squantum, one of the founders and three-time president of the Squantum Senior Citizens Association, currently serving her fourth term as secretary of the Association.

Doris Oberg, 37 Walker St., North Quincy, currently vice-president and previously the first woman president of the Quincy Historical Society, member of the Quincy Historic District Commission and secretary of the Quincy Tourism Association.

Virginia Peterson, 125 Granite St., currently a secretary-bookkeeper for Ayers Brothers, Inc. in North Quincy, she served as social secretary at Granite Place Senior Housing, and previously worked for Northeastern University, the City of Boston, and radio station WHDH.

Eleanor Reidy, 211 Whitwell St., president of the Quincy Chapter of AARP, secretary of the Mayors Commission on Handicapped Affairs, former member of the Quincy Council on Aging, Mayor's Liason to the South Shore Cultural Commission assisting in organizing Quincy's tribute to the late Ruth Gordon. She is formerly the personal secretary to Mayor Francis McCauley, campaign chairman for his successful re-election bid in 1987, current Vice-President of the Proparvulis Club, member of the Quincy Catholic Club and Sodality and lecter at St. John's Church.

Alpha Story, 9 Homestead St., Houghs Neck, who for 19 years, served as the tenant selector for the Quincy Housing Authority.

Ed Chisholm, 1000 Southern Artery. A 63 year resident of Squantum, he retired after 37 years as a maintenance foreman for the Greyhound Bus Corp.

THE QUINCY COMMUNITY ACTION Emergency Food Center receives contributions from the Shawmut Bank and the Bank of New England. FUNDED BUY AND SELL AGREEMENTS
(Part 2)

Owners of a regular corporation can sell their stock interest in the business to anyone wishing to purchase it. Although this is usually the case, it is not so in a "Professional Corporation," (PC). A stockholders share in a PC can only be sold back to the corporation, to other stockholders, or to an outsider of the same profession.

Whereas a corporation is considered an ongoing entity, a partnership must be dissolved at the death of a partner, and reorganized. This is the law. In order for the reorganization to take place, the surviving partner can purchase the deceased's interest and operate as a sole proprietor or take in new partners.

There are two agreements commonly used. In one the company purchases the life insurance of each of the owners, pays the premiums, is the beneficiary, and at the time of death buys back the deceased's interest with the proceeds. In the other each owner buys life insurance on the other, is the beneficiary, and at death purchases the deceased's interest from his or her heirs. It is strongly advisable to consult your attorney in this matter.

Women's Commission Schedules Last Two Topical Programs

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women will conclude its month-long series of topical programs with a program tonight (Thursday) and another Thursday, May 25 at Quincy City Hall.

The programs are open to the public, free of charge.

At 7 p.m. tonight in the City Hall second floor conference room, the Commission will present "What's In, What's Out In Divorce" featuring Diana Childs, a South Shore family therapist and Mary McCallum, a Dedham lawyer.

Childs will identify the common problems of separation, guilt, fear and ways to cope. McCallum will present legal processes, and ways in which one can successfully negotiate the system and one's life.

On Thursday, May 25 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers, State Rep. Marjorie Clapprood (D-Sharon and Stoughton) will share her personal political scene. She will discuss her work with her constituents and fellow representatives and her negotiations on bills in the Post Audit Committee.

A brief question and answer period and a reception will follow her speech.

Yard Sale For STEP I Saturday

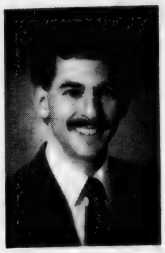
A yard sale will be held Saturday at the Squantum Naval Housing area on East Squantum St., North Quincy, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Proceeds will benefit the STEP I Early Intervention Program, and is sponsored by the STEP I Parent Advisory Council.

Gary Fine Candidate For School Committee

Promising to be aggressive, hard working and pro-active, Gary Fine of Quincy announced his candidacy for school committee Saturday on the lawn of the Merrymount School before approximately 75 supporters and friends.

Fine, 27, the son of Barbara and Herb Fontaine, news director of WJDA radio, vowed to work with parents, teachers and administrators to improve the quality of education services provided in Quincy public schools.



Referring to the state's current fiscal woes and its impact on the city's school system, Fine said the time has come to "prioritize programs, improve efficiency and be creative in administering the budget while at the same time satisfying the need of all our students."

"I am determined to make sure that the state's downward fiscal spiral doesn't cheat a generation of our children out of quality education so essential in today's high tech world," he said.

A lifelong Quincy resident, Fine graduated from Quincy High School in 1979 and the University of Massachusetts at Amherst in 1983. He is presently employed as an accounting supervisor at State Street Bank.

If elected, Fine said he would bring a young professional's thoughts and ideas to the school committee as well as "an attitude in touch with today's every changing youth."

He also said he would be "aggressive" and "committed to the educational needs of our children" with emphasis on a "pro-active rather than a reactive approach to decision making."

GARY FINE

Among the issues Fine addressed were teacher support programs, student-teacher ratios, dropout prevention and special education.

Speaking on support programs, Fine said, 'the system is only as good as our educators in the classroom. That is why we must support them to the fullest in forms of tuition reimbursement, staff development programs and an attractive compensation package."

Addressing the teacher-student ratio, Fine said he is concerned about the overcrowding at the elementary level since a high ratio adversely affects students' ability to learn.

As a result, "teachers cannot provide the extra attention that students require. The basics are being taught in the elementary schools are not being learned by all students," he said.

Pointing out that the state dropout rate is 20 percent, Fine said "we must focus our attention on reducing this figure. The problem affects our whole community, the potential for crime in the city increase, and our businesses are becoming increasingly dissatisfied with the quality of their entry level employees."

As for special education, Fine noted this area has been expanded to include additional programs and services since it was first introduced in 1974, and therefore, the cost has risen dramatically.

"I will seek creative approaches dealing with these essential programs in order to get the most for our tax dollars," he said.

Fine also said he supports improving the present student accountability programs. "This will go a long way in promoting a higher standard of participation, ultimately leading to a better education for all our students."

"The concept of 'personal responsibility' is a lesson that must be taught early in our lives; let us begin using it in our schools," he said.

Finally, Fine said there "are not simple solutions" to today's educational problems and that finding the solutions require a dedicated individual.

"I am that individual and I am pledging a hard working, no-nonsense approach committed to fulfilling these tasks."

Free Hearing Screening May 31

MAYOR FRANCIS McCAULEY signs a proclamation for the annual VFW Buddy Poppy sale days to be held today (Thursday). With him are Vera and John Sullivan, chairmen of the Poppy Drive for the George F. Bryan Post.
(Quincy Sun photo by Charles Flagg)

Mayor Proclaims 'Buddy Poppy Day'

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed May 18-19 and 20 as "Buddy Poppy Days" in Quincy for the sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars to aid disabled and needy veterans.

The Proclamation reads:

Whereas, the annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has been officially recognized and endorsed by the governmental leaders since 1922; and

Whereas, V.F.W. Buddy Poppies are assembled by disabled veterans, and the proceeds of this worthy fund-raising campaign are used exclusively for the benefit of disabled and needy veterans, and the windows and orphans of deceased veterans, and

Whereas, the basic purpose of the annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars is eloquently reflected in the desire to "Honor the Dead by Helping the Living."

Now, therefore, I, Francis X. McCauley, Mayor of the City of Quincy, do hereby urge the citizens of the community to recognize the merits of this cause by contributing generously to its support through the purchase of Buddy Poppies on the days set aside for the distribution of these symbols of appreciation for the sacrifices of our honored dead on May 18, 19 and 20th, 1989 and urge all patriotic citizens to wear Buddy Poppies as mute evidence of our gratitude to the men of this country who have risked their lives in defense of the freedoms which we continue to enjoy as American citizens.

'Step Into Society Week' At Central

"Step Into Society Week" is being observed this week at Central Middle School with the theme, "Mapping a Path to the 21st Century."

Thirty-one speakers will visit with the students during the week to discuss their career selections.

Among 20 topics and occupations to be discussed are biochemistry, banking, business management, politics, medicine, law, law enforcement, teaching, and storyteller.

Tuesday (May 16) Career Day was observed. 22 exhibitors "set up shop" in the school gym, with exhibits ranging from commercial establishments to health assistance, and high schools, general and specialized.

Two field trips that tie into the theme are Boston Ballet and Thompson's Island.

The program has been coordinated by Joseph P. Ryan and Mary Catherine Iannoni of the Guidance Department, assisted by staff members and Louis DiMartinis and Donald Houghton, principal and assistant principal, respectively.

Charles H. Johnston, 75
50 Years In Merchant Marine

A private memorial service was held for Charles H. Johnston, 75, of Squantum, a 50-year U.S. Merchant Marine seaman who served on ships that during World War II transported supplies to the Soviet Union.

Mr. Johnston died May 11 at the Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital, Braintree, after a long illness.

Born in Dundee, Scotland, he lived in Quincy 40 years.

He worked on supertankers and other vessels while in the U.S. Merchant Marine. He served in the British Merchant Marine before moving to the United States.

He was a member of the Masters, Mates & Pilots Union.

He is survived by his wife, Ann (Hagopian) Johnston; a daughter, Julie Johnston of Cranston, R.I.; and eight nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Carol A. Murray, 54

A funeral Mass for Carol A. (Collins) Murray, 54, of Quincy, a former employee of Boston Gas Co., was celebrated Wednesday at St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mrs. Murray died May 12 at Massachusetts General Hospital after a brief illness.

She was a member of the Mariannes, the women's club at St. Ann's Church.

She is survived by her husband, Francis M. Murray; a son, Christopher Murray of Quincy; and two daughters, Cathy A. Murray and Diane M. Murray, both of Quincy.

Burial was in Hull Village Cemetery, Hull.

Funeral arrangements were by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St., Quincy.

Andrew Orrock, 58
Bank Vice President

A funeral Mass for Andrew Orrock, 58, of Quincy was celebrated May 13 at St. Ann's Church. Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Orrock, Vice President of operations at Shawmut Bank in Boston, died May 9 at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston.

He had worked for the bank for 41 years.

Mr. Orrock was a member of the Montclair Men's Club, the Bank Officers Association, the Boston Clearing House Association and Quincy Civic Association.

He was an Air Force veteran of the Korean War.

Mr. Orrock was a graduate of Hyde Park High School and a 1961 graduate of Northeastern University.

Born in Hyde Park, he had lived in Quincy 27 years.

He is survived by his wife, Claire M. (McCaffery) Orrock; four sons, Craig J. Orrock and Scott W. Orrock, both of Quincy, Andrew A. Orrock of Dallas and Thomas W. Orrock of Brookline; a daughter, Susan C. Orrock of Quincy; and two sisters, Lucy Frazier of Norwell, and Jean Moroney of Duxbury. He was the son of the late Archibald and Polly (Rock) Orrock.

Edwin J. Beck, 83
Retired Bank Executive

EDWIN J. BECK

A funeral Mass for Edwin J. Beck, 83, of Quincy, retired vice president of the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank and a real estate appraiser involved in appraising landtakings for construction of the Sumner Tunnel, was celebrated May 13 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Mr. Beck died May 11 at Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

In the 1930s, the brothers assisted their father, John Beck, then an appraiser for the City of Boston, in the tunnel landtakings and other municipal projects.

In 1935, he was appointed New England appraiser for the U.S. Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Beck & Beck were appraisers for the Metropolitan Mortgage Bureau into the 1950s. The firm was dissoved in 1963 on the death of John E. Beck.

Edwin Beck, then appraiser for the cities of Quincy and Somerville, rejoined the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank as chief appraiser in 1955 and was named a vice president in 1965.

Mr. Beck lived for some years in his Sanburton, N.H. home and enjoyed extended vacations in Balboa Island, Calif. In 1983, he returned to his Quincy residence.

He is survived by his wife, Edna (Kroesser) Beck; two sons, Edwin J. Beck Jr. of Quincy and John L. Beck of Sanburton, N.H.; two daughters, Virginia Kelley of Irvine, Calif., and Judith Beck-Rochelle of Quincy; a son-in-law, James A. She was the daughter of Regina Fleisher of Quincy and the late John Fleisher.

Donations may be made to the memorial fund of Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

"The Second Mile!" Matt. 5:41. This one innocent sentence taken from the Sermon on the Mount is sufficient to change the whole world. The secret is in giving more than is actually required; doing more than is expected. It is appealing to the best in human nature, rather than the worst.

First, going the second mile leaves a deposit of happiness in the heart of the one who travels it. We know we have measured up to and even beyond that one which was demanded of us. It makes us feel good about ourselves and it is so important to like yourself. Second, it brings out the best in others. When we see other people being loving, kind and good, it makes us want to be better. Thus, we set in motion a chain reaction ... good people make us want to be better. Third, going the second mile makes the burdens of life lighter. Doing more than our part makes the home and family a better and happier place to live. Going the second mile, or going beyond the call of duty, makes for a better way of life ...

If you want your life to be rich and full see how many good things you can do rather than how many good things you can get by without doing. In other words, when you have to go one mile, just throw in another for good measure. You will be the WINNER!

George M. Tull, 75

Attorney, Hospital Board Manager

A funeral Mass for George M. Tull Sr., 75, an attorney and former chairman of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers, was celebrated Tuesday at St. Joseph's Church.

Mr. Tull died May 12 at New England Medical Center, Boston, after a long illness.

He was a graduate of South Boston High School and Staley College of the Spoken Word.

His career in Quincy included a seven-year stint as chairman of the hospital board, service on the board of appeals and an unsuccessful campaign for mayor in 1977.

A member of the Naval Reserve from the 1930s, he went on active duty during World War II and served as a chief metalsmith and later as a ground instruction in the flight training program. He received a commendation for battling a fire at the Squantum Naval Air Station.

After the war, he opened Quincy's first coin-operated laundry, ran a gas station in Roxbury and operated a used car business while attending college and law school. He also worked as a construction laborer.

Active in the Quincy real estate business, he started the Staff of Life Bakery, which operated in the city for about 15 years. He also sold insurance for a time.

He enjoyed traveling to such places as Europe, Japan, Egypt and Lebanon.

A past president of the Quincy Bar Association, he was a member of the Norfolk County and Supreme Court Bar Associations and the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

He was past president of the Sons of Lebanon in Quincy, a past commander of the Disabled American Veterans in Quincy, a member of the ALSAC, a support group for St. Jude's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. Tull was also a charter member of the World's Lebanese Cultural Union of New England, a group that fostered the spread of Lebanese culture and provided scholarships and other programs for young people.

He supported several charities, including the 100 Club which helps families of firefighters and police officers killed in the line of duty and the Catholic Charities organization. He was an honorary citizen of Father Flanagan's Boys Town of Nebraska.

He is survived by his wife, Mary (Mowad) Tull; two sons, George M. "Skip" Tull Jr. of Hull and Steven A. Tull of Florida; a daughter, Patricia Crosthwait of Weymouth; a sister, Rose Tull of Boston; four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

'Growing Edges' Sermon Topic At Bethany

There will be two worship services Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church (United Church of Christ) Coddington and Spear Sts. Quincy Center.

The chapel service is held at 9 a.m. and the sanctuary service is held at 10 a.m.

The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will preach the sermon at both services on the topic of "Growing Edges." The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will be the liturgist at both services. Eileen S. Lonsdale will be the lay reader in the chapel and George F. Nicholson will read in the sanctuary.

Matthew David McSweeney, born Feb. 6, will be baptized. He is the son of Christine (Brun) McSweeney and Daniel J. McSweeney.

The worship service will be broadcast over WJDA, 1300kc. at 10 a.m. In addition a cassette tape of the service can be obtained for $2 by contacting the church office.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for children of pre-school through eighth grade. Today, at 10 a.m., the Sunday School is holding an open house for all persons in the community who would like to know more about the educational ministry of Bethany Church. Refreshments and a personal guided tour will be provided.

Nursery care for babies will be provided as well as a toddler class for young children. Our Church School Coordinator, Pamela Curran, will be present to supervise the care of the children.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to share in the worship, learning, and fellowship of Bethany Church. You are also invited to enroll your children in our creative Sunday School program.

For additional information about Bethany's ministries, contact the church office at 479-7300.

St. Anthony's Festa At St. John's June 9-10

The 14th annual St. Anthony's Festa, sponsored by St. John's Parish, Quincy, will be held on the church grounds, 41 School St., Friday, June 9 from 6 to 11 p.m. and Saturday, June 10 from noon to 11 p.m.

A special Mass in honor of St. Anthony of Padua, Patron Saint of Italians, will be celebrated by the Most Reverend Robert J. Banks, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, Vicar General and Vicar of Administration, on Saturday, June 10 at 4 p.m. Portions of the Mass will be said in Italian.

Highlights of the two-day festival include special events, booths, surprises, a variety of foods and delicacies as well as games and prizes for children and adults.

The festival has become one of the most popular religious, social and cultural events of the spring season on the South Shore.

Proceeds will benefit the parish charitable causes and building funds. The parish has been most active in providing assistance to feeding and sheltering the homeless and establishing affordable housing for low-income individuals.

The new affordable housing unit on the church property was recently dedicated by Regional Bishop Daniel Hart and Quincy housing officials.

Admission to the festival is free and open to the public.

Rev. Gary Sullivan, parochial vicar at St. John's Church, is the festival coordinator. Rosemary Martin and Diane Acorn are co-chairpersons.

St. Boniface April Walk For Hunger Sunday

St. Boniface Parish is sponsoring its seventh annual Walk for Hunger Sunday following the 10 a.m. Mass at the Church.

Participants will assemble in the Church Hall.

The 12-mile route will be Palmer St. to Sea, to Houghs Neck, returning to Quincy Square, down Quincy Avenue to Southern Artery, all in Quincy. More than 100 walkers are expected.

The walk will benefit the poor of Quincy and the poor of Haiti. For seven years members of St. Boniface Haiti Foundation have been going to Haiti to help in various ways. St. Boniface Parish has adopted a parish in Fonds de Blanc, Haiti, where a hospital is presently being built.

Lay Service On South Africa At United First Parish

This Sunday members of the Social Concerns Committee will lead the 10:30 a.m. worship service at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents," in Quincy Sq.

Theme of the service will be human rights in South Africa. Members of the Social Concerns Committee, Brenda Powers, chairperson, have planned the service together with the local Amnesty International chapter, co-chaired by church member Deirdre Doherty.

Mr. Bernie Weintraub will be a guest speaker. He is the South Africa Country Campaign coordinator for Amnesty International Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will also participate in the service.

The church choir, Norman Corey, director, will sing anthems by Tallis and Lovelace. Mr. Corey will also play organ works by Brahms and Reger. Kay Johnson and Barbara Wiggin will usher.

Visitors are welcome and are invited to attend the social hour following the service. Fred and Florence Grose will host.

Historic United First Parish Church will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of the two Presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, and those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine are in a crypt within the church.

The church is located opposite City Hall. Church School and child care provided. Please call 773-1290 for information.

St. Mary's Choir In Concert

Members of St. Mary's Choir in West Quincy are among seven choirs participating in a concert on Friday, May 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of St. Elizabeth Church in Milton. The concert is free and all are welcome.

Participating in the evening of sacred and popular music will be churches including St. Theresa of Avila in West Roxbury, St. Joseph Parish in Needham; Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha Church of Plymouth; St. Elizabeth, under the direction of concert coordinator Bob Heagney, St. Edward in Brockton, St. Mary's in Brookline and St. Mary's in Quincy.

A reception will follow in the lower church hall, with refreshments available. St. Elizabeth's Church is located on Route 28 in Milton.

Benefit Auction At Union Congregational

The Union Congregational Church, 136 Rawson Rd., Wollaston will hold a benefit auction Saturday, May 20 at 10 a.m.

A viewing of the items for auction will begin at 9 a.m. and small articles will also be on sale at that time.

The auction will feature antiques, furniture for living room, dining room, and kitchen, sewing machines, small appliances, glassware, china, tools, toys, TVs, lamps, paintings, and gift certificates from local merchants.

Refreshments will be available from a snack bar in the Fellowship Hall.

United Alliance Guests At Luncheon

Members were guests at a luncheon given by Blanche Hamilton, former Quincy resident who now lives at The Willows. Transportation was provided.

Strawberry Festival At Christ Church

The Fair Committee of Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave., Quincy, will sponsor a Strawberry Festival Saturday, June 3 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Among the items available will be shortcake, hot dogs, hamburgers, cake table, books, jewelry, crafts and white elephant table.

Flavin & Flavin Offering Residential Condos At South Landing

Flavin & Flavin Realty, 1085 Hancock St., Quincy, is offering Quincy's newest residential condominium community, South Landing, off Quincy Ave. near the Braintree line.

Each garden style condominium unit comprises 1100 square feet with such features as two large bedrooms, two full baths, balcony, storage, central air conditioning, individual unit laundries, ample parking and choice of decor.

"Financing can be arranged, Fannie Mae approved, with the best values starting at an incredible $109,900," says Ed Flavin of Flavin & Flavin. "This is the perfect opportunity for first time buyers to get into the market at a realistic price with the luxuries of a first class condominium community. This is why we call this the best value in Greater Boston."

An Open House will be held Saturday and Sunday from 12 to 5 p.m. with agents and bank representatives on hand.

The grand opening will be Sunday.

A wine and cheese grand opening will be held Sunday, 12 to 5 p.m.

Mary Collins Named To Hospital Board

MARY COLLINS

Mary Collins of Quincy has been appointed to the Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital's Board of Trustees.

Collins made history last fall when she became the first woman to be elected a Commissioner of Norfolk County. She has also served on the Quincy School Committee for the past 12 years and has served as vice chairman three times.

She is a real estate broker and the mother of four children.

Mrs. Collins is a real estate broker with the Jack Conway Wollaston office and the mother of four children.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Carpet: Foundation for luxury, comfort

While it may take more to furnish a room than carpeting, there are few furnishings that offer as many assets, and this is more true now than ever, according to the producers of the fibers from which today's carpets are made.

With modern technology and improved, futuristic manufacturing methods, new fibers have been developed that not only look like natural fibers, but feel incredibly soft to the touch and have all the functional virtues of durability and long-wearing characteristics.

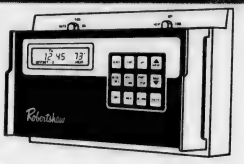
Like all carpets, it is an important aesthetic element that not only makes the room appear larger but also unifies and showcases the furnishings and disparate decorative ingredients.

It is a step ahead of most carpeting, however, in the richness and clarity of its color, subdued "natural" luster and the pleasure it offers underfoot to the homeowners.

Of equal importance, it is a light color that would have been avoided, and with good reason, only a short time ago. Now, with the new resistance to staining and soiling, light colors can be purchased with impunity.



Because of this, according to Axel Venn, color consultant for ICI Fibres, the trendiest colors are white, grey and beige. These colors combine especially well with the soft "friendly, sparkling, cosmetics-influenced hues" that he predicts are going to be the coming color palette for the '90s in this country.

Whatever the color preferences, the carpeting can set the mood of a room, add to its sense of opulence, enhance its comfort level and give it a finished look. On top of all this, its easy-care and long-wear put it pretty high on the assets barometer of any home. SH893771

A MELANGE OF DECORATIVE STYLES is pulled together in this comfortable bedroom with the soft-toned carpeting. Made with ICI Fibres "Tactesse" yarns, it is unusually soft underfoot, with light, clear colors that resist staining. A perfect foundation for the room, it appears to expand the space and adds a finished look to the decor.

DO-IT yourselfers can quickly install automatic fuel savings using just a screwdriver, with Robertshaw's Energy Manager ™ thermostats. The push button programming of economy and comfort periods is easy.

Spring home improvement checklist

It's sunny outside, the temperature is comfortable and Mother Nature is reminding you that now is the perfect time to prepare your home for the summer months ahead.

The key to accomplishing successful interior and exterior home improvements and lawn care projects is organization.

Before you begin, make a list of the projects that you will undertake and a list of the materials and tools you will need for each task.

A little preparation will save you a lot of time and numerous trips to the store.

Here is a sample list of some easy home maintenance projects and a shopping list of supplies and tools you will need to accomplish these tasks.

Just cut out the list and take it with you to your local home center or building supply dealer.

Home improvement projects

Inside the home

- Add attic insulation;
- Clean carpets and curtains;
- Repaint kitchen;
- Spruce up your bathroom.

Lawn & garden care

- Clean yard of winter debris;
- Prune dead tree limbs;
- Fertilize and seed lawn;
- Water lawn, trees and shrubs.

Outside the home

- Touch up paint outside of home or clean siding;
- Remove, clean and store storm windows;
- Install screens;
- Patch roof;
- Clean gutters of leaves and debris;

Salvage old cabinets

Tired of your kitchen looking outdated? Simply remodeling wood cabinets can give the whole room a face lift. First, strip off old cracked paint and fill any nicks and rough spots on cabinets with a wood filler such as Elmer's Fill 'N Finish. Sand and wipe clear.

Panel cabinets to give them a new look. Glue on half moldings. Elmer's Wood Glue will hold strips securely in place without nails. Finish with a clear spray paint to protect. SH894013

During the 1950s, America's rear gardens gave birth to patios—which were a favorite gathering place for family, friends and neighbors. In the 1960s, homeowners discovered wooden decks. The 1970s spawned hot tubs, and the 1980s have seen the rise of small space and low maintenance gardening.

Through all these changes, the need for shade has been constant.

A new, "21st-century product," SHADE-IT, can now help control the sun's damaging rays, while providing as much as 15 degrees of cooling in most situations.

Developed and tested under the hot Australian sun by Weathashade Corporation of Apopka, Fla., SHADE-IT possesses superior ultraviolet (UV) protection from the sun's damaging rays, while letting air freely circulate. It will not rot, mildew or fade, making it one of the longest lasting and least expensive outdoor fabrics available today.

SHADE-IT is manufactured from a unique knit-process fabric. Monolon. The three-way lock stitch and monofilament thread make SHADE-IT stronger than woven fabric. It is virtually tear-resistant and retains its shape when stretched.

In addition, SHADE-IT is resistant to abrasion and chemicals. It is offered in medium or heavy weight and is excellent protection for the patio, deck or carport, even pet houses.

Both SHADE-IT and SHADE-IT WITH STYLE, a decorator-styled shading fabric, are available either by the yard or in convenient, new pre-measured packages at lawn and garden, home improvement and hardware stores throughout the country.

For more information about Weathashade products, or for the name of the dealer nearest you, contact: Customer Service, Weathashade Corporation, 3000 W. Orange Ave., Apopka, FL 32703; 1-800-233-8445.

EASY TO INSTALL, new knitted SHADE-IT from Weathashade will not unravel when cut. SHADE-IT cuts down on the sun's damaging rays and will not rot or fade, making it usable year after year. SH894353

Get fancy decks with wood specialty products

The goal for many homeowners building a deck fence or gazebo is to get professional results without paying for professional labor.

This season, pressure-treated specialty wood products such as spindles, lattice panels, fancy fence boards and stair stringers are widely available.

As a result, anyone can get beautifully turned spindles, exactly measured stair stringers and steps, and delicate lattice without having to work a lathe or cut and nail many small pieces.

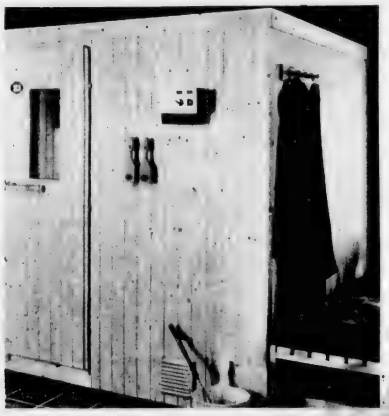
The turn-of-the-century "Sir Richard" and "Queen Anne" spindles, matching "Queen Anne" handrails and Colonial design newel posts, finials and finial bases now allow homeowners to match the railing on a deck or porch to that of the house, regardless of the period of construction.



In choosing and using pressure-treated wood, remember to buy only a reputable brand name with an American Wood Preserves Bureau stamp to avoid possible shoddy, poorly treated lumber.

Also, never burn pressure-treated wood because burning breaks the bond between the wood cells and the chemical treatment.

For more information on how specialty products can spruce up outdoor structures, call Weyerhaeuser's consumer information line at 1-800-328-4646.

WEEK OF: May 18

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Your patience is both an asset and a liability. You sometimes lack confidence, and you flit from subject to subject. Work on building self-confidence and this year--particularly the fall months--can go on record as extremely significant in both the areas of romance and profession.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Thursday-Friday are favorable for original expression, whether in a creative medium or as part of a work project. Weekend accents large family gatherings and a great chance for patch-ups.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
The weekend is an opportune time for taking on a new hobby. Monday-Wednesday are favorable for such practical matters as accounting tasks. Any travel this period requires extra planning.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Good week to consolidate your assorted interests. Friends may be in a self-indulgent mood and associates are easily distracted, but you truly excel in a leadership role.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Any commitments made now are lasting ones, so careful consideration is imperative. Academic interest capture your fancy and may prove highly beneficial to your career.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
If traveling through this period, it's best to have a contingency plan. Home environment is livelier with the arrival of youngsters. On the work scene, you're branching out.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
You're uncannily perceptive, and understand the motives of those around you. Some positive financial news may arrive after the weekend. Domestic responsibilities are shared more equitably.

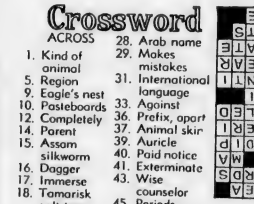
LEO — July 23 - August 22
The information that you gather during this week should prove very useful in the months ahead. Watch tendency to go off on tangents. It's important that you focus your attention.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
The week provides a preview of some of the business trends that will mark the next few months. There may be an opportunity for earning spare cash--check it out well.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Thursday-Saturday offer choice opportunities for research, especially if related to family matters. Sunday and Monday are favorable for health, fitness, and beautification regimes.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Good week for organizing a survey of family health needs--and be sure to include yourself. Weekend may find you checking out antiques and acquiring unique memorabilia.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Week is devoted more to completing current projects than to embarking on new ones. Travel planning requires a commonsense approach. Legal negotiations may be on tap now.



CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
There are fewer distractions than usual, and this can be one of your most productive weeks in ages. You have a special gift now for simplifying complex tasks.

Quincy's Kisiel Loses No-Hitter And Game

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy baseball team has lost some tough games during this completely frustrating (1-13) season, but it won't lose a tougher one than Monday afternoon.

The Presidents' Rick Kisiel had a no-hit, no-run game going into the last inning; had not walked a batter and the only Brookline runner to reach was the first batter of the game, who struck out and reached when the ball eluded the catcher.

But Brookline put together a triple, double, single and an error to score four runs in the top of the seventh to pull out a 4-2 victory.

Quincy hosts Cambridge Rindge and Latin today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. at Adams Field, will meet North Quincy Monday also at 3:30 at Adams and will be at Newton North next Wednesday.

The Presidents put the tying runs on second and third with two outs in the bottom of the seventh Monday but couldn't push the runners home.

"I feel very sorry for Rich, he pitched a masterful game," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia.

"This was one of our toughest defeats. We have played some good games but I am using a lot of young players, including a freshman, Pat Gallagher, who is playing regularly at shortstop, and our inexperience is showing."

Pitching coach Dave MacKenzie had nothing but praise for Kiesel. "Rich is only a junior and has pitched some excellent games for us," he said. "He pitched a fine game in our only win over Newton North and today he was masterful. I told him it even happens in the major leagues and reminded him that Mark Langston of Seattle recently had a no-hitter going into the last inning and lost the game. Rich has a right future."

The Presidents added a run in the fifth when Gallagher was hit by a pitch and scored on Mike Noonan's double.

Rich Burns was the losing pitcher and McGinnis pitched 3 2/3 innings of strong relief.

Balzano, who has been hitting well all season.

Balzano, who has been hitting well all season, had a double and two singles, Mike Beatrice two singles and Gallagher and Burns a single each.

QUINCY'S Kristine Blake is a member of the Bridgewater State College women's track and field team, competing in the distance events. She is a graduate of Abp. Williams High and is the daughter of Donald and Mary Blake.

North On Hot Streak

The North Quincy baseball team continued its hot streak last week when it defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 6-2, for its fourth win in a row to improve to 7-8 (4-3 in the Suburban League).

Leo Donovan's Raiders will play at Waltham Friday, will host Brockton in a makeup game Saturday morning at 10:30 at Adams Field, will meet Quincy Monday at 3:30 at Adams and will face Brookline next Wednesday, also at 3:30 at Adams.

Erik DeBoer continued his outstanding pitching against Cambridge, giving up only three hits, striking out six and walking four to improve his record to 4-2. Both losses were by one run with unearned runs causing his downfall.

In 42 innings DeBoer has struck out 50 and walked 11. He also hit his second home run, had an RBI single and scored three runs.

Jim Glynn sparked a three-run second inning with a two-run homer, George Rozanitis had a double and Billy MacDougall had an RBI double.

"This was a big win for us," said Donovan. "Cambridge handed Brockton its only loss of the season and we are now only two games out of first place and a game out of second in the Suburban League. We have played very well in recent games, putting strong pitching and solid hitting together."

North Girls Trounce Boston Latin, 15-5

The North Quincy girls' softball team, keeping up with the school's baseball team, defeated Boston Latin, 15-5, Monday in a non-league game for its fourth win in a row to improve its record to 7-6. The baseball team also has won four straight.

Barbara Webster's Raiderettes will host Waltham Friday at 3:30, will be home to Quincy Monday night at 7 o'clock and will be at Brookline next Wednesday.

The North girls pounded out 19 hits in Monday's victory, with Michelle Lynch going 3-for-5 and stealing three bases, Soyan Park 3-for-4, a triple and two singles and three RBI, Kristin Drake 2-for-3, two doubles and three RBI, Kerry Tolson, 2-for-4, including a bases-loaded single that was thrown around with all three runs scoring, Sarah Harrington 2-for-4 including a two-run double, and Terry Gilmore 2-for-3 and an RBI.

Drake pitched all the way, giving up four hits, striking out seven and walking six.

Last week The Raider-ettes rolled over Camb-ridge Rindge and Latin, 23-4, in a game that won't soon be forgotten.

The game started out in beautiful weather but two hours later a fog rolled in. North was leading, 23-4, on only nine hits and an amazing 21 bases on balls.

The game was in the fourth inning and Cambridge coach Audrey Cabral called time, talked with the umpires, and took her team off the field.

"It was walk after walk," said Webster. "They complained that it was too foggy to play. I said 'Let's stop talking and play ball,' but the coach pulled her team off the field."

"I think she was trying to get us to call the game," umpire Paul Hack said. "We didn't. When she pulled her team, the game was forfeited to North Quincy. It was foggy but not enough to stop the game. I had just checked with Cambridge outfielders and they said they had no trouble seeing the ball."

Drake allowed three hits, struck out four and walked three. At the plate she was 2-for-2 with three RBI.

Shana Cobban and Terri Goodwin had two hits and two RBI each, Lynch had only one hit but reached base five times and scored four runs.

Monday night the North girls defeated the Seniors in the Senior Olympics' annual game. "I think we won, 8-7, although I heard several different scores," Webster said. "This is always a fun game and we don't worry too much about the score."

Quincy Girls Win 3, Lose 1

After winning three in a row following an opening day loss to Silver Lake, the Quincy girls' tennis team lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 3-2, last week.

Shirley Laing's First Ladies will play at North Quincy Monday, seeking their second win over the Raiderettes, and will host Waltham next Wednesday.

Jennifer D'Allessandro was Quincy's only singles winner against Cambridge, defeating Kari Hillsman, 6-2, 6-0. Elizabeth Vo lost to Suzanne Hickey, 6-3, 6-1, and Patricia Stewart lost to Mary Mumford, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

In doubles Quincy's Carolyn Busby and Mary Vo defeated Cristina McFadden and Stephanie Creighton, 4-6, 6-0, 6-1, but Maureen Cloonan and Arlene Amo lost to Amanda Cunningham and Nicole Tarpley, 6-0, 6-2.

Earlier in the week the Quincy girls defeated Waltham, 3-2, as D'Allessando and Stewart on their singles matches and Busby and Mary Vo won their doubles match. Elizabeth Vo lost in singles and Debbie Brown and Elizabeth Gonzales lost in doubles.

D'Alessandro, Quincy's number one singles player who has lost only one match this year, won her first four matches of the state South Sectional championships at Hingham and moves on to the next round of play Saturday at Falmouth.

Jennifer, who hasn't lost a set in state competition, defeated Kathy Schmidt of Foxboro, 6-1, 6-0; Beth Ann Ray of Sharon, 6-0, 6-0; Libby Porter of Weymouth South, 6-2, 6-2, and Minh Tram, Braintree's number one player, 6-1, 7-5.

Quincy Girls Lose Tough One To Waltham

The Quincy girls were led against Waltham by Jessica Rutan's three wins. She won the 300 and 100 hurdles and the long jump. With all-league performer Beth Weixler out with an injury, Jessica and senior Karin Picarski have been outstanding. Karin won the 100 meter dash and ran with the winning 4x100 relay team.

Franceschini has a young group of hurdlers. Freshman Christine Miele and Barbara Mullin are getting stronger in the 100 meter hurdles while Georgia Michalakis and Dawn Hartnett have done well in the 300 meter hurdles.

Behind Tri-Capt. Picarski, the sprinters are solid. Sophomore Jackie Potter finished third in the 100 against Waltham and other sprinters are Courtney Tierney, Kim Perry, Cora-lee Echeuerria, Elizabeth Flaherty, Amy Dunn and Michelle Latham. Dunn and Latham are freshmen who also run on the 4x100 relay team.

The middle distance runners are led by sophomores Jennifer Verlicco and Julie McCloskey. Both have been consistent during their two years.

Other middle distance runners are Carrie Butruccio, Kristy Light, Shiloh Thompson, Jennifer Pettinelli, Lori Novak, Sharon Kavanaugh, Becky Sitezman, Terri McCann, Ruth Fitzpatrick and promising sophomore Christine Ross.

For the first time in three years Franceschini has depth in the distance events. Sophomore Jennifer Richmond is the best followed by Dale Parry, Maureen Culley and four outstanding freshmen, Ann Murphy, Jessica Picarski, Maureen O'Donnell and Sara Edwards, who won her first varsity race against Waltham.

"With everyone improving each day I am optimistic about the Suburban League meet May 22 and the Eastern Mass. meet on the 28th," Franceschini said.

He is being assisted by Ray Papile and volunteer Kris Picarski.

North Girls Show Steady Improvement

The North Quincy girls' track team, improving in every meet, had two excellent outings last week, losing to powerful Brockton, 81-50, and coming up with fine performances in the Falmouth Girls' Invitational Meet.

Several girls turned in fine efforts in the Brockton meet. Winners were Karin Reister in the discus, Tricia Hughes in the 400 and Robin Guilfoy in the 100.

Placing second were Amy Wong in the 200, Tristen Mastrogiacomo, 100 meter hurdles; Amanda Young, 300 hurdles and triple jump. Bridget Toland, two-mile; Karen Cashman, 800, long jump and high jump; Deirdre Murphy, shot put, and Reister, javelin.

Taking third places were Kelly LeBlanc, 100; Tammy Coull, 200; Murphy, discus; Wong, long jump, and Tara Miles, javelin.

"I was happy with the team's showing against one of the perennial Suburban League posers," said coach Jeff Hennessy. "We took 10 of 14 second places, so this showed we are progressing and being competitive. Their distance strength was too much for us.

"Sherrin Quintiliani, our top miler out with a stress fracture, would have neutralized that and made the meet closer, and we scratched the mile relay, which we could have won."

Most of the North girls ran personal bests in the Falmouth meet and three qualified for the state meet.

Freshman Tammy Coull ran 28.3 in the 200 meters, qualifying her for the states, and sophomore Amanda Young ran 52.6 in the 300 hurdles qualifying rounds and placed third in the finals. She also qualified for the states. She also triple jumped 30-5, a best by nearly a foot, good for fourth.

Sophomore Kara Sullivan took fourth in the javelin, freshman Kelli Gott was sixth in the 100 hurdles and the freshman duo of Brenda Hayduk and Lesley Mahoney ran 609.6 and 6:k3.1 respectively in the mile, Hayduk placing fifth.

The 4x100 meter relay team of Amy Wong, Jill McLellan, Tammy Coull and Tricia Hughes ran the fastest time this season, 57.02.

Other outstanding performances were turned in by Hughes, 55.1 in the 400, and Claire McCarthy, 66-5 in the discus, a ten-foot improvement.

North boys doing well were Marc Cocuzzo in the 100 meters and javelin, John O'Donnell, 5-6 in the high jump; Mark Zych, 29 feet in the shot put; Mike Yee in the 300 hurdles and Willy O'Donnell in the mile.

North Boys Bow

The North Quincy boys' track team lost to Brookline, 38-47, last week, despite wins by Wayne Sitt in the 100, Brian Barrett in the two-mile and the 4x100 relay team.

Sitt won the 100 in 11.2, Barrett took the two-mile in 10:27, and the 4x100 relay team of Sit. Andy McPhee, Evan Kiley and Chris Murray won in 49.0.

Taking second places for North were George Gavros, 880; Quan Le, 440; Mike Herman, mile; Chris Ballum, two-mile; Mike Yee, 110 hurdles and 330 hurdles; Kiley, shot put and javelin, and Matt Swierk, discus.

Placing third were Kiley, 100; Garvin Chan, 110 hurdles; Ballum, 330 hurdles; Le, long jump; Yee, triple jump, and Chris Lineman, shot put.

The Raiders will face Newton North Friday at Newton.

12 QHS Football Players Going On To College

Quarterback Chris Noble will attend the University of New Hampshire on a full four-year scholarship.

Brian Norris and Todd Kimmell will be going to the University of Massachusetts/ Amherst.

Scott O'Brien and Phil Daley will attend Bridgewater State College, Ken Caldwell Nichols College, Ennio Eleuteri Northeastern's School of Engineering, Scott Campbell and Mark Miele Massasoit Community College, Bob Austin New England Technical School in Rhode Island and Dan Hanly and Jim Denett will be going to junior colleges.

Curry Gives Yankees Win

Chris Curry hit a game-winning home run as the Yankees edged the Angels, 10-9, in a Quincy Farm League baseball game.

Adam Goodrich was the winning pitcher, striking out 10 and walking only one.

Higgins Relif Pitcher At U. Maine

Rob Higgins, a top pitcher for Quincy Legion and a former Boston College High star, has appeared in eight games for the University of Maine baseball team, which is seeking another berth in the College World Series in Omaha, Neb.

Maine won its opener in the ECAC tournament, 10-2, over Monmouth, but lost to Pace, 8-4, in the second round.

Quincy-North Track Meets May 24

The Quincy-North Quincy boys and girls' track meets will be held next Wednesday night, May 24, at 6 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Morrisette Legion Plans Memorial Day Parade

The parade will form at 8 a.m. at the Post, with flag-raising ceremonies at 8:30 a.m. The march to Hall Cemetery will be led by Past Commander Paul W. O'Neill as chief marshall and Commander Paul D. Eldridge, chief of staff.

PDC Paul A.M. Hunt will be master of ceremonies for services at the graves of two unknown Civil War soldiers. The invocation will be given by Rev. Keijo I. Aho, pastor of West Quincy Congregational Church; a prayer, by Rev. Ronald Bourgault, pastor of St. Mary's Church; and the benedic-tion by Rabbi Jacob Mann of Temple Israel.

John P. Comer, Past National Commander of the American Legion will give the address, while remarks will be made by Mayor Francis McCauley, who will, with Com-mander Eldridge, place wreaths on the graves.

Also taking part will be P.C. Gino J. Giorgi, reading General Logan's Orders; P.C. Joseph F. Greene, Lincoln's Gettys-burg Address; Sgt. at Arms Mario Ghilardi and the Morrisette Post Firing Squad the volley.

Following the service, the parade will reform to return to the Post, then to Quincy Center and Mt. Wollaston Cemetery, for the city-wide Memorial Day observance.

Mary Pratt Day May 22

Monday, May 22, has been declared Mary Pratt Day in Quincy to celebrate the first annual Mary Pratt softball game which will be held at Mitchell-McCoy Field at 7 p.m. between the North Quincy and Quincy High School girls' varsity softball teams.

The declaration was introduced by Councillor Patricia Toland at Monday's City Council meeting.

Pratt, who last summer was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, New York, will present the Pratt Trophy to the winning team to be displayed in their school for one year.

NQHS Peer Educators Perform Skit At Regional Conference

Ten of North Quincy High School's 40 Peer Educators performed a skit, "Here's How to 'Just Say No' " recently at a General Assembly at the South East Regional Conference for Peer Education at Thayer Academy.

Peer Educators in both public and private schools are high school seniors, nominated by fellow classmates, who are trained and trusted to promote the "Just Say No" ethic. With the support of the State Department of Education's Prevention Resources, the South Shore Mental Health Council, and the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs, Peer Educators can help, educate and guide other middle and high school students.

Their aim is toward healthier attitudes, better decision making, and stronger resistance to peer pressure concerning the abuse of drugs and alcohol.

The Thayer conference was attended by 500 people, students and advisors from 50 cities in the S.E. Region. In addition to being on the Conference Planning Committee, NQHS's Peer Advisor Michael Hurley gave a seminar on recruiting Peer students.

Among those attending were NQHS's Principal Peter Chrisom, Assistant Principal Eileen Feeney and Dr. Robert Ricci, Quincy Superintendent of Schools, who support the program.

The North Quincy Peers have invited the Norwell Peers to perform their "What To Do In The Suburbs" skit at NQHS this Spring.

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"It just goes to show that $60,000 is not a lot of money for the mayor when compared to other city salaries," McCauley added.

After the council eliminated the raises, it then approved a budget of $117,788,340 for fiscal 1990 which begins this July 1.

In making the motion to delete the raises, Council President Patricia Toland said, "Given the state of this city and the shortages we're experiencing, it is appropriate for all officials to stay with the same salary."

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets seconded the motion.

In explaining his reasoning for the raise request, McCauley said, "The mayor's salary has been increased dramatically over the past eight years since I've been mayor but it trails behind some of the salaries for mayor in other cities and it's still substantially behind some department head salaries, particularly fire, police and superintendent of schools."

McCauley, who earned $25,000 his first term in office, said mayors in such cities as Revere, Newton and Somerville have higher salaries.

"I just felt where there's a new mayor coming in, it would not benefit me, that it was time to make another increase," McCauley continued.

"The City Council has ever increasing responsibilities and many city councillors, particularly in Cambridge, get more than $20,000 a year. "I just felt it was time to move them up a notch.

"However, it is an election year and the council is naturally skiddish about creating campaign issue. I understand the matter was deleted from the budget.

"That's their decision to make and obviously I'll live with it," the mayor said.

Of the 119 people who made more than $50,000, 93 are employed in the Police Department, 12 work in the School Department and 10 are employed in the Fire Department.

As for those who earned more than the mayor's $55,000 salary, five are school officials, 56 are in the police department and four are in the fire department.

Employees who earned more than the mayor last year are:

Assistant City Solicitor David M. Spillane has told the license board that its proposal for an indemnification agreement to be signed by persons renting the Fore River Clubhouse for the purpose of serving alcohol "would have little practical effect."

In April the board proposed the agreement be drafted to place liquor liability on the renter and not the city in case of injury or accident resulting from the serving of alcoholic beverages.

In a memo to the board, Spillane said the proposed agreement would have little effect because "the potential liability is not the fear of the renter bringing an action against the City, but from a third party injured as a result of the renter's negligent serving intoxicated persons or minors."

The memo further states that "the renter's indemnification is only as good as his personal ability or the ability of his organization to pay a judgement."

In addition, the memo continues, "regardless of any indemnification, liability would still be with the owner of the premises (the City) regardless of actual negligence on its part."

Spillane suggested three possible alternatives to the proposed agreement with the renters.

The city could either acquire its own liquor liability policy, and pass the cost of the policy on to the renters of the clubhouse, or the renters could obtain their own one-day liability policies before the event takes place. Both alternatives would place an additional cost on the rental of the facility.

A third alternative, Spillane said, would be to no longer allow one day alcoholic licenses at the Fore River Clubhouse.

The board elected to hand the matter over to the City Park and Recreation Department.

70-Foot Standard To Be Replaced At Adams Field

The City Council appropriated a total of $91,011 Monday, including $21,000 to replace a 70-foot light standard at Adams Field which broke off from its base and fell into a wooden area behind centerfield last week.

No one was injured. The cause is unknown.

"Hopefully, it will take only a few weeks to replace," said Ray Cattaneo, executive director of the Park and Forestry Department.

Adams Field has been the scene of many night baseball games since 1972.

The first night game of the season is scheduled for Sunday, May 21. A decision to play Sunday's game was to be made after the remaining light towers were turned on Wednesday.

Cattaneo said he and other officials would decide whether or not there was enough light to play night games while the centerfield tower was being fixed.

From May 21 through mid August night games are played at Adams. During the months of June and July, the field is utilized seven nights a week with two games scheduled, one at 6 p.m. and the night game immediately following.

Permits for the use of the field with the Quincy Sheriffs of the Cranberry League, three Quincy American Legion teams and the Babe Ruth League have been approved by the Park and Recreation Board, compiled and mailed to various teams for the season.

In his letter to Mayor Francis X. McCauley requesting the appropriation, Cattaneo said night game cancellations would result "in moving the Babe Ruth League out of Adams Field, finding another field for them to play on that has already been approved for other leagues, leaving them without a facility to play on" and "create many problems for the Board and this department.

"For the hundreds of players that participate and the thousands of spectators who enjoy watching their favorite pastime, this situation is a major catastrophe," he said.

Cattaneo also noted that the lighting of Adams has provided many benefits for Quincy residents.

"Young men unable to continue their baseball careers at age 16 because of afternoon employment required to accumulate funds for further education or financial assistance at home have been able to participate in games during the evening hours," he said.

Noting that he is aware of the fiscal contraints on all departments in the city, Cattaneo said, "This capital crisis is as important to the Park and Recreation Board and the hundreds of players and fans as the Central Middle School was to the parents and administrators of the School Department."

Other appropriations approved by the Council were:

- $3,681 to Police to cover expenses of a new department recruit.
- $5,000 to Fire to cover the cost of mechanical repairs to several pieces of equipment. The money will be used to repair a blown rear-end in Ladder 5 ($1,350); install a rebuilt transmission in Engine 2 ($1,250); new tires for Engine 5 ($1,100); repair broken springs in Tower 1 ($500); and purchase and install an air compressor in Ladder 3 ($800).
- $1,000 to the Mayor to cover the expenses of a temporary secretary.
- $330 to the Zone Board of Appeals to help cover expenses of several additional meetings.
- $60,000 to Parking Facilities, a standard transfer.

$200 Fine For Driving Vehicles On Public Land

An ordinance banning the use of motor vehicles on publically owned land in Quincy which has not been designated for vehicle use will be signed by Mayor Francis McCauley when it reaches his desk next week.

The ordinance, which unanimously passed the City Council Monday, carries a $200 fine for each offense. Tickets will be issued by Quincy police officers.

"It makes sense to me. (The vehicles) are a nuisance," the mayor said.

The ordinance bans the operation of any motor vehicle, including but not limited to automobile, dune buggy, dirt bike, motor scooter or any other motorized vehicle on any publically owned lands within the city which have not been laid out as a way, or designated by the Park and Recreation Board for the use of such vehicles.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, who introduced the ordinance, said it is needed because motor vehicle operation on public land is a safety hazard and causes thousands of dollars of damage.

At a public hearing on the matter prior to Monday's Council meeting, about a dozen people went on record in favor of the ordinance while one resident spoke out against it.

Speaking in opposition, Mike McLaughlin of Curtis Ave. questioned whether or not the city will designate a place for the operation of motor vehicles. He said the city should do somthing besides taking away the operator's freedom.

Among those in favor were Elaine Dwyer of Sea St. She said the bikes and other vehicles are operated from 7:30 a.m. to about 9 p.m. practically every day, causing extensive damage, especially in the Broad Meadows area.

Heather Sergeant, Conservation Enforcement Officer, requested that the ordinance include confiscation of the vehicle. However, City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie said that practice may be unconstitutional and that the city "may run afoul" if it tried to confiscate the vehicles.

Besides oral testimony, Cheney read two letters from residents supporting the ordinance. One writer said the vehicles should be banned because they jeopardize the safety of small children.

Cheney noted that some senior citizens have been forced "to jump out of the way" on public lands to avoid being hit.

Students To Represent Councillors At Hazardous Materials Conference

Twenty-seven students from Quincy High, North Quincy and Quincy Vocational-Technical School will represent city councillors at a press conference on hazardous material today (Thursday) at the Venus DeMilo Restaurant in Swansea.

A bus will leave Civil Defense Headquarters on Sea St. at 7:30 a.m. and return to the city at 5 p.m.

The group will be accompanied by Civil Defense Deputy Director Tony Siciliano.

The conference will address the need for hazardous materials planning, the planning-response system; and the organizing of a local emergency planning committee (LEPC) for hazardous materials.

Each councillor will have one student from each school: Quincy High, North and Quincy Vo-Tech.

Students participating in the conference and the city councillor they represent are: Marianne McSweeney, Quincy High; Steven Fullers, Quincy Vo-Tech; and Patrick Faherty, North Quincy High; Council President Patricia Toland.

Mike Donnelly, QHS; Kimberly Foley, QVTS; and Angelo Kryano, NQHS; Stephen McGrath.

Mike Perry, QHS; Paul William Felci, QVTS; Billy Warren, NQHS; Ted DeCristofaro.

Judy Goodman, QHS; Brian Hayward, QVTS; Melanie Moffett, NQHS; Lawrence Chretien.

John Daley, QHS; Charles Sands, QVTS; and Mark Walsh, NQHS; James Sheets.

Peter Lespasio, QHS; Shawn Southwick, QVTS; Jeff Bell, NQHS; Charles Phelan.

According to Siciliano, the conference is "an excellent opportunity for our high school seniors to receive first-hand information on how to better understand a hazardous material incident if one should occur in our community.

"Emergency preparedness planning for a city the size of Quincy is crucial in the event of an accident involving hazardous chemicals," he said.

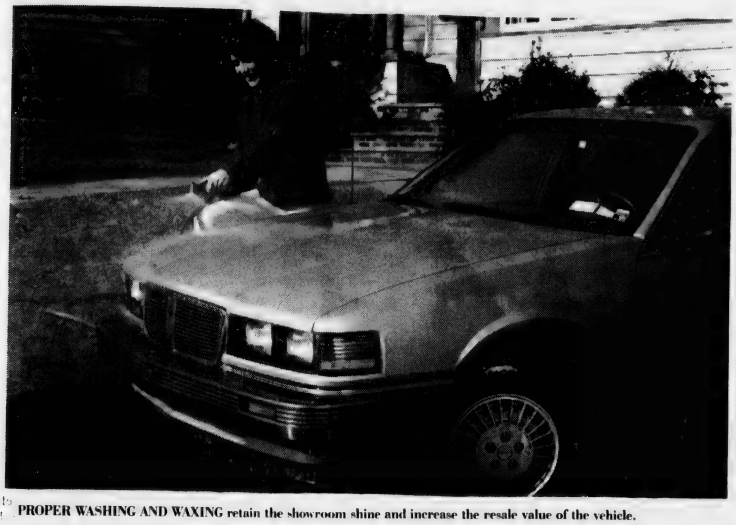
Each student will write up a report and present it to the councillor they are representing. Each councillor will review the reports and select the best one of the three.

The best nine reports will be submitted to the chief planning officer for the Massachusetts Civil Defense Agency and a prize of $100 will be given to the student with the best report on what they have learned from the conference.

6 Quincy Nurses Honored At Hospital

Six Quincy residents were among the recipients of the Clinical Excellence Award, presented annually at Quincy Hospital in conjunction with National Nurses' Week to nurses who demonstrate superiority in their profession. The winners were recognized at a hospital ceremony and tea.

The Quincy nurses are: Betty Connolly, R.N., Jean Joyce, R.N., Donna Murphy, R.N., Valerie Palmer, R.N., Phyllis Snow, R.N., and Karen Walsh, R.N.



Established by the QH Department of Nursing in 1988, the award is an opportunity for nurses to honor their peers. The winners are selected by fellow staff members as nurses who demonstrate a commitment to the development of professional nursing; excellence in clinical knowledge, competency and achievement; and a professional and caring attitude.

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

PREVENT COOLING SYSTEM PROBLEMS

When was the last time you checked your cooling system? If you can't remember, you're overdue. Prevention is the best plan to avoid cooling system problems, says Car Care Council.

BENEFITS OF TIRE ROTATION

Incorrect wheel alignment, worn suspension parts or improper inflation all can cause uneven tire wear. Attention to these, plus rotation of the tires, says Car Care Council, is the safest way to go.

Protect your car's finish from elements of summer

With the hot summer months ahead, it's important to make sure your car's finish is "summerized." This is one of the easiest and most satisfying maintenance tasks that you can perform. And, preserving a showroom shine will not only prolong the life of your finish, but also elevate the resale value.

Keep in mind that protecting your car's finish with just any wax is not enough to truly guard against the summer elements. Finishes need extra protection from summer heat, salt water, air and sand.

First Brands Corporation, the makers of Simoniz, offer these simple tips on how to achieve that showroom shine and protect your car's finish:

Washing

The car should be washed before applying any type of wax. Washing and waxing in the shade will give you the best results.

Generally, a mild detergent is the most effective, because it can be used on various types of finishes, yet is strong enough to remove accumulated mud, road salt, insects and dirt.

After the entire car is hosed down, gently rub with a soft sponge and wash the car from the bottom up. For best results, never wash more than a three-square-foot area at a time.

The makers of Simoniz have recently introduced new "Non-Abrasive Car Wash & Cleaner" specifically formulated for vehicles with clear coat finishes. Most newer models fall into this category. (Once the car has been washed, dry with a soft towel).

Waxing

After washing and drying, the car is prepared for the wax application. Not all waxes are created equal. Different car finishes warrant different waxes.

The type of wax you choose depends on your vehicle's finish. If your car has a clear coat finish, for example, use a wax specially formulated for that purpose like Simoniz Non-Abrasive Wax. All Simoniz waxes leave vehicles with a high-gloss, protective shine.

Maintenance

The best way to keep a car looking new is to begin the process of maintenance before deterioration begins. Experts recommend waxing a vehicle two or three times a year. Regular monthly washings are also vital to maintaining a car's finish.

Here's to a beautiful, enduring shine!

Don't take your tires for granted

It's quick, it's easy, it's free and, best of all, even the home mechanic who's all thumbs can do it.

The "it" is checking the pressure in your car's tires, something you should be doing on a regular basis says Saab-Scania of America, Inc., importer of Swedish-built Saabs.

Air is still free at many service stations, and inexpensive tire gauges are even available in supermarkets, says the Swedish car maker, warning that improper tire inflation takes its toll of tires through uneven wear and, in some cases, accidents.

In addition to forcing you to replace tires more frequently, an underinflated tire creates more rolling resistance. More simply put, it means that your car burns more gasoline trying to push itself along on underinflated tires.

Telling figures

Estimates show that a tire underinflated by only five pounds of air increases fuel consumption by as much as seven percent, according to one industry source.

What is the right amount of air to put in your tires?

This depends not only on the tire but on how you plan to drive your car. Most manufacturers list recommended tire pressures in owner's manuals supplied with their cars.

If you don't have an owner's manual for your car, look inside the glovebox or on your car's sun visor for a sticker listing pressures.

Check tire pressure in morning

Recommended pressures normally apply to cold tires, meaning that you should check your tire pressures early in the morning, before you begin your drive.

Also listed on the table are recommended tire pressures for cruising at certain speeds with a given number of passengers and amount of baggage. The rule of thumb here, as Saab advises owners of its cars, is to increase tire pressures as anticipated cruising speeds or loads rise.

If underinflating a tire is bad, what about overinflation? The answer is that putting too much air in your tires is not advisable because, like underinflation, this can also cause tires to wear prematurely, decrease ride comfort, alter your car's handling performance, and reduce the tires' contact patch, that small square of your tire in contact with the road's surface at a given moment.

How do you know if your car's tires need more or less air? One way is that an underinflated tire will often show wear on the outer surfaces of the tread.

An overinflated tire will show wear by the smoothing of the tread in the middle of the tire, but your best bet is keeping a tire gauge in your car and taking readings regularly.

Replace tires as necessary

By Federal law, all tires sold in this country must incorporate wear indicators in the form of smooth, treadless strips running across the width of the tire, which become visible as the tire's tread reaches the point that indicates the tire should be replaced. Saab's advice here is don't play with fire; when it is time to replace worn tires, do so at the first opportunity.

Guy Van Duser Joins Beechwood Music School Faculty

Rounder recording artist Guy Van Duser, known for his unique "stride guitar" style of playing, as well as his arrangements for finger-style guitar, will be offering private guitar instructions at Beechwood Music School, 225 Fenno Street, Quincy, 471-5712.

Van Duser is a graduate of Oberlin College in Music, has nine albums and CD's available on Rounder and Green Linnet Records, and is author of "Stride Guitar" from Mel Bay Publications. He also composes music for film and television soundtracks, and was a frequent guest on Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion" program on National Public Radio.

His finger-style technique and imagination have drawn high praise from musicians all over the world.

Simultaneously playing bass lines, chords, and melody, he has elevated the swing-style guitar from its traditional rhythmic-accompaniment role, and has influenced a new generation of guitarists.

Flower Sale Saturday Houghs Neck Council

The annual spring flower sale of the Houghs Neck Community Council will be held Saturday, May 20, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the parking lot at the corner of Sea and Rockland Sts.

Annual and perennials for cemetery and yard will be sold. Dorothy Laing and Vincent Norton are in charge.

A STANDING OVATION was given to kindergarten thrugh eighth grade students from Lincoln-Hancock, Sterling and Central Middle Schools for their recent performance of the musical play, "Charlotte's Webb" at Lincoln-Hancock. Based on E.B. White's nove. "Charlotte's Web" the play was sponsored by the Southwest Quincy Community Relations Committee. Produced and directed by Stephen Cantelli, a fifth grade teacher at Lincoln-Hancock, more than 40 students performed in the show.

Ann McNally Member Middlebury Jazz Band

Freshman Ann M. McNally, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. McNally of Quincy, is a member of the Sound Investment, a student-run jazz/big band ensemble at Middlebury College.

The Sound Investment plays a wide range of music, from the swing and big band of the 30's and 40's to the jazz of the 80's at college functions and private affairs.

The group has presently finished a five-day workshop studying the influences of the Third World on jazz with Robert Stacke, a jazz drummer from Minneapolis. Their plans for the remaining academic year include various performances within the college community and the completion of a recording.

QSO Pops Concert May 24

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present its annual Pops Concert Wednesday, May 24 at 8 p.m. at the Lantana, 45 Scanlon Rd., Randolph. Music Director, Francisco Noya will conduct.

Guest soloist for the concert will be guitarist John Muratore of Boston, who will perform Joaquin Rodrigo's "Concerto de Aranjuez."

Originally from Ohio, Muratore is a graduate of the University of Akron where he received his Bachelor's degree in music. He received Master of Music degrees in both Classical Guitar and Music Literature from the New England Conservatory of Music. He has been the featured soloist in several recitals, concert series, and radio programs, including WGBH's "Chamberworks."

Muratore, a faculty member at Dartmouth College, Eastern Nazarene College and the All Newton Music School, will also make his Paris debut as a soloist in 1990 at the Paris Conservatoire.

Other selections at the concert will include Bizet's "Carmen Suite No. 1," "Emperor Waltzes" by Strauss, and "Selections From "A Chorus Line" by Hamlisch. A sing-along, featuring songs from the 1920's will also be included.

Tickets are $12.50 per person, and the audience will be seated at tables of eight.

For reservations and further information, call 479-2408 or write to Q.S.O. Ticket Chairman, P.O. Box 2, Wollaston, MA 02170.

JOHN MURATORE, guitarist, will be the guest soloist with the Quincy Symphony Orchestra Wednesday, May 24 at the Lantana in Randolph.

'See No Evil Hear No Evil'

Wilder-Pryor Team Reunited But Not With Usual Laughs

"See No Evil Hear No Evil' Directed by Arthur Hiller Starring Gene Wilder and Richard Pryor Now Playing at Entertainment Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall

By JANE ARENA

The latest team-up of Gene Wilder and Richard Pryor, "See No Evil, Hear No Evil," has only a few laughs, and that's too bad.

Wilder and Pryor have been wonderful in past efforts ("Silver Streak," and "Stir Crazy"), but this one just never seems to click, through no fault of theirs.

The concept itself is a funny one: a blind man (Pryor) and a deaf man (Wilder) witness a murder, but can't explain it to the police because one of them saw nothing and the other heard nothing. They end up arrested for the murder.

Meanwhile, they are unwittingly in possession of the murder motive, a rare gold coin, and, after escaping from jail, find themselves on the run from both the cops and the killers. The killers (played brilliantly by Joan Severance and Kevin Spacey) are a classy European couple right out of a James Bond film.

The film takes all the best elements of a spy-thriller — the car chase, the beautiful girl, the murder and the gold — and puts it together with a couple of mismatched, unlikely heroes in a blind-leading-the-deaf scenerio. It should be a scream, but it's barely a chuckle.

There are a few memorable moments, especially a scene where Wilder is having his mug shot taken at the police station, but they are too few and far between to add up to a whole film.

Part of the problem is that we know next to nothing about the characters before they cross paths, except that neither of them likes to admit their handicap. They remain two-dimensional throughout.

Another possible problem is that there is just something fundamentally wrong with laughing at the handicapped, even if they do try to laugh at themselves. It's not that we feel sorry for them, we don't care enough about them for sympathy, it's a simple matter of social conditioning that holds us back from laughing out loud at times.

It seems to hold Wilder and Pryor back as well. If they let loose a bit more and didn't rely so heavily on age-old gags (like Pryor's "You mean I'm not white? What will I tell them at the club?") this might have been a funnier film.

Overall though, the two are good playing off each other, and fans will enjoy seeing Wilder and Pryor interact. Even if, with the characters' handicaps, it does get a bit frustrating at times.

Montessori School Benefit Auction Here Saturday

The Thacher Montessori School of Milton will conduct a fundraising auction "Raise the Roof" Saturday, May 20 at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

Auction items will be displayed for viewing from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. During this time, participants can write bids for the Silent Auction.

The live auction will start at 6:30 p.m.

Proceeds from the auction will benefit the school's building fund.

Among the items up for auction are a football signed by 30 New England Patriots, Boston Celtic tickets and Red Sox tickets. Other unique items include get away weekends, a Macintosh computer with many extras, an IBM laptop computer, fine wines, theater and museum tickets as well as a one-week stay at a house in Dingle Bay, Ireland.

According to Assistant Administrator Jenny Donovan, auction proceeds will help fund the school's new building which is presently being constructed at the corner of Blue Hill Ave. and Brush Hill Rd., Milton.

Children's Festival At Christ Church

Christ Church of Quincy will hold a Children's Festival for their Sunday School on Sunday, May 21 from 11 a.m. to noon at the church.

A horse and wagon will pick up Sunday School students as a reenactment of Louisa Catherine Adams (Mrs. John Quincy Adams) doing this when she founded the Sunday School in 1820.

The festival is part of the continuing celebration of the church's 300th anniversary, from 1689 to 1989.

HN Center Pool Pizza Party May 25

Continental Offering HBO Drug Documentary Free

Because the issue is of such vital importance to parents and those who care about youth, Continental Cablevision was scheduled to repeat HBO's new documentary, "How to Raise a Drug-Free Child" to all subscribers free of charge Wednesday, May 17 at 9 p.m. on Channel 3.

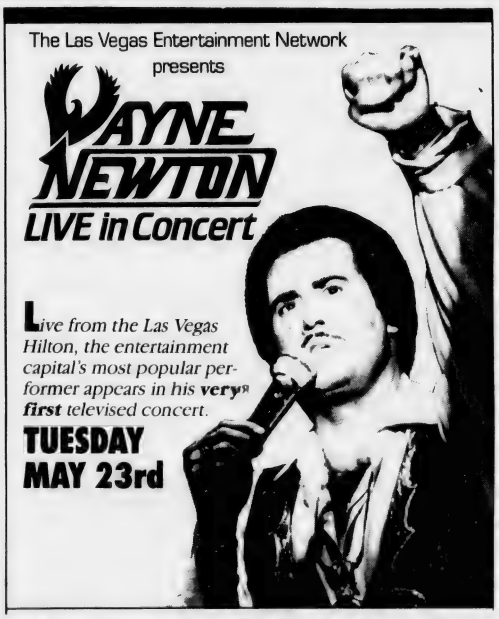
Hosted by Mary Tyler Moore, the program's signal was to be unscrambled so that all Quincy, Milton and Randolph subscribers could view it.

"Continental decided to make this HBO documentary available to as wide an audience as possible because we are committed to the community's effort to end the scourge of drug abuse among children," said Steve Farquhar, Continental's general manager for Quincy, Milton and Randolph.

The show was first aired Monday, May 15 at 10 p.m.

"How to Raise a Drug-Free Child" provides vital information on how serious the drug problem has grown and the reasons why many kids try drugs," Farquhar said.

"How much a family knows about drugs can determine whether they will win or lose the battle. This program outlines seven steps that will help parents meet the challenge of raising a drug-free child in today's society," he said.



Farquhar said the program is not aimed at families where drugs have already worked their devastation nor is out to scare anyone.

"It is especially for parents who think it won't happen to their children but are concerned nonetheless," he said.

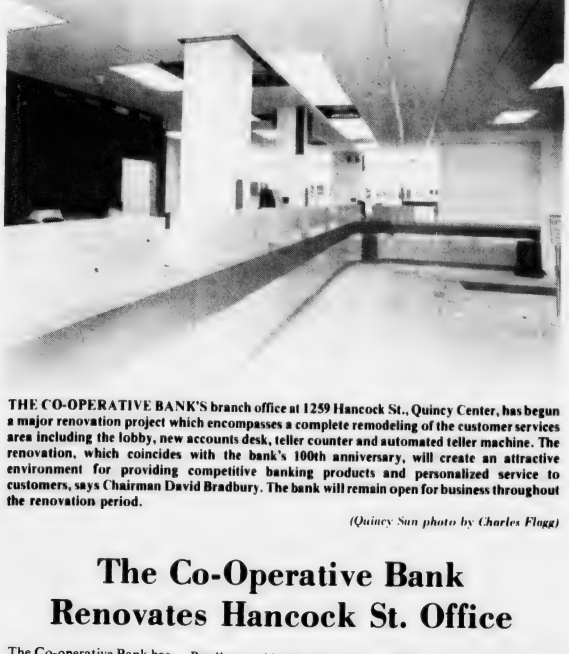
NQHS Journal Wins Award

The 1988 issue of the North Quincy High School freshman magazine, the "Frosh Journal," recently won the New England Scholastic Press Association's Special Achievement Award in Scholastic Editing and Publishing.



Leonard Miceli, Social Studies teacher and "Frosh" advisor, commended freshman Andrew McPhee for his use of the PageMaker computer program in the layout of the journal, and also freshman Simon Kwan for artistic direction.

The magazine, started in 1984, was designed not only as a forum for the issues presented in "Frosh Journal," but also to introduce students to the business of publishing, computer usage, decision making and staff cooperation.

The Co-Operative Bank Renovates Hancock St. Office

The Co-operative Bank has begun a major renovation of its 1259 Hancock St. branch office in Quincy Square.

The project encompasses a complete remodeling of the Customer Service areas, including lobby, New Accounts desk, teller counter, and automated teller machine vestibule.

Chairman David E. Bradbury said, "We consider Quincy a vital market area, and the Hancock St. Office is well position for continued growth. The renovation creates an attractive environment for providing competitive banking products and personalized service to our customers." The office will remain open for business throughout the renovation period.

This year marks the bank's 100th anniversary of providing services to the Quincy community. The Hancock St. office first opened in 1936.

The Co-operative Bank, the largest co-operative bank in Massachusetts, with assets in excess of $600 million, is a state-chartered, FDIC insured co-operative bank with headquarters in Acton, Massachusetts and retail banking offices in Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth Counties.

Harold Backed On 2 Free Classrooms At S. Quincy T Garage

A suggestion made by Senator Paul Harold to include two rent-free classrooms for Quincy Junior College as part of an expanded Quincy Adams MBTA garage has the support of state officials, including Gov. Michael Dukakis.

On Tuesday, Harold announced that the governor, MBTA Chairman Thomas Glynn and other state officials support his suggestion for the MBTA's proposed expansion of the Quincy Adams parking garage located in South Quincy near the interchange for Routes 3, 93 and 128.

Harold's idea is for the MBTA to build two fully furnished and enclosed classrooms on top of a new, 1,500 car-garage the Authority is proposing as an addition to the existing garage. The rooms would be used on a rent-free basis, he noted.

"Governor Dukakis finds the idea very innovative and worth looking into," Harold said Tuesday after meeting with the governor.

Furthermore, the state is looking into how to implement the idea, Harold said.

"They're taking a very positive approach. They're looking at how it can be done," Harold said.

Harold said he has discussed the idea with Mayor Francix X. McCauley and QJC President Dr. O. Clayton Johnson.

The senator also said Dukakis sees the idea as a way to provide some sort of direct benefit to Quincy. The governor wants the MBTA to develop the plans for the garage as soon as possible in order to examine the proposal's data.

Dukakis also wants to be sure the project doesn't jeopardize the state's bonding. If there are any technicalities, Harold said Congressman Brian Donnelly would be available for consultation.

Details of the project are sketchy at this time but Harold said the two classrooms would be used depending on the needs of Quincy Junior College. He mentioned a photographic lab and specialized classrooms.

Harold called the idea a "golden opportunity" which would benefit QJC, the city and the state.

Noting that the classrooms would supplement the college's space in downtown Quincy, Harold said QJC's ties to the business community, especially Crown Colony, would be strengthened.

Secondly, an estimated $200,000 in additional parking receipts could be collected with the new addition. Since most garage users have vacated the garage by 6 p.m., Harold said the addition and QJC's presence would create another "parking shift" at night.

Also, the amount of crime and vandalism at Quincy Adams, the second highest of all the T stations, could be reduced. Harold noted that there are very few individuals at the garage from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"The activity of students will help reduce vandalism," he said.

The classroom idea is also a chance for the state to provide some benefit to Quincy. Harold said other state proposals, like the restoration of the Old Colony Line, would not have any direct benefit on the city.

"I think it's a golden opportunity for Quincy Junior College to tie into the Crown Colony development and expand their continuing education programs by having rent-free classrooms," Harold said.

11 Summer Jobs In School System

Eleven summer help positions within the Quincy public schools are available to qualified applicants.

Positions include eight general maintenance and three office staff.

The maintenance positions are: grounds keeping, heavy lifting/loading, digging, and truck operation (class III license required).

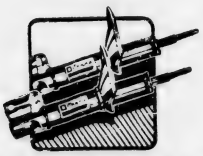
Applicants for the three office staff positions should be qualified in clerical duties and have typing skills.

The positions will be for 35 hours per week at $5.70 an hour and run a maximum of eight weeks.

All applicants must be Quincy residents and be at least 16 years old by June 1, 1989. Current high school students that apply must hold good standing in their respective schools.

Successful applicants will be chosen by lottery, screened by subsequent interview and recommended by the Quincy School Committee by its second regular meeting in June.

Interested persons should contact Carmen Mariano, assistant superintendent of Quincy public schools, at 984-8766 on or before Friday, May 26.



3 Quincy Residents Honored At Milton Hospital

Three Quincy residents recently received service awards from Milton Hospital at the Hospital's annual Employee Recognition Dinner.

Eda Varese and Marjorie Galvin were honored for 20 years service, and Eleanor Nason, for 15 years.

Proposed By O'Connell

Urban Park Gets Favorable Reaction

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

A national urban park proposed by Peter O'Connell received mainly favorable reactions when it ws presented for "input" to some 50 persons Monday night following a meeting of the Quincy Historic District Commission at City Hall.

The $10 million project proposed by O'Connell calls for a park to include Quincy City Hall, First Parish Church, McIntyre Mall and the Hancock Cemetery, with trees, ornamental lighting and large patches of grass with flower beds.

It would also include street and sidewalk improvements between the Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St. and the Adams Mansion or "Summer Whitehouse" on Adams St.

The proposal calls for closing and landscaping Hancock St. between City Hall and First Parish Church, which contains the tombs of Second President John Adams and Sixth President John Quincy Adams and their wives.

Cars would be rerouted around the church, opening Washington St. and Temple St. to two-way traffic while merging with Hancock St.

While several parking spaces would be eliminated, the plan also calls for a parking deck over the MBTA tracks behind City Hall. The deck would consist of 200 to 250 spaces to accommodate the expected increase in visitors and tourists.

A public hearing is required before the Historic Commission can decide to approve the plan.

O'Connell said the park would help the church attract more than the 2,000 visitors who now visit the historic site annually.

A four by six foot water color painting by William Moore and black and white outlines by Mary Smith were presented for viewing showing the building, landscaping and traffic flow.

James Van Doren, present with a group of 10 members from United First Parish Church, expressed "concern for the integrity of the church." It will be celebrating its 350th anniversary this year, he said.

"We would like to see it maintained in its integrity. Will there be eminent domain to take away any of our property? It is the Church of the Presidents, but it is a working congregation."

O'Connell replied, "It does not advocate eminent domain. The congregation is the key to the whole thing. We have to convince them that this is good for them. It is an architectural treasure. It is a special place."

Replying to the question, "Will it be like Boston Common?" O'Connell pointed out that lights will promote safety, and occupancy of Presidents Place will help also.

"If we can accommodate the congregation and make sure they can be satisfied, this would be a great thing for Quincy...but I'd like to see it including the Richardson Library." (Thomas Crane Library)

Police Say Salary Figures 'Misleading'

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Figures published in last week's Quincy Sun on the number of city employees, including police officers, who earned more than $50,000 last year were misleading because officer salaries were not broken down, the president of the Quincy Police Patrol Officers Association says.

President Paul Quinn, an 18-year veteran in the Quincy Police Department, said he wanted to respond to the story because once it appeared his telephone "was ringing off the hook."

The story focused on the number of city employees, mainly police officers, fire fighters and school officials, who earned more than $50,000 last year. According to figures released by Mayor Francis McCauley, 119 employees earned more than $50,000 last year. Of those, 66 made more than the mayor's $55,000 salary.

Ninety-three police officers earned more than $50,000 and of that number, 56 topped the $55,000 salary.

McCauley requested the list last Tuesday became he was "curious" to know how many employees earned more than $50,000 and how many topped his salary.

The mayor had intended to give a copy of the list to the City Council before last week's meeting in order to help them discuss a proposed $5,000 pay increase for the mayor and a $2,500 hike for each city councillor.

The council defeated the pay raises 9-0.

Quinn, who represents the patrolwomen, patrolmen and detectives in the Quincy Police Department, said the article did not include the makeup of officer salaries.

He pointed out that new patrol officers earned $21,646 last year; second-year officers made $26,192 and third-year officers earned $27,432.

On top of these rates, officers can also earn additional money through several incentives and overtime, Quinn said.

They are:

- A bill which boosts salary with each college degree earned. Officers with an associate degree earn 15 percent more than their standard salary; officers with a bachelors degree receive 20

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE CUSTOMERS OF CHUTNEYS, THE QUINCY LICENSING BOARD, AND THE TAXPAYERS OF QUINCY FROM THE OWNERS AND EMPLOYEES OF CHUTNEYS

You may have read about us in the May 18 and 19 issues of the two Quincy newspapers. The articles reported that Chutneys had received a strong public slap on the wrist by the Quincy Police Department (QPD) and the Quincy Board of Licensing Commissioners (QBLC) for "the illegal practice of allowing customers to consume alcoholic beverages on the premises." "The premises" is Chutneys, a small, year-round, delicatessen-market on the Boardwalk at Marina Bay in North Quincy. We are not a "Package Store" as was erroneously reported; we are not a bar or a lounge; we are not one of the many Marina Bay watering holes. We are a family owned and operated market primarily serving the local residents of North Quincy. At Chutneys you may choose from a wide menu of prepared take-out food. We also sell groceries, bakery, dairy, produce, beer and wine, and most everything you might find in a neighborhood convenience store. The "convenience" we offer is coupled with a high level of quality and personal service. We are not a "chain store." We have worked long and hard since opening in the Spring of 1985 to make Chutneys one of the higher quality retail food markets in the South Shore area. And we are proud of it. Please pardon our self-endorsement. But this is the only way we can defend ourselves against the public accusations of the Quincy Liquor Inspector (QLI). Therefore we have purchased this space to relate our side of this frustrating experience.

First a little necessary history. Over the past four years, when weather allowed, some of our customers have elected to enjoy their sandwich, salad, dessert, etc. out-of-doors on the Boardwalk in front of our store. The view is spectacular, so all of the eating and drinking establishments at Marina Bay have always used the common area of the Boardwalk for this purpose. To accomodate these customers, we have always provided tables and chairs to supplement the Boardwalk benches that the property owner installed. some of these customers may even buy a beer or a small bottle of wine to enjoy with their food out on the Boardwalk. For the first three years (1985-1988) this practice was approved by our landlord and also by the Quincy Liquor Inspector. It is still enthusiastically approved by the owner of the property.

Early in the Summer of 1988, the Quincy Liquor Inspector suddenly informed us verbally, for no apparent reason, that in his opinion we were violating our license by allowing customers to drink a beer or a glass of wine on the Boardwalk in front of our store. We disagreed with his interpretation and, in conjunction with a representative of the property owner, stated our case.

1. Chutneys does not rent or control the storefront Boardwalk space in question. It is a privately owned area open to the public and to slip holders at the marina. Therefore it is not the premises covered by our license.
2. Given the recreational, park-like, marina atmosphere of the area plus the multiplicity of area establishments (7) which have been granted licenses to serve or sell alcoholic beverages, it would be difficult for us to enforce this strict interpretation of the license regulations by keeping the public away from our tables if they have alcoholic beverages.
3. Finally, since we at Chutneys had never had a single complaint from the public, why the change in the interpretation: Doesn't the Quincy Board of Licensing Commissioners serve the public?

As a result of our appeal, we were told by the Quincy Liquor Inspector that "as long as the landlord approves, it is OK with the City of Quincy." Obviously the landlord approved, so we continued to allow use of the tables in front of our store. I should add at this point that, in our four years of continuous operation, we have never had a single complaint from or problem with customers, residents, or the private security force of the area. Neither has the Quincy Liquor Inspector nor the QBLC. In fact, the only problems we have had, as you will see, have come from the city bureaucracy which, in making its rulings, has never taken the time or made the effort to visit Chutneys and observe our operation.

So we continued to operate as we had in the past through the Summer of 1988. On November 17, 1988 we received a one sentence letter from Quincy City Clerk's office ordering us to appear before the QBLC on the following Tuesday, November 22, "re: Report 11 5 89." No copy of the report was included. When we called the City Clerk's Office, they did not know if they had a copy and, if they did, they "did not know if they could release it." We had no idea what it was all about until we finally went to the City Clerk's Office on Monday, November 21, and insisted that we had a right to see a copy. The "report" was a letter by our same Quincy Liquor Inspector to the Chief of Police reporting again that we were violating our license regarding the Boardwalk. What had changed his mind? We do not know. What had we done differently to change the interpretation? Nothing. What was this all about?

At the hearing not a single public complaint was heard. But we were admonished by the Chief of Police for breaking the law. Our attempts to explain the uniqueness of the Marina's Boardwalk area fell on deaf ears. Our invitation to the Commissioners to come down to the Marina and check out the site also fell on deaf ears. Not a single Commissioner offered to take a look at the area. They took their lead from the Chief of Police, who in turn, backed the Quincy Liquor Inspector completely without fully investigating both sides of this unique situation. The relationship between the Marina and Chutneys and the City of Quincy is an unusual one and warrants more unique consideration and intelligent thought than the usual. It has always been our hope that the Quincy Board of Licensing Commissioners would rise to the occasion.

Following their landmark decision that we were "breaking the law" we complied with their ruling but, again in conjunction with the property owner, appealed to the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverage Commission (MABC) for an opinion. A representative of MABC stated they had no problem with allowing us to continue to operate as we had for the past three and one half years. This opinion was passed on to the QBLC through the City Clerk's Office and we heard nothing further from them.

So, this Spring we continued to allow the occasional customer to sit on the Boardwalk and enjoy a beer with a sandwich. Nothing more was heard until one day last week when this same Quincy Liquor Inspector appeared in our store and angrily informed us in front of customers and employees that he "was revoking our license." Our attempts to explain what had transpired since last November were scoffed at by him and he abruptly left promising to revoke our license. At that point, in utter frustration, we retained counsel and again spoke with our landlord's representative. We heard nothing more from either one of them until Thursday, May 18 when we read in the newspaper of the Board of Licensing Commissioners meeting on May 16. At that meeting, without our knowledge and without inviting us to be present to defend ourselves, the QBLC, in public with the media present, accused us, tried us, found us guilty and sentenced us. Somehow, at this time in this country we would think that illegal. Hence this response in the media.

So now we will set the record straight regarding some of the distortions and lies that were reported in the newspapers.

1. We are not a "Package Store." If the QBLC and the print media who cover their meetings were to get off their collective backsides and visit the site, if might be evident to them that we are a market as described earlier. To mistake us for a package store is indicative of the lack of intelligence that has gone into the handling of this case.
2. The tables and chairs referred to by the Quincy Liquor Inspector as recently added have been in the store for over three years and have been used by our patrons to have a bite to eat, coffee, or a soft drink while in the store. One would think that, given the numerous times he has been in our store over the past year, he might have noticed this furniture. Perhaps he did.
3. Since the day we opened in June 1985, we have had numerous signs posted throughout the store informing customers that alcoholic beverages could not be consumed on the premises. It would appear, since we have never had a problem inside the store, that everyone else has seen these signs except the Quincy Liquor Inspector. But then, if he missed the tables, he could also miss the signs. Or, perhaps he did not.
4. The next point has to do with the Quincy Liquor Inspector's statement that he has seen "customers drinking beer" inside is a lie. We have never allowed this and have been most conscientious in informing our public. I challenge him to prove his accusation. Why did he not immediately bring the "offense" to the attention of the owners or manager who are always on site? He did not. He chose to make this unsubstantiated accusation behind our back but in front of the media, for the sole purpose of exaggerating the seriousness of the "crime."
5. Finally the Liquor Inspector's statement that other licensed establishments at Marina Bay now seek to sell beer and wine for consumption on their premises is another blatant exaggeration and an attempt to make the problem seem larger and more precedent-setting than it is. There are no other retail beer and wine licenses on the Boardwalk and the Boardwalk is the only area in question. If we owned a similar store off the Boardwalk, we certainly would not expect our customers to be allowed to consume alcoholic beverages in front of the store. The Boardwalk is one of a kind. Unfortunately the QBLC cannot deal with that.

We could go on but, by now, we are sure you can sense our frustrations. They are the frustrations of hard-working, responsible tax-paying business owners and residents who are being badgered by unresponsive public servants who take a short-cut approach to their responsibilities. "Don't rock the boat -- don't set precedent -- Don't put it in writing" are all phrases we have been given as advice. But these must by the bylaws of this group. Follow these and settle for safe and simple mediocrity rather than addressing an issue thoughtfully and realistically affecting positive change.

Two final ironies. As this goes to press, we have yet to hear anything from the Quincy Board of Licensing Commissioners. Isn't it even more frustrating to know that it is our tax and licensing dollars that are supporting that performance!

We now spend a lot of time attempting to explain this change to our customers. Their reactions are predictable. They are not nearly as kind to the QBLC as we have been. We thank our customers for their continued support and patronage. We do not expect that anything will change from the publishing of this letter. But we feel better for having publicly stated the whole case.

Sludge Dominant Issue At Mayoral Candidate's Night

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The proposed sludge treatment operation at the Fore River shipyard, development, trash costs and public education were the dominant issues at Monday's Candidate's Night featuring all five mayoral candidates at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

For 90 minutes, Councillors Stephen McGrath and James Sheets, businessman Peter O'Connell, former mayor and councillor Joseph LaRaia and William Jensen answered questions posed by Donna Ackerman and Steve Cantelli.

The event was sponsored by the Southwest Quincy Community Relations Committee, a non-profit organization that addresses the needs of Southwest Quincy.

About 75 people attended the forum.

The issue of the proposed sludge treatment operation by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority at the Fore River shipyard brought out the most pointed exchange of the evening.

McGrath and Sheets reiterated their opposition to the facility siting while O'Connell said officials and residents should be fighting the MWRA for compensation for the plant.

Calling the shipyard "the worst site" for the operation, McGrath said one of the first things he would do as mayor is file a lawsuit against the MWRA to stop the facility from operating at the site.

"I think we have to lobby our state and federal representatives and make it very clear that the city won't compromise on this issue," McGrath said.

He also lashed out against other officials who have accused Quincy of NIMBY politics: Not In My Back Yard.

"If it is NIMBY, so be it because it is our backyard," McGrath added.

Sheets, in his closing statement, addressed the sludge issue and said that the next mayor "has to be a fighter."

"I don't think we've fought hard enough to stop the MWRA," Sheets said, adding that the idea of the city being compensated for the sludge operation "disturbs" him.

"How could we ever spend this money because for the people of Quincy Point, this would be $25 million worth of misery," he said.

In response, O'Connell said compensation from the MWRA could help the city's finances and thus improve and bolster city services such as education.

"I don't take any comfort in relying on state money for education, he said, adding that the state's economy has "eroded" the past several years.

"The truth of the matter is economics is dictating the siting of the plant," O'Connell said, noting the MWRA owns the shipyard. "I think there's a lot of money on the table, he said, referring to possible compensation.

McGrath, however, replied, "I'm opposed to trading sludge for books."

O'Connell, who said he "isn't happy about the sludge

McGrath Urges Delay On MWRA Vote Until Board Tours Shipyard

Councillor Stephen McGrath has asked the city's representative to the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to delay any final vote on the selection for the Authority's permanent headquarters until the Board tours the executive offices at the General Dynamics shipyard.

McGrath urged City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie, to delay the vote until the MWRA's Board tour the office space at the site. The property is owned by the MWRA.

McGrath, who last week toured the offices along with other officials, said he found the condition of these premises far from "deplorable."

In fact, he said "these premises are in good condition and could easily accommodate the MWRA officers and support staff."

On Tuesday, McGrath wrote a letter to MacRitchie offering to host a tour of the General Dynamics former offices for the MWRA Board of Directors before they take a final vote.

COLLEGE FUNDING

Very often, an individual wishes to accumulate funds for their child's college education through the use of a life insurance policy. Although this procedure can be a viable one, a very common mistake is made. The mistake is placing the insurance on the life of the child rather than on the life of the parent.

To begin with, the entire idea is to have the funds ready when the child is about to enter college. If the policy is placed on a young child, and the parent dies, there is usually insufficient monies to keep paying the premium and the policy will lapse, but by placing the policy on the life of the parent and the parent dies, the proceeds are paid (tax free) and placed into a trust until the child is ready to start school.

With today's tax laws as they are, the utilization of life insurance can be a very favorable method of funding that ever increasing tuition cost.

Collins Will Seek Re-election

Mary Collins is getting ready to make it official: she is going to seek re-election to the School Committee.

Collins has waited before making a decision to give her time to see if there would be any problem to her remaining on the School Committee and handling her County Commission job at the same time.

COLLINS

She was elected to the County Commission last November, defeating long-time incumbent George McDonald also of Quincy. She is the first woman ever elected County Commissioner.

There has been speculation that she might find the two jobs a problem time wise. But after working at them both for nearly a half year, those close to her, say she has found she can handle both of them.

They say she definitely will seek an official announcement soon.

This would be her fourth term. In each of the three previous outings she topped the School Committee field.

Her decision to run again virtually assures a preliminary election for School Committee Sept. 22 even though incumbent Peggy Nigro has decided not to seek re-election.

Seven candidates are needed for the three seat contest to create a preliminary runoff.

Incumbent Frank Santoro, due up for election this year, is expected to run again.

That makes seven.

And John McDuff will make it eight with an announcement set for Thursday, June 8 at the Adams Heights Men's Club.

COUNCILLOR Steve McGrath is stepping up his campaign for mayor. He estimates he has already knocked on 2,000 doors and is also averaging four coffee hours a week.

McGRATH

And, what is on the minds of the people when they open the door?

"The No. 1 issue," says McGrath, "is the sludge plant at the Fore River Shipyard. And not just people living in Quincy Point.

"It has become a community-wide concern." People who don't live anywhere near the shipyard are as concerned and angered about it as those in Quincy Point."

Other issues: education and development.

They want education improved and a brake on development.

□

KEITH WESTERMAN'S decision to withdraw from the Ward 4 City Council race would seem to leave it strictly a two-man battle between Tom Fabrizio and Joseph Shea. No other candidate appears to be waiting in the wings.

WESTERMAN

Westerman said he is bowing out because he has been having problems raising money with which to wage an effective campaign.

He had been spending his own money and feels he just couldn't continue to do so.

SHEETS

His departure means there will be no preliminary election for the Ward 4 seat unless an unexpected candidate steps in.

Observers will see it as possibly costing mayoral candidate James Sheets a few votes in Ward 4.

A preliminary ward fight for City Council helps bring out a better voter turnout. Sheets would benefit by more voters going to the polls.

LaRAIA

He has been a popular Ward 4 councillor for 16 years and would stand to gain by a ward preliminary fight.

Of course, Joseph LaRaia who has always done pretty well in West Quincy might also benefit from a ward council fight there.

□

NOMINATION PAPERS for this year's city elections are now available at the Election Department in City Hall.

Deadline for filing them is Aug. 8. You can take them out as late as the Friday before – Aug. 4. All you need are 50 valid signatures of registered voters to get on the Sept. 12 preliminary election ballot.

Good luck.

Responds To Article On 'Devoicing Dogs'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am responding to an article which appeared May 11, written by Jane Arena titled "Devoicing Dogs."

I am a trainer from Braintree who has run a business in this field for six years. I was educated and certified in Columbus, Ohio and train in all areas of K-9 handling, specializing in training and management of aggressive and problem dogs. I did not see this article until May 17 or I would have written earlier.

My main concern was comments made by Quincy Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucci. I do not feel she has the jurisdiction to make such comments or take such action as "Devoicing dogs is a simple operation which does not hurt the dog," "Only makes his bark hushed," and I've had lots of dogs devoiced." She is neither a veterinarian or professional trainer. To even suggest these methods is appalling, inhumane and totally inappropriate. Her comments should be reviewed.

A dog should not be subjected to cruel punishment because of the lack of conscientious handling and management by some owners.

It appears to me that these people do not have the knowledge or skill necessary to deal with these problems. Further, it is apparent that they do not understand the personalities of dogs, since they are recommending quick fix methods such as "debarking" as a substitute for training. Dogs need their bark to communicate.

Through training, I have saved many dogs which have had aggressive and barking problems without debarking them. These same dogs would have been destroyed if left to the recommendations of people like Ms. Berlucci. Some dogs cannot be saved, but the majority of problem dogs can be cured with proper training. The problems begin and end with the owners.

If owners are educated and shown proper ways to train, handle and maintain their dogs within safe standards and within the law, there would not be any problems, especially with large and aggressive breeds.

As for the owners who are totally responsible for the actions of their dogs and who fail to take necessary steps to maintain the dogs within the laws, I am totally for harsh fines. I feel in this case the dogs' rights are being violated and the dogs should not have to pay the price.

Thank you for taking the time to read this. Any other statements or pictures would be appreciated.

Sludge Dominant Issue

facility coming to Quincy, also stated the MWRA was able to come to Quincy because there "was a vacuum of leadership" among elected city officials at the time the shipyard was bought.

"I wasn't on the City Council two years ago," he said.

"Now we have to make the best of the situation," O'Connell said, adding that he is meeting with top state officials, including Secretary of Environmental Affairs John DeVillars in an effort to get the MWRA to site their headquarters at the Fore River shipyard.

"I don't see anyone else going to these meetings," O'Connell said.

On the issue of reducing trash hauling costs, LaRaia said he would reopen the West Quincy landfill while Jensen said a trash incinerator might be a viable option.

Noting that the city is paying $6 million this year to "cart its household trash" out of Quincy, LaRaia said he would push for the reopening of the landfill if elected.

"Even its opened temporarily, doesn't it make sense when we're paying $6 million a year. We can't count on the state. We have the opportunity to do ourselves a favor," LaRaia said.

Jensen said, "There's no reason for a trash disposal company to raise their rates any more. I think a good idea might be an incinerator."

McGrath, Sheets and O'Connell all said they are against reopening the landfill.

McGrath said he would lobby the state to reimburse the city for the $1 million Quincy has paid towards filling and capping the landfill.

Sheets pointed out that he is trying to get the West Quincy landfill area rezoned to open space while O'Connell said the next mayor must work with state leaders and come up with a regional solution since rubbish removal is a "state and national issue."

McGrath and Sheets also said that the city must look to regional solutions for the city's trash problem.

In discussing downtown revitalization and development, McGrath said he would improve the parking conditions in the city owned lots which are presently run by Kinney Systems, Inc.

McGrath, noting that Kinney's lease is up for renewal this spring, said he does not think the company should be awarded another contract.

"I frankly think we ought to consider having the city maintain the management of it," he said.

McGrath also said he would utilize his planning director and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce to seek businesses for the downtown area. He said he is against any "wholesale rezoning" downtown.

LaRaia said he supports a modified version of his "grand plan," which he proposed two years ago, of utilizing the parking area and converting it into a mall area. He said he wants to resurrect the downtown into the "Shopperstown, USA" it once was and make it suitable for community as well as retail purposes.

Sheets said the next mayor must decide what the "character" of the downtown area should be. To do this, he, along with his zoning director, would solicit suggestions from Quincy residents first.

Jensen said "I think all of Quincy needs a facelift," adding he would work towards enhancing the city's "older buildings," much like Boston and Newburyport have done.

"We don't need brand new buildings," he said.

In addressing this issue, O'Connell mentioned his proposal for a national urban park in Quincy Center. He said the park would help citizens "recognize Quincy's heritage" and "rejuvenate the city's vigor."

O'Connell said his plan would bring a new environment to the downtown, adding that it would include new light fixtures, new sidewalks and landscaping.

"It's a disgrace that we use the tombs of two presidents as a traffic rotary," he said, referring to First Parish Church and the existing one-way traffic flow around the church.

Candidates also spoke out on public education and proper funding for the school system.

LaRaia said, "We need a constant monitoring of our school system. We need to provide extracurricular activities. Our sports programs are suffering. They take youngsters off the streets.

"As mayor, I will not use the mayor's office as a one-man show," he added.

Noting that he does not favor a Proposition 2½ override, Sheets said "The primary aspects of money for education comes from the state.

"We must have (the funding) from the state. We have to work closely with our legislators," Sheets said, adding that the city must develop other channels revenue to take pressure off the budget.

Jensen said the state has to work "hand in hand" with the cities and towns to ensure proper funding for education.

O'Connell said the city can no longer rely on the state for proper school funding because the state's economy is eroding. As such, he advocates seeking compensation from the MWRA for the sludge operation to help pay for essential city services such as education.

All candidates said they are in favor of developing a community center in Southwest Quincy.

McGrath said he has a "clear vision" for the future of Quincy and that includes "good schools, safe schools."

"It's time to spend some more money in capital outlay," he said.

McGrath also said he envisions a "vibrant downtown on a human scale, not tall buildings" as well as a cleaner Quincy.

As a former mayor, LaRaia said he has the experience to accomplish important tasks, including the reviewing of city contracts" to ensure taxpayers get the most for their money."

He also said he has the foresight to be mayor, noting that the issues he raised two years ago in his bid for mayor are still on the minds of most citizens.

Sheets said "The mayor has to be a fighter. He has to fight for the City of Quincy."

Noting that he would fight against the MWRA's proposal for a sludge treatment plant at the shipyard, he added "I intend to fight for the things that people want."

Jensen, pointing out he has lived in Quincy 32 years said, "It's time for someone to fight for the people." Noting that he recently retired, he said, "I have plenty of time to be mayor. The door (to the mayor's office) will always be open."

O'Connell said the next mayor has to be a leader and a manager. "He must be able to react," he said, adding "I'm a hands-on person."

Quincy Vo-Tech SADD Chapter Raises $1200 For Limousines

A portion of the money will also be used to hire an airplane to fly over graduation exercises towing a banner a banner with the message "Friends Don't Let Friends Drive Drunk."

Burgin Platner Insurance and Riley and Rielly Insurance Companies also each sponsored a limousine in the drawing.

JFK Urges End To Shipyard Strike

May 25-31 1960 — 29 Years Ago

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) urged President Arthur B. Homer of Bethlehem Steel Co. to take a personal role in settlement of an eight-week strike that was tying up East Coast Shipyards including Fore River.

Kennedy, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, charged that Bethlehem's negotiating policies seemed to be directed at breaking the Shipbuilders Union or closing down the Fore River Yard.

"It is a matter of profound concern to me," he said, "that the company has adamantly insisted on overturning numerous practices and procedures established throughout two decades of collective bargaining.

"After 11 months of meetings and four months of a bitter and difficult strike, the company's position apparently remains the same."

5 Quincy Students On Fontbonne Visit To Russia

Five Quincy residents are among 15 Fontbonne Academy students who will be departing in June for a 12-day trip in the Soviet Union.

They will be accompanied by Social Studies Department members, Aldona Lingertat and Frank McCartin, as well as a group translator, Veronica Baker-Worth.

The students will visit Leningrad, Moscow and Vilnius, Lithuania. Upon arrival in the Soviet Union, a reception will be held in their honor at Vilnius High School.

In preparation for the trip, the Fontbonne students have created a video about the students, faculty, academics, sports and extra curricular activities at Fontbonne, which they will present to the students in Vilnius. In addition, some of Fontbonne's students have already begun writing to Vilnius students.

Wollaston Rainbow Girls To Observe Founding

The International Order of the Rainbow for Girls is a youth organization for females between the ages of 11 and 20. Each girl will form lasting friendships with other girls while also learning responsibility and self-assurance.

She will have the oportunity to develop leadership, work as a member of a committee and learn the importance of being of service to others. Projects include service, charity, fun and money-making.

A Grand Assembly session is held once a year in June in Springfield and the yearly charity project has been to benefit the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children in Springfield and Shriners Burns Institute in Boston.

For a project, the Assembly will hold a car wash Saturday, June 3 between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. at the Department of Public Works, Sea St., Quincy.

Information on leadership may be obtained by contacting the Mother Advisor, Mrs. Vicki Tasney at 328-0324 or Mrs. Dorothy Abbott at 773-1580.

CREATIVE COOKING

Add A "Woodsy" Flavor To Family Favorites

They say "where there's smoke there's fire" but that's not always true. You can add a smoky, hickory taste to meats and poultry, when cooking outdoors on a gas or charcoal grill or without ever leaving your kitchen.

Wright's Natural Hickory Seasoning, natural smoke condensed in a liquid seasoning, adds that special "woodsy" flavor that you thought could only come from cooking on an open fire.

Faye Egan and her staff at the Nabisco Brands Consumer Food Center have created two simple recipes for a cookout or a cook-in. A sweet and spicy sauce turns a chicken or rib dinner into a barbecue. Or for a new twist on an old favorite, stuff beef patties with cheese, brush on a smoky barbecue sauce and grill or broil.

SWEET AND SPICY CHICKEN OR RIBS
Makes 8 servings

1/3 cup WRIGHT'S Natural Hickory Seasoning
2 (3-pound) whole chickens, quartered or 4 pounds country-style pork ribs
1 (8-ounce) bottle Russian dressing
1/2 cup orange marmalade
1 (1.25-ounce) package dry onion soup mix

Reserve 1 teaspoon hickory seasoning. For chicken, brush all sides with remaining hickory seasoning. For pork ribs, place ribs in 8-quart pot with enough water to cover; add remaining hickory seasoning. Heat to a boil; reduce heat to low. Simmer, uncovered, for about 1 hour or until ribs are tender; drain.

Grill or broil chicken pieces 40 to 50 minutes or ribs about 20 minutes, turning occasionally and brushing with sauce frequently. Any remaining sauce can be refrigerated in covered container up to 1 week.

Smoky Barbecue Sauce: Blend 3/4 cup chili sauce, 2 tablespoons Dijon mustard, 2 tablespoons chopped scallions and 1/4 teaspoon WRIGHT'S Natural Hickory Seasoning.

A salute to the savory and versatile shrimp

Amazingly enough, it is only in this century that shrimp began to appear commonly on dining tables. Today, Americans are the largest consumers and producers of this versatile crustacean. Delicate in flavor, yet hardy in texture, shrimp is consumed more than any other type of seafood in the United States.

Although this delicacy from the water is popular in most regions of this country, New York is the biggest shrimp market in America, largely due to its immense population.

However, New Orleans is considered to be the shrimp capital of the U.S. A part of this city's colorful traditions, a New Orleans shrimp boil is the equivalent of a New England clam bake!

Shrimp, found in both salt and fresh waters, inhabit the muddy bottoms of oceans and rivers. They are found in hot tropical waters in addition to temperate and cold waters.

There are numerous species of edible shrimp, most inhabiting the Northern Hemisphere. In North American water alone there are at least a dozen different species of edible shrimp.

Until the '50s, consumption of shrimp was confined to the cold-water species. The discovery of large, deep-water shrimp with high quality flesh in the Gulf of Mexico set a new trend in this business. Now there are 35 known species of this type of shrimp that are fished throughout the world at a depth of up to 26,000 feet.

Most U.S. shrimp closely resemble each other in texture and taste. Northern shrimp are found in northern offshore waters of both the Atlantic and the Pacific. Southern shrimp are from southeastern and Gulf states, and North Pacific shrimp come from California and Alaska.

A majority of the American catch comes from the Gulf of Mexico. American fresh water shrimp often are found in Devils River, Texas. In addition to all this, huge quantities of shrimp are imported from all over the world to accommodate our passion for this variety of seafood.

Except for size, each species of shrimp cannot be differentiated. In the United States, there are six size categories: Giant (10 to 12 shrimp per pound), jumbo (15 to 20 shrimp per pound), large (20 to 25 shrimp per pound), medium (25 to 35 shrimp per pound), small (35 to 45 shrimp per pound) and tiny (75 to 100 shrimp per pound).

When shopping for fresh shrimp, look for a shell that is shiny and flesh that is firm.

Warning: Fresh shrimp is very perishable. Often, fishermen on board the shrimping boats immediately cook the shrimp in seawater or quick-freeze them. Quick-frozen shrimp often lose some of their flavor, so very fresh shrimp are better.

Shrimp cleaning is easier than most people assume. First, hold the shrimp by the tail, belly-side up and slit along the curve of the body. Next, use thumbs to pry shell apart and away from the body, removing legs simultaneously. Deveining, removing the black intestinal track, is optional and for aesthetics only, not safety or flavor. To do this, simply put the slit shrimp under running water.

There are a number of delicious ways to cook shrimp. They can be cooked in salted or sea water, fried, grilled...the list goes on and on!

One important rule to keep in mind is not to overcook shrimp—three to five minutes should be enough time when simmering shrimp. They should be cooked just until they are opaque and firm.

The following recipes are taken from Sunday Suppers: Informal American Home Cooking (Prentice Hall Press), by Melanie Barnard and Brooke Dojny. The first recipe, Southern-Style Shrimp Boil, is a traditional southern shrimp recipe that epitomizes informal dining. The shrimp is simmered in a seasoned bouillon and served with a dipping sauce. Sometimes, the simplest way to serve food is the best way!

Another offering from the same cookbook, Tortellini and Shrimp Pesto Salad, is a nonstandard pesto that combines particularly well with cheese tortellini and shrimp.

SOUTHERN-STYLE SHRIMP BOIL

3 pounds medium or large shrimp, in their shells
6 cups water
1 tablespoon black peppercorns
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons whole cloves
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
3 bay leaves
1 rib celery, including leaves, broken in half
4 sprigs parsley, including stems

Seasoned Butter Dipping Sauce:

12 tablespoons butter
¼ cup lemon juice
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon coarsely ground black pepper
½ teaspoon Tabasco

1. Rinse the shrimp well under cold running water and set aside. In a large saucepan, combine the water and the remaining ingredients for the shrimp boil. Bring to a boil, reduce the heat, and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes so that the flavors have a chance to permeate the water.

2. Meanwhile, make the dipping sauce. Melt the butter over low heat in a small saucepan with the lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, vinegar, salt and pepper. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in the Tabasco.

The dipping sauce may be made up to 2 hours ahead and kept at room temperature. Reheat before serving.

3. Bring the seasoned water back to a rapid boil and add the shrimp to the pot. Cook the shrimp for 1 to 3 minutes, depending on their size, until they turn pink but are not tightly curled. Do not overcook since they will continue to cook a bit after they are out of the water. Drain them into a colander and discard the celery and the parsley sprigs. Do not discard the rest of the whole spices since they look nice amidst the shrimp.

4. Dump the hot shrimp onto the center of a table that has been covered with several layers of newspaper. Pour the Seasoned Butter Dipping Sauce into 2 to 3 small bowls and invite your guests to peel the shrimp themselves and dip them into the sauce.

Yield: 6 servings.

TORTELLINI AND SHRIMP PESTO SALAD

1 cup packed parsley sprigs
½ cup packed fresh basil
1 clove garlic, peeled
¼ cup dry-roasted peanuts
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
¾ cup olive oil
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
About 2½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
½ pound medium shrimp, shelled, and deveined if necessary
1 pound good quality frozen cheese tortellini
Basil leaves for garnish

1. To make the pesto, combine the parsley, basil, garlic, peanuts and vinegar in the workbowl of a food processor or blender. Pulse until a coarse paste is formed. With the motor running, slowly pour the oil through the feed tube. Scrape down the sides of the bowl, season with the mustard, ½ teaspoon of the salt or more to taste, and the pepper, and pulse again to combine.

The pesto can be made up to one day ahead.

2. Bring a large pot of water to a boil. Add about 1 teaspoon of the remaining salt and the shrimp, and cook for 2 minutes. Remove the shrimp with a slotted spoon, refresh under cold running water to stop their cooking, and drain. Add 1 more teaspoon of the salt to the water and return it to a boil. Cook the tortellini in the rapidly boiling water until al dente, about 5 minutes. Drain in a colander and refresh under cold water to stop the cooking.

3. Transfer the pasta and shrimp to a large bowl. Pour the pesto sauce over the pasta and shrimp and toss gently to coat. Serve at room temperature or cold; garnish with basil leaves if desired.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Joe LaRaia

EXPERIENCED as your Former Mayor

RESPECTED for his accomplished record of public service

TRUSTED to make the necessary changes to move our city forward

CONCERNS FOR OUR YOUNG PEOPLE

Youth activity centers are needed in our community to encourage wholesome recreational activity in a structured environment.

COMMUNITY PRIDE

The appearance of our City and neighborhoods generally reflects level of priority that we place on its importance. Many residents are disturbed at the current level of the City's appearance. I agree with this assessment and will seek an accountability with private contracting as well as regular public service.

PUBLIC SAFETY

Public safety speaks for itself for people of all ages in our community and that includes adequate police protection that includes police enforcement of drug abuse and properly manned fire equipment. The public wants safe neighborhoods and quick response on matters of public safety.

TRAFFIC

The traffic in our streets is the residual from condominium and office development generated by the extension of mass transit through our City. We are now paying the price for expensive City services and the burden in our sewer and water system. We must implement the short term solutions and utilize the lobbying ability of our local legislators to see long term remedies.

SLUDGE TREATMENT

EDUCATION

Parents expect a good educational environment in school facilities, adequate programs, and standard class sizes. Extracurricular activities should be available and competitive. We must plan for our educational needs and provide the dollars necessary to fund these programs. I will rely on educators and parents to advise me on these matters and work together to reach attainable goals.

QUINCY SQUARE

In the Mayoral Election two years ago, I stressed the importance of rejuvenating Quincy Square for our community needs. Today as we watch a further decline in the core retail area, we are witnessing its effect on small businesses, shoppers, and taxpayers. Quincy Square is one of the few areas remaining that can be a catalyst for increased tax base and community activity.

FINANCES

The major drain on our city revenues is the loss of our landfill facility. Over 6 million dollars will be spent this year to transport household trash out of the City. We would not be shouldering any of this expense today if the administration followed the environmental directives of the State (DEQE) subsequently ordering the administration to close it down. The Mayor has suggested a possible trash disposal fee which I oppose. I would prefer to review the potential for reopening the landfill for limited local use.

Joe LaRaia is experienced as your Mayor.
Shouldn't he be your next Mayor.

Home Safety And Security

How secure is your home?

If your idea of a good home security system is a broom handle inserted in a sliding glass door track, a burglar is liable to sweep your valuables right out from underneath your feet. The broom handle has become America's standard security system and, although it may have worked once, it no longer is enough.

Homeowners today must take precautions in establishing strong security protection in and around the home. The key is to make your house key the only way to enter your home.

To prevent burglars from doing their job, take seriously the security of your house. The following quiz prepared by Honeywell's Protection Services Division will help you determine whether your home is safe.

1. Is your house fairly isolated, far from neighbors, or hidden by bushes and not easily visible to neighbors?
A. Yes—neighbors cannot see my home or hear noises.
B. House is hidden from view by fences, trees, shrubbery, etc., but is close enough to neighbors for them to hear a disturbance.
C. No—neighbors can see my home clearly and are within earshot.

2. Does your home have exterior lighting?
A. No lighting.
B. Some lighting.
C. Lighting front, back and garage area.

3. Do you leave an inside light on while away from home?
A. No.
B. Yes.

4. Do you have an attached garage?
A. Yes.
B. No.

5. Are you aware of burglaries or incidents of vandalism in your neighborhood?
A. Yes, frequently.
B. A few.
C. No.

6. What are your doors made from?
A. Wooden, hollow or lightweight.
B. Wooden, solid or heavy.
C. Metal.

7. Do any of your doors have windows in them?
A. Yes.
B. Front door has adjacent window.
C. No, none.

8. What kinds of locks do you have on your doors?
A. Spring locks (simple lock in the knob).
B. Deadbolt.

9. How many locks do you have on your windows?
A. One, standard.
B. Two on each window.

10. Have you ever left keys outside your home?
A. Yes, in a hiding place.
B. Left with a neighbor, friend or household help.
C. No.

11. Do you ever leave your doors or windows open when running an errand, working in the yard or sleeping?
A. Yes.
B. Sometimes.
C. Never.

12. When away from home for extended periods of time, do you arrange to have a trusted neighbor look after your home and pick up mail and newspapers?
A. No.
B. Sometimes
C. Yes.

ANSWERS

1. Many families pay for their privacy with an open invitation to burglars. Shrubbery near doors and windows is a perfect hiding place for burglars.

If your house is isolated and not visible to neighbors, take special precautions.

Keep shrubs well trimmed, and make sure your doors and windows are secure.

Use lights, good locks, strong doors and, best of all, an electronic home security system monitored by the security company.

2. A well-lit home is one of the best ways to protect your home. Lights won't keep thieves out, but they will make it easier for neighbors to spot a prowler.

3. Many people arrange for a neighbor to check their home and turn lights on or off while they're away for any length of time. Even better, some security systems can turn selected lights on and off automatically so it always looks like someone's home.

4. Unattached garages are safer than attached garages. They don't provide a sheltered access to the main house for a burglar. But the door between your attached garage and your home can be protected with a home security system.

5. The safest neighborhoods, of course, are those that never have home invasions. But even in these havens, there's no guarantee they'll be crime-free forever. Don't wait until crime hits your neighborhood before taking any precautions.

6. Metal doors are best, but heavy, solid wooden doors are still good. If you have light, hollow wooden doors on any outside doors, it would be a good idea to replace them

7. Windows and doors are anything but a safe combination. They can give burglars clues to whether or not you're home. And they're an easy access to your door locks.

An electronic security system will notify you and the police if the windows or doors are opened in an attempted burglary. And the security decal on these windows may, by itself, drive burglars away.

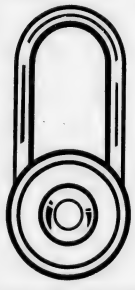
8. There is no lock that can't be picked! But deadbolts give a higher degree of protection than spring locks, which can be opened in seconds.

9. Standard window locks are far too easy to open. A second lock, made especially for windows, will add more protection.

10. Any hiding place you can think of, a burglar can think of, too. Leaving keys with a trusted neighbor is better.

11. Open windows and doors are a security risk, but no one wants to keep the house closed up all the time. With many security systems, you can enjoy the fresh air of an open door or window while still protecting other entrances.

12. Overflowing mailboxes and piles of newspapers are a signal that the homeowners are away. Arrange with a trusted neighbor to have your mail and newspapers picked up regularly to create the appearance that the residents are around. If this doesn't work for you, have the post office and newspaper discontinue service until you return.



For each question you answered "A," give yourself one point, for "B," two points, and for "C," three points.

How did you do? According to Honeywell Protection Services, homeowners with up to 19 points had better be careful. Your home could be an open invitation to burglars.

If you scored from 20 to 27 points, you've made a good start, but your home safety plan needs work.

And, if you scored 28 or more, you've established a good safety plan. You're obviously a security-conscious individual.

Whatever you score, it's always wise to stay alert to developments in the home security market. Read home magazines and attend home products shows for information on the latest products and services.

Parade Starts 10:30 A.M. Monday

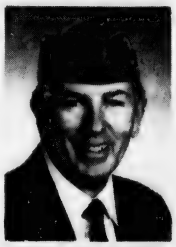
Comer Memorial Day Keynote Speaker

John "Jake" Comer, past national commander of the American Legion, will be the keynote speaker for the Memorial Day Parade ceremonies sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council Monday, May 29.

Marching units for the annual parade will assemble on School St. and Charles A. Ross Parkway at 9:30 a.m. and step off at 10:30 a.m.

The parade route is School St., Hancock St., Washington St., Coddington St., Sea St. to Mount Wollaston Cemetery where Chief Marshal Henry Bradley, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council, and honor guests will review the parade.

The parade will rest at Quincy Square where wreaths will be placed on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.



The Memorial Day services will be held at the World War II Podium, Mount Wollaston Cemetery, where Comer will speak.

A U.S. Air Force veteran of the Korean War, Comer served as a communications sergeant in West Germany until 1955. He then worked for Western Union and John Hancock Life Insurance Co. before serving as Quincy assessor from 1969 to 1975.

He was administrative assistant to the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee in the State House from 1976 to 1978 and from 1978 to 1981, he served as chairman of the Quincy Board of Assessors.

He is now the executive director of the Quincy

JOHN (JAKE) COMER

Housing Authority.

Comer joined the American Legion in 1963 with Thomas J. Roberts Post in West Roxbury. He served as post commander from 1966-67 and went on to become the state commander of the Massachusetts American Legion in 1975-76. He served as national executive committeeman for 1981-87.

Active in the community, Comer serves on a number of committees for aging, human rights, alcoholism and youth. He has been presented several awards for his service, including the 1985 Distinguished Service Award of the South Shore Mental health Center and the 1989 Unity Award from the Ward 2 Civic Association.

On Sunday, the day before Memorial Day, American Legion Post 95 will assemble at the United First Parish church at 9:45 a.m. to conduct the traditional exercises of the Grand Army of the Republic. They will escort the Sunday School Children to the Hancock Cemetery to decorate the graves of the veterans.

At 11 a.m. all veterans organizations, their auxiliaries and the public are invited to attend services at the United First Parish Church.

At 7 p.m. the George V. Bryan Post and its auxiliary will go to the Boulder and Doughboy Monument at Adams Academy, the G.A.R. Monument at Mount Wollaston Cemetery and Shea Memorial, South Weymouth Air Station.

Also at 7 p.m. the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post and the Quincy Cavanagh Chapter No. 79 D.A.V. will decorate graves of John A. Boyd, Cyril P. Morrisette and Charles J. Cavanagh in St. Mary's Cemetery.

At the conclusion of these ceremonies, the Morrisette Post will decorate the War Memorial at Liberty Sqaure, South Quincy, and War Memorial at the West Quincy Fire Station. Quincy Cavanagh Chapter will decorate the Cavanagh Boulder at Cavanagh Stadium in North Quincy and the Doughboy Statue at Adams Academy.

Also at 7 a.m. the Wollaston American Legion Post will decorate the graves and hold memorial exercises at the National Sailors Home Cemetery. The Wollaston Post will conduct a short memorial service in their home at 8:30 a.m.

At 8 a.m. the William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League, will decorate the William R. Caddy Memorial at Caddy Park, Wollaston, as well as the John Jackson, Paul Grasse and James Cavicchi Memorials.

At 8:30 a.m. the Houghs Neck Legion Post will hold memorial exercises and decorate O'Hare Square, the Adams Shore Memorial, Houghs Neck Memorial and the Frederick C. Murphy Memorial and Houghs Neck Memorial Park.

At 10 a.m. the Nickerson Legion Post will decorate Nickerson Beach, the Gilbert Memorial and the Bayfield Memorial.

92 Permits For $2 Million In Wiring

A total of 92 permits for an estimated cost of $2,109,345 were issued during February, reports Thomas Purpura, wire inspector for the Quincy Department of Wire Inspection.

The Massachusetts Electric Company approved 49 certificates.

Permit fees totaled $5,450.

Two hundred and twenty inspections were performed and 28 defects were noted.

There were 11 reinspections and one fire call.

The major project for which a wiring permit was issued during February was for the parking garage for Presidential Place, 100 Faxon Ave.

Permits were issued for office space for Aetna Insurance Company, Clean Harbors and others at various buildings at Crown Colony Place.

Post Office Closed Memorial Day

Area residents are advised that all post offices will be closed and there will be no regular mail delivery on Monday, May 29 in observance of Memorial Day.

Special Delivery and Express Mail will be delivered on the holiday. Collection boxes will be picked up according to holiday collection schedules.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Memorial Day, as the name implies, is a pause for remembrance. Sad it is that some Americans will have trouble remembering what Memorial Day is about.

We have indeed been fortunate to enjoy all our freedoms in these most recent years of peace. I'm sure many of you can recall the two World Wars, the Korean War, and the Viet Nam conflict. There is no doubt that during these times, Memorial Day was a day to recall the sacrifices so many made to maintain the freedom of our United States of America. A freedom, so valiantly fought for by those still with us and by those who paid the supreme sacrifice ... their lives.

It is often this day that awakens in children the mysteries of life and death, a consciousness of relatives, of vanished history and people. The present wages war with the past forcing old memories to give ground to the new.

Even with all the distractions of current fast paced society, Memorial Day survives. Certainly a day to remember those who paid the supreme sacrifice and a day to remember the past. But let us not forget those who are still with us who certainly sacrificed years of their lives, as did their families, so that all of us may enjoy the freedoms of the greatest country in the world. So that all of us have the right to live under the flag of freedom we revere.

Let us think upon these thoughts this Memorial Day

Islamic Center Expresses Sorrow Over Khaled's Death

The Islamic Center of New England, 470 South St., Quincy, has reacted with deep sympathy and sorrow over the untimely death of the Grand Moufti of Lebanon Shaikh Hassan Khaled who died from a car bomb explosion May 16.

The explosion killed 21 people and injured 70 others.

In a statement, the Islamic Center said,

"The Moufti's murder is a tremendous blow to the forces of peace and moderation in the country of Lebanon. Although his voice has been stilled, his peaceful spirit will continue to guide the people of Lebanon during this most crucial time of our history and his innocent blood will continue to stream in the faces of those criminals and murderers who are trying to destroy the eternal principals and the values for which the Mufti has dedicated his life."

"The Islamic Center of New England and the Muslim community convey to the family of the Moufti, the people of Lebanon and the entire Muslim nation its heartful sympathy. May the Almighty God bless his soul and may his death bring peace to the country of Lebanon," the Center stated.

'The Faith Of America' Sermon At United First Parish

"The Faith of America" is the title of the Memorial Sunday sermon that Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will deliver during the 10:30 a.m. service Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian) in Quincy Center.

"The faith of America is a living, universal faith," says Dr. Bennett, "that is now ours to cherish for generations yet to come."

There will be a guest soloist, and music director Norman Corey will play organ works by Pachelbel, Scheidt, and Bach.

Ushers will be James Van Doren and Matthew Malloy, and Fred and Florence Grose will host the social hour immediately following the service.

The congregation will be welcoming to its historic Meeting House for its Memorial Sunday observance members of several Veterans and Auxiliary organizations. Prior to the service, American Legion Quincy Post No. 95 will conduct Grand Army of the Republic Exercises at Hancock Cemetery at 10 a.m. Children of the Church School will place flags on veterans' graves.

Historic First Parish Church, "Church of the Presidents," will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and those of their wives are contained in a crypt within the granite walls of the church.

Church School and child care are provided. The church is located at 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center (opposite City Hall). Visitors are welcome and are invited to the social hour immediately following the service. For information, call 773-1290.

Memorial Sunday At Houghs Neck Congregational

Memorial Sunday will be observed May 28 at 9:30 a.m. worship at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, led by Rev. Dr. Peter V. Corea and Rev. M. Alicia Corea, pastors.

Officers and members of the Houghs Neck American Legion led by Commander Raymond LaRue will attend, along with the Auxiliary Unit, Sons of the American Legion, and veterans of other organization. All are to meet at the Post Home, 1116 Sea St., at 9 a.m. to march to the church.

There will be a roll call of deceased members.

Families of deceased members are invited to attend the church service, with a breakfast to follow at the Post Home.

The summer schedule of worship at 9:30 a.m. only will continue through August at the church.

PSSB Adoption Info Meeting June 7

The Protestant Social Service Bureau, 774 Hancock St., Wollaston, will hold an informational meeting Wednesday, June 7 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

The PSSB Adoption Staff will answer questions and discuss the adoption porocess with all interested parents.

One of the tasks of the PSSB is to recruit adoptive families for some very special children. These children are waiting for adoptive families who will love, nurture and protect them.

They are school age children who have been neglected or abused, children with physical handicapping conditions or racial minority children.

Anyone interested or people who know someone who might be should come to the meeting or call Phyllis Speciale at the PSSB at 773-6203.

'God As Three-In-One' Squantum First Church Topic

"What Christians Mean When They Talk About God As Three-In-One" was the title of the sermon at the First Church of Squantum Sunday.

It was both Children's Day and Trinity Sunday at the church.

The children began the service by singing and dancing the song, "I Am the Church." Mary Ruth Scott directed the singing and then presented choir pins to the children who have been most faithful in their participation in choir this year. Receiving pins were Naomi Belsinger, Amy Harper, Erin Johnson, Katie Johnson, Mark Potter, Matthew Potter, and Emily Zaehring.

Specially honored for their work with the Sunday School children this year were Patti Hurd, Mindi Hurd, Marci Hurd, Richard Mathis and Ed Costello, and for their work with the children in the nursery, Kim Olsen and Lori Ogilvie.

After the children sang, all of the Sunday School classes went on a picnic with their teachers. This was the final day of Sunday School until fall, although child care and a nursery will still be provided for children each week during the Sunday service.

The Chancel Choir sang a Swedish folk hymn, "Children of the Heavenly Father," for the offertory anthem. Dr. Langevin thanked the members of both choirs and their director, Mary Ruth Scott, for all their help in providing the church with music throughout the year.

Hymns were sung by the congregation during the service were accompanied by Janet Williamson on the piano and Mary Ruth Scott on the organ.

A second special offering was taken to assist the congregation of the Old South Church in Weymouth, whose church building was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago. The congregation also prayed for Jennie Preston and Fred MacMillan, who are in Carney Hospital, for Richard Hendry, who just returned home from Quincy Hospital, and for a number of other members of the church who are recovering at home after hospitalization in the past few months, including Helen Miller, Tore Wallin, Barbara Anderson and Leif Thornton.

Greeters were Grace Holmes and May Lewis. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes, and the Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Craig Zaehring and Cinthia Stanton.

Recently, on Mother's Day, the Squantum congregation heard its pastor, preach on the topic, "With Words by God."

Greeters for the morning were Sandy Ahearn and her mother, Evelyn. The ushers were Grace Holmes, Eva Martin, Hazel Mayne, Ellen Ogilvie, Pat Sorenson, Barbara Walter, Ann Wallin and Edna Swanson. Gretchen Bumpus and Cinthia Stanton hosted the Fellowship Hour.

The Board of Christian Education is sponsoring a two-week program for teen-agers and adults on the subject of cholesterol. Both sessions will begin at 9:15 a.m. before church, the first on Sunday, May 28, and the second on Sunday, June 4.

This Sunday will be Memorial Sunday, when members of the church remember loved ones who are now deceased. The Lord's Supper will be observed. The service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Child care and nursery will be provided.

St. Chrysostom's Adds Third Summer Workshop Service

St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, 1 Linden St., Wollaston, will add a third summer worship service beginning Sunday, June 18 at 9 a.m. with a Seaside Eucharist at Hummock Park, Wollaston.

The park is located at the north end of Wollaston Beach, across from the Marina Bay Complex.

The Seaside Service is open to all people. Special music will be provided.

The family Seaside Service will continue to Labor Day.

St. Mary's Assn. Plans Yard Sale, Bottle Drive

St. Mary's Home and School Association will hold a yard sale and bottle drive on Saturday, June 3 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the school yard.

Yard sale donations may be brought to the white garage next to the school at 121 Crescent St. between the hours of 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. from May 28 through June 3. Bottles will be collected on Saturday only.

Roof In Good Condition Boost To Home's Salability

Homeowners who plan to sell their homes this year are reminded of the importance of "curb appeal" to prospects.

In other words, what is the first impression your home will make to the prospective buyer as they arrive at your home? The month of May is both Home Improvement Month, sponsored by the National Association of the Remodeling Industry, and National Roofing Month, sponsored by the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association and five allied associations.

"Selling an existing home can be a very satisfying experience if you are objective enough to come up with a realistic appraisal of your home's attributes," according to Roy F. Cheverie, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

"Remember that a new home represents a major investment to a prospective buyer. If you own a home that boasts a fresh coat of paint or recent tuckpointing work, be sure the prospective buyer is aware of that. At the same time, however, don't try to hide flaws, such as a roof that is past its prime," Cheverie said.

A roof in need of repair could be a deterrent to a quick sale at the price you want for your home. Don't be tempted to limit repairs to cosmetic work. Such an approach could be disastrous if, upon inspection, the prospective buyer is advised that the roof is old and worn.

Indictors that a roof is past its prime are cracked, curled or missing shingles. To spot problems, circle the house with a pair of field glasses for a closer look. For your own safety, and protection of the shingles, do not go up on the roof.

If you spot trouble, call in a professional roofer who will conduct a thorough, on-the-roof inspection. Look for a roofer who is established in the community and who is willing to provide the names of previous customers. Take the time to call these references to inquire about their level of satisfaction.

If you decide to have repair work done on the roof, obtain more than one written estimate for comparison. Make sure everyone is bidding on the basis of the same materials, plans and quality of workmanship. Consider quality as well as price when selecting a roofer.

Before signing a contract, be certain it specifies the work to be done, materials to be used, completion dates, warranties or guarantees of the contractor and the shingle manufacturer, the removal of waste materials, final price and method of payment. These guidelines should be adhered to for all home improvement work, indoor as well as outdoor.

Home improvement contractors also can be a good source of advice concerning the role of home improvements in the curb appeal of your home. For instance, an experienced roofer should be able to advise of the advantages of different types of shingles, as well as the life expectancy of each. Such information will be of interest to prospective buyers.

To determine whether it is financially sound to proceed with outdoor home improvements before placing your home on the market, consult your real estate agent or a professional home appraiser to determine the estimated value these improvements will add to your property.

Mortgage Interest Rate Seen Dropping, Sales Increasing

An expected decline in mortgage interest rates likely will result in a higher level of home sales in the second half of 1989 than is occurring in the first, according to the latest monthly "Outlook for the Economy and Real Estate" from the National Association of Realtors.

The outlook, published by NAR's forecasting and policy analysis division, predicts that interest rates are close to their peak for the year, and probably will "fall noticeably by the summer's end."

The report anticipates that the interest rate for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages will decline from an average of 11.2 percent for the second quarter of 1989 to 10.8 percent by the final quarter; and that the average rate for one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages will decline from 9.1 percent to 8.7 percent during that period.

Several March economic indicators, including notable declines in existing home sales, new-home sales and housing starts, provided additional proof of growth slow enough to satisfy the Federal Reserve Board's anti-inflationary policy, the outlook says. The NAR believes economic growth is retreating to a pace slow enough to make further credit tightening by the Fed unnecessary.

Although rates have increased, NAR chief economist John A. Tuccillo notes in the outlook that they have not risen as sharply as had previously be expected. According to Tuccillo, the slower growth rate sought by the Fed is being achieved without extreme hikes in interest rates, because financial markets acted in anticipation of, rather than in reaction to, a tight credit stance by the Board.

Productions for the real estate industry and the economy in general for 1989:

- Sales of existing single-family homes are expected to total 3.50 million units, dropping 2.7 percent below the sales for 1988.
- Sales of new single-family homes are expected to total 641,000 units, dropping 5.4 percent below the sales for 1988.
- Housing starts are expected to total 1.49 million units, slipping 0.2 percent from a year ago. A total of 1.07 million starts for single-family units is expected, dropping 1.9 percent from 1988. Starts for buildings with two-to-four units are expected to 55,000, falling 7.6 percent from 1988; and starts for buildings with five or more units are expected to total 370,000, increasing 6.6 percent from 1988.
- The national median existing-home price is expected to reach $94,000, rising 5.3 percent from last year. The national median new-home price is expected to reach $119,600, rising 6.3 percent from 1988.
- Interest rates for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages are expected to average 11.0 percent, rising from an average of 10.5 percent for 1988. Interest rates for one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages are expected to average 8.9 percent, rising from an average of 8.5 percent.
- The gross national product (the total value of the nation's goods and services) is expected to total $5.24 trillion in current dollar terms, representing an inflation-adjusted increase of 3.1 percent from 1988.
- Consumer price inflation is expected to reach a rate of 5.1 percent, compared to 4.1 percent in 1988.
- The civilian unemployment rate is expected to be 5.2 percent, compared to 5.5 percent last year.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, represents nearly 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Carrie Sullivan Receives AAI Designation

Carrie Sullivan of the James J. Sullivan Insurance Agency, North Quincy, has been awarded the Accredited Advisor in Insurance America.

She successfully completed three national examinations which test for the person's knowledge of insurance coverages, marketing concepts, selling techniques, and agency and sales management.

Sullivan's position in the agency is that of sales coordinator for the development of commercial sales and a newly organized financial planning department.

Sullivan has been in the insurance industry for four years and most recently was an account representative. She makes her home in Quincy.

Conway Offering Weekend Real Estate Course

The 'Conway Country' School of Real Estate will offer a weekend real estate school to prepare for the Massachusetts Real Estate Salesmen's examination.

The course will be given at the school's Hanover headquarters Friday noon through Sunday, June 23 through 25.

In order to sell real estate in Massachusetts a person must be licensed as a salesmen or broker. The State board of Registration requires that an applicant for the salesmen's exam be eighteen years or older and have successfully completed twenty four hours of instruction. Applicants for the broker's exam must have worked at least one year as a salesmen and have completed thirty hours of classroom instruction.

Non residents may obtain the Massachusetts salesmen's or broker's license by meeting the same requirements as a resident. The 'Conway Country' School of Real Estate also offers day and evening courses. For more information call (617) 826-0088.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Getting the most from home improvements under the new tax laws

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 has closed many tax loopholes and contains numerous changes in what is and what is not deductible. And, naturally, many taxpayers are wondering how the new rules are going to affect them in such areas as tax shelters and itemized deductions, particularly interest expense and exemptions.

One feature of our tax code that continues to benefit taxpayers is homeownership. It is, after all, the single largest investment that most of us will make in our lifetime. Therefore, it is important that you understand the effects of the new tax laws in the area of homeownership and home improvements.

The American dream of homeownership is still a sound investment in a number of ways. For instance, the new tax laws benefit homeowners who make improvements to their home. In fact, home improvements can be one of the most rewarding investments, not only in terms of adding comfort and space, but from a fiscal point of view as well.

Although the cost of improvements to your primary residence is not deductible, but serves only to increase your cost basis in the residence, there are other financial benefits to making home improvements.

With the new tax laws, you will need to know the difference between an improvement and a repair, and distinguishing between the two is not always easy.

An improvement is considered to be anything that adds to the value of your home or appreciably prolongs its life, such as improving the home's energy efficiency.

Specific projects that count as home improvements include energy upgrades (like adding extra insulation in your attic, walls and crawl spaces; caulking and weatherstripping), room additions, re-roofing, residing and room add-ons.

Repairs, on the other hand, are designed to maintain your house and grounds in good "working order" and are not deductible, since they do not extend the useful life of the home or add to its value. Typical repairs include patching plaster, replacing windowpanes and fixing anything that's broken.

When repairs are done as part of an extensive remodeling and restoration project, the entire job is considered an improvement.

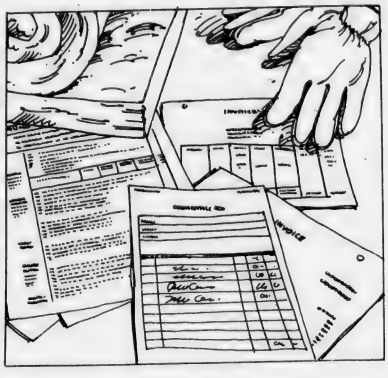
Home improvements are especially important to taxability when you sell your house. Though home improvement expenses can't be deducted, they can be used to help reduce the amount of capital gains you realize on the sale of your home.

Taxability is also important when you pay for home improvements. Before the new tax laws went into effect, you may have considered using a credit card or a personal bank loan to hire a contractor or to purchase materials for a do-it-yourself project.

However, interest paid on these loans and credit cards is no longer fully deductible and, after 1990, will not be deductible at all.

An alternative to help you pay for home improvements is the home equity loan. Interest expense on these types of loans is generally fully deductible as long as the proceeds are used for such things as home improvements, like energy upgrades, or education, medical and other qualified expenses.

You can actually turn the equity in your house into cash and write off the interest on your income tax return if you itemize and use Schedule A.



Home improvements, like upgrading the insulation levels, can also increase the livability and enhance the resale value of your home. A recent study in Remodeling Contractor indicated that adding insulation in your attic, walls or crawl space not only will make your home a more attractive buy, but will also help you get an approximate 83 percent return on your home improvement investment.

For all home improvement projects that you undertake, remember to keep accurate detailed records of the work done.

One way to keep track of all deductible expenses pertaining to each home improvement project completed over the course of the year is to use a portable tape recorder. This way, you can tape record all your expenses, then write down the information once the project is completed. Another way is always to pay by check to create useful records.

The effects of the new tax laws are sweeping and far-reaching, and still are not clear to the average person. The CertainTeed Home Institute recommends that, before you make any improvements to your home, you consult with your tax advisor for how TRA '86 applies to your own financial situation.

New skylight glass eliminates summertime "pain in the sash"

If there's one thing that gives daylight-lovers dark thoughts about skylights, it's uncomfortable summer heat levels, according to consumer surveys.

Hot-under-the-collar homeowners can install special shades and blinds or use dark-tinted glass. But, these approaches reduce daylight and obscure outdoor views, while tinted glass also imparts an unnatural color to light.

The newest ray of hope is an insulating glass called "Heat Mirror 66," now widely and readily available in home skylights with the introduction of Wasco Products' new "Elite" Skywindow series. It takes the heat off skylit rooms.

The glass looks clear, yet blocks solar heat more effectively than any other technique, according to its developer, Southwall Technologies of Palo Alto, Cal. It consists of a colorless, heat-reflective coated film suspended inside sealed, double pane glass.

"This glass eliminates a real pain in the sash," quips Bart Mosser, general manager of Wasco's Residential Skylight Division. "Homeowners with outdated skylights might consider replacing them with high-tech models using Heat Mirror 66 for greater comfort and lower air conditioning costs."

Heat Mirror 66 should not be confused with so-called "high performance" low-E (emissivity) glass found in some skylights and promoted with various fancy-sounding names. While low-E does repel some radiant heat, it's far less effective than Heat Mirror 66 at blocking solar heat, according to Southwall.

Standard in all Elite skylights and roof windows, Heat Mirror 66 glass brings important energy savings because as much as 90 percent of a skylight's surface area is glass or other glazing.

And, compared to a standard window, a skylight faces the sun more hours of the day, without any eaves or other structures to shade it.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

What color can do for your home

Two identical houses, side by side, can look very different, depending on the color of their siding. A white house will seem larger, while a house sided in a barn red color will look smaller.

Colors also affect depth perception. A house with a pale blue siding will appear to be set back farther from the street than a house with a "warm" yellow siding.

Colors have a profound effect on how we see things. Light colors enlarge the appearance of a house, while dark colors reduce a house's size visually. Warm colors—reds, oranges and yellows—seem to advance toward you, while cool colors—blues, violets and blue-grays—seem to move away from you.

Homeowners considering re-siding their homes should consider the many color options available in modern vinyl siding. Remodeling contractors who specialize in installing siding can offer the homeowner advice on colors and color combinations that will make the home look most attractive.

Contrasting trim colors, for example, can intensify the good looks of a house. Or, when windows and doors are oddly positioned, using trim and siding in the same color helps mask the flaws.

Thirty years ago, white siding dominated the residential scene. Some 90 percent of all re-siding jobs were white. Today, according to CertainTeed Corporation, the nation's leading manufacturer of solid vinyl building products, earth tones are "in," and deep colors are gaining ground.

Vinyl siding's colors are the most durable, too. The color is molded clear through the vinyl, and won't show scratches, or chip or flake. Vinyl siding never needs repainting.

Choosing the right colors and the right kind of siding for a home is a big decision. To help you make an informed decision, CertainTeed offers a 15-page booklet, "What You Should Know About Selecting Siding For Your Home."

For your copy, send $1 to The CertainTeed Home Institute, VBPD, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Replacement windows -A brighter alternative

This year, will you again have to spend hours removing and cleaning old storm windows and repainting weather-beaten window frames? If so, you may be ready to throw in your paintbrush for a brighter alternative—replacement windows.

New windows can do more than improve the looks of your home. They can also save you money on fuel and raise your indoor comfort quotient.

There are some easy steps you should follow when you are ready to look into new windows.

Select window styles that fit your aesthetic and practical needs. Window styles are varied, from bay, bow and casement to double-hung and awning. Each style has qualities that make it unique. You should investigate to determine the windows that are right for you and your home.

Learn about window frame and sash materials. A window sash does more than hold glass. A well made window could make your home more comfortable and secure, decrease your utility bills and virtually eliminate the time you spend maintaining your windows.

Window frame materials include wood, aluminum and vinyl. Vinyl, the newest of frame materials, has many appealing qualities. Like wood, vinyl is a good insulator but, because the color is molded clear through, vinyl won't chip, peel, rot or splinter. And, it never needs painting.

Unlike aluminum, vinyl won't rust or corrode. A vinyl sash slides smoothly in its track, no matter what the season.

To help you make an informed decision about the kind of replacement windows that would be best for your home, CertainTeed Corporation, the nation's leading manufacturer of vinyl building products, offers a fact-filled 24-page consumer guide.

For your copy of "What You Should Know About Selecting Replacement Windows," send $1 to The CertainTeed Home Institute (VBPD), P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

WEEK OF: May 25

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Yours is the sign of communication. You are filled with bright ideas, and are utterly charming. Sometimes you refuse to commit yourself to one plan or a person. The next six months may see improvements in your lifestyle. Partnership arrangements are spotlighted in late '89 and early '90.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Week is favorable for expanded prestige in the community. Be especially careful if purchasing major items; it's important to do your homework in this area.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Week sees you becoming more assertive and, as a result, more productive in your work environment. Family member is finally willing to hear you out. Avoid extremes of all sorts.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Perseverence at last pays off--a major family-related project comes to an impressive finale. Good week for shaping travel plans, for budgeting, and for making peace.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Week is favorable for hosting gatherings of your closest friends. Avoid being overly critical of others while possibly neglecting your own work. Older family member is highly supportive.

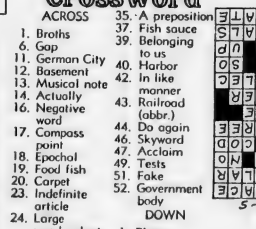
GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Behind-the-scenes activities are related to job prospects, so avoid taking shortcuts in the workplace. Creative energies are impressive. It's a terrific week for trying new media.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Week sees friendship circle expanding, while on the work scene, you're consolidating your various projects. A creative interest may prove profitable during this period.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Thursday-Sunday are favorable for meeting new people in new places, while Monday-Wednesday find you coordinating activities close to home. Your organizational skills are extremely noteworthy.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Partner may be surprisingly impulsive; the positive fringe benefit is that you become more spontaneous. Week is favorable for plotting your short-term goals and organizing your files.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Valued item may come your way during this period; be sure it's properly appraised. Confidence is regained thanks to nothing more than old-fashioned hard work on your part.



SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Week sees you taking a keen interest in history--both on a world and a personal level. A slightly soured friendship is again harmonious. Overtime may be a way of life at work.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
It's the kind of week that finds projects to be on again, off again, on again. But romance is sweet and cultural activities abundant. Fitness should be a high priority.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Week sees you engaged in battle of the wits--and both participants are winners. Whether or not you have a green thumb, you find gardening a source of satisfaction.

BORN THIS WEEK
May 25th, actress Leslie Uggams; 26th, singer Peggy Lee; 27th, actor Christopher Lee; 28th, singer Gladys Knight; 29th, actor Bob Hope; 30th, actor Michael Pollard; 31st, actor Clint Eastwood.

North Blasts Quincy Qualifies For Tourney

By TOM SULLIVAN

It took one of the greatest comebacks in years, but the North Quincy baseball team qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time in several years when it defeated Quincy, 10-0, Monday for its eighth victory in a row.

The win gave Leo Donovan's Raiders, who had started off 0-3 and had a 3-8 record a few weeks ago, an 11-8 record and assured them of a tourney berth regardless of the result of the season's finale against Brookline yesterday (Wednesday). Quincy fell to 1-16.

A win would give North a 12-8 record, the minimum qualifying record. Even with a loss, North would qualify because, thanks to Waltham's 7-3 loss Monday to Newton North, the Raiders can do no worse than tie for second place in the Suburban League which puts them in the post-season event.

"I feel very happy for the boys, they never gave up and did a remarkable job after a bad start," said Donovan. "With a 3-8 record it looked like another frustrating season for us (North's records the past three years were 3-17, 3-17, 5-14), but they never quit.

"There were a few early games we never should have lost as we wasted some fine pitching, failed to hit in the clutch and made too many errors. However, after that we put everything together, getting solid pitching, some good hitting and excellent defense."

Erik DeBoer, one of the top pitchers in the state, has sparked North and Monday he improved to 6-2 with a two-hitter. He struck out 10 and walked three as he lowered his earned run average to under 1.30. His only two losses were the results of errors.

Billy Warren, Gary Rawson and Kevin MacDougall also pitched well and everyone hit well, taking turns driving in crucial runs.

In Monday's game Quincy's Rich Kiesel, who lost a no-hitter and the game in his previous start, pitched another fine game until tiring in the sixth inning. "Rich is going to be a great one and it is a shame he hasn't been able to get a win," said Quincy pitching coach Dave McMillen.

North scored three runs in the second inning when Tim Baker had an infield hit and scored on Kevin MacDougall's double. Jim Bryan singled and MacDougall scored on an infield out. Bryan stole third and scored on DeBoer's double.

Kiesel matched DeBoer until the sixth. George Rozanitis singled, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Baker's double. Kevin MacDougall reached on an error and stole second. Bob Austin, who had handcuffed North with five innings of super relief in their previous meeting, took over and it wasn't his day as he walked three with the bases loaded,

White Sox Edge Yankees In Triple A

The White Sox scored three runs in the last inning to edge the Yankees, 12-10, in a Triple A League baseball game.

The winning pitcher was Robbie Lescinskas, who struck out nine, and the losing pitcher was Sean Nee, who struck out eight.

Lescinskas also sparked the winners' offense with a home run, double and single. Jeff West and John Hasson had two hits each and Joe Keohane had a triple.

For the Yankees Nee had a home run and single.

Leary Receives Gold Glove Award

The lady Colonels started out slowly but finished up strong and swept Suffolk University and defeated Framingham State for a final 7-8 record.

uncorked three wild pitches and gave up a two-run single by Billy MacDougall. North wound up with seven runs.

Last Saturday North moved into a three-way tie in the league with Brockton and Waltham as it upset Brockton, 5-4, with five runs in the fifth inning.

Rawdon pitched all the way for North for his second win. He gave up eight hits, struck out three and walked one.

The Raiders trailed, 3-0, but scored five times on five hits in the fifth. Baker reached on an error and Jim Glynn and Bryan, who had two hits each, singled to loan the bases. DeBoer drove in a run with a single and Jeff Calvert cleared the bases with a triple. Tony Anderlonis drove in the final run with a single.

The day before North rolled over Waltham 16-4, with its best game of the season. Billy Warren went all the way for his second victory.

North blasted out 16 hits with Kevin MacDougall going 4-for-5 and Bryan driving in six runs with two hits, including a bases-loaded double. Calvert had a two-run homer, Rozanitis went 3-for-4 with two RBI and Billy MacDougall had two hits.

In its previous game North edged Newton North, 2-1, with DeBoer pitching a five-hitter. He also drove in the winning run with a seventy-inning single.

Trailing, 1-0, in the sixth, Billy MacDougall tripled and scored on Calvert's single. In the seventh Bryan walked, stole second and scored on DeBoer's single.

Granite City Opens With Two Wins

Granite City Electric opened the Babe Ruth Baseball League season with two close wins, edging Bryan VFW Post, 7-6, and topping Barry's Deli, 8-6.

Granite City trailed Bryan Post, 6-3, going into the last inning and rallied for four runs to grab the win.

Mike MacDougall opened with a single, Vin Anderlionis singled and MacDougall scored when Justin Ackerman's bunt was mishandled. Ed Costello singled to score Anderlionis and Ackerman. Hard-hitting Robbie Guarnieri hit a long double to right-center scoring Costello with the winning run.

Costello pitched a six-hitter and walked only one. Brian Jennette was outstanding in left field and Anderlionis played well at shortstop. MacDougall, Guarnieri and Anderlionis had two hits each.

Mark Kelleher had a long double and two singles for Bryan. Steve Loud pitched a seven-hitter, struck out seven and walked two. Robbie Kane was outstanding as shortstop.

Keith Norris' fine relief pitching led to Granite City's win over Barry's. He relieved starter Dave Jolley in the second inning and pitched two-hit ball the rest of the way.

Jennette had two singles and Anderlionis, Andy Veneziano, Scott Wysocki and Norris had singles and Jolley and Costello had doubles. Dan Burke, Kevin Boylan and Paul Colleary had fine games.

For Barry's Dan Kearns had a fine night in centerfield and shortstop Danny Duncan played well at shortstop. Relief pitcher Derrick Thompson shut Granite City down in the last three innings. Chris Peck had a long two-run double.

Marnikovic helped his own cause by starting two 1-6-3 double plays and had two hits. Tom Nutley had three hits and Rob Kane and Paul Murphy two hits each, including doubles.

Catcher Mark Kelleher, a defensive standout, had a long triple and a single, Steve Loud had two hits and Todd Portesi had a single.

Loud, Kane, George Wirtz, Bill Morrissey and Nutley stood out defensively and Phil Bell, Jeff Breslin, Sean Skahan, Rich Gorman and Terry Sheehan also contributed to the win.

For S of I John Gladu had two singles and made an outstanding catch to rob Michael Malvesti of an extra-base hit. Ed Rizzitano doubled and Sean Herron and Dennis Lawrence each singled.

Barry's Deli defeated Sons of Italy, 14-12, with Dave Raftery the winning pitcher and Jeff Craig getting the save.

Craig, Danny Duncan and Derek Thompson had three hits each, Duncan had four RBI and Craig and Thompson three RBI each.

Duncan drove in what proved the winning run in the top of the sixth inning.

Craig and Raftery were plagued by 21 walks. They combined to allow only six hits and struck out seven. Barry's defense was sloppy at times. Danny Kearns and Chris Geary made several spectacular plays in the outfield.

Also contributing key hits in Barry's 15-hit attack were Raftery with two and Kearns, Chris Peck, Mike Conner and Geary with one apiece. Jeff Tirrell and Chris Murphy were strong defensively.

For S of I Shawn Herron had two hits and Joey Zona, Brian Campbell, Ed Rizzitabo and Jimmy Menz each had a hit.

Awards Presented At Quincy Wrestling Banquet

The Quincy High wrestling team held its 15th annual banquet recently at the Lantana in Randolph with School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, former and present coaches, alumni and family and friends of the wrestlers attending.

Senior trophies and special awards were presented.

The seniors are co-captains Todd Kimmell and Scott O'Brien, Robert Connolly, Ennio Eleuteri, Sean Gannon, Tim Schultz, Rob Grant and John Killen, all of whom contributed heavily toward the team's 12-5 record and second place in the Suburban League.

Kimwell received the Joe Streadwick Award, Schultz the Michael Doherty Award, Grant the Wayne DesChamp Award and Connolly the William Marston Award.

It was announced that Tony Madden, Brian Burgess and Brian Gannon have been elected tri-captains of next year's team.

North Girls Celebrate Mary Pratt Day With Wild Win Over Quincy

The North Quincy girls' softball team celebrated Mary Pratt Day with a last-inning 16-15 victory over Quincy in the wildest game of the year Monday night at Mitchell-McCoy Field.

North improved to 8-8 with the win.

Quincy held a 7-1 lead after four innings when the game was held up while Mary Pratt, who was recently named to the Baseball Hall-of-Fame and has given many years of service to the Quincy school system as physical education teacher and coach, was presented a plaque from City Councillor Tim Cahill. Council president Patricia Toland declared Monday as Mary Pratt Day and displayed a new trophy in Mary's name which was presented to North Quincy coach Barbara Webster. The trophy will be displayed in North's trophy case.

When action resumed, Quincy exploded for 12 runs in the fifth inning and North added two in the bottom half for a Quincy 13-9 lead. North added three in the sixth, Quincy added two in the top of the seventh and took a 15-12 lead into the bottom half.

Here North scored four runs with Terri Goodman, who had been struggling at the plate, drove in the two winning runs with a double.

"You wouldn't believe this game, it was just wild," said Webster. "I was happy for Terri that she drove in the winning runs, as she was struggling."

Kristin Drake pitched all the way for North, giving up 10 hits, striking out five and walking eight. Errors played a large part in the runs for both teams.

Kristen Golden was 3-for-5 for North with two RBI, Soyan Park was 3-for-5, reached base five times and scored four runs, and Michelle Lynch was 2-for-4 and also reached five times and scored four runs.

CITY COUNCILLOR Tim Cahill presents plaque to Mary Pratt, which will be placed at the Atlantic Middle School field. The field will be named for her. The presentation was made at the North Quincy-Quincy girls softball game on Mary Pratt Day Monday.

Supt. of Schools Dr. Robert Ricci threw out the first ball.

The plaque presented to Mary Pratt by Cahill will be placed on the Atlantic Middle School field and the field will be named for her.

In their previous game the North girls were edged by Newton North, 7-6, with Newton scoring the winning run in the last inning on a close play at the plate.

North had scored five runs in the second inning on bases-loaded walks. It scored its final run in the fourth when Kerry Tolson singled, moved to second and scored on Sarah Harrington's single. Drake pitched a four-hitter for the Raiderettes.

JFK Regatta Launches Marina Bay Season

The John F. Kennedy Regatta, a classic sailing event pitting vessels of all types against each other, launches the summer season at Marina Bay this Memorial Day Weekend, May 27-28, 1989.

The two-day regatta will feature over 120 PHRF's, One-Design and Forty-Foot Class boats.

The weekend kicks off with a Skippers Reception and meeting Friday at the John F. Kennedy Library. From 6:30 p.m. to 9 p.m., participating skippers and crew get a chance to socialize and discuss the intricacies involved in the race course, before the competition begins. During the reception, there are also tours throughout the Kennedy Library.

After the first day of races, an outdoor barbecue under the Regatta Tents will help skippers, crews and spectators unwind, enjoy the evening and prepare for the final day of racing. The reception and barbecue feature lively music and great dancing.

Skippers and crews will start off Sunday's racing with a Continental Breakfast between 7 a.m. and 9 a.m. at Marina Bay's Corporate Park. The racing will end at approximately 5 p.m. Sunday, followed by the presentation of perpetual trophies for the first three finishers in each category, under the regatta tents.

McIntyre Scholarship Golf Tournament June 26

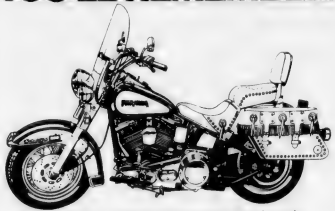
Registration deadline is June 1. A $150 donation to the fund should accompany each entry.



The event is the primary fundraiser for the James R. McIntyre Memorial Scholarship Fund, that provides one scholarship, each to a deserving college and post-graduate student from Quincy.

The James R. McIntyre Scholarship Fund was founded in 1984 in memory of McIntyre who served as a Quincy City Councillor, State representative, state Senator, Mayor of Quincy, and Counsel to the Massachusetts State Senate.

This year, the McIntyre Scholarship Fund awarded $1,500 scholarships each to two Quincy residents: Jeanne M. Connolly, a student at the University of Rhode Island Graduate School of Pharmacy, and Brian J. Malone, a Civil Engineering student at Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

For more information on this year's event, please contact Anna at 471-6464. Donations are welcome.

Drought Ends For North Boys

The North Quincy boys' track team ended a two-year drought last week when it defeated Waltham, 69-53 for its first win in that time.

Senior Quan Le won two events, taking the triple jump with a personal best 35-109 with a personal best 35-10 and winning the 440 in 57.7. Sophomore Wayne Sit won the 220 in a personal best 25.2.

Other North winners were Jim Chou in the high hurdles (18.9), Mike Yee in the 330 hurdles (47.8), the 440 relay team of Evan Kiley, Mark Cocuzzo, Yat Fung and Andy McPhee (50.3) and the mile relay team of Le, Brian Barrett, Peter Wildes and George Gavros (4:08).

Taking second places were Sit, 100; Wildes, 880; Mike Herman, mile; Barrett, two-mile; Yee, high hurdles; Le, long jump; Kiley, shot put; Matt Swierk, discus, and Cocuzzo, javelin.

Placing third were Blaine D'Acci, 220; McPhee, 440; Gavros, 880; Chris Ballum, mile and two-mile; Chris Lineman, shot put, and Adam Strout, javelin.

"We are a very young team with predominantly freshmen and sophomores," coach Peter Chrisom said. "The kids really put in a total team effort. We've been shooting for this for a long time and the hard work really paid off."

The Raiders' joy was short-lived as they were soundly defeated by Suburban League powerhouse Newton North, 95-40.

The only individual North Quincy winners were Yee in the 330 hurdles (48.0) and Strout in the javelin (126-9).

Also winning was the 4x110 relay team of Sit, McPhee, Desmond Bellot and Cocuzzo (49.0).

Ballum ran his personal best to finish second in the mile and also placing second were Chris Murray, 220; Barrett, two-mile; and Arthur Nourse, long jump.

O'Connell Urban Park Gets Favorable Reaction

O'Connell pointed out that the park and its flow of traffic actually brought things closer to the library."

He noted that suggestions also had been made for a flow of water in the park, and part of a quarry to remind persons of its quarry history. He is looking for more suggestions.

"My role is to make sure that we get the money," O'Connell said. "I think we deserve it."

Mrs. Sheila McIntyre commenting on the park said, "Speaking as the wife of a former Mayor, I am sure Jim would have put his sign of approval on it."

O'Connell said that if approved by the City Council, Historic District Commission and other boards, he would hope that money for the project could go through on the next list of funding by the Government for the preservation of historic places, since because of Cap 2½ the City would certainly not be able to fund it.

Joyce I. Baker, chairman of the Historic District Commission, noted that the Commission was "impressed" with the park proposed by O'Connell.

Quinn noted that this arrangement is state mandated.

Furthermore, the City of Quincy receives 50 percent of the money generated by the bill from the state, he said.

- Longevity program allows officers without a college degree to earn more with years of service. For example, officers who have completed 25 years of service receive an additional $1,500.

Quinn pointed out that officers who have a college degree are exempt from the longevity program.

- Court time, which is the time an officer spends at court while a case involving his or her arrest is being heard.
- Thirteen paid holidays at time and a half.
- Detectives receive an additional $1,000 a year for their speciality service.

There are two types of overtime: city overtime which is paid for by the city and outside overtime which is funded by private vendors or contractors.

The outside overtime includes duties such as street detail and duty at a bar or lounge. The rate for street detail is $23 an hour and officers must work a minimum of four hours, Quinn said, adding that the city receives five percent of the vendor's bill.

He also said that officers who work outside overtime are still able to be in touch with the department because of portable radios.

The radios allows officers to be in constant contact with the police dispatcher while they are on detail and while they travel from one duty to the next.

Since they are equipped with a radio, officers often respond to an incident before its reported by a private citizen, he said.

According to Quinn, officers work mostly outside overtime. With a few exceptions, the officers worked between 200 and 300 city overtime hours.

Outside overtime varies, he said, with officers working mostly 350 hours on up. The highest total was 910.

As an example of earnings beside standard salary, Sgt. Richard Laracy received a base pay of $52,225 last year but with incentives and overtime work, he earned a total of $74,292.

His base salary includes a masters degree which required 10 years of college which he paid for with his own money. The salary also includes night differential, detective pay, holiday and training time mandated by the state.

Laracy received $5,805 in court money, $4,134 in city overtime (337 hours) and $12,121 in outside details (595 hours).

Of that outside detail money, the city received five percent or $606.

Quinn said he felt obligated to respond to the article because he wanted the public to be aware of the different incentives. He also wants the public to understand that police work is different than what a mayor does.

"I have no qualms whatsoever with what the mayor makes but the problem is the mayor makes what he makes as an administrator and we make what we make as true professionals," Quinn said.

Referring to McCauley, Quinn said, "He's an administrator. We've got positions that are life and death.

"All we're asking for is to please give us some respectability and some dignity for the patrolmen who are constantly out there in the street," he said, adding that officers have the opportunity to work more than they are required and as such, have an opportunity to earn more than their base salary.

"We're not looking for anything we don't think is justly ours," Quinn added.

Asked whether or not he believes the mayor should be earning more than $55,000 a year, Quinn replied, "If he thinks he's worth more than $55,000 then he or the next mayor should go and ask for it."

Girls Travel Team Impressive

In its first season as a travel team, the Quincy Youth Soccer League's girls under 10 team, sponsored by Boston Advisory Group, has played well and has won two games, lost four and tied one.

The team lost to East Bridgewater, 3-0, with Natalie Dyment, Dominque Good and Julie Kingsbury playing well.

Quincy then defeated Abington, 4-1, with Julie Kenny scoring twice and Amanda Rork and Barbara Ryan once each. Ryan and Christine Shields had assists.

Next came a 1-0 loss to Whitman, which scored in the final five minutes. Feeney played an exceptional game in goal with fine defensive help from Lisa Bragg, Duncan and Kingsbury.

The Quincy girls played well despite a 5-0 loss to first place East Bridgewater as they were forced to play with only nine girls.

Quincy Girls Blank North

The Quincy girls' tennis team blanked North Quincy, 5-0, Monday to claim the city championship. It was the First Ladies' second sweep over the Raiderettes.

In singles Quincy's Jennifer D'Allessandro blanked Jennifer Murphy, 6-0, 6-0; Elizabeth Vo defeated Christine Carroll, 6-3, 6-3, and Patricia Stewart defeated Allison Hurley, 6-2, 7-6.

In doubles Carolyn Busby and Mary Vo defeated Areti Cannellos and Natalie Wallander, 6-0, 6-1, and Alina Mak and Maureen Cloonan defeated Julie Furtado and Julie Comeau, 6-1, 6-0.

D'Allessandro, Quincy's number one player, lost in the quarterfinals of the state tournament at Falmouth last Saturday to Jannifer Jackson of Bishop Feehan, 7-5, 7-5.

'Buckle Up America Week'

For the fifth year, the week May 22-29 has been designated as "Buckle Up America," Week and during this time, the Massachusetts Head Injury Association, and other safety and prevention proponents, are encouraging the proper use of safety belts.

Memorial Day has traditionally marked the start of summer vacation travel in the U.S.

The Massachusetts Head Injury Association urges all motorists to help reduce the needless deaths and injuries that occur on our highways every summer. This means making certain that both the safety belt and the shoulder strap are tight and secure. Improper use leads to senseless tragedies.

Houghs Neck Carousel Would Be Housed There

$12 Million Project Planned For Duane Salvage Yard Site

A $12 million commercial project including a home for a restored carousel is planned for the former Duane salvage yard on Southern Artery.

The project would take the place of an earlier proposed eight-story, 173-unit condominium development which was approved two years ago for the site.

Quincy developer Richard Buccheri of Tide Mill Realty Trust noted that the new proposal would require fewer city services including water and sewer.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney said Tuesday a tentative agreement has been reached between the trust and the DeAngelis family to place the 77-year-old carousel on the site.

Three buildings are proposed.

One to house the carousel, another for a Super Purity Supreme Market and the third to include several small shops and a restaurant which would be called "The Carousel."

Cheney has also suggested to Buccheri that a swan boat and dock be placed in the Town River behind the project with a walkway around the waterfront.

He noted that the nearby marsh area is home for several species of rare birds and a walkway and swan boat would allow for environmental tours.

The DeAngelis family has sought assistance to locate the historical carousel within the city limits. The carousel was formerly operated in Houghs Neck by Dominic DeAngelis between 1940 and 1954 on Fensmere Ave.

The historical carousel consists of a dozen or more horses, lion, tiger, giraffe, ostrich, deer, about 36 in all, as well as ornate mirrors, posts, metal brs, machinery and a heavy motor. In all, there are perhaps 500 or more individual items.

After it was removed from under a porch in Houghs Neck a few months ago, the carousel was sent to Carousel Works Co. in Mansfield, Ohio, to be restored.

Restoration is anticipated to take nine months to one year at a cost of $175,000.

The Tide Mill Realty Trust was in competition with several other developers for the carousel. According to the DeAngelis Family, the Flatley Company was actively negotiating to place the carousel in Cranston, R.I., at a rebuilt mall.

Other interested parties were the City of New York Historical Society which proposed placing the carousel at a waterfront park.

The DeAngelis family also stated the O'Connell Family of Quincy and Star Land in Hanover were interested in the carousel, Cheney said.

The carousel was built in North Tonawanda, N.Y., in 1912 specifically for Dominic DeAngelis.

"We are extremely fortunate that we have an opportunity to preserve a small part of Quincy's history," Cheney said.

He also said the DeAngelis family will be offered the carousel one day a month for handicapped and disadvantaged children.

"Several cities and towns have actively sought out carousels as historical center pieces for the community," Cheney said. "A carousel offers active recreation for all ages, and we look forward to the opening of this exciting historical carousel in Quincy," he added.

It also represents twice the tax revenue to the City of Quincy, while at the same time, it should be considered "pro-consumer" since it will be in direct competition with the Stop & Shop diagonally across the street.

The project requires approval by the Quincy Planning Board and City Council.

Cheney said the first presentation will be made at a joint public hearing of the planning board and council Wednesday, June 7.

'A Slap In Taxpayers Face' If MWRA Doesn't Locate Here

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

About 50 city and state officials, businessmen and engineers toured the former administration building at the Fore River Shipyard Friday and criticized the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority for abandoning the site as a possible permanent headquarters.

Led by Congressman Brian Donnelly and Gary Grimes, a former general manager for General Dynamics at the shipyard, the leaders agreed the site is more than adequate for the 900 MWRA employees who are in search of a permanent headquarters.

In fact, Donnelly charged that the MWRA's dismissal of the site as a headquarters as "scandalous."

"It's scandalous. I think the people in this state are getting sick and tired of the cavalier attitude that many in government take towards them and the way they spend their money.

"For (the MWRA) to go any other place is totally fiscally irresponsible and a slap in the face to every tax payer," Donnelly said.

The group first walked through the 147,000 square foot building that up until 1984 housed 1,500 General Dynamics employees. The leaders then marched across the street to inspect a building which was, they said, in worse condition than the GD building but has since undergone $2.4 million worth of renovations.

The tour was organized by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce which is supportive of the Quincy site.

Officials, including Grimes and Edward Reidy, senior associate at Gale Engineering, said the administration building could be done over at $100 to $200 per square foot, thereby costing less than a new facility. The building across the street, was renovated at $80 to $100 a foot and that includes carpeting, new windows, air conditioning and a heating system as well as some minor work.

After the tours, the leaders blasted the MWRA's Board of Directors for dropping the Quincy site from consideration without inspecting the buildings.

"First of all, it's better office space than what I have in Quincy and I'm a member of the United States Congress," Donnelly said. "Secondarily, there's no question it's the cheapest site.

"We own the building. The taxpayers have paid for the building. There's no mortgage. (The MWRA) could move in here after a weekend cleaning job," he added.

According to Grimes, the administration building has ample space for 900 employees and could be renovated for $20 to $30 million, half of what it would cost to build new offices.

Grimes also disagreed with the Authority's claim that a new $10 million parking garage would have to be built if it were to move to Quincy.

"There are approximately 1,500 parking spaces outside this facility with another 500 that could easily be created by cutting a few trees," he said.

The MWRA has argued that the parking lots are unavailable because the space is earmarked for a ship-builders group and as a staging area for building new sewage treatment facilities on Deer Island.

The Authority's board of directors was scheduled to make its final decision on a headquarters yesterday (Wednesday). A parcel in Roxbury is the expected choice because it has the support of Gov. Michael Dukakis and Boston Mayor Ray Flynn.

Although he has not recommended a first choice, MWRA Director Paul Levy has said the shipyard is not a viable option because of cost and its proximity to Boston.

However, officials participating in the tour said the shipyard is in a good location for public access. They pointed out that as many as 6,000 workers commuted to the yard as recently as five years ago.

According to the most recent figures presented to Levy, it would cost up to $52.3 million to renovate the shipyard. Preliminary analysis put the cost at $37.5 million to $39 million.

Following the tours, Donnelly, as well as state and city leaders, came down hard on the MWRA for ignoring the Quincy site.

"There is no need to construct a new building when you already own one," Donnelly said. "They paid $49 million of taxpayers' money for this facility. There's no reason to build a new building.

"There's no reason to build a (parking garage). Thousands of people worked here. It's scandalous what they're doing and they're the ones who will have to answer to the taxpayers," he said.

Donnelly also said he will continue to block $59 million in federal money earmarked for the cleanup.

"I don't intend to give (the MWRA) $59 million so that they can build luxurious office space for themselves. The money has to go to stopping the pollution going into (Boston) Harbor."

His legislation is presently before the House Ways and Means Committee and will be voted on in July, he said.

Lack Of Guides To Reduce Tourists At 'Church Of Presidents'

Quincy's "Church of the Presidents" will not be open to visitors this year on a regular basis, six days a week, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., according to Mrs. Walter Wrigley.

Last year more than 3,000 visitors, including classes of school children, visited the church and the tombs of Presidents John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and their wives.

Mrs. Wrigley, chairman of the program since 1976 when it was organized, no longer able to handle the scheduling of volunteer guides, scheduling of appointments, conduct tours, keep attendance records, and assist in the sale of souvenirs.

"It requires four volunteers a day, 24 volunteers a week," Mrs. Wrigley said, "and volunteers seem to be a vanishing species. We have lost a lot of volunteers in the past three years, some who are too old, and too tired."

The church will be open for tours with appointments made in advance on a limited basis. At least two volunteers must be on duty at all times, one to conduct the guided tour and one to be on duty in the upstairs front hall to greet visitors and for security reasons.

If someone is willing to assist Mrs. Wrigley with her duties, scheduling tours and recruiting volunteers, there is a possibility that it will be possible to open the church more often for guided tours.

Marsh Fire Sends Up Black Smoke

A fire in a marsh in Houghs Neck sent thick, black smoke billowing skyward and burned several hundred square yards of tall grass Tuesday afternoon.

The fire, which was extinguished in about a half hour, came within 30 yards to homes on Mallard Rd. and Gannett Rd. off Sea St.

There was no damage to nearby homes, Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said.

The cause of the fire is being investigated, O'Connell said.

LaRaia Wants Public Discussion On Building Inspector's Appointment

Mayoral candidate Joseph LaRaia has reaffirmed his position in favor of a public discussion before the city's Ordinance Committee regarding the three-year appointment for Building Inspector Matt Mulvey.

LaRaia reiterated his position in a letter to Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the Ordinance Committee.

The issue of a three-year term for building inspector was discussed at an Ordinance Committee meeting May 15. Cheney has solicited written input on the matter but has declared there will be no public hearing.

In his letter, LaRaia said: "In case of my being misinterpreted on my written and verbal request to speak at the next meeting of your committee, I am reasserting the public need to hear all parties on the city ordinance before your committee to accept Chapter 143 of the General Laws relating to the Building Inspector.

"The order, if adopted, would create a three-year appointment of the current building inspector. Former building inspector, (Allan) McDonald held that post over 20 years under civil service.

"Now the position would be granted without civil service appointment to a person whose credentials to hold that post should be reviewed in the interest of public safety and public priority. This unusual action by the administration does justify an open discussion before your committee which is not an unusual request as you have suggested.

"The Ordinance Committee does accept public discussion at its meetings for all other matters since regular meetings of the City Council are not generally open for public discussion unless requested and granted by the City Council.

"Please indicate the next meeting that you will be acting on this matter so that I may convey that inforamtion to many people who want to speak on this important matter." LaRaia said.

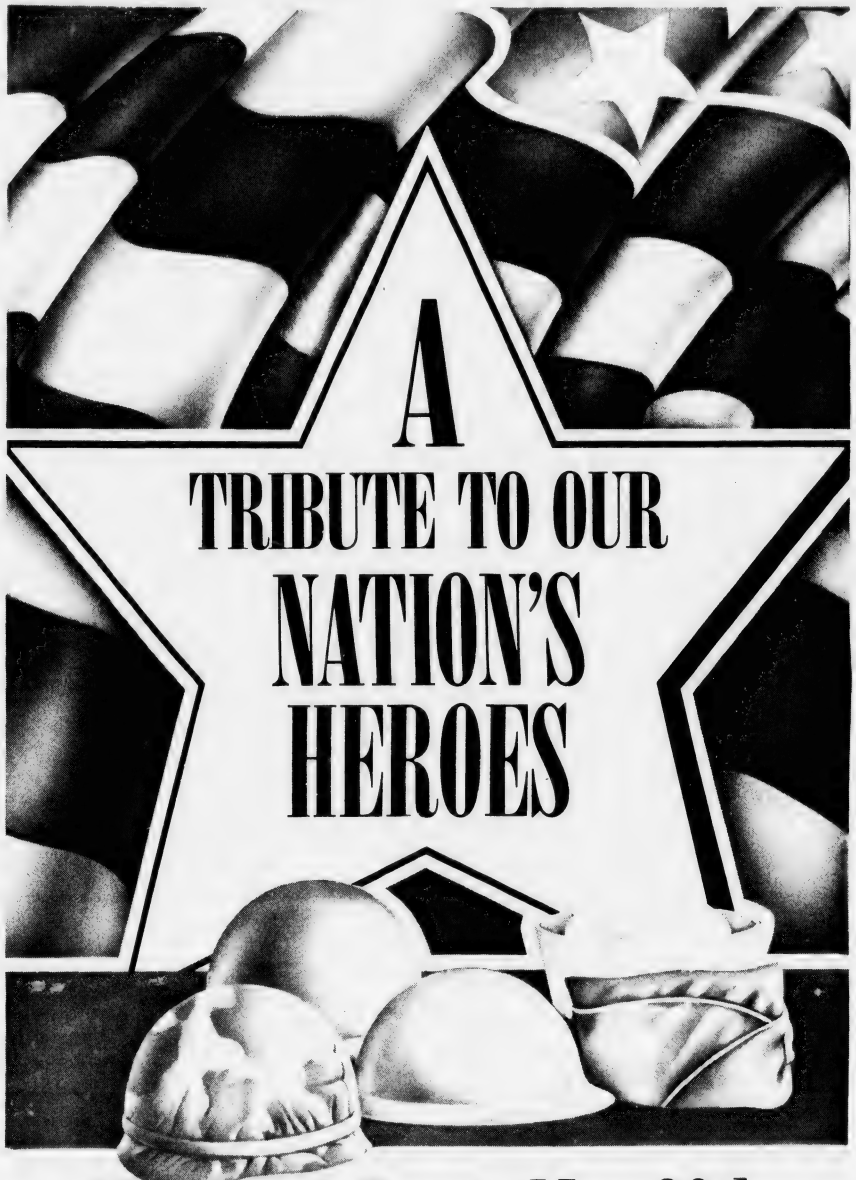
The next council meeting is scheduled for Monday, June 5.

Westerman Withdraws From Race

Keith F. Westerman has withrdrawn from the Qincy City Council race citing funding problems as his reason for doing so.

"Since the start of the year, I have been trying to raise monies for the upcoming council election," he said. "I announced my candidacy hoping to encourage those who have expressed interest in helping me to serve the citizens of Quincy to contribute to my effort.

"Unfortunately, many can't afford to do so and neither can I afford to underwrite my election on my own as I have been doing so. Therefore, I am withdrawing from the race."



Westerman said he plans to stay involved in Quincy politics and said that he had not ruled out running for office again in the future.

Quincy Irish Step Dancers Third In Competition

Students of the Forbes School of Irish Step Dancing in Quincy finished third in a recent choreography competition in Hyannis.

The two-year old school competed in an Oireachtas (an Irish festival) against more seasoned schools from the Greater Boston area.

The students depicted the lives of the people of Drim, a small village near Connemara in County Galway, and in the six-minute presentation interpreted villagers at work, at play and at prayer.

The school is conducted by the four Forbes sisters, Joan, Terry, Mary and Ann. Classes are held at St. John's School on Phipps St. every Tuesday evening and Saturday afternoon.

Ch. 2 Auction Local Salute June 3

Volunteers, donors and viewers from the greater Quincy area will be saluted Saturday, June 3 during the Channel 2 Auction.

Among the communities included in the salute are Quincy, Squantum, Wollaston, Braintree and Weymouth.

Now in its 24th year, the major fundraising event for Boston's Public Broadcasting station, WGBH, involves more than 4,000 volunteers and 5,000 donors from communities throughout New England.

This year's Auction, with the theme, "Join the Parade," will be televised Friday, June 2 through Saturday, June 10.

The goal this year is $1.4 million through the sale of more than 8,000 donations of new products, art, automobiles, travel packages, collectibles and wines.

Some of the special items to be offered for bid during the nine-day auction are: two new cars and two vintage cars; nearly 50 travel packages valued at more than $150,000 including a trip to Melbourne with United Airlines; a pair of season tickets to Boston Celtic games; fax machines, celebrity items and household furniture.

'Jail And Bail' Fundraiser For Cancer Unit

The Quincy-Milton unit of the American Cancer Society will conduct a "Jail and Bail" fundraiser Thursday, June 1 and Friday, June 2 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the National Fire Protection Association, 1 Batterymarch Park, Quincy.

The event is being chaired by Thomas Koch.

Interested people from Quincy and Milton will be participating in the "Jail and Bail," a unique way to raise money for the programs of the American Cancer Society.

Money will be raised by making two types of arrests: surprise and prearranged arrests.

In a surprise arrest, a person calls a special American Cancer Society number and requests the arrest of a particular person. The caller pays a tax deductible arrest fee of $25.

Charges such as exceeding the speed limit while jogging, inciting a rito with wild attire, or not paying green fees are brought against the person to be arrested.

A volunteer visits the arrestee, serves a warrant and takes him or her off to the simulated jail. Bail is set, and the arrestee calls friends, relatives and co-workers to raise the bail. After approximately an hour, the arrestee is released and returned after raising his or her bail.

For a prearranged arrest, the process is the same except the arrestee has agreed in advance to be arrested at a particular time and has agreed to set bail in advance. This allows for partial or full bail to be collected by the arrestee prior to his or her actual arrest.

Besides being a fundraiser, the event increases public awareness of the Society's programs of research, public education and service.

It also provides visibility for local citizens and businesses who participate in the "Jail and Bail."

Extended Hours Denied For Burger King

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday added a restriction to the license held by Burger King at 670 Adams St. limiting the hours of operation from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

When the license was originally granted the only restriction was a close hour of 11 p.m., according to license board records. This action adds a restriction to the opening hour.

Everett Amaral, Construction Manager of Burger King, which is planning a total renovation, and Atty. Randi E. Eisner of Hale and Dorr in Boston, were before the Board requesting an extension of operating hours to 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. so that the restaurant could serve breakfast. According to Eisner, the Adams St. Burger King is the only one in New England not currently open for breakfast.

The matter came before the board May 1 at which time it was continued for two weeks to give time for Ward Four Councillor James Sheets to hold a neighborhood meeting with area residents.

Councillor Sheets and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien met with area residents and also distributed a mailing detailing Burger King's request.

"I don't know of anyone who is in favor of this," Chretien told the board. "The big concern is traffic."

Sheets told the board that he is aware that other restaurants in the city are allowed to open for breakfast. "But," he said, "This is a business zoned area abutting a residential "A" area." "And it would create tremendous problems for people where they live."

Sheets told the board that neighbors are concerned with a traffic increase, a litter increase, a parking problem increase and an increase in odors, all problems which currently exist in the area.

"If this is granted it would compound a very long standing problem, and to me that makes no sense," he said.

Sheets also noted that the Burger King has been before the board many times in the past over these and other problems and said that he feels the store has not been managed properly over the years.

"I would not support this license," he said.

"The only impact this would have on the neighborhood is going to be adverse," Chretien added, "It will mean a profit for (the restaurant), and normally that would be okay, but this would be at the expense of others."

Eight residents appeared before the board in opposition to the extension of operating hours. One of them, Albert DeCross of 20 Stedman St., is on record as having been before the board in opposition to the restaurant opening in August of 1963.

Joan Callahan of 21 Robertston St., who has lived at the Address just 70 feet away from Burger King since it opened, told the board that she has put up with problems for years, including the poor maintenance of a fence separating her home from the restaurant. She told the board that she has called Burger King on several occasions to complain about problems to the manager and had been told that the manager was new and unfamiliar with the problems. "Every time I call there is a different manager," she said.

The board noted that a new manager must be brought to their attention and said the records state Joseph Kelley as the most recent manager.

Amaral told the board that, since he has been with the corporation for a year and a half, there has been one manager and two assistant managers.

Callahan's son-in-law, Robert Burke, was also present at the meeting. He told the board that Mrs. Callahan has had numerous problems with Burger King including grease from the restaurant on her windows and sides of her house, odors during lunch and dinner hours, traffic problems, and parking problems. He also noted that employees of the restaurant have washed pans outside the establishment on occasion and that the noise was disturbing.

"This would add to the problems," he said.

Norma Rodberg of 32 Campbell St. told the board that her biggest concern was the noise. She said that delivery trucks and traffic currently create a noise problem for her and added that she has made frequent complaints on the matter.

"You people claim you listen to us, but you don't hear us," she said to Amaral.

She told the board she is against the extension of hours.

"I beg of you to please listen to us," she told the board "and allow (these problems) to stop."

Atty. Eisner told the board that when the establishment's renovations are completed, many of the existing problems will be corrected. She said that there will be all new equipment installed and a storm drainage system to contain the grease. She further suggested that "No Parking" signs be placed along Robertson St. to bar vehicles from parking on the residential street. She also noted that she feels the current traffic and noise problems are due to all of the existing business in the area and not just from Burger King. She said that her research indicates that opening the restaurant for breakfast would not increase the present traffic.

"The fact is that this is a residential area and a business area and there are many businesses there. You can't deny the fact that this is a business area," she said.

Police Chief Francis Finn, acting chairman of the board in the absence of John Gillis, noted that the board "has an obligation" to protect the abutters of a business district.

"That street is impacted so badly now by traffic," Finn said, "It's unbelievable, it's nearly doubled...at some point in time someone has to listen to these people and decide that there is enough business there."

Eisner maintained that, according to the license, no restrictions were placed on the opening hours and that therefore no permission was needed.

"But we are aware of the neighbor's objections to this and wanted to clarify it (with the board)," she said.

The board decided that opening for breakfast at 7 a.m. would greatly add to the already existing problems associated with the establishment, and voted to place a restriction of an 11 a.m. opening on the license.

18-Month Program

City To Get Methadone Clinic

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Citing the need to stop the spread of AIDS as well as helping heroin addicts, an 18-month agreement for a methadone maintenance program in Quincy is being negotiated by Mayor Francis McCauley and several health agencies.

Since February, a special committee appointed by McCauley has been reviewing the details and safeguards for the dispensing of methadone as well as counseling and family education services.

The dispensing of methadone, a synthetic drug used to help heroin addicts from their addiction, would be administered by Habit Management and the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

Counseling and family services would be provided by the South Shore Council on Alcoholism and Survival, Inc.

A decision on when the program will begin will be made after the mayor reviews the final agreement.

Specific details regarding a program site for the mobile van will be worked out within the next month, McCauley said. One possible location is the Quincy District Court across from the Hancock Parking area in Quincy Square.

The van, wherever situated, would be on location daily from 6 to 8:15 a.m., the mayor noted.

Only clients from Quincy, Braintree, Randolph and Milton will have access to the clinic. McCauley said he "has no problems" with that arrangement.

Quincy Public Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue estimated that the Quincy clinic would service about 15 clients, mostly from Quincy. She said she does not expect a large group of people from Braintree, Milton and Randolph to use the van.

About 25 Quincy residents are currently part of a methadone program in Kenmore Square in Boston. Gallahue said some of these clients might be transferred to the Quincy location.

Even with the transfer, Gallahue estimated that the Quincy van would not have as many clients as a similar program in Brockton. That van, which has been operational for several months now, is seeking to increase its maximum to 50 clients.

"I think we'll start off slowly," Gallahue said.

The committee, which has reviewed the proposal for nearly four months, was unanimous in their report to McCauley on the need for a methadone program.

Besides Gallahue, other committee members are: John Mahoney, coordinator of Social Health for Quincy Public Schools; David Spillane, Legal Counsel for the City of Quincy; William Spinks, director of South Shore Council on Alcoholism and Ken Tarabelli, director of Survival, Inc.

The members will monitor and evaluate the program during the 18-month period to insure clients are provided with a comprehensive program of methadone dosing.

The program will also include regular counselling and family education about AIDS.

If at the end of 18 months, the committee believes the program cannot provide dosing at one facility and counseling at another, the South Shore Council on Alcoholism and Survival, Inc., will be prepared to offer

Permit Granted For 17,070 Gallons Gasoline At President's Place

The License Board , Tuesday, granted a request from Steve Ricciardi for a permit to store 17,070 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of 1,138 cars at a parking garage at President's Place, Coddington Street

Ricciardi told the board that the garage would be completed this summer.

The garage would be used for parking for two buildings at the site which are scheduled to house the Harvard Community Health Plan office, the Boston Five Cents Savings Bank office, as well as retail shops and restaurants, Ricciardi said.

He also told the board that some of the spaces would be set aside for staff at Quincy Junior College.

The board granted the license with the stipulation that arrangements be made with the college concerning their parking needs.

Mayor: Pay Taxes As Soon As Possible

Mayor Francis McCauley is urging all taxpayers to pay all outstanding real and personal property taxes as well as boat and automobile excise taxes and water bills as soon as possible.

All municipal payments received on or before Friday, June 30 will be credited to fiscal 1989, McCauley noted.

The mayor said it is important for the city to finish the year in a strong financial position. Surpluses in the city "free cash" account will have to be used to close a shortfall in fiscal 1990 revenues that would be in excess of $6 million, McCauley said.

The fiscal 1990 budget of $117,788,340 was recently approved by the City Council. The budget goes into effect Saturday, July 1.

Over 175 Take Part In Quincy Point Clean-Up

More than 175 residents and merchants recently took part in a Quincy Point neighborhood clean-up sponsored by Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, 444 Washington St. Quincy.

Eight open areas were chosen for intensive clean-up; Avalon Beach, Whiton Park, Edison Park Triangle, Follett St., Pollard Playground, The Point Webster School, Faxon Park and the Pond St. Playground.

Each area was supervised by a site captain who evaluated the work that needed to be done before the clean up.

Each participant received an "I Care About Quincy Point" cap, a services directory written by Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, donuts from Supreme Donuts, and trash bags from Francis Cucchiari and Co. Pizza for lunch was donated by Pizza Hut.

Tickets for the annual Bean Supper, sponsored by Ward 2 Civic Association, were also given to participants, compliments of Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services.

The city picked up the collected rubbish and supplied trash bags.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro secured rakes and paint for peeling benches. Browning Ferris Industries donated a dumpster for extra heavy debris that was collected in the Pollard woods.

Merchants on Washington St. and Southern Artery swept their sidewalks and some businesses cleaned up back lots which had debris.

Other businesses, including Joe's Pub and Point Pub, sent many of their patrons to clean the Pollard Playground.

Many businesses also put publicity posters in their windows which were created by students at both the Point Webster School and St. Joseph's School.

Fast Lube Shop Approved For Quincy Point

The License Board Tuesday granted a fast lube permit and a permit to store 2000 gallons of miscellaneous fluids in tanks and tanks of cars to Govoni Realty Inc., 645 Washington St., at the corner of South St., Quincy Point.

Atty. Thomas Largy, representing Harold McDermott, the proprietor of the proposed lube shop, told the board that the station would be similar to the Jiffy Lube stations wherein cars would line up to drive into bays for oil and fluid changes. Whereas the Jiffy Lube in Quincy operates three bays, this station would operate two, Largey said.

Police Chief Francis Finn said he is mainly concerned with the traffic back up of cars waiting to get into the bays.

"It seems to me that this business is going to be very successful," he said.

McDermott showed the board partial plans for the station indicating that five to eight cars, depending on size, would be outside the bays at any given time, while two cars were inside.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro told the board that, While he is "glad to see the corner cleaned up," he is concerned about traffic in the residential area.

DeCristofaro said that residents in the area "are not opposed to the concept" of the lube station, but only concerned about the traffic it would generate.

Robert LaFluer, president of the Ward two Civic Association was before the board in favor of the license.

Finn suggested that the station be willing to hire a police detail for the area if at any time in the future traffic should become a problem.

"We can't have traffic backed up on South St.," he said. McDermott agreed.

As far as storage and disposal of waste oil and other automotive fluids, the board noted that it would all be regulated by authorities and kept inside the building.

"One positive aspect of this is that it would allow us to know where this waste oil is going," noted Fire Chief Paul O'Connell. "Sometimes when people change their own oil it ends up in the storm drains," he said.

The board granted the license with the stipulation that a police detail be posted at the discretion of the police chief and that the hours of operation be Monday-Friday 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hearing On Montello Complaints Continued

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday continued for a period of one week a hearing concerning complaints about Montello's Inc., 53-61 Mass Ave., Quincy Point.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro told the board that neighbors of the establishment have complained to him about the patrons continuing to cause problems in the area after the dances at Montello's have ended. DeCristofaro said he had a phone call from a resident at 1:30 a.m. Monday after a function at the establishment Sunday night.

DeCristofaro told the board that another police officer is needed at the site to patrol and clear away the outside area after the dances.

Police Chief Francis Finn noted that an additional detail officer may be too much of a financial burden and suggested that the officer on duty inside be kept on duty an hour after the dances to ensure that patrons leave the area.

Five area residents were before the board and said that the problems were alos present before the dances and during the dances.

Residents are concerned about patrons drinking in their cars before they enter the dances as well as after the dances.

They are also concerned about noise, fighting, reckless driving and parking problems. The residential area has had similar problems with Montello's in the past.

DeCristofaro noted that the request for an additional police detail outside the establishment would help ease these problems before, during and after functions at the hall.

Board chairman John Gillis said that he recalled the original granting of the license stipulated, at least in a "verbal agreement" that Montello's only be allowed to hold functions such as wedding at the hall and not arbitrary dances and parties.

Paul J. Montello told the board that Sunday night's function was pre'wedding party, or a "Jack and Jill shower." Jack Donahue's "Sober Dances" are no longer held there, he said.

The board continued the hearing for one week to go through the license board archives to review the original license agreement.

Traffic Topic For Merrymount Assn. June 8

The Merrymount Association will hold a general meeting Thursday, June 8, at 7:30 p.m. at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church Hall, 227 Sea Street. Larry Shea will preside.

There will be an update on the traffic issue involving Norton Road and Shore Road and proposals needed to discourage cut-through traffic.

Also to be considered are development plans proposed by Franklin Simon, owner of Towne House Apartments on Sea Street, who has purchased Dutton's Restaurant on Sea Street and wishes to build a third rental apartment there.

Nutrition Site For Elders At Beechwood Center

The Beechwood Community Life Center Elder Action Program is now offering a weekly "nutrition site" for elders to be held at the Center, 225 Fenno St., on Wednesdays at noon. Soup, sandwiches, coffee and milk will be served.

Reservations must be made with the nutrition site manager, Cheryl Verney, or by calling the Center at 471-5712.

Planning Board Public Hearing June 7

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing on Wednesday, June 7 at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room, Quincy City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

The following items are on the agenda:

7 p.m. The board will consider a change in zoning for the parcel of "land presently zoned Industry B, shown as Plot 48 on Assessor's plan 4126, and containing approximately 7,755,640 square feet (178.04 acres) to be rezoned to Open Space.

"Said parcel is located in West Quincy, off Ricciuti Drive, and is owned by the City of Quincy."

7:10 p.m. The board will consider a proposed change in zoning on the "land presently zoned Residence C, shown as Plots 10, 13, 14, 15, 18, 19, 23, 24 and 25 on Assessor's Plan 4120, to Residence A.

"Said land is on the westerly side of Willard St. from street number 519 to 591."

A map outlining the proposed changes may be examined at the office of the Department of Planning and Community Development, 1305 Hancock St. during regular business hours, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Fr. Bill's Place Fundraiser June 14

A Dinner & Drawing Fundraiser to benefit Fr. Bill's Place, a homeless shelter located at 38 Broad St., Quincy, will be held Wednesday, June 14 at Lombardo's in Randolph.

According to Fr. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, proceeds from the dinner and drawing will go towards the shelter's operating budget and will help cover extensive renovation costs.

The shelter, which serves the homeless population from the South Shore area 24 hours a day, every day of the year, faces a $75,000 operating deficit.

Although the program is subsidized 70 percent by the Department of Public Welfare and several small grants, operations expenses exceed $475,000 per year, Fr. McCarthy said.

Furthermore, the permanent shelter underwent about $750,000 worth of renovations before it opened.

"On behalf of all those who work for this very worthy cause, and myself, we invited you to join us in our goal to continue piecing together broken lives and restoring these people to a dignified way of living in society, by taking part in our fundraiser," Fr. McCarthy said.

Social hour and the open bar will start the evening off from 7 to 8 p.m. Dinner, featuring roast rump of beef and chicken supreme, will be served at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $100 per person and include dinner, social hour, open bar, and the chance to win a grand prize of $10,000. Additional tickets for the meal only can be purchased for $25.

Corporate tables with ten seats are selling for $1,000. Any corporation purchasing a table will be listed as a corporate sponsor in the program.

For tickets and information, contact Marilyn Hanabury or Alden Shores at 773-5242 or Mary Jo Dion at the shelter at 770-3314.

BENEFICIARY DESIGNATION

When electing a beneficiary designation on your life insurance policy, it would be wise to think over the person named and the wording. For instance, naming a young child as a beneficiary is fine if you want the insurance company to hold the death proceeds until the child is of age. In the event of a common disaster, (both the husband and the wife dying together) the person who will raise the child will not have access to any life insurance proceeds and, therefore, will have to use their own funds. This can be a financial burden.

If you have minor children it might be advisable to choose someone who would see to the proceeds being used for the child's benefit only. The person would be named as trustee for the child. The insurance company would pay the proceeds to the trustee who would handle the funds according to your desires. An example beneficiary wording could be:

1. Jane Doe -- Spouse
2. Thomas Doe, brother of the insured, as trustee for John Doe and Mary Doe, children of the insured during their minority.

Remember, improperly worded beneficiary designations could create problems.

The Mike And Ray Show

Really, it was that nauseating.

In case you missed it, it was on Page One of the Globe. Also in the Herald.

DUKAKIS

The Dynamic Duo -- Gov. Michael Dukakis and Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn guzzling champagne and whooping it up.

They were celebrating after the MWRA tucked it to Quincy by deciding to move the agency's 900 employee headquarters to the Ruggles MBTA station area in Roxbury.

FLYNN

Flynn had a silly look on his face as he fondled a bottle of the bubbly as if it were a rare old vintage and someone had given it to him for nothing. Dukakis looked like he had already taken a slug and had found out that the champagne was actually some of that real cheap stuff even a whino would consider passing up.

They say a picture is worth a thousand words. Well, this one had to be worth a thousand and two. The extra two: "Dump Quincy!"

And that's what the MWRA did. Dumped all over Quincy. Hey Quincy, here's something to go along with the sludge facility we gave you.

The MWRA headquarters is a king-sized prize for his city and a feather in his political hat. It will serve as the key to a $400 million office-retail complex that will give this poor area in Roxbury a big economic shot in the arm.

But it is a tremendous loss for Quincy.

LEVY

And regardless of how the MWRA, Dukakis, Paul Levy and Flynn slice the old policial baloney, the Roxbury choice is going to cost Massachusetts taxpayers a lot more in the long run than if the MWRA had selected the Quincy Shipyard for the site.

And if that newspaper picture wasn't bad enough, how about this: after popping champagne corks at the Roxbury site, Flynn and Dukakis bowed their heads in prayer.

That's a little hypocritical.

He stacked the MWRA board votes (9-2) in Roxbury's favor by supporting that site. He wanted the MWRA headquarters in Roxbury just as much as Flynn did.

Quincy, where's Quincy?

Quincy, Mike, is where you often came to solicit money and support -- including some of our city officials -- when you ran for governor and for president. Remember, now?

With all the backing he got in Quincy down through the years, the least he could have done was to stay out of that newspaper picture and let Flynn do his champagne thing.

But did you ever see a politian pass up a newspaper picture?

Anyway, by participation, Dukakis rubbed it into Quincy.

And get this:

"This," he solemnly proclaimed, "is Massachusetts working at its best."

Sure, Mike, just like the Massachusetts Miracle we heard so much about during the Presidential campaign. George Bush kept saying it was the Massachusetts Mirage and a lot of us really didn't believe him. Or didn't want to.

But now that the state is unravelling financially all around us, it looks like Bush was on target.

According to the conditions of the vote favoring the Roxbury site -- if we read it right -- the developer has to construct a building with a cost based on a three-year lease followed by purchase which cannot exceed $52 million. Or, based on a 10-year lease followed by purchase cannot exceed $65.4 million.

The facility has to have 210,000 square feet with above ground parking for 250 cars.

And, it is supposed to be ready by June 30, 1991 -- two years from now.

If they had selected the Fore River Shipyard they would have had sufficient space in existing buildings that they already own. And plenty of parking.

And with a little paint, plaster and putty, they could have moved into their headquarters in two weeks -- not two years.

But maybe the shipyard buildings aren't plush enough for Levy and company.

By starting from scratch in Roxbury, they get a chance to have all the comforts tossed in including rugs that you sink up to your ankles in.

By the time the MWRA gets through building their luxurious palace, the site will cost taxpayers a lot more than the price tag now being kicked around.

So what: the way the MWRA sees it, it's better than working next to a sludge facility. And the hell with the people in Quincy Point, East Braintree and North Weymouth who have to live next to it.

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce and others are talking a possible lawsuit to make a last ditch stand to win the headquarters for Quincy.

It might be worth a try.

But somehow this whole affair seems to have been plotted from the day the MWRA sneaked into town and grabbed the shipyard. It was destined then as the site for the sludge facility. And it was destined then for it not to be the site for the headquarters.

Meanwhile, Quincy seems to be stuck with the sludge facility. But there is still a fight worth fighting there.

If the sludge facility is built at the Quincy Shipyard as it apparently will be, Quincy should battle for a pelletization plant instead of accepting composting.

Pelletization might cost more, but it is the lesser of the two evils. Less odor.

The MWRA owes us at least this. So does Dukakis.

Says Experience 'Most Unforgettable'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to share with the people of our city a most unforgetable experience which my sister and I were subjected to just a few days ago.

On Thursday afternoon at 3 p.m. my sister and I were working at the real estate office of our parents Joe and Louise LaRaia at 57 Coddington St., Quincy. At that time several building inspectors entered the office escorted by police officers armed with a criminal search warrant to inspect our building which is owned by our family. The search warrant was issued by the clerk of the Quincy District Court to compel the inspection of building code and other alleged violations.

The inspectors were persuaded not to go through with the inspection until our Attorney, Neil Kerstein, would examine the validity of such an inspection. The building inspector, Matthias Mulvey, persisted to go through with the inspection even though our parents were not in the building, fortunately our attorney warned them of potential civil suits if they continued and finally they agreed to postpone the inspection until the following day.

My sister and I were shaken by this incident and have not gotten over this traumatic experience. This is one of several disruptions of our real estate business that we have had to experience with the building inspector Matthias Mulvey over the last year and ahalf.

Our parents informed us that Mr. Mulvey inspected the building himself along with solicitor Donald Hansen in July 1988. There has been so construction repair in that building since that time. The licensed tradesman who worked on the building were also questioned by solicitor Hansen on other occasions as part of the administration eighteen month harassment.

Mr. Mulvey is on a witch hunt and is attempting to uncover building code violations on this updated building that was originally constructed in 1843. Our parents have spent a large sum of money to bring the building up to code since 1984 and Mr. Mulvey was not the building inspector when all that work was completed. If Mr. Mulvey wants to go back into records of building construction before he took the job then why would he single out my parents. The only remaining reason for this reckless and disruptive conduct is that my father Joe LaRaia is publicly opposed to Mr. Mulvey's three year appointment; he opposed the current administration in the last mayoral election and may well be elected to be the next mayor this fall.

Traffic Islands Being 'Adopted,' Beautified

If you've noticed a more beautiful look to some of the city's traffic islands, thank a "parent".

The "parents" are residents and businesses who are adopting traffic islands throughout Quincy as part of the city's "Adopt-An-Island" program.

More than 20 of the city's 60 traffic islands have been adopted and some have even been planted with new flowers and shrubbery, according to Councillor Timothy Cahill, one of the program's developers.

Cahill, along with Mayor Francis McCauley, developed the "Adopt-An-Island" program which requires those who participate to adopt the island from Memorial Day to the first frost.

"They must provide the plants and maintain them to keep the island beautiful," Cahill said, adding that an award might be established to recognize the person or party who creates the nicest island.

Both Cahill and McCauley thought about establishing the program in Quincy. The mayor learned about the program while visiting Peabody last year. When he returned to Quincy, Cahill approached him about the same idea.

The forerunner in Quincy was Memorial Park at Southern Artery in Quincy Point which was beautified last year by the Ward 2 Civic Association. The island will be maintained again this year.

Cahill noted that Peabody's program has been a tremendous success. Not only is there a waiting list, islands which had been asphalted are being dug up to create more opportunities.

A selective program is beneficial, Cahill noted, because if the islands are not maintained, they are assigned to somebody else.

BEAUTIFYING CHRISTMAS ISLAND on Hancock St. in Quincy Square are Robert Bosworth, assistant editor of The Quincy Sun, and Councillor Timothy Cahill, owner of Handshakes Restaurant. Cahill and Bosworth planted flowers at the island as part of the city's "Adopt-An-Island" program.

Cahill hopes the publicity will generate interest in the Quincy program and that more island sponsors will sign up.

The councillor, who is also the owner of Handshakes Restaurant, is taking an active role in the program. He, along with the Quincy Sun and Martin Realty, have adopted Christmas Island in front of their businesses on Hancock St. in Quincy Square.

On Saturday, Cahill and Robert Bosworth, assistant editor of The Quincy Sun beautified the island by raking, putting down mulch and planting flowers.

Among the large islands already adopted are the Burns Memorial at Granite St, and Burgin Parkway, sponsored by Quincy Hospital; and Shea Park on Copeland St., adopted by the National Fire Protection Association.

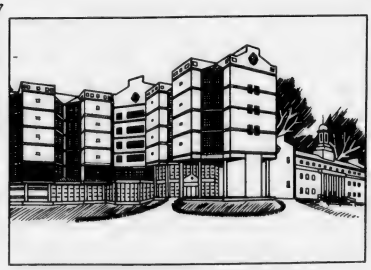
Mayoral aide Peter Kenney said people who are interested in adopting the remaining islands can call Brian Buckley, program coordinator, at 773-1380, ext. 267 and 268.

Other adopted islands and their "parents":

Butler Rd., Robert Crowley, the Headlock Cafe; Penn's Hill Rd., Paula Ruozzi, St. John's Junior Girl Scout Troop 4205; Pond St., Margie Roberts, Point-Webster EGD IV; Standish Ave.-Old Colony Ave., Ed Sweeney, Time Out Toys; Wall and Sea Sts., Teresa Bergstrom, Teresa and Deja Bergstrom; Hancock St. and Southern Artery (island), Bryant Carter, Wollaston Post 295, American Legion; Hancock and Fenno Sts., Ed Keohane, Keohane Funeral Home; School and Franklin Sts., Steve Farquhar, Continental Cablevision; Sims Rd., Betty Southwick, Beechwood Community Life Center and Francis Derwin, Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni Chapter 60 Inc.; Elm Ave. (Hedges Memorial Island), Gene Healey, Wollaston Credit Union; President and Federal Aves., John Vignoni, South Shore Security; Adams Monument, Southern Artery, Francis McInnis, 101st Infantry Veterans Association, WWI-WWII.

Also, Maypole Rd., Paul Harold, Senator Paul Harold; Presidents Ln. and Glendale Rd., Arthur Foley, Quincy Lions; Curlew Rd. and Sea St., Philip Kenney, the Kenney Family; Islands at Mall and Liberty, John McAuliffe, Presidents Place; land at end of Howe St., Rob Ross, Rob Ross; Ross Parkway, Jim Lydon, Ricciardi Company and Bird and Sea St., Bill Morrell, Houghs Neck American Legion Post.

Q: What's up and coming in health care?



A: The New QCH!

Quincy City Hospital has begun an impressive $57 million renovation. Almost two-thirds of the buildings and other facilities will be replaced—all part of a dramatic plan to better serve the growing and changing health care needs of the South Shore.

The focal point of the new hospital complex will be a brand new six story building that will contain 234 patient beds as well as all of the necessary patient care support services.

Since its founding in 1890, Quincy City Hospital has been in the forefront of health care on the South Shore. With our new facilities we'll continue to deliver the highest quality health care services with warm, personal attention.

At QCH—we're building for the future on a proud past.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Old Colony Line Near The End

May 31-June 6
1958
31 Years Ago

Many schemes were afoot to provide mass transportation to the South Shore as the New Haven Railroad's Old Colony Division approached the financial point of no return.

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce recommended a formula for assessing $750,000 in public service payments on 37 communities in order to keep passenger trains running.

All cities and towns served by the branch would pay $375,000 on a population basis and the 22 with direct rail connections would ante up an additional $375,000 on the basis of patronage.

Quincy's share would come to $204,000, equal to $1.21 on the tax rate.

The Greater Boston Economic Study Committee also recommended a temporary area subsidy to keep the Old Colony running until it could be replaced by the Metropolitan Transit Authority to Hingham.

BROAD MEADOWS PLANT SOUGHT

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced plans to open negotiations with the federal government for return of 11.6 acres of land in Broad Meadows that was sold 15 years ago for $1 as a spoilage area.

The land was appraised for $2,500.

The Quincy Electric Co. had offered the city $75,000 for about 100 acres of Broad Meadows, including the federally owned land, as a site for a generating plant costing $30 to $55 million.

BACK HOES COSTLY TO CITY

Mayor Della Chiesa said the City Council's refusal to buy two back hoes for $13,000 would eventually cost the city more than $60,000 in rentals of the digging machines at $64 a day.

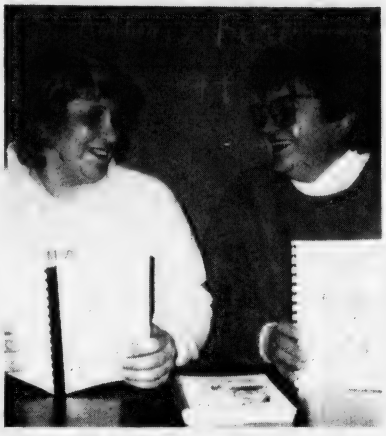
St. Anthony's Festival At St. John's

Hundreds of St. John's parishioners are making plans for the 14th annual St. Anthony's Festival to be held on the church grounds June 9 from 6 to 11 p.m. and June 20 from noon to 11 p.m.

Each afternoon there will be a procession in honor of St. Anthony of Padua, patron saint of Italians. Children of the parish will lead the procession from the upper church along School Street in front of the church and to a platform on the church grounds where the statue will be placed on display. Members of St. John's Holy Name Society will serve as statue bearers for the procession.

Financial contributions or donations for special intentions may be pinned to the statue while it is on display.

The Festival has become one of the most popular religious, social and cultural events of the spring season along the South Shore.



Proceeds benefit the charitable and building funds of the Parish which include providing food and shelter for the homeless and in establishing affordable housing units for low income individuals.

A special Mass in honor of St. Anthony will be celebrated by the Most Rev. Robert J. Banks, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, Saturday (June 10) at 4 p.m. Portions of the Mass will be in Italian.

The two-day Festival will be highlighted by special events, booths, clowns, music for dancing and singing, a variety of foods and delicacies, games and prizes for children and adults.

Fr. Gary Sullivan, Parochial Vicar, is the Festival Coordinator. Rosemarie Martin and Diane Acorn are co-chairpersons.

A special cookbook, entitled "Burnt Offerings", has been published in time for the Festival. The cookbook contains some 400 favorite recipes of St. John's parishioners.

Jane Reikard QCA 'Citizen Of The Year'

Jane Reikard, Executive Director of the Quincy Rent Grievance Board, has been selected by the Quincy Citizens Association as the 1989 "Citizen of the Year".

"Mrs. Reikard is a tireless worker who resolves differences with great wisdom. She is the epitome of a dedicated public servant," stated a letter announcing her selection.

The Quincy Citizens Association will honor Mrs. Reikard on June 2 at their 22nd Anniversary Dinner-Dance, at the Adams Heights Men's Club. She will receive an engraved silver Paul Revere Bowl for "her unselfish devotion to the community and the landlords and tenants who request her help."

Claire Aizenstadt Hadassah 'Woman Of Year'

Claire Aizenstadt was honored as Quincy Hadassah Chapter's "Woman of the Year" recently at Hadassah's Southern New England Region Annual Banquet in Newton.

A Life Member of the Quincy Chapter, stated a brochure announcing her selection, "she served two terms as President, stepping down this year but not resigning her responsibilities."

She headed the Chapter's holiday gift-wrapping project, making it a financial success.

"Her warmth and enthusiasm, her style and verve make Claire Quincy's choice for Woman of the Year," the statement concluded.

Wollaston Congregational Group Spends Week In Washington

Members from Wollaston Congregational Church, its Youth Fellowship and Boy Scout Troop 14 recently spent a week in Washington, D.C.

Highlights included a Potomac cruise to Mount Vernon, and tours of the White House, the Capitol and F.B.I. offices, all arranged by Ron Kaufman of Quincy, now Deputy Assistant to the President.

Gilda Knowles, Kaufman's sister, and her family were among the group which included interim minister and Mrs. Elden D.J. Zuern, Scoutmaster and Youth Fellowship leader Gus Oster and wife, Laurel, with sons Erik, Christian and Jordan.

★★★★ Cheeseburgers Of The Stars ★★★★★

Whether your mealtime guests include old friends or the likes of TV celebrity Pat Sajak, country western star Hank Williams, Jr. or Miami Dolphins football player Tom Toth, fire up the broiler —it's time for cheeseburgers.

The great American cheeseburger turns 54-years-old this spring, and no other single sandwich enjoys such popularity. At-home, the burgers rank in the top-10 dinner favorites, with consumption increasing 7 percent since 1983. In restaurants, cheeseburgers win hands-down as the lunch entree most often served and are second only to pizza as the most popular dinner item.

The appetite-appeal of cheeseburgers begins with the cheese, burger and bun, of course, but it's the embellishments that make them personal favorites.

The rich and famous are no different from the rest of us when it comes to craving cheeseburgers, but when it comes to the choice of condiments, cheese, bread and the way the burger is cooked, they assert their creative differences.

Onion Lovers Unite

For some, it's the onions—raw or cooked—that make the burger. The ideal cheeseburger, according to Pat Sajak, host of "Wheel of Fortune" and the CBS late-night talk show that bears his name, must be "topped with Cheddar cheese and lots of raw onions, so I can watch the guests wince."

The classic cheeseburger ...waiting to receive the crowning condiments that make it your own.

Sandy Duncan, of NBC's "Hogan Family," on the other hand, likes her cheeseburger with "everything." Translated, that's a juicy burger, topped with Cheddar cheese, mustard, catsup and piles of grilled onions.

Former Presidential candidate Sen. Paul Simon (D.—Ill.) prefers his cheeseburger the All-American way: "Cooked to medium and topped with raw onions, catsup and American cheese."

Big, Bountiful, "Bocephus"

Then there are those celebrities that like cheeseburgers with...personality.

BIG, hearty, no-nonsense cheeseburgers are the order for Miami Dolphins right offensive guard Tom Toth. He says that a half-pound burger with Mozzarella and American cheese, bacon, lettuce, onion, pickles, catsup, mustard and mayo on a Kaiser bun suits him just fine.

A bountiful helping of cheese is a must for Bon Appetit magazine Executive Food Editor Jan Weimer. In fact, two types of cheese—a soft cheese, such as Mozzarella, and a blue-veined cheese, make a favorite combination atop a very rare burger, served on a homemade bun with grilled onions.

Country music entertainer Hank Williams, Jr., has dubbed his favorite the "Bocephus Burger." ("Bocephus" is the nickname his father gave him when he was just a baby, advisable to wear a shower curtain when you eat!"

Fred Savage, the young family member Kevin of "The Wonder Years," is very particular about his cheeseburgers as well. Kevin likes his topped with melted American cheese, catsup, mayo, onion and pickle, served on toasted sourdough bread.

And from the man who is so often quoted...according to Webster in his Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, the cheeseburger is simply "a hamburger topped with a slice of cheese." To each his own, but most would agree a broader definition is in order.

How to Cook the Perfect Cheeseburger

With spring weather finally here, the desire to hibernate indoors and cook diminishes. Easy-to-prepare foods, such as the great American cheeseburger, are more attractive than ever. And just to ensure that cooking time is well-spent, here's a quick cheeseburger refresher course.

The key to the perfect burger is to cook it just to the desired stage of doneness, so that it is juicy and moist. Best results are obtained when burgers are 1/2- to 1-inch thick and 3- to 4-inches in diameter. Choose your favorite cooking method:

Broil—Place burgers on rack in broiler pan, 3- to 4-inches from heat source. Cook to desired doneness, turning once.

Grill—Place burgers on rack about 6-inches from medium-hot coals. Cook to desired doneness, turning once.

Panbroil—Preheat frying pan. Place burgers in pan and cook over medium heat to desired doneness, turning occasionally. Pour off drippings as they accumulate.

Microwave to the Rescue

The microwave oven can come to the rescue when you plan ahead. When you grill burgers, cook a few extra and freeze them.

To properly freeze burgers, wrap them individually in plastic wrap and then freezer paper. (They can stay in the freezer for up to six months.)

Then when the craving hits, pull one out of the freezer and microwave it just until heated through.

To microwave, unwrap and place the frozen burger(s) on a microwavable plate. For best results, microwave uncovered at 50% power (medium), turning after half the time. Cook one burger for 1 1/4 to 3 minutes; and two burgers at 2 1/2 to 4 minutes.

Permit Granted For 4,400 Gallons Gasoline At Parking Garage

The License Board granted a request from Charles E. Bartlett, Construction Manager of Condyne Engineering and Construction, Inc., for a permit to store a total of 4,400 gallons of gasoline in the tanks of cars at a parking garage at 234 Copeland St. The garage is already completed.

Bartlett appeared before the board with Edward Dimone, engineer for the site. They noted that the garage will house 129 cars on the lower level and 93 cars on the upper level.

Chairman John Gillis said that the board had received a letter from area residents, Genevieve A. Ward of Miller St. and Veronica M. McArthur of Cross St., opposing the license. The letter said that the women fear a possible fire hazard from the storage of gasoline near their properties.

Building Inspector Matt Mulvey noted that there had been a previous problem with gas separators at the site. Bartlett told the board that the problem had since been corrected.

Abuttors residing on Copeland St. also expressed concern over the matter. Residents say that a retaining wall between their properties and the garage was supposed to be built and has not.

Ward Four Councillor James Sheets told the board that a Zoning Board of Appeals hearing on the matter had stipulated the construction of "property screening" at the site, but not specifically a retaining wall.

Sheets said that there would be no problem with granting the license if the screening problem were taken care of to the satisfaction of the residents.

Mulvey said that he would bring another inspector to the site to investigate the matter.

The board granted the license pending the resolution of the sight screening problem.

Jason McNamara A.F. Basic Graduate

Airman Jason A. McNamara, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. McNamara of 57 Putnam St., has graduated from the Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas.

During the six week training course, McNamara studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the community college of the Air Force.

Norfolk County Bar Assn. Legal Clinic At Quincy Court

The Norfolk County Bar Association will conduct its fourth Legal Clinic at Quincy District Court, Wednesday June 7 at 7 p.m. announces Ms. Adrienne Clarke, executive director of the bar association.

"The legal advice and referral clinic (LARC) will be an advice and referral clinic that will provide free legal assistance to any resident in the community," she said. "The clinic is open to the public and there are no restrictions as to who may attend. The purpose of the clinic will be to help people identify whether or not they have a legal problem, and to disseminate the necessary information and guidance when necessary. The attorneys who have volunteered their time to assist at the legal clinics are in the private practice of law, and have had extensive training in trial advocacy."

"The Norfolk County Bar Association has implemented the clinics as an important public service to the community addressing the vital need for education regarding the legal system. We will attempt to assist these people with any problems or questions they may have encountered in understanding specific areas of the law.

"The attorneys who have volunteered their time are to be commended for their tireless dedication and volunteer efforts. Since the legal clinic is free of charge to anyone wishing to attend, we anticipate an excellent turnout" states Adrienne Clarke who has implemented the clinics along with Attorney John G. Dugan, of Medfield, MA.

"We hope to continue to sponsor these clinics on a monthly basis in the Norfolk County area.

Children's Sunday At United First Parish

United First Parish Unitarian Church will hold its annual Children's Sunday service June 4 at 10:30 a.m.

Members of the Church School will perform the adult roles during the service, such as leading the affirmation, doing the readings and ushering.

The Youth and Adult Choirs will open the service by singing together "What is This Church?" by Silelius and Sandler. Readings will include "Eutopia," written by Debbie Gelfand, a Unitarian teenager, and Shel Silverstein's "Magic Carpet."

The story "Miss Rumphius, the Lupine Lady" by Barbara Cooney will be read in lieu of a sermon, and packets of lupine seeds will be distributed to the congregation.

Soloist Eleanor McGourty will sing "Deep in Our Soul" and "Why Stand Still When You Own Wings?"

The church's new flaming chalice, given by some of its junior members, will be dedicated in a brief ceremony led by Rev. Sheldon Bennett.

The children in Levels I and 2 in the Church School will present some of the Unitarian beliefs learned during the year, led by teachers Jimmie Burrell and Celia Blight.

Participation Certificates will be presented to all Church School children, and appreciation certificates, to the teachers.

Ushers will be Jamie Beauchamp and Lauren Davidson; greeter will be Gabrielle Bennett; hostess for Social Hour is Anthe Kelley.

The public is invited to attend.

'God Hath Kept His Covenant' Wollaston Congregational Topic

"God Hath Kept His Covenant" is the title of the topic sermon that the Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern will deliver during the 10 a.m. service Sunday at Wollaston Congregational Church.

Greeters for the day will be Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gifford. Reader will be Paul Frazer. A Fellowship Hour with light refreshments will follow the service. Church school and child care are provided.

The South Shore Camera Club will meet in the Parish Hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Boy Scout Troop 14 will meet in the Social Hall at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The Family Group will sponsore a church picnic June 11 after church at noontime. Cost is $4 for adults and $3 for children under 10. Reservations should be made with the church office Monday through Friday 9-1 by June 7. 773-7432.

Free Sugar Clinic

A free blood sugar screening clinic will be sponsored by the Adams Shore Community Center Wednesday, June 7 from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Adams Shore Library, Sea and Palmer Sts.

Arlene Ferretti, R.N. will conduct the testing.

There is no need to fast and results will be ready in minutes.

Church School Graduates To Be Recognized At Bethany

This Sunday's 10 a.m. worship service at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts. will recognize graduates of the Church school.

Scholarship awards will also be presented to Bethany students for continuing education.

All Church School classes will participate in the service. Kindergarten and first grade students will sing "It's A Small World Afterall," and the fourth and fifth graders will sing "Joy Is The Flag." The Bible lesson will be given by second and third grade classes and the junior high class will lead the prayers and take the offering.

The teaching staff of the Church School and the Youth Advisors will also be recognized for their services.

Rev. Arnold will share a children's story and Rev. Huntington will lead the liturgy.

The Church School mission project will also be dedicated. The children worked this spring to raise money for the purchase of a new stove for Father Bill's Place homeless shelter.

Nine students of the Bethany Church family will be awarded scholarships. They are: Pamela F. Curran, Melissa J. Mikami, David E. Murphy, Tracy E. Panuschka, Jackie P. Rivera, Emily B. Ross, Pamela S. Sawyer, Allison K. Spring, and Tammy Vozzella.

Scholarships are made from six special funds set aside for the purpose. The Bethany Scholarship Fund, the Hazel F. MacGregor Scholarship Fund, the Goudey Fund, the Munroe D. MacLean Scholarship Fund, the Virginia W. Noyes Scholarship Fund, and the John D. Williams Fund for Educational Purposes. The total amount of scholarship aid to be given is $5,300.

The special worship service will be broadcast over WJDA at 10 a.m. There will also be cassette tape available for $2 from the church office.

A fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor will follow the service.

Children's Sunday At First Parish

This Sunday will be Children's Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents", in Quincy Center.

The 10:30 A.M. Worship Service has been planned by the Religious Education Committee and Brenda Chin, Director of Religious Education. Children and young people of the Church will participate in the service and presentations will be made.

Zoe Bohl and Eurydice Kelley will do readings and Stephanie Post will lead the congregation in a unison affirmation of Unitarian Universalist principles. Edward Costello will say words of welcome and make announcements.

The Youth Choir, under the direction of Sally Bohl, will sing anthems, together with Adult Choir. Eleanor McGourty, adult soloist, will sing and Norman Corey, Music Director, will play the organ.

The children will make presentations: Grades 1 - 3, under the director of Jimmie Burrell, and Grades 4 - 6, under the director of Celia Blight. Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Minister, will present certificates of participation to the children and the children of the Church School will present certificates to the adult teachers and leaders. The children will be given tomato plants grown and presented by Mary Vallier.

Gabrielle Bennett will be Greeter, Lauren Davidson and Jamie Beauchamp will be ushers. Lauren Davidson and Anthe Kelley will be hostesses for the Social Hour following the service.

Historic First Parish, established in 1639, will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. It is the church of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams, whose tombs are in the church along with those of their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

The Church is located at 1306 Hancock Street in Quincy Center, opposite City Hall. Call 773-1290 for information.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

New government insulation recommendations help beat summer cooling costs

Last summer's record-setting heat wave and drought left many homeowners paying the price both in discomfort and high utility bills. Before temperatures begin to soar again, homeowners should consider upgrading their insulation to the new U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) recommendations, energy experts say.

The recommendations [illegible] are especially [illegible] because [illegible] the most cost of cooling and heating a home over the past several years. They had not been upgraded since 1975.

An attic insulation study conducted by National Family Opinion, an independent research firm, found that the average insulation level in attics today is around R-20. The average DOE recommendation is R-40.

"The new recommendations are further confirmation that the right amount of insulation can help save on energy costs year-round," says Thomas Seymour of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation, a leading manufacturer of energy-efficient building materials.

"While most people install insulation with thoughts of decreasing their heating bills, insulation also reduces the need for continuous air conditioning by keeping the summer heat out. And that helps keep energy costs down."

Dr. Dave McElroy of Oak Ridge National Laboratory, which helped develop the recommendations, adds, "Since insulation is relatively inexpensive, the cost/benefit ratio makes increased insulation levels worthwhile."

Sen. Timothy E. Wirth, Chairman of the Alliance to Save Energy and member of the Senate Energy and Banking committees, says, "It's important that homeowners take the new recommendations seriously because Americans spend $100 billion dollars on household energy, or more than $1,100 per household, annually. After rent or mortgage payments, energy is the largest cost of home occupancy."

To help keep your energy costs down, three important areas to insulate are the attic, basement and crawl space.

Unfloored/unfinished attics

"Installing insulation in the home is a simple and inexpensive do it-yourself project," Mr. Seymour says. "Completing one of the most effective energy saving projects – insulating your attic – only costs about $350 for insulating an average 1,000-Sq-ft space with R-25 fiber glass insulation."

Once you're ready to go to work, you'll need safety glasses, work gloves, a long-sleeved shirt, a mask and a sharp knife.

Begin by laying a piece of temporary flooring to kneel on while working. A plank or ½-in. plywood should do. Leave the insulation in rolls until you're ready to use it, since insulation is compressed for packaging and will expand once the package is opened.

Start laying the fiber glass insulation at the outer edges of the attic. You might find a long handled "push" broom helpful in extending the insulation to the edges of the attic.

Be careful when you extend the insulation to the attic edges, so that you don't block the flow of air from the eave vents—if your home has them.

Also, be sure to keep insulation a minimum of three inches from light fixtures, and use unfaced material in the space between a masonry chimney and wood framing.

Lay in the long runs first and place the leftovers aside for filling up the smaller spaces later. Where you encounter wiring, push the insulation under.

Be sure to butt each section of insulation tightly up against the adjacent section for a complete thermal barrier.

If you are reinsulating over several inches of existing insulation, and the joist cavity is already filled, lay the new layer at right angles to the joists; this will minimize heat flow.

Basement walls

To insulate bare walls of heated basements, begin by building a framework of 2 x 4 studs 16 or 24 inches on-center over the masonry walls. Wedge the insulation directly between the studs.

If you are using a faced material, staple the flange on the facing to the studs, with the facing towards the warm-in-winter side. Then, finish by installing paneling or drywall. When using an unfaced material, be sure to install a separate vapor barrier, such as polyethylene film, over the insulation.

Cut pieces of insulation to fit in the band joist between the top plate of your framework and the floor above.

Crawl space

To insulate masonry walls in heated crawl spaces, begin by measuring and cutting small pieces of unfaced insulation to fit snugly against band joists. Using long furring strips, nail vertical lengths of unfaced insulation batts to the sill; make sure to use enough insulation to cascade down the wall and extend two feet along the ground into the crawl space.

Faced material cannot be used for this installation because the facing is flammable and should never be left exposed.

On walls that run parallel to joists, it is not necessary to cut separate header strips. Simply use longer pieces of insulation nailed directly to the band joists.

Last, lay a polyethylene film over the insulation and the entire floor area. Use bricks or rocks to help hold the insulation in place on the ground.

THE NEW U.S. DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY recommendations suggest increased R-value levels for several important areas of the home, including the attic. Insulation can cut the cost of cooling and heating bills and increase comfort as summer temperatures begin to soar, say the energy experts at Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corporation. (Savings vary. Find out why in an insulation manufacturer's fact sheet on R-values, available at most home improvement retailers. Higher R-values mean greater insulating power.)

Digging mechanics

According to the experts at True Temper, a shovel's handle length and blade lift—the distance between the ground and the blade tip when the tool is lying flat—are important to balance and effort as the homeowner moves through shoveling motions.

They add that a tool's neck and blade are designed to work in conjunction to create the lift. Shovels and scoops have higher lifts for greater ease of moving materials, whereas spades and irrigating shovels have lower lifts for easier digging. SH894314

Summer swimming fun begins in spring with sparkling water in the backyard pool

Sunshine and warm weather signal the return of spring and another season of swimming fun in the backyard pool.

When it's time to get the pool ready and remove the winter cover, pool owners may find dull, stagnant, lifeless water.

Lack of use during the winter may mean leaves or other debris in the pool bottom. Dark mineral stains and streaks may show on pool sides and at the waterline. What may be worse yet is algae, not noticeable in its early stages, but just waiting to spread as the water gets warmer.

But there is a solution to the wintertime pool blues, and BioGuard has it.

The first step

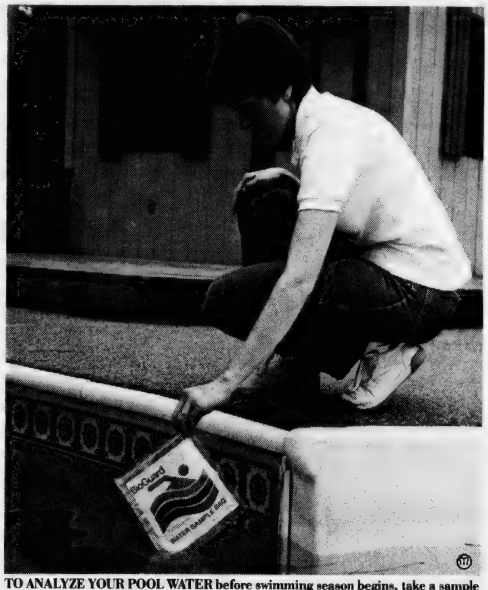
Smart pool owners begin by taking a sample of their pool water to their BioGuard Authorized Pool Dealer for a complete water analysis and personalized prescription for year-round care.

There the pool water is computer analyzed, free of charge. The personal BioGuard computerized water analysis system outlines a schedule of how much and which chemicals need to be added to get the water back into proper balance and ready for summer fun. BioGuard has formulated specific chemical products to solve pool problems and keep water sparkling clean and inviting all season.

Pool owners get helpful information on what to do to bring total alkalinity, pH and calcium hardness of the water into the proper range.

The computer analysis also performs many tests that home test kits can't measure, like total dissolved solids, copper/iron content and stabilizer level, all important for the health and enjoyment of the pool.

Customized plan



Since every pool has different needs, BioGuard helps owners determine proper amounts of chlorine for bacteria control and algicides for algae control.

The customized plan also spells out the possible need for stain controllers, scale prevention agents or water clarifiers.

It all begins with that water sample. After the cover has been removed, fill the pool and circulate the water for at least 24 hours. Then, immerse a clean, closed plastic water sample bag (available from BioGuard Authorized dealers, free of charge) about 18 inches below the surface of the pool, away from the returns.

Open the container and collect about a quart of water. BioGuard dealers test the water and prescribe just the chemicals needed, no more.

The plan is easy to read and easy to follow. The result is safe, sparkling water to enjoy all summer long. SH893759

TO ANALYZE YOUR POOL WATER before swimming season begins, take a sample by immersing a clean, closed plastic container about 18 inches below the surface of your pool and away from the inlets. Take the sample to your BioGuard Authorized Dealer, who will analyze it while you wait.

Salvage old cabinets, brighten kitchens

Tired of your kitchen looking outdated? Simply remodeling wood cabinets can give the whole room a face lift. First, strip off old cracked paint and fill any nicks and rough spots on cabinets with a wood filler such as Elmer's Fill 'N Finish. Sand and wipe clear.

Panel cabinets to give them a new look. Glue on half moldings. Elmer's Wood Glue will hold strips securely in place without nails. Finish with a clear spray paint to protect. SH894013

Painting tricks for unusual effects

Want to give a room a new look, but can't afford new furniture or carpeting? Try painting your walls! If you've been living with basic, often boring, white or off-white for too long, you'll be amazed at what color can do to change the mood of your room.

Here are two looks to try if you want something unusual. For a fun, outdoorsy look, paint your ceiling blue and then apply clouds with sponges dipped in white paint. Walls can be the same blue or any other color—a light pink or apricot would set off the blue nicely.

On the walls in another room, try spatter painting. Start with white or any other color as a background, then pick one or two contrasting colors to spatter.

Dip your brush into the paint, and then shake the paint at the walls. You'll have the satisfaction of knowing that your walls are unique in their patterns of spots and drips.

You probably can think of lots of other ideas. Indulge your creativity. You'll get the most enjoyment from a color scheme personally chosen to suit your taste and enhance your home. SH894682

Staging Area Construction At Shipyard To Start

The first phase of construction at the Fore River staging area will be launched by officials Thursday, June 1 at 1 p.m., the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority announced.

John P. DeVillars, Massachusetts Secretary of Environmental Affairs, Michael Deland, Regional Administrator of the federal Environmental Protection Agency, and Paul F. Levy, Executive Director of the MWRA, will participate in groundbreaking ceremonies to begin construction of marine facilities that will allow construction materials for the MWRA's Deer Island facilities to be delivered by water.

Most materials and equipment for the Boston harbor project will be transported to Deer Island by water, using the piers and roll on/rolloff facilities to be built at Fore River.

The first construction task is the rehabilitation and upgrading of existing piers which is scheduled to be completed in one year.

The Fore River Staging Area will be used for construction support during the ten-year period of the Boston Harbor project.

United First Parish Church 350th Anniversary Book

United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents", will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. Among the number of events being planned, the Church will publish a special book commemorating the occasion. The book will include a history of the Church, photographs, proclamations from government bodies, and messages from public leaders.

Businesses may purchase advertising space with messages. Individuals may also make donations and have their names listed. Requests should be made prior to June 15. Richard E. Post is the Chairman of the 350th Anniversary Book Committee. For information, call the church office at 773-1290.

The Church was established Sept. 26, 1639, as "Ye Church of Braintry", originally serving the area that is now Quincy, Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook. Historic First Parish, first a Puritan Congregational Church and Unitarian since 1750, has long been a leader in the religious and civic life of Quincy.

Rev. John Hancock, father of the patriot John Hancock, was minister in the early 18th century, and both Presidents John and John Quincy Adams were life long members of the church.

Papa Gino Fundraiser To Aid Kidspoint Playground

A fundraiser for Kidspoint Community Playground at the Point Webster School will be held Monday, June 5, from 5 p.m. to closing at Papa Gino's, 100 Granite St.

Fifteen percent of all proceeds, after Papa Gino's reaches its quota of ($1,400) will be donated to the playground which it is hoped will include a variety of slides, platforms and circular arch equipment for community youngsters.

The sum of $30,000 for the playground has already been received from a block grant through the Quincy Planning Department. The committee is hoping for another $10,000, much of which has already been raised through community affairs.

Mary Ann Andronico is president of the committee comprising a dozen of so citizens actively working on the project. A bottle and can drive is continuing to raise funds, and there have been many private donations.

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro has lent his support to the venture by contacting contractors and other individuals.

Residents hope to open the completed playground on June 10.

Leaf Composting To Be Delayed

Mayor Francis McCauley has decided to delay city action in the implementation of a leaf composting program.

The city recently submitted a request to the state for a leaf composting grant in the amount of $640,800. The request was based on the city participating with the towns of Milton and Weymouth in a regional composting program.

McCauley said he decided not to implement the program at this time because of cost and lack of outside participation.

He said the maximum amount of the grant approved by the state was only $109,080 or 17 percent of the amount requested by the city.

At a recent meeting with officials from Quincy, Weymouth and Milton, Milton decided not to participate in the program and Weymouth was unable to make a commitment to join the project at this time.

The mayor also pointed out that the start up costs of between $400,000 and $500,000 would be hard to raise given the tight financial situation in Quincy at the present time. To be successful, he said a composting program would have to be operational by Oct. 1 in order to be able to process leaves for the fall.

McCauley said "it is doubtful that the city could meet this deadline given the fact that October is only four months away."

"I'm not saying I don't like the concept but the proposal needs a lot of work," the mayor said, adding that he will continue to monitor the idea.

Furthermore, McCauley said in order to implement a leaf composting program for the fall of 1990, details and approvals should be worked out by March 1 of next year.

The mayor said his administration will continue to work to make the paper recycling program, which began May 1, successful and he would continue to work long-range on other recycling programs.

City To Get Methadone Clinic

the entire comprehensive program.

The city can also request to do the dosing on their own after 18 months, the mayor pointed out.

"We want to be sure these people who get the dosing also get the counseling because the counseling is the key to the program's success," McCauley said.

The licensing procedure for operating a methadone dispensing clinic takes approximately 18 months to obtain, the mayor noted.

In their final report to McCauley issued May 25, committee members cited the need to stop the spread of AIDS through the sharing of needles contaminated with the virus. A definite IV using population exists in Quincy as in other communities, they said.

Methadone taken orally has been shown to decrease the users craving for heroin, thereby stopping their need to use contaminated IV needles and thus decreasing the spread of the virus among people who are not otherwise at risk.

The committee noted the alarming statistics of the number of infants born to women known to have been IV users. Approximately 50 percent of these infants may well contract the fatal disease, for which there is no known cure.

In addition to stopping the spread of the fatal disease, the committee's goal for the program is to allow clients to become totally drug-gree whenever possible.

"We're not different from other communities that have drug populations," McCauley said.

In her support for the program, Gallahue pointed out AIDS is a "real public health concern" and methadone has been shown to stop the spread of the deadly disease by getting intravenous drug users to stop using contaminated needles.

"There is a definite route where (AIDS) is spread and this is by using needles which are contaminated with the virus. (The clinic) is a measure to stop people from using needles," Gallahue said.

"(AIDS) is a fatal disease. There is no cure. People in public health have to look for ways to stop disease," she said, adding, "it's always distressing to see infants born with no chance (of survival)."

Gallahue, who also emphasized that the program will include comprehensive counselling and education about AIDS, said, "We don't want to keep stalling a measure that has been proven to help drug addicts.

"Methadone has been known to stop the craving for heroin. The dose is controlled. It allows people to get off heroin and stop using needles," she said.

The mayor noted that strict security measures will be employed at the Quincy clinic, similar to those used in Brockton. Both McCauley and Gallahue have been in contact with Brockton officials, including Mayor Carl Pitaro, and they agree the program is operating with no problems now.

At first, McCauley said "it was a big hassle" but now the program is running smoothly.

Security measures in Quincy will include:

- Clients must present color code ID to receive methadone. "You just can't walk off the street and get a dose," McCauley said.
- No family or friends of clients will be allowed in the van.
- Clients must leave the area immediately after being medicated.
- Clients must park in a designated area.
- Clients will be restricted to specific areas.
- No smoking or food will be allowed on the van.
- No "milling around" the van during operation hours.
- If a client misses a dosage, he or she cannot be medicated at another clinic.
- No bags or carry on luggage on van.
- The director can transfer a client to Boston if he or she sees reason.

Gallahue noted that these safeguards are similar to those enforced at Lakeville State Hospital.

As for a police detail at the van, McCauley said he will consider it.

172 Receive Degrees At ENC

Eastern Nazarene College held its 67th Annual Commencement on the campus Monday, with 172 graduates awarded degrees. Nineteen students were recognized who will be receiving their degrees in August.

Rev. John M. Nielson of Quincy received the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Divinity. Benjamin O. Rieder, killed in an accident last summer while working in a National Parks program, was awarded a posthumous degree.

Twenty graduates were inducted into the National Honor Society, Phi Delta Lambda.

Dr. John A. Knight, General Superintendent of the Church of the Nazarene, delivered the commencement address, "Guaranteeing What is to Come". He spoke of the significance of the ENC Seal, which includes the symbols: The Lamp of Learning, The Cross and The Bible, and The World.

Stephen W. Nease, President of ENC, gave the Baccalaureate Sermon at a Sunday afternoon service in the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene. His topic was "Christian Love -- God's Highest Call", "underscoring the importance of God's enabling love, God's establishing love, and the obligation of Christians to share God's love".

More than 500 alumni attended the Alumni Banquet Saturday evening when Alumnus/a awards were presented to several Quincy residents.

Judith Paul of the Quincy Public School System received an "Alumna of the Year" award; Fred Cawthorne, teacher at North Quincy High School, Jack Laudermilk of Dunkin' Donuts, and Mrs. Donna Bowers of Wollaston received Alumni Achievement awards.

The Outstanding Senior Award went to Mark Blachly of Hershey, PA.

Class Reunions were held throughout the day, with more than 200 attending a reunion of the College A Capella Choir. A concert by the massed choir closed the traditional Alumni Day activities.

Negotiation Crucial In Buying-Selling Process

With plenty of homes available for sale in Massachusetts today, accurate pricing and negotiating have become crucial parts of the home buying and selling process.

The current market, warn Realtors, is not tolerant of over-priced homes. But real estate professionals are quick to point out that despite a general slowdown in sales, prices remain strong throughout the Comonwealth.

In such a competitive real estate sales market "pricing right" and shrewd negotiation between buyer and seller has once again become a key part of the transfer process.

There are several key points that both buyers and sellers should keep in mind when entering the negotiation process, say Realtors, starting with the listing process.

Former president of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors David Peretti says real estate brokers need to prepare the seller for eventual negotiations at the time the listing for the home is taken.

"The real estate agent should explain the purpose of each form and document that the seller will see when offers come in. Your Realtor should explain to the seller what a good offer looks like in terms of price and other considerations."

Realtor Joseph Delaney emphasizes that sellers have a strong chance of selling their house within a reasonable period of time if it is competitively priced. "The buyer is naturally going to ask how long a home has been on the market," says Delaney, "If it's been on the market too long because of price, buyers begin to suspect something is wrong with it."

Most Realtors agree that a home priced right is half sold. Realtor Donald Bliss says he will sometimes ask a seller who wants to over-price his home to look at comparable properties for sale in the neighborhood. The result is frequently sobering. The seller realizes he must price his home based on its market value, not on the amount he would like to receive.

Broker Sam MacDonald uses a similar tactic encouraging sellers to attend open houses to their area to price homes of comparable size and location.

A Realtor's job is to get a seller the highest price for their property in the shortest period of time. Offers at less than asking price, however, are not uncommon. When low offers are received MacDonald tells sellers there are three things they can do. "I tell them they can accept the offer, refuse the offer or respond with a counter-proposal and commence negotiations," he says.

"When sellers get a legitimate offer," continues MacDonald, "and by that I mean one that is sincere and not ridiculously low, I ask the seller to consider the cost of not selling today. By that I mean the current owner is usually paying for the property's upkeep, utilities, and taxes. Selling today may be less expensive in the long run than selling for a few thousand more in three to six months."

Realtor Delaney agrees. "There is a time value to money which we point out to buyers." Delaney notes that price is only one part of the entire sales package. "The offer is a matrix. Price is never the only chip on the table. Buyers come to a home with a price in mind and a bundle of needs. One buyer needs to move in six days, another in six months. One will need help with the financing, another will pay cash. Sellers, too, have a variety of needs. The more variables you put on the table, the better the chance of having a successful negotiation."

One thing all brokers agree on: buyers are better informed today than ever before.

Brokers work for the seller, and therefore encourage low offers when explicitly authorized to do so by the seller, says Brighton broker and president-elect of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors J. Thomas Marquis. He cautions that buyers should remember that even the broker who has shown them several properties is a sub-agent of the seller.

"I encourage buyers to keep records and folders on the homes they see in order to make comparisons," says Marquis. "I urge the buyer to make a reasonable offer. Buyers shouldn't be short-sighted and make too low an offer on a home they really like. Remember, only a relatively few homes on the market are way over market price. The right property at the right price is never on the market for long."

Occasionally, sellers ask their broker to encourage offers even if less than asking price. In this case, says Delaney, "If a buyer sounds interested I'll indicate the seller is interested in receiving offers and suggest that we shape a proposal."

Delaney points out that brokers are required by law to convey all written offers to the seller. If a seller has recently refused an offer identical to the one a current buyer is interested in making, Delaney says he conveys that information to the buyer but does not disclose any counter-offers that may have been made.

When a buyer whom MacDonald is working with asks about making an offer he usually says, "Look, you've seen a lot of homes lately. You're smart. You know what this property is worth and you also have a pretty good idea what it's worth to you to own it. Make an offer and let me submit it and we'll see what happens."

Sometimes an offer is too low to be recognized by the seller with a counter-offer. Such outright rejection can be devastating to the buyer but needn't be. "I recommend a rejected buyer think over his initial offer and decide whether its worth it to submit a new offer. A second offer may get a response from the seller," says MacDonald.

Peretti stresses one of the benefits of working with a Realtor is that the broker can use his situation to keep a dialogue open between buyer and seller when a transaction might otherwise break down. "There are ways a buyer can improve his offer other than price -- move up or move back the closing, change mortgage contingencies, and so on. It often takes an experienced real estate professional to see the possibilities."

"Selling a home in today's market requires skillful and tenacious negotiating," says Realtor Vera Burger. "This is an area where the real estate broker really earns a commission. The broker is in a position to crystalize all the aspects and elements of a sale so the buyer and seller can review the situation clearly and come to an agreement. It's a healthy situation and has to be viewed positively."

Ted, Son Steal Spotlight At JFK Regatta

The fourth annual JFK Regatta, which has become one of the largest events to kick off the New England racing season, attracted 175 boats over the Memorial Day weekend off Marina Bay. This year the event commemorated the anniversary of the late president's birthday. John F. Kennedy would have been 72 on Monday.

The late president's brother, Sen. Ted Kennedy, and his son, Ted Jr., stole the spotlight as they helped skipper the 12-meter boat Weatherly, winner of the America's Cup in 1962, to two victories over the weekend.

The Weatherly downed Northern Light in their classic 12-meter duel from Newport, in Sunday's racing after it had survived Saturday's squalls which saw many boats capsize and several boatsmen rescued. The Weatherly was one of the few boats to finish and win on Saturday.

The 12-meter duel was an exhibition and, with winds gusting to 30 Knots at midday, the two classic Twelves "went after each other," said Tom Whidden, who was in the cockpit calling tactics for the Kennedys. Whidden formerly was tactician for Dennis Conner on Stars and Stripes.

In the eight-minute starting sequence Weatherly outmaneuvered Northern Light, with former America's Cup Skipper David Victor at the helm, and steamed across the starting line with a head of steam reminiscent of her America's Cup days more than 30 years ago against the Australians off Newport. Northern Light, 20 years older than Weatherly, was never able to gain on her rival.

"She's just a faster boat," said Victor. "There wasn't much we could do."

Sen. Kennedy usually passes up the JFK Regatta to race in the other major event, the FIGAWI Regatta from Nantucket to Hyannis, which attracts 200 boats. This year he passed up the opening day of the FIGAWI but went to Nantucket for the second day of racing on Monday.

Weatherly crew members praised the shared sailing ability of the two Kennedys who took stints at the helm. "Sen. Kennedy is better than a lot of Maxi skippers I've sailed with," said crew member Bill Cunningham, a seasoned worker.

"Teddy and I are so proud to be here with all these great sailors for this great event," said Ted. "Today we had a double reef in the main, and at about 22 knots, that was about maximum intensity for the boat, and she performed beautifully."

In fleet action Sunday three classes braved the puffy northwesterly winds that intensified as the afternoon wore on. The strong winds forced cancellation of several classes, including the One-Designs.

Several of the scheduled races on Saturday had to be cancelled because of the vicious squalls. Bob Grout's Overtaker again took Class A honors, defeating Leo Falion's Claddagh. Third place went to Mike Frigard's Loose Goose.

In Class B, Todd Johnson's Annapurna defeated Stewart Neff's Io. John Dieselman's Pegasus took third place.

Ron Givens, aboard Jumbo, won in Class C, beating out Bob Shepard's Mr. Smooth. Third place went to Voyager, the Coumanez-Williams entry.

The weekend activities began with a skippers' reception and briefing last Friday night at the John F. Kennedy Regatta. Saturday, following the racing, a BBQ reception and dinner was held under the regatta tents and the awards ceremony took place Sunday following the races.

The JFK Regatta is only one of the many activities organized by Marina Bay throughout the busy summer season. Other events include the Dinghy Day Race and Obstacle Course in mid-July and the seventh annual Labor Day Festival Sept. 3rd with an expected crowd of over 30,000 gathering for an afternoon and evening of entertainment and festival fun.

JFK REGATTA host Peter O'Connell talks with Sen. Ted Kennedy aboard the Weatherly, which won the Americas Cup in 1962 and which Kennedy helped win two races over the weekend.

SEN. TED KENNEDY and his son , Ted Jr., are shown aboard their 12-meter boat Weatherly, which they helped skipper to two victories over the weekend in the fourth annual JFK Regatta off Marina Bay.

9th Straight Clinches Berth For North

By TOM SULLIVAN

It couldn't be done but they did it.

The North Quincy baseball team completed a remarkable comeback which saw it turn a 3-8 season around to a final 12-8 record and the Raiders' first Eastern Mass. Tournament berth in 10 years by defeating Brookline, 10-3, in the regular season finals.

North's ninth straight victory not only clinched a tournament berth, but it gave the Raiders the Suburban League championship outright. The 9-3 league mark beat out second-place Waltham and third place Brockton.

North had plenty of momentum going into the tournament with its first game this week.

When the Raiders (3-17,3-17,5-14 the last three years) lost their first three league games and had a 3-8 overall record, it looked like another frustrating season for Coach Leo Donovan and his club.

Poor hitting and some sloppy defense wasted some fine pitching in the first half of the season. Then, everything turned around as the Raiders combined continued excellent pitching with solid hitting and outstanding defense.

Billy Warren, who had two victories including a no-hitter against Waltham, started the finale against Brookline but just didn't have it as he went only 2/3 of an inning and gave up all three runs. Gary Rawdon took over and pitched four-hit shutout ball for his third victory. He struct out five and walked four.

North came back with two in the bottom of the first when Billy MacDougall doubled, Jeff Calvert and Tony Anderlionis walked and sophomore George Rozanitis doubled home two runs.

In the second, Eric DeBoer reached on an infield hit, Billy MacDougall tripled and Calvert singled.

The Raiders added four unearned runs in the third and scored twice in the sixth on Calvert's two-run double.

"Itold the boys at the start of the season that we had the talent to make the tournament," said Donovan. "But it certainly looked bleak for awhile. I can't attribute the remarkable turnaround to any one single player, everyone contributed. We are just happy to be here and we'll take whatever and whoever is given to us."

North's last tourney appearance was in 1979 when Charlie Bunker's team topped Brockton on the final day.

Last season it was Quincy which made its first tourney appearance inn several years and went to the third round, the farthest the Presidents had ever gone, defeating Natick and Brockton and losing a 3-2 decision to Durfee. North hopes to do as well this year.

DeBoer led the pitching staff and is one of the finest hurlers in the state. He had a 6-2 record, both losses due to errors, pitched 49 innings, struck out 68, walked 19 and had an earned run average of under 1.25.

Rawdon won three games, Warren two and Kevin MacDougall one.

Kevin MacDougall led the team with a .368 average, followed by brother Billy.3s .318. Anderlionis had the most hits, 18, while sophomore Rozanitis had 17. DeBoer had two homeruns and Anderlionis and Calvert had one each.

Defensively, Billy Mac Dougall was one of the league's best centerfielders and Anderlionis had a tremendous year at shortstop and, after the bad start, everyone else played strong defense.

Donovan will lose only two starters, Tim Baker and Billy MacDougall through graduation.

Reserves Chris Abate, Mike Dupill and Chris Griffin also graduate.

Coming back will be DeBoer, Kevin and Scott MacDougall, Rawdon, Warren, Calvert, Rozanitis, Anderlionis, Jim Bryan and Jim Glynn.

So, the prospects for next season are extremely bright.

Jaehnig League Underway

The Jaehnig Chiropractic Men's Basketball League has begun the summer season with 10 teams competing on Thursday evenings at 6 o'clock at St. Joseph's gym. This is the league's fifth season.

Kane's Place got off on the right foot in its attempt to defend its summer title with a 72-55 victory over Bake's Club.

Dean Colletti and Mark Millane combined for 43 points while John O'Shea had 19 points and Don Grant 15 for Bake's.

Miller A.C. fought back from a four-point halftime deficit to topple Granite Raile, 63-57. Fred Sundin had a game high 15 points to lead Miller while Wink Phelan and Fred Murray scored 11 each for Granite Rail.

J.B. Heating rolled over Bill's Club, 78-38, behind 18 points by John Byers, 17 for Fred Hamel and 14 for Brian Levitt. Dan Tandler had 15 for Bill's.

Steve Millane netted 28 points, Bruno Giles 22 and Ray Daltz 16 to spark the Greymen over the Quincy Nets, 84-75. Brian Reale kept the Nets close with 22 points.

The Jaehnig Club topped Kelly's Pub, 69-47, behind Mark Jaehnig's 22 points and Paul Cornell's 16. Jeff Rolland paced Kelly's with 18 points.

North Girls Finish On Down Beat

The North Quincy girls softball team, after a come from behind 16-15 win over Quincy which gave it in the city title and the first Mary Pratt Trophy, ended the season last week on a sour note as it lost to Brockton's Suburban League champs, 3-0, and was edged by Brookline, 6-5.

Barbara Webster's Raiderettes finished up at 8-10.

In the finale against Brookline North and a 4-1 lead, adied by Sarah Harrington's triple, but Brookline rallied to take the win.

Brookline capitalized on nine errors and six walks.

Kristin Golden had an RBI single for North.

Earlier in the week Brockton's Chris Girskas shut North out on two hits as the lady Boxers took advantage of three wild pitches.

North's only hits were a double by Terri Goodwin and a single by Harrington.

Harrington and Kristin Drake, who pitched all the North games, were the number four and five hitters in the league, batting over .450.

The Quincy girls finished at 4-12 and had the league's number two batter in Chris Barrett, who hit over .500.

Barry's Defeats Morrisette In Shootout

Barry's Deli won a see-saw battle with Morrisette Post, 14-10, to even its Babe Ruth League record at 2-2.

Morrisette also stands at 2-2.

The winning pitcher was Dave Rafferty, with help from Mike Kelly in the last inning. Rafferty scattered 10 hits, struck out four and walked two. Kelly came on in the seventh and gave up three hits, but assisted on all three outs to end the game.

Chris Peck led Barry's attack with three hits; Danny Kearns, Mike Connor and Danny Duncan had two each and Chris Geary contributed a key hit in the fourth inning. Rookie Chris Geary made a spectacular catch in the right field to halt a potential rally and Connor caught a fine game.

Chris Murphy, Jeff Craig, Neil Hutchinson, Dave D'Olympio, Tom Geary and Jeff Tirrell played strong defense.

Yankees Outslug Orioles, 18-12

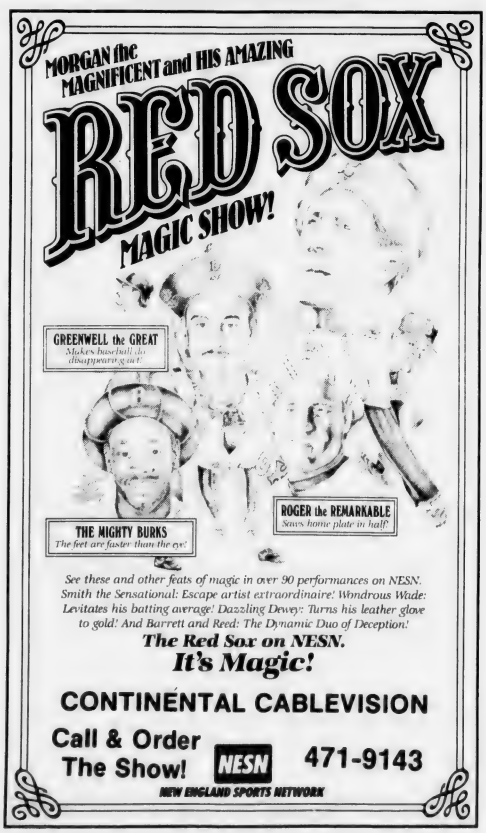
Goodrich and Brian Kalil had grand slam home runs to lead the Yankees' attack. Chris Curry and Mike Sampson also had homers, Mark Foster went 3 for 3 and Greg Peck, Jim Quigley and Mike Clancy also had hits.



Flavin On All-Northeast Second Team

Freshman center fielder Ed Flavin of Quincy, who came within three of the single season Bentley College record for hits, has been named to the Division II all-Northeast Region second team.

Flavin, former Quincy High standout, was the Falcons' leadoff batter for most of the season and led Bentley with a .354 average. His 45 hits equalled the second-best single season performance in the college's history and fell just three shy of the Bentley record of 48, set by mike DeMarco 11 years ago.

Flavin, who had eight doubles, two tripes and two homers in his first college season, led Bentley in runs scored, 24; total bases, 63; slugging percentage, .496, and on-base percentage, .410. He also drove in nine runs and had eight stolen bases.

Flavin, the only Bentley player to see action in every game, also sparkled defensively, making only one error in 36 games.

Over 400 At Ceremonies

25 Inducted Into Quincy Basketball Hall Of Fame

The first Hall-of-Fame banquet of the Quincy High School Presidents Basketball Alumni Association was a pronounced success as more than 400 attended the induction of 25 former Quincy players and coaches dating from the 1920s to the 1970s into the newly-organized Hall-of-Fame at the Bryan VFW Post.

Many of the teammates of the inductees were in attendance as were other Quincy alumni, families and friends.

Guido 'Budsy' Pettinelli, who spearheaded the drive for the Hall-of-Fame, was toastmaster and thanked those in attendance for their support.

He introduced current Quincy basketball coach John Franceschini and his assistants, Ray Papile and Mike Dracchio and congratulated them for bringing Quincy basketball back.

"Quincy's basketball fortunes have been going down in recent years, but these gentlemen have brought interest in the sport back and, with just a little bit of luck the past season, Quincy might have made the tournament," Pettinelli said. "Thanks to their hard work, basketball is definitely on the rise again."

Rev. Mr. Joseph Papile, a Quincy graduate and deacon at St. Tecla's Church in Pembroke, gave the invocation.

"I am the only Papile who didn't take part in athletics at Quincy High," he said.

Pettinelli introduced Supt. of Schools Dr. Robert Ricci, Quincy principal Lloyd Hill and former Celtics great Dave Cowens, whose summer camp is directed by Joe Amorosino, one of the Hall-of-Fame inductees, Cowens was kept busy signing autographs and granting requests to pose for pictures with many of the guests.

Also present was Russ 'Kayo' McIntyre, one of the leading basketball officials in the area for 25 years and a friend of several of the inductees.

Prior to the induction ceremonies, Pettinelli presented special plaques for their contribution to Quincy High basketball to Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth, Quincy Sun sports editor Tom Sullivan, long-time Quincy sports historian Dave Lubarsky, Charlie Ross of WJDA and Roger Barry, Dick Trust, and Seth Livingston of the Patriot Ledger.

The presenters to the inductees were Pettinelli, Quincy athletic coordinator Marty Finnegan and Amorisiono, inductees themselves; former coach Rick DeCristofaro and Franceschini.

FORMER Celtics great Dave Cowens signs autograph for Mars. Cathy Page at the Hall-of-Fame dinner. Cowens' summer basketball camp is directed by former Quincy coach Joe Amorosino who was inducted into the Hall-of-Fame.

In announcing the induction of former coach Munroe MacLean (1938-58), Finnegan, a long time assistant to 'Mac' and later his successor as coach, called him "a legend in his own time." MacLean, a Quincy native and 1926 QHS graduate, coached Quincy to the Tech Tourney championship in 1951. He was named to the Mass. Basketball Coaches Hall-of-Fame in 1964 and was named the Montclair Men's Club Man of the Year in 1962. Also the school's long-time football coach, he died 20 years ago at the age of 61.

DeCristofaro introduced Finnegan (1950-72), and said he was "a player's coach--one who does not measure success in wins and losses." Marty, a 1951 BU graduate, was former dean of students and acting assistant principal. He is nationally recognized as a leader in the field of chemical health.

Franceschini introduced Amorosino, (1972-83) saying he "brought a fire to Quincy's program after being assistant at North Quincy." A member of Sharon High's Hall-of-Fame, he was the youngest coach in the state at Hoplington High at age 22. he directs several basketball camps and is the Director of Community Affairs at Boston University, where he was an assistant coach.

The first player inducted were the oldest, Ellie Hughes (class of 1924), who played with MacLean 65 years ago. The 1924 team lost three top players to mid-year graduating after losing three games and went unbeaten the rest of the year. He instituted the Quincy Elks youth awards.

The late Robert 'Bones' Greenhalgh (1929) scored 89 points in a six-game stretch in 1928, 10 more points than the combined total of the opposition. He scored 19 points in a 45-11 win over Brockton and died recently in San Diego. His son Jim accepted the award.

Vic DiGravio (1935) also a member of the Quincy Football Hall-of-Fame, was an outstanding college and school boy referee for many years. He helped lead Quincy into the Tech Tourney in 1936.

Eddie Dunn (1935) was named to the all-Teach Tourney team in 1935 and was a top semi-pro basketball and baseball player. He was active in youth sports and as a basketball official.

Pettinelli introduced the famed Granite Chips of 1938-39 as a unit. This team of John Joyce, the late Fred DeSantis, George Page, the late Jackie Pettinelli and Ralph Graham, finished 15-2 in 1938 and upset Lynn Classical and Medford before losing to Chelsea, 16-14, in the Tech Tourney final.

Joyce, the 6-2 center for the Chips, also excelled in football. A resident of Beaument, Tex., he was unable to attend on the advice of his doctor and Pettinelli accepted the award and will send it to him.

DeSantis, a 5-7 junior guard who died in 1975, "exemplified a certain toughness, not so much on the floor, but in his heart," said Pettinelli, who presented the award to DeSantis' son, Billy.

Page, spark plug of the Chips as a 5-5 junior, was known for his hustle. He has received Quincy's Fathers Club, American Legion and Munroe McLean service awards.

Pettinelli, a 5-5 sophomore on the Chips died in 1986 while on vacation. The most emotional moment of the night came when his brother, Guido, presented the award to Jackie's widow and, choked up, said "I was and am still proud to be the brother of Jackie Pettinelli." Jackie also is a member of the QHS Football Hall-of-Fame.

Graham, a 5-10 guard and captain of the Chips, said "I was very proud to play on the first team coached by Munroe MacLean, he was a real gentleman and fine coach."

John Killilea (1946) starred at Boston University and began coaching by taking little Old Town, Me.; High to the New England Tournament. He later took Silver Lake to Class A of the Tech Tourney and then coahced at Melrose High.

He was assistant coach of the Milwaukee Bucks of the NBA and is now player personnel director of the Houston Brockton. He was unable to attend, as he was conducting a clinic in Houston, and his award was accepted by his son, Bill, basketball coach at Stoneham High.

George 'Trigger' Burke (1950) broke all scoring records at Quincy, Thayer Academy and the University of Massachusetts. He is a member of the UMass Hall-of-Fame and tried out for the Celtics, being the last player dropped.

Basil "Buzzy" Ciriello (1951) is generally recognized as Quincy's finest all-around player. He led QHS to the New england finals and, on the advice of Red Auerbach, attended George Washington University where he became assistant freshman coahc. An Air Force pilot, he died in Vietnam in 1968. His award was accepted by his mother.

Pete Ramponi (1951) was the leading scorer of the 1951 team and was an outstanding shooter. A first-team Greater boston League and all-N.E. selection, he played at the Naval Academy from 1951-55 and helped the team to the Atlantic Coast title.

George O'Rourke (1951) played basketball and baseball at Northeastern and was a Greater Boston all-star.

Dick Ruggles (1956) was a three-sport star and went on to captain Southern Illinois University. He coached basketball, football and track in a 25-year career at Nashville, Ill., High. He was Illinois High school Basketball Coach of the Year 1965 and is a member of the Illinois Coaching Hall of Fame.

Frank Driscoll (1962) was a three-year star and helped Quincy's 'Firehouse Five' to average 82 points in 1962 when he was all-state.

Billy Nolan (1962) attended UMass and went to New York City. He was remembered for his shooting and his dedicaton to the game. He was unable to attend and his award was accepted by a close friend, Ray Josephine.

Paul Beston (1966) was an outstanding scorer and his coach, Marty Finnegan's strategy was "if Beston's within 35 feet of the basket, give the ball to him," he was th give the ball to him." He was the leading scorer in New England at Eastern Nazarene College and hit a then national record 56 straight free throws.

Paul Fitzpatrick (1966) starred and later coahced at Boston State College. He became assistant coach of the Irish National team, is currently AD and coach at Mass College of Pharmacy and will conduct a basketball camp with former North Quincy coach Eddie Miller.

Jack Uhlar (1975) a 6-6 center, set QHS single-season and career scoring and rebound records, scored 1011 career points including 40 points against North Quincy. Played at Merrimack College and played a year of pro ball in Scotland.

Bill Dacy (1976) was a Suburban League all-star, captained the Patriot Ledgers all-scholastic team, scored 36 points against Waltham and helped Merrimack College to the regional championship in 1978.

Steve Connolly (1977) was the playmaker on a 17-4 team, had a 16 point, 11 assist game against North Quincy and went on to play four years at Curry College.

Pettinelli thanked the members of his committee, Bo Page, Amorosino, DeCristofaro, Finnegan and Francescchini, for their hard work in making the evening one to be long remembered.

102nd Season Underway At Quincy Tennis Club

The Quincy Tennis Club, America's oldest clay court club, opened for its 102nd season recently.

The secluded red clay courts offer tennis as it should be. Although the spring was rather rainy, club manager Bill Fielding has the courts and grounds in excellent playing condition.

The Quincy Tennis Club is the home club for many of New England's finest players. Five QTC members earned number one rankings in 1988. Aileen Smith and Lynne Maloney were the top-ranked women in the A and B classes last year, while new club president Hildy Gillis was top-ranked in Women's C doubles.

Ken Rickson and Charlie Peix were top-ranked in Senior Men's and mixed doubles respectively. Although QTC members have gained N.E. honors, it is still a club for players at every skill level.

Quincy's five courts offer members the opportunity for unlimited play during a season that runs from May through mid-November. Several club tournaments and social events are scheduled. Fielding will be conducting junior clinics and will be available for private lessons.

Those interested in membership information are asked to call Millie Rickson at 479-6106 or stop by the club at 171 Glendale Road.

Youth Soccer Results

Only a few games were played over the holiday weekend in the Quincy Youth Soccer League.

In Girls Under 10, Clean Harbors and the Raiders tied, 1-1. Kerry Duffy scored for Clean Harbors, Erin Tormey assisted and Lauren Corelli, Keryn Ryn and Heather Moore had good games.

Local 103 blanked Boston Advisory, 5-0, on goals by Jean Marie Aikens, Jessica DiBona, Maureen Casey, Karen Sayers and Jennifer Austin. Casey, Aikens, DiBona and Sayers had assists and Nicole Brennion, Joanna Rowland and Erin Madden played well. For Advisory Goalie Nancy Ruscio, Rebecca MacKay, Jaclyn DuBois, Kim Mackey, Julie Ardagna, Lauren Walsh and Ellen Davis played strong games.

Patriot Insurance and Quincy Savings played to a scoreless tie. Dorothy Cronin, Liz Lynch and Kara McSweeney played well on offense for Patriot and Hillery Rogers, Heather McInnis and Meredith Rugg played strong offense.

Patriot Insurance edged Boston Advisory, 1-0, on Mary Mooter's unassisted goal. Kara McSweeney, Robin Wise and Stephanie Sprague played well.

WEEK OF: June 1

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Yours is the sign of communication. You adapt easily but, on the flip side, can be very hard to pin down. The coming six months highlight a new sense of determination and commitment, both to causes and to one or two special individuals.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
An upbeat week, so long as you're willing to participate in some of the diverse events taking place now. Some pleasant financial news may arrive after the weekend.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
News of a family celebration may catch you off your guard. Week may include a reversal of roles. Financial planning is absolutely essential at this time.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Ingenious Aries solves several puzzles in a week that focuses on detective work. Travel too is in the picture, possibly to a once-favorite destination.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Taurus excels at organizing events--business or pleasurable--throughout this period. Travel planning is on the immediate horizen. Partner is more spontaneous.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Gemini may be involved in various dialogues at this time--and you come close to meeting your match in this department. Family-related travel is a highlight.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Friday-Sunday focus on household chores, with the accent on organization. Childhood friend may be trying to reach you. Your pet charity gets a much needed boost.

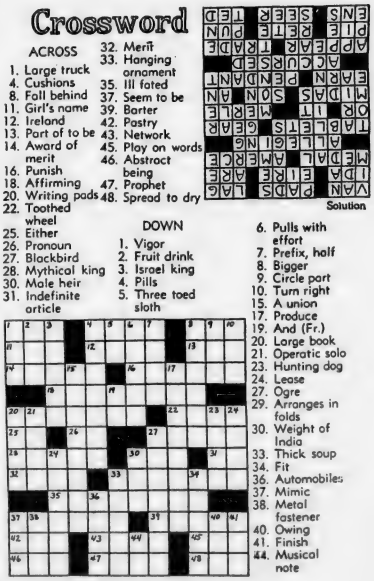
LEO — July 23 - August 22
Week has a musical theme; perhaps you and your favorite friend enjoy the symphony together. Career path has some unexpected curves; diplomacy is essential at work.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Neighborhood feud is put to rest at last, thanks largely to your recent intervention. News from abroad is filled with mystery. Domestic scene is livelier than usual.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Unexpected guests are a way of life at this time. Children see you as a role model and benefit from your natural gifts as a teacher. Money matters are encouraging.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Calendar fills up quickly during an unexpectedly social week. Important happenings are taking place close to home--so close, in fact, that they almost excape your eyes.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Communications improve dramatically through the week-- an excellent time for making amends. New project gets off to a slow start, then picks up lots of steam.



CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Token gift that arrives at this time may be more meaningful than you first believe. Inventive spirit soars; this is a great period for devising new schemes.

BORN THIS WEEK

Lincoln-Hancock 5th Grade Class Wins National Merit Award

Stephen Cantelli's fifth grade class at the Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School has been named a National Merit Award Winner in the Scholastic News KIDS CARE good citizen award.

Sponsored by Scholastic news, America's classroom weekly for grades one through six, the KIDS CARE contest was part of the magazine's third annual national citizenship education program, "Project: KIDS CARE."

The campaign helps elementary school teachers promote good citizen programs with their students. Projects conducted by more than 30,000 students across the United States were entered in the contest this year.

Cantelli's fifth graders' project brought good citizenship and caring to local homeless people through their unique gardening program. The students planted, tended and harvested more than 100 pounds of vegetables which they donated to local organizations who serve the area's needy.

Most of the food was donated to Father Bill's Place, Quincy's homeless shelter, while some of the food was given to Southwest Quincy Community Action Program, Inc.

"The project gave every interested student an opportunity to plant, tend and grow his or her own vegetables," Cantelli said. "The garden was a very real way for us to help the many homeless people in our neighborhood."

Eighteen students from the fifth grade class were honored with the National Merit Award. These students participated in last summer's recreation program of planting, weeding and hoeing the community garden at the Lincoln-Hancock School. The result was 15 types of vegetables for dozens of homeless people to enjoy.

All in all, about 10 classes of students have taken part in the program since its inception.

At a recent honor ceremony at the Lincoln-Hancock School, Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets recognized the award-winning fifth grade class. The class was one of three fifth grade entries to be named a National Merit Award winner by the Scholastic News.

At the ceremony, Cantelli's class received a "Kids Care" banner and each student was presented a "Kids Care" tee shirt.

In describing the program to the Scholastic News, Cantelli said:

"Many of our city's students have never planted a garden. We wanted every interested student in our school to plant and tend and grow his own vegetables and flowers. We also wanted to help the many homeless in our urban neighborhood and by growing our own food, we were able to do it."

The teacher and his students started a 35 to 60 foot vegetable and flower garden on the grounds of the Lincoln-Hancock School last spring and continued gardening all summer. After the food was grown, they walked to Father Bill's Place and donated the produce to the shelter.

In addition to helping the homeless, Cantelli said the project is a good lesson in citizenship.

"Our entire school has become very sensitive to the needs of homeless people who live among us. We have learned to nuture, to share ideas and how to plan a garden.

"Students learned many valuable lessons about their environment and ecology. We learned perserverance and dependability.

"We learned that homeless people would not be homeless if everyone helped, even a little," he said, adding that there are plans to expand the garden this summer.

Contest entries were judged on the students' and teacher's creativity and originality, and the success of the good citizenship contribution to home, school, community, nation or world.

"The entries we received reveal clear, creative goals and spoke directly to every real school and community concerns," said John Lent, publishers and editorial director of Scholastic News.

"With positive guidance from teachers and a team spirit from students, each entry offered compelling proof that our nation's kids do car very deeply about the world around them and do, indeed, make valuable citizenship contributions to it."

Scholastic News is one of 37 magazines published by Scholastic Inc., one of the largest educational publishers in America.

In addition to classroom magazines, it publishes magazines for teachers, children's books, educational software and video programs for network, cable and public television.

Three Programs At Quarries Historic Site

The Metropolitan District Commission's Reservations and Historic Sites Unit will offer three free events at the Quincy Quarries Historic Site in June.

Quincy Quarries Volunteer Trail Crew Work Day will be held Saturday, June 3 at 9 a.m. The day-long program will center on improving existing trails.

Participants should bring a lunch and gloves if they have them. Other refreshments will be provided. For pre-registration and meeting place, call 727-4573.

Granite Railway History Day will be observed Sunday, June 18 from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The West Quincy Quarries were the birthplace of the commercial railroad in America. Horse-drawn carts with six-foot wheels once hauled six-ton loads of granite to the sea.

The event includes travel by van to various historic sites in and around the quarries. The program is co-sponsored by the Mass. Bay Railway Enthusiasts.

To pre-register call 727-4573. Participants should meet at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St. Quincy.

Traces of Our Past--Rocks to Rails will be held Sunday, June 25 at 2 p.m.

Large scale granite quarrying and the commercial railroad were both pioneered in West Quincy. Explore the remains of these two great American industries.

Participants should meet at the intersection on Willard St. and Ricciuti Dr., West Quincy.

For more information on any of these programs, call the reservation office at 727-4573.

MetroParks, a service of the MDC, offers free programs for children and adults. For more information on MetroParks events, call the MDC's public information office at 727-5215.

'A Storybook Christmas' Winning Theme For Parade

The theme contest for the 35th annual Christmas parade drew more entries than ever before, according to George White, general chairman for the Christmas Festival Committee.

A total of 219 responses were entered.

The winning response to the contest, for the first time in the parade's history, was suggested by two entrants. The theme of "A Storybook Christmas" was entered by Miss Barbara Hooper of Germantown and also by Robert Castaldo of Braintree.

Organizations will be notified of the theme and entry forms for floats will be mailed shortly. Mrs. frances mailed shortly. Mrs. Frances Flynn, Float Activity Chairperson, urges all organizations planning to participate in the float contest to return their forms as early as possible as there has been a waiting list in past years.

The float contest will award a $1000 cash prize to the best overall float, as well as the Father Thomas Tierney trophy. Second prize is $500, Third prize is $300 Fourth prize is $200. The floats will be judged on creativity in meeting the parade theme.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It seems that every day, every month and even every year has been given to someone, something or some cause. Pick a cause, there's a week for it! May is no exception. It is, among other things, "Senior Citizens Month." We would like to share some thoughts with you on this ...

If you are a Senior Citizen, take a good look at yourself and your peers, and be proud of all you have accomplished ... in the past and now, in your prime. You have the time to do all those things you put off in your youth because "the kids" or "the job" came first.

If you aren't one, take a look at all the senior power that fills your life. You, your family, your town, would be less today without those wonderful folks called "seniors." Take care of "Senior Citizen Month," and hug your favorite seniors today ... and every day ... THEY DESERVE IT!

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

Charles W. Gaughan, 74

Former Corrections Supt.

A funeral Mass for Charles W. Gaughan, 74, of North Quincy, will be celebrated at 10 a.m. today (Thursday) at Sacred Heart Church. Burial will be in Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

Mr. Gaughan, who was responsible for many changes while superintendent of the Massachusetts Correctional Institute at Bridgewater, died May 25 at Carney Hospital in Dorchester after a long illness.

He retired in 1985.

During his 26 years at Bridgewater, Mr. Gaughan fought for funds to upgrade the facilities and for humanitarian changes. One of his first changes was to extend the hours during which lights could be on in the buildings so that inmates did not have to spend so much time in the dark.

Mr. Gaughan was also credited with getting the new hospital built at the facility in the 1960s and for his pioneering work in the treatment of homeless alcoholics. He established a program where men could voluntarily enter the facility and undergo treatment for alcoholism for 10 to 20 days.

Two years ago, the Mass. Department of Correction established the Charles Gaughan Humanitarian Award for presentation to an employee who demonstrates a humanitarian approach to his work.

Also while at Bridgewater, Mr. Gaughan scheduled increased visitation rights, longer hours out of cells, and several social and educational programs for inmates.

Before joining the Department of Correction, Mr. Gaughan was assistant director of the state Public Health Department Division of Alcoholism.

He was organizer for the Greater Boston Community Council from 1950 to 1952 and also served as an advisor at the Roxbury Boys Club.

Born in Boston he had lived in Jamaica Plain before moving to North Quincy 37 years ago.

He was a 1933 graduate of Boston Latin school and a 1937 graduate of Harvard University. He received his master's degree in English from Boston University in 1938 and a master's in psychiatric sociology from Tufts in 1944.

He was an Army veteran of World War II.

Mr. Gaughan is survived by his wife, Margaret V. (Sullivan) Gaughan; two sons, Dr. Charles E. Gaughan of Marshfield Hills and Dr. Gerald L. Gaughan of Milton; two daughters, Marguerite E. "Peggy" McLaughlin and Elizabeth J. Gaughan, both of Quincy; two brothers, Edward J. Gaughan of Brewster and Lawrence D. Gaughan of Hingham; two sisters, Mary F. McVey of Marshfield and Dorothy A. Woodworth of North Attleboro; and two grandchildren.

Visiting hours were scheduled for 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Gladys Chandler, 90

A funeral Mass for Gladys (Williams) Chandler, 90, of Quincy was held Tuesday at The Hamel, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Burial was at Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Arlington.

Mrs. Chandler, a retired licensed practical nurse who worked many years at the Oceanside Nursing Home, died Friday at the Milton Health Care Nursing Home.

Born in Boston, Mrs. Chandler had lived in Watertown before moving to Quincy 40 years ago.

Wife of the late Whitman M. Chandler, she is survived by a daughter-in-law, Eleanor Chandler of Fort Myers, Fla. and a dear friend, Jeanne McManus of Quincy. She was the mother of the late Whitman M. Chandler, Jr.

Cerasoli Would Restrict Confidential Plates To Law Enforcement

Issuance of the recently controversial confidential plates on state vehicles will be restricted to law enforcement personnel according to legislation drafted by Rep. Robert Cerasoli (D-Quincy) Chairman of the House Committee on Post Audit and Oversight.

The corrective measure is based on a special post audit overview report released this week and stipulates that use of the difficult-to-trace plates by administrative and managerial personnel, "should be strictly prohibited and limited to use by law enforcement officers only."

Cerasoli said that the amended statute, if approved, would state that the registrar of motor vehicles may issue confidential registration plates "to federal, state, county and local law enforcement officers for the purpose of undercover and surveillance activities.

"No additional confidential plates shall be issued by the registrar," it states.

The proposed statute provides for a $1,000 fine for any violation of a confidential plate's proper use by a non-law enforcement official.

It also allows the registrar to, upon determining that a confidential plate has been misused, to revoke or suspend the plate, and impose a fine of $500 for the fine.

The special report further advocated that the Post Audit and Oversight Bureau should conduct a review of a domicile use of state vehicles by employees and determine whether this travel is always necessary. It was noted that driving a state vehicle from an employee's place of employment to his or her domicile is a "taxable event to the employee".

The report states the Internal Revenue Service has set a flat rate of $1.50 per one way commute.

"The citizens of Massachusetts need to be assured that state vehicles are being used properly," stated Cerasoli, "and that each state employee with domicile use of a state vehicle is documenting this taxable event."

Memorial Sunday Service At Squantum First Church

By sharing in the Lord's Supper at a special Memorial Sunday service, members and friends of the First Church of Squantum remembered loved ones who had died, including Jennie Preston, church member who died of leukemia just the day before.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor, preached on the subject. Hymns were accompanied by organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson.

Dr. Langevin dedicated several memorial gifts to the Church given in memory of Dorothy Lincourt, John Preston, Duncan Preston, Harold M. Preston, and Helen Sorensen.

Greeters were Eva Martin and Anne Wallin, the ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes, and the Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Barbara Anderson and Shirley Mason. Assisting the pastor with the distribution of the bread and the cup were Deacons Mindi Hurd, Tom Williamson, Andrew Ogilvie and Kate MacRichie.

Earlier in the morning, the first of a two-week program for teen-agers and adults on the subject of cholesterol was held. The program is sponsored by the Board of Christian Education. This week's session will begin on Sunday, June 4, at 9:15 a.m. before church. The morning service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Child care and nursery will be provided.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light all roads so that I can attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and who in all instances of my life are with me; I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you and even in spite of all material illusion, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Repeat this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even though it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after favor is granted without mentioning the favor.

Memorial Day Keynote Speaker

Comer: 'Freedom Does Not Come Free!'

By JANE ARENA

John P. "Jake" Comer, past national commander of the American Legion, Monday criticized those in today's society who lack respect for the national anthem, the flag, and for the meaning of the Memorial Day holiday.

Comer, keynote speaker at Memorial Day ceremonies sponsored by the Quincy Veterans Council, served as national commander from August, 1987 to September, 1988, also reminded the crowd of about fifty, that "freedom is not free," saying that defense spending cannot be cut from government budgets.

"The first thing people want to cut from a budget when things get tough," he said, "is defense and security. Well, I work in public housing, so I know what unemployment is and welfare and daycare and education, and all of those things are vitally important to the sanity and safety of our people, but not at the expense of the security and defense of this nation. Because freedom is not free, it is something we work at every single day."

Comer said that he and all the city's veterans were thankful to those in attendance of the ceremonies, but especially to the younger people.

"On television just last night," Comer said, "when people were asked 'what does this day mean to you,' we have people say that it means a day off, it means that we can go to the Cape and open our cottage for the year, and we can jog on Wollaston Beach. What a sad commentary to those who have paid the supreme sacrifice."

"When we think back to the men who went down at Gettesburg, from the beaches of Belgium to the shores of Normandy, in Korea, Lebanon, Grenada, the men of the USS Stark and so many other tragedies, that is what we are here for today," he said.

"But we must also understand that we're also here for the living, for those men and women that are in uniform today, men and women proudly serving their country so that we can continue to remind the American people that there shall be no more war."

Comer commended the young people attending the ceremonies, saying that much of today's youth has little respect for the symbolism of Memorial Day.

"You'll realize it many years from now," he said, "when you are the ones that are going to continue these services in the future for our honored dead."

In speaking of his travels around the world as national commander of the American Legion, Comer said that American patriotism is on the decline as compared with other countries.

Comer recalled a trip to his parents homeland of Ireland when he went to the races.

"After the races when everyone was running out to their cars, the skies opened up and it began to rain," he said, "then the band played the Irish National anthem and everyone stopped, turned to face the music, and stood at attention.

"I wonder, in how many states of this country would that happen, where all of us take so much for granted. You can't even get people to stand with their hands on their hearts when 'The Star Spangled Banner' is played, as they should do under our Constitution."

"Take a look at Fenway Park and the Boston Garden when they play there," he said, "it makes me sick to look around when that wonderful song that represents this nation and that flag is played, and they're chewing gum and their caps are on and they could just care less. We must change that. We must continue in 1989 to tell these young people what their country has meant to them and to the future generations to come. I ask you to join me in that endeavor in our schools of this nation."

Johnson Proposal Before School Committee

Let President Run QJC, Says McCauley

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Siding with the president of Quincy Junior College, Mayor Francis McCauley said he favors having the president report directly to the Quincy School Committee instead of the superintendent of schools on college policy matters.

"I think it's time to move on. I think we should let the superintendent of schools run the kindergarten through 12 program and let the president run the college," McCauley said Tuesday.

The School Committee was scheduled to discuss the matter at Wednesday's meeting. The meeting was to begin at 6:30 p.m

Recently, the issue of whether the present governing of QJC should be changed or remain the same has surfaced. Since it was organized in 1958, the college has been governed by the city's school committee.

Part of the governing calls for the president to report to the Quincy School Superintendent, who is secretary of the committee but does not vote.

College President Dr. O. Clayton Johnson has submitted a recommendation which, if approved, would allow him to report directly to the School Committee.

Presently Johnson reports to School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci.

At Wednesday's meeting, Dr. Ricci was expected to submit the present rules and regulations of the college for approval. If this is voted down, McCauley said he would ask the School Committee to support the drafting of a home rule petition to allow the president to report directly to the committee.

"We should address this issue. We should delete from the rules and regulations that the president report to the superintendent," McCauley said.

The Mayor also said the time is right for a change since QJC is "running pretty well," pointing out that the school budget now has a surplus.

If the committee denies Ricci's recommendation and favors a change, McCauley said he would ask City Solicitor Joseph Mac Ritchie to draft a home-rule petition.

The petition would need City Council approval, the mayor's signature and passage by the state legislature before it could be enacted.

If the committee approves Dr. Ricci's recommendation and not Johnson's change, McCauley said he would not push the matter further.

In his recommendation to McCauley, Johnson said QJC has grown into a regional institution during its 31-year history. He noted that the college served more than 60 cities and towns across the state and that fewer than one-third of its students are Quincy residents.

QJC is the only two-year, municipally run college in the state. It has been mostly self-supporting since 1981.

Johnson said his proposal has several benefits and would allow QJC to operate more efficiently as a regional institution.

"We probably should have done this in 1981 when the college became financially independent. But, it's never too late and I think the time has come to do this so that the college can fulfill its regional role," he said.

Johnson also said the plan would free up Quincy public

Parking Firm Awaits Council Approval

A proposal to allow the Metropolitan Parking Systems Inc. of Boston to operate Quincy's parking areas will be discussed at a meeting of the City Council's Downtown and Economic Development Committee Monday, June 19 at 7 p.m.

Metropolitan has been recommended to the City Council by Mayor Francis McCauley after a review committee examined competitive proposals from four parking management companies.

If approved by the council, Metropolitan would replace the present operator, Kinney Systems Inc.

According to Downtown and Economic Committee Chairman Timothy Cahill, Metropolitan offered the city the best package in terms of finances and responsiveness to maintenance, cleanliness, service and security.

Metropolitan has offered to pay the city $125,000 per year, plus additional money based on these gross revenues:

- 25 percent of annual gross revenues more than $250,000 and less than $500,000.
- 45 percent of annual gross revenues more than $500,000 and less than $750,000.
- 65 percent of annual gross revenues more than $750,000.

The city's Department of Traffic and Parking had prepared specifications for the new lease agreement and had advertised for competitive proposals to operate the Hancock and Ross parking areas.

Besides Metropolitan, the city received bids from Kinney, VIP Parking Inc. and LAZ Parking Ltd.

Bids were reviewed by McCauley's Administrative Assistant, Arthur Foley; Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom; Mark Bertman and Robert Colman of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association as well as Cahill.

The committee also toured parking facilities presently operated by the competing firms.

After their review and inspection, the committee endorsed the Metropolitan proposal.

Councillor Stephen McGrath, another committee member, did not join in the recommendation. He said he would like to inspect a lot operated by Metropolitan in a city location.

McGrath, who has been critical of Kinney, said he was pleased the company was not chosen.

Metropolitan presently manages municipal parking garages for the city of Cambridge and operates garages at Children's Hospital, Bayside Exposition Center, Brigham and Women's Hospital and several other Boston locations.

Under Quincy's lease agreement, the parking lot operator collects the parking fees and pays the city a percent consisting of a fixed annual rent and portion of its gross revenues. The operator is responsible for operating and maintaining the parking areas in accordance with specifications to be set by the city.

Parking fee rates are set by city ordinance and will not be affected by a new lease agreement.

Police Interpreter Rehired

Quincy's Police Department interpreter, Hi Thai, has been hired for another year at a part-time salary of $16,000.

The City Council, which approved the appropriation at Monday's meeting, also urged the Mayor to pursue more employees who can communicate with the city's large Asian-American population.

The position, which was first funded by the Gateways Program, is being funded by UDAG money, since it does not appear the state will fund the program again.

Several councillors, including Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretian, said Thai is "indispensable".

"I don't know where the city would be without him. This is money that is well spent," he said.

Ward 6 Counmcillor Thomas Nutley said Thai should be hired on a full-time basis sometime in the near future and that other employees should be hired as well.

"We need more than one part-time interpreter," he said. Thai speaks several Chinese dialects, Vietnamese and Khmer, the language of Cambodia.

Alcohol Banned At Clubhouse

The Fore River Clubhouse will be prohibited from selling or disbursing alcoholic beverages for functions there, announces Raymond Cattaneo, Executive Director of the City's Park and Forestry Department.

The announcement came in a letter to John Gillis, Chairman of the Quincy License Board on Tuesday.

The letter said that "the Park and Recreation Board at its regular monthly meeting of June 5, unanimously approved a motion to prohibit the sale or disbursement of alcoholic beverages at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd.

"This action is deemed necessary in order to protect the city from a lawsuit stemming from the negligent serving of alcohol at the Fore River Clubhouse."

Toland Wants To Check Hospital Amublance Contract

In a letter to City Solicitor Jay McRitchie, City Council President Patricia Toland requested that he appear before the council at its next meeting, June 19, in regard to the awarding of the ambulance contract at Quincy City Hospital.

Toland said she has had some inquiries and complaints about the process and feels it is important to discuss the issue at a council meeting because it is essential to the public interest.

Thayer Principal Named Woodward Interim Headmaster

Marshall B. Litchfield of Scituate has been appointed as interim head of The Woodward School in Quincy.

Founded in 1894, the Woodward School is an independent, non-sectarian liberal arts school for girls, grades 6 - 12.

Litchfield, 55, has been associated with Thayer Academy for 27 years, where he served for the last 21 years as principal of the upper school. He is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and has done graduate work at Penn State, Eastern Nazarene College and Boston University.

He is married and has two children. He has interests in sports and gardening. He began his career at Thayer as a science teacher and has since served in a wide range of academic and administrative roles. He continues to teach courses whenever possible.

Litchfield follows Robert Johnston who is completing ten years as the head of Woodward this June. Following Johnston's announcement in February that he would be leaving, the Board of Supervisors, comprised of Quincy clergy in accordance with the 1869 will of Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, appointed a search committee to select the new head.

The Search Committee, chaired by Rev. Richard Malmquist, minister of First Baptist Church in Wollaston, consisted of seven members, including three supervisors, a parent representative, a faculty representative, an alumnae representative, and one member at large. The Search Committee reviewed 22 applications and interviewed six finalists.

MARSHALL LITCHFIELD

The Board of Supervisors, chaired by Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church, voted to accept the recommendation of the Search Committee at a special meeting May 31 and a reception was held Monday evening at the School for parents and faculty to meet Litchfield.

As interim head, Litchfield will be the academic leader of the School for the coming School year. Although his contract runs to June 30, 1990, Dr. Bennett said that Litchfield has the option to be considered as a candidate for the permanent head.

"We are impressed with his energy, warmth, experience and enjoyment as an educator," said Dr. Bennett. "He brings many fine qualities to Woodward that we are looking for. It became immediately clear to us that Mr. Litchfield thoroughly enjoys teenagers -- inspiring the, coaching them, and disciplining them, too, to achieve what they are capable.

We expect he will be very involved personally in the life and programs of the school.

"We are confident that Mr. Litchfield will provide excellent academic leadership and will emphasize Woodward's continuing traditions of small class sizes, individual student attention, and providing a creative, supportive, and challenging educational environment in which our young women can best develop their talents and character."

O'Connell Seeks Probe Of MWRA Headquarters Selection

Mayoral Candidate Peter O'Connell Tuesday appeared before the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries with members of the Inspector General's staff to protest the siting of the MWRA Headquarters at a yet to be constructed building on Parcel 18 in Boston.

O'Connell urged the MWRA to locate it's headquarters at the Quincy Shipyard where the Authority plans to construct a sludge processing facility.

O'Connell has asked for an investigation of the selection process by which the MWRA board picked the Roxbury site over the Quincy shipyard for its new headquarters.

The hearing Tuesday was on that request for the investigation on the grounds that it violated the laws of the Ward Commission. The ruling from Tuesday's hearing is expected within a month.

Tuesday's hearing resulted from "protests" filed by Peter O'Connell and the Inspector General of the Commonwealth In a letter dated May 31, O'Connell said that the MWRA failed to follow the state's designer selection and competitive bidding statutes when it selected Parcel 18. O'Connell reiterated that the Quincy shipyard is the only site that met the requirements of those laws.

O'Connell's submission to the Department of Labor and Industries today states that those statutes were drafted by the Ward Commission in 1980 and, together with the law creating the Office of Inspector General, constitute the cornerstone of the legislative effort to eliminate waste, fraud and corruption in public building contracts.

"When Inspector General Barresi tells us the public building statutes enacted in the aftermath of the Ward Commission's hearings are being violated, we should sit up and listen," said O'Connell. "If we ignore the lessons of the past, we are condemned to relive them in the future. I cannot sit idly by the side and watch that happen."

Labor and Industries has the authority to investigate claims of violations of the construction statutes and to bring judicial proceedings to restrain the award of illegal contracts. O'Connell's submission to the Department concluded with a request that it exercise that authority.

Hazardous Materials Topic For Emergency Planning Committee

Members of the City Council have been invited to attend the Local Emergency Planning Committee meeting to be held Wednesday, June 14 at 10 a.m. at Civil Defense Headquarters, 55 Sea St., Quincy.

Among the topics for discussion are:

- Which hazardous chemicals business and industries are using and transporting through the city.
- What councillors should do in the event a hazardous materials accident occurs.
- Reminder on where Quincy's evacuation shelters are located.
- How many disabled, blind, deaf, special needs, nursing homes, day care center and senior citizens complexes are in the city.
- Update on the number of cars and trucks using city streets and highways.

Tony Siciliano, chairman of the Local Emergency Planning Committee, said councillors should attend the meeting because of their leadership position.

"The leadership and decisions that he or she must make in emergency and disaster situations are crucial to the survival of people in our city," he said.

"I have heard the expression "Are we supposed to worry about every truck rolling through this city."

"My answer to this is no, but you had better be concerned with the tanker that rolls over and spills its contents because it is hazardous materials, and it could result in injury or death." Sicilano said.

Council Seeks Alternative To Composting At Shipyard

In an effort to stop composting at the Fore River Shipyard as part of the Boston Harbor cleanup project, the City Council supports t he establishment of a residuals alternative local advisory committee.

The committee's purpose would be to recommend to the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority's executive director and Board of Directors a viable alternative for the treatment of sludge other than composting at the shipyard site.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, who introduced the resolve, said "We're very, very close to eliminating composting at the yard. If we don't pick up the ball now, we might miss out at eliminating composting."

He noted that MWRA Director Paul Levy has publically stated he would prefer to drop composting as a secondary or alternative method of processing sludge.

Cheney also said that composting is "one of the most offensive methods of residuals management."

The Committee would be made up of representatives from the mayor's office, the Quincy City Council, Paul Harold's office, Ward 2 Civic Association, State Representative Robert Cerasoli's office; Congressman Brian Donnelly's office; MWRA, DEQE, EPA, and the city's health department and technical consultant.

9.5% Education Loan Rate

The interest rate on the Family Education Loan and Graduate Education Loan has been set at 9.5 percent for the start of the 1989-90 academic year, announces Rep. Michael Morrissey (D-Quincy).

This will be the third consecutive year that the Massachusetts Educational Loan Authority (MELA) has been able to maintain this below-market interest rate.

MELA was created in 1982 through an act of the Massachusetts Legislature in response to concerns about the affordability of higher education. The authority's purpose is to provide low cost financing options for families with children attending participating Massachusetts colleges and universities.

Forty-seven public and independent colleges and universities in the state offer MELA loans.

"This is a great opportunity for many families who are unable to afford the incredible high costs of education," Morrissey said.

"MELA provides families and students with educational loans that are substantially below market rates. I encourage everyone to take advantage of the low monthly payments and the fixed interest rate," he said.

UMBRELLA POLICY

We can't emphasize enough the need for an umbrella policy for almost everyone. Many people can avoid serious problems and/or total financial wipeout if they have the right protection.

As the name implies, an umbrella policy gives wide protection and covers many situations such as libel suits, coverage far beyond your auto policy limits, amounts far exceeding your homes liability limits and can even cover expenses if your pets create a liability.

A common question is, "how much umbrella coverage should I have?" Like all other types of insurance, the answer is dependant on each individual's needs. If you are in an occupation that is subjected to many lawsuits, you might want to think of 5 to 10 million dollars. On the other hand, if your financial status would not subject you to high risks, a 1 to 2 million dollar policy might be ample.

A review of your present homeowner, auto, boat owner's policy and some fact findings would enable your broker to recommend the proper umbrella policy for you. Why not call us and make an appointment for your review.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Please visit our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy or give us a call at 471-6200.

Who's Leading For Mayor?

Who's leading in the mayor's race?

That question is being heard more frequently as the mayoral campaigns pick up momentum and perk voter interest.

The four major candidates -- Joseph LaRaia, Steve McGrath, Peter O'Connell and James Sheets -- all sound optimistic at this stage.

Each is optimistic about nailing down one of the two nominations in the Sept. 12 preliminary election. But none is willing to predict -- publicly at least -- who the second nominee will be.

Fifth candidate William Jensen, a political novice, seems to be a virtual unanimous choice for fifth spot.

But, in a tight mayoral race he could be a factor as to who lands the two nominations. A few hundred votes going to him could spoil it for one of the four major candidates.

So, don't dismiss him as the traditional also-ran. Not this year anyway.

Well, who is leading?

Depends pretty much on who you are talking with.

You hear "McGrath and Sheets," "Sheets and O'Connell," "O'Connell and LaRaia," "LaRaia and McGrath," etc. Name your own combination and you could be as much on target as the so-called political experts.

Actually, the four seem to be pretty well bunched with no one in a commanding lead. It's really too early to call.

But there seems to be some "feelings" or hunches emerging out there.

Some observers see Sheets, a popular Ward 4 Councillor for 16 years, hurting LaRaia in West Quincy. That's an area LaRaia could usually count on.

Until Sheets entered the race, some observers were conceding LaRaia one of the two nominations. But although some are still willing to give him one of the two spots, others think he is really going to have to work for it in West Quincy. That he can't rest on or rely on past votes that usually came his way from out of there.

LaRAIA

But, there are still a lot of people who agree on this point: you can't count LaRaia out of any election. He's had his ups and downs through the years, but he always seems to get back up.

There's also the feeling that O'Connell appears to be "coming on." He got off to a stumbling start the very first week of his campaign but now seems to be on an upward path as he meets people at coffee hours or while knocking on doors.

O'CONNELL

McGrath's name seems to be the most often mentioned when it comes to pairing off the two nominations. His name comes up more often with the other candidates. And their names don't come up as often as his. Sheets is considered by many as "the sleeper" in this year's race.

McGRATH

He didn't cause that much of a stir when he made his announcement although he had a full house showing strong support. But again, the so-called experts, weren't giving him much of a chance. But he seems to be scoring pretty well at the debates -- or forums -- and picking up points.

SHEETS

Who will get the two nominations?

There are four candidates who will tell you they feel they will be one of them.

But at this point no one seems to be betting which two they will be.

□

STEVE McGRATH opens his mayoral campaign headquarters tonight (Thursday) at a 7 p.m. open house at Hancock and School Sts., Quincy Center. The public is invited.

The location is considered "lucky" as it has served as the campaign headquarters for a number of political winners including Mayor Francis McCauley (three times), Congressman Brian Donnelly, U.S. Senator John Kerry and State Senator Paul Harold.

□

WARD 1 COUNCIL candidate Peter Kolson has taken out his nomination papers. But, the other announced candidate, Marcia Olinto hasn't. And, that has some observers wondering.

But it's still early yet. Deadline for taking out papers is Aug. 4. And the deadline for filing them, Aug. 8.

□

SHEA

A FUND RAISER for Ward 4 Council candidate Joseph Shea is set for Sunday at Morrisette Legion Post, Miller St., West Quincy. It's a family style brunch starting at 11 a.m. Tickets are $10 and will be available at the door.

□

SENATOR Paul Harold will be the featured speaker for the 11th year in a row at the Annual American Legion Boy's State program at Bentley College, June 18.

HAROLD

Harold represented his high school (Sacred Heart in Weymouth) as a student in 1965.

Let President Run Junior College Says Mayor

school administrators by allowing them to concentrate on grades kindergarten through 12. Under the present format, Johnson said QJC is considered an extension of the school system. However, he said this should be changed because the college is now a regional junior college and no longer an extension of the city's public schools.

Ricci, who prefers the existing set-up, but is not against change, said a policy proposal should be reviewed thoroughly before a change is enacted.

"If something new comes along, I don't have a problem with it. I like the idea of a K through 14 program. I would prefer to have that system in place," Ricci said, calling the set-up "an exciting opportunity" for education in Quincy.

"It's an exciting possibility having a K through 13 arrangement. It is rare and before we change it we should look at it closely," he said.

Johnson also said the idea is sensible since the college is virtually self-supporting. The school operates on revenue generated from tuition, grants and fees.

The only revenue Quincy supplies is for services the college provides to the city, Johnson noted.

As superintendent, Ricci said he plays a role in setting QJC policy but is not involved in the college's day to day operations "at all".

"The superintendent has an oversight role in terms of policy decisions. I never go into the college and assume control," he said.

Johnson emphasized his plan would not change the present structure for college employees. "None of this really changes the contracts we have with our employees. We still want to operate under this contracts."

Ricci, who said there are many implications to Johnson's plan, such as budget management, said he was agreeable to a task force examining the issue.

"I would like to see the college study this idea more. I would want more consideration of what the college could be and should be before a change is made in its governing."

"Before we jump we should study it and then come up with a blueprint for the future direction of the college," Ricci said, adding the issue is more than simply eliminating his role.

"It's not as easy as just pulling the superintendent out of the equation."

Ricci also questioned whether the school committee should be the appropriate governing body for a college that is now regional.

"I'm not sure the Quincy School Committee should be the governing body because of the makeup of the college's enrollment," he said.

The issue of governance has also been discussed by some city councillors, including Councillor Stephen McGrath who has called for the mayour to appoint a task force to look into the matter before any change is proposed.

McCauley, who said he agrees with McGrath's concern, does not think a task force is necessary.

"I don't think we need a task force. The question is crystal clear," the mayor said.

McGrath's call for a task force divided some councillors and sparked a small debate between McGrath and Council President Patricia Toland.

Councillors Lawrence Chretian, Michael Cheney, Thomas Nutley, Charles Phelan and McGrath support the task force concept, while Timothy Cahill, Ted DeCristofaro and Toland said they were opposed.

"McGrath said, "I feel it is time for us to review and consider any changes (in the college's governing). I think a collective wisdom should review this.

"It's sensible and let's see what kind of a system we should have," he said.

Cahill disagreed. "This is a school committee matter. If the school committee wants us to review the matter, that's fine. Until they come to us, it should remain in their heads."

Toland, a former school committee member, cautioned McGrath, a mayoral candidate, and other councillors, about getting involved in this issue during a political year.

"Maybe the chain of command is not as efficient as it once was but since it's a political year, we ought not to get into it until after November," she said.

McGrath, who had suggested the task force report its findings by October, said they could take longer if they desired.

Chretien Criticizes Mayor On Leaf Composting Delay

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien has criticized the decision of Mayor Francis McCauley to delay action on the implementation of a leaf composting program.

Chretien, chairman of the Recycling Committee said:

"My committee recommended leaf composting in June of last year. The Mayor's reasons for delaying the program until the fall of 1990 are just plain inadequate."

Chretien said McCauley gave two reasons for delaying action.

"The first was cost," Chretien said, "but our consultant has advised us that leav composting would pay for itself in about three years. After that, we would start saving over $160,000 per year.

Any taxpaying businessman would tell you that's a phenomenal rate of return. Furthermore, that's without the grant money offered to us by the state and rejected by the mayor."

"Second," Chretien said, "the mayor stated it is doubtful we could be operational by October. What he didn't say was that his Commissioner of Public Works told me just a month ago that this particular site at the landfill was good for composting this fall.

For over a year we have been looking at this site and now the Commissioner tells us it's not the right one?" he said.

"The solid waste crisis is a fiscal time bomb similar to the water and sewer situation. To solve the problem we have to be committed and we have to think beyond the current fiscal year.

"Consequently, I am disappointed by the Commissioner's lack of commitment and the mayor's failure to recognize a good investment," he said.

"Despite all this, I am encouraged by the mayor's statements that he will continue working on recycling. Figures have recently been compiled which show that participation in the paper recycling program is already good enough for the City to save some money.

However, more folks will have to pitch in if we want to save our goal of $100,000. If we would participate at the same rate as the town of Lexington, we would save about $250,000," Chretien noted.

7 Month Bus Strike Settled

June 8-14 1959

30 Years Ago

Service returned to normal on Eastern Mass Street Railway Co. bus routes but patronage was reported down following settlement of a seven-month strike of drivers and mechanics, longest in Eastern Mass history.

The New Haven Railroad said that of the 1,700 new commuters it picked up as of a result of the strike only 380 went back to riding the buses and many others were still using other alternative means of getting to work.

Twenty of the 125 drivers in the Quincy division failed to report to work on the first day after the settlement. It was said that seven had taken other jobs, eight were on the sick list and five were giving a week's notice to new employees.

The drivers, who were getting $2 an hour, and the mechanics, who were getting $2.16, sought a 25 cents an hour increase. They settled for 6 cents retroactive to Oct. 1 and an additional 4 cents starting July 1, 1960.

ADVICE FROM THE JUDGE

Chief Justice Paul C. Reardon of the Massachusetts Superior Court told the graduating classes of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools not to plan their lives in terms of security.

"Such thinking," said the Quincy-born jurist, "strangles the free man or woman, reducing him too often to a vegetable status in a large organization."

3 Quincy Residents To Be Honored By Dante Alighieri Society

Three Quincy girls will be among 14 honored at the Ballo Beatrice honors presentation by the Dante Alighieri Society of Massachusetts to be held Saturday June 10 in the Grand Ballroom of the Copley Park Plaza, Boston.

The Society annually honors a group of outstanding young women of Italo-American heritage on the basis of academic achievement and extra-curricular volunteer services within their local community.

Named for Beatrice, the great love of Dante, who is celebrated in his Divine Comedy, the Ballo Beatrice is one of the few remaining honors presentations in the United States.

After the honorees are presented to society, they are introduced to outstanding professional dignitaries of the Italo-American community.

The honorees from Quincy are:

Jane C. Amendolare, a member of the graduating class at North Quincy High School, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Amendolare of Wollaston. She has been a high honor roll student for four years, and last year received the Student Council Award for outstanding service and achievent. She is listed in "Who's Who Among American High School Students" and is an active member of Students for the Preservation of Walden Pond. She received the Good Citizen Award for 1988-89 from the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Most Spirited Cheerleader Award in 1989.

She has served as Class Treasurer for four years as a member of the Student Council. She was a member of the Cheerleading Competition Squad for three years and a member of the Italian Club for four years, serving as its Treasurer for the last three.

She is also a two-year member of the Foreign Language National Honor Society.

Among her many extra-curricular activities, she was a National Fair participant, a member of the Pride Committee, a Blood Drive Volunteer, a Special Needs School Store Volunteer, a St. Margaret's Hospital Volunteer and she appeared on Channel 7's Youth Forum. She is also a member of S.A.D.D. and is co-chairperson of her school's Peer Education Program.

Her choice of college is undetermined but she plans to attend a Liberal Arts program.

Katherine L. Alberti, a member of the 1989 graduating class of North Quincy High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Alberti of Quincy.

An honor student for four years, she is a member of the National Honor Society and the Foreign Language Honor Society.

She is a member of the Year Book Committee, the Drama Club, a tutor in Italian, and is also active on the S.A.D.D. Committee.

She was an English tutor during her senior year and is past president of the Italian Club as well as Homeroom Representative for three years.

She volunteers her services at the Cerebral Palsy Center, the Children's Development Center, and the YMCA Day Care Center.

She plans to attend Boston University and major in occupational therapy.

Kara R. Fletcher is a member of the graduating class of North Quincy High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fletcher of Quincy.

She is a member of the Latin Club, the Drama Club, the Spirit Committee and is President of S.A.D.D.

She is responsible for coordinating and implementing the Peer Education Program at North Quincy High School and has been active on the Year Book Committee, the Prom Committee and the Cheerleading Squad.

She has volunteered at the Friel Nursing Home and Carney Hospital.

She attended a seminar on substance abuse and was part of a television panel discussing alchohol and drug abuse.

She plans to attend Syracuse University in the fall.

'Celebration Of Ministry' At Bethany Congregational

A worship service in "Celebration of Ministry" will be held Sunday, June 11, at 10 a.m. to mark the close of Rev. Joel F. Huntington's seven years as Associate Minister at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy.

Rev. Huntington's pastoral work has been primarily with children, youth, young adults and their families, and church growth. With his family, his wife Tora and daughters Julia and Margaret, he will move to Pittsfield, MA, where he will be senior minister of South Congregational Church.

Rev. Huntington's farewell sermon will be "Listening For Love." Tora Fernald Huntington will read the Scripture, and Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will be liturgist.

"The Plymouth Ringers" from the Plymouth Congregational Church of Lawrence, Kan., will "ring out" the Huntington family with the blessings of the Bethany congregation. This group of high school and college students, on a 15-day tour for the ninth consecutive year, will play Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. at Plimoth Plantation.

Following the worship a farewell ceremony for Rev. Huntington and his family will take place in the sanctuary.

At 11:30 a.m. an extended Fellowship Hour in honor of the Huntingtons will be held in the Allen Parlor and parish house. Lisa Andre and Eileen Lonsdale are co-chairmen of the Farewell Committee.

The public is invited to the worship service, and to share in the farewell ceremony and fellowship hour.

Additional information concerning Bethany's ministries and programs may be obtained by contacting the church office at 479-7300.

License Granted For Mug 'n' Muffin

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a common victualer license for a Mug 'n' Muffin Restaurant at 55A Billings Rd., formerly Vaughans.

Atty. Carl Johnson, representing William Kennedy, President of Mug 'n' Muffin, Inc. with general offices located at 531 Washington St., Quincy said that the site already holds a common victualer license as well as a beer and wine license from a previous restaurant. He told the board that Mug'n' Muffin, a "medium priced family restaurant" seeks only the common victualer license. No alcohol will be served.

Johnson submitted detailed plans to the board and noted that extensive renovations are planned for the site, including the addition of new equipment which will meet the requirements of city ordinances.

Johnson said the restaurant will seat 106 customers, and will employ about 25 people. He also said that, although the restaurants are commonly franchised, the Mug 'n' Muffin Corporation does maintain standards of food preparation, service, and the cleanliness and maintenance of the establishments.

He further noted that most of the restaurants are family-owned.

Johnson told the board that the building is fully accessible to the handicapped and that new bathrooms have been installed.

There are about 65 parking spaces available for use, he said, and an additional 25 in the rear of the building.

Johnson explained that, in addition to the seating, the restaurant would also sell ice cream for take out at the front of the store.

There was no opposition to the license proposal, and Johnson tole the board that Ward six Councillor Thomas Nutley had been notified and had no opposition.

The license was granted pending approval of the Fire, Health and Building Departments.

Extra Police Officer Ordered At Montello's

By JANE ARENA

Montello's, 53-61 Mass Ave. will have to hire an additional detail police officer for any future functions due to continuing complaints from area residents, the license board said Tuesday.

Atty. Richard Barry, representing owner Paul J. Montello, told the board that there have been a total of six functions at the establishment since January 1, 1989, not including the sober dances sponsored by Project Feelings, which are no longer held there.

Barry further said that at one of the functions there were three officers on duty and at another there were two officers because both of Montello's halls were in use for those functions. At smaller functions, he said, only one officer, Jerry DiRigo, was on duty. DiRigo said there have been functions with as many as 250 patrons.

Residents in the area are complaining about noise, trash, and young people drinking in their cars which are parked throughout the neighborhood during functions at Montellos.

Residents have been complaining repeatedly about the problems for years, said Ward Two Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, often calling him late at night after the functions have ended.

DeCristofaro tole the board that, in his opinion, most of the problems "would be erased" if patrons were made to park in Montello's parking lot and not on Mass Ave. He noted that there are "a few" 'No Parking' signs on the left hand side of the street, but residents say it is not enforced.

Police Chief Francis Finn noted that the Police Department "cannot possibly address all the parking problems in the city," and said that the problems must be addressed as complaints occur.

The parking lot at Montello's, which is presently unlined, has room for abour unlined, has room for about 60 cars, ample parking for "most functions," according to Barry.

Barry said that an additional officer could be hired to direct traffic to park in the lot.

Residents said that many patrons arrive at Montello's as late as 11 p.m. and park on the street. They told the board that an officer is needed outside for the length of the functions.

Officer DiRigo told the board that he has tried to monitor the problems outside Montello's in the past.

"You haven't done it effectively," Police Chief Francis Finn said, noting that the neighbors have been complaining about the problems repeatedly.

The residents agreed that officer DiRigo has done a "very good job on his own," but said that he needs some assistance.

When directly asked by Fire Chief Paul O'Connell what they would be satisfied with, residents said that they request an additional police officer "to strip the street of these kids."

The board's final motion calls for Montellos' to hire two officers for each function, one for inside and one for outside. One officer must be on duty one half hour before any function begins to direct parking into the lots, and he must continue to monitor the parking, from Manchester St. to Grafton St., until one hour before the function ends. In addition, the parking lot is to be lined and the establishment is to have an employee clean the area early in the morning after a function.

Children's Sunday At Wollaston Congregational

Wollaston Congregational Church will celebrate Children's Sunday on June 11 at 10 a.m.

All classes will take part in portraying scenes from "The Life of Jesus." Bibles will be presented to children completing the second grade, and gifts will be given to high school graduates.

Jennifer Walker will read Luke 18 from the Scriptures.

Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern's sermon, "Time for Children" will discuss the importance of children in the church, the family, and in society. Flowering plants will be given to each child. Greeters will be Michael and Steven Steniford, Jr. A musical prelude will be given by the Hand-Chime Choir directed by Don Reade, music minister. This choir includes Sunday School children as well as adults.

Receiving the Sacrament of Baptism will be Anthony Gordon Whittemore, son of Lisa Whittemore, and Catherine Margaret Hanson, daughter of Glenn and Margaret McNeill.

Last week Devon James DeWever, son of Elaine (Greenough) and James DeWever, was baptized. He is the grandson of Sue Greenough.

Council Approves Grant Block With Stipulation

Next year's Community Development Block Grant budget of $1.8 million was unanimously approved by the City Council Monday with a stipulation regarding revenue for a housing partnership program.

The council decided that none of the $127,500 earmarked for the Quincy Housing Partnership program could be spent without council approval.

At a previous council meeting, there was some concern raised over a proposal for the partnership money. It was previously earmarked for six $21,400 home mortgage loans for middle income families with a combined income of $30,000 or less.

It was also unclear how and when the money would be paid back to the city as well as the eligibility for the program.

After the budget was referred back to the council's State and Federal Funds Committee, several councillors met with members of the partnership program to iron out a compromise.

After meeting, it was decided that the money should go to the partnership but without a specific proposal. Only Quincy residents who are in low income families could apply for the assistance.

Those who receive assistance would pay the money back into a revolving account.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, who criticized the original proposal, said he was satisfied with the new arrangement.

"I'm happy this proposal has been changed. I don't question the work of the housing authority. I just though the original proposal was not serving the public," he said.

"I feel we should commit these monies and then look at some other proposals," Council President Patricia Toland said.

"Basically, it's going to help those trapped by renting," said Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien. He noted that the money would probably be used to help first-time home buyers.

"Our interest is to help these people and to maximize our tax money," Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney added.

'The Heart Of Freedom' Sermon Topic At United First Parish

"The Heart of Freedom" is the title of the sermon that Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister, will deliver during the 10:30 a.m. service this Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian) Quincy Sq.

Norman Corey, Music Director, will play organ works by Mendelssohn, Couperin and Buxtehude. Ushers will be Tom Keto and Richard E. Post. Ruth Keating is the hostess.

Beginning at 2:30 p.m. there will be a potluck dinner, letter writing and a film on Human Rights in South Africa, hosted by the Social Concerns Committee of United First Parish Church and the South Shore Amnesty International Group.

Speakers will be Saths Cooper, an AI prisoner of conscience and contemporary of Steven Biko, and Aggroy M'Bere who in addition to his work at Roxbury Community College, is a member of the African National Congress. The public is invited. There is no admission charge. Call 471-9703 for further information.

Historic First Parish Church, "Church of the Presidents," will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and those of their wives are contained in a crypt in the church.

Visitors are welcome and are invited to the Social Hour immediately following the service. For more information call 773-1290.

Rev. Gordon Benson Interim Pastor At Covenant Congregational

At the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts. Rev. Gordon Benson, interim pastor, will continue his sermon series on "Thriving or Surviving."

Rev. Benson has served as interim minister for several area Covenant Churches, most recently at North Easton. He is a graduate of North Park College and North Park Theological Seminary in Chicago, Ill. He holds an MA in Marriage, Family and Child Counseling from University of Santa Clara, Ca. He is currently working on a doctorate in pastoral counseling at Boston University. He was recently awarded a grant by the Covenant to continue his studies.

The choir, directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will sing the introit and two anthems. Smith will play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude.

Graduates, both high school and college, will be honored during the service. Childrens Day will also be recognized. There will be a coffee hour immediately following the service to honor the graduates.

A nursery is available for children up to age five. The attendant will be Gitta Dano.

A new pastor has been called and if the call is accepted, the new co-pastors Rev. Cathy Graves-Johnson and Rev. Kirk Johnson will assume their duties on Aug. 1, 1989.

For more information about any of the church's activities, please call the church office at 479-5728.

Michael J. Smeglin of Quincy has been named to the Dean's List at Laboure College in Boston for the winter commencement. He is a nursing student.

St. Anthony's Festival At St. John's Friday, Saturday

The 14th annual St. Anthony's Festival, sponsored by St. John's Church, will open Friday following a 5:30 p.m. Mass and procession in honor of St. Anthony of Padua, Patron Saint for Italians.

On Saturday at 4 p.m., Bishop Robert Banks, Vicar of Administration for the Archdiocese of Boston, will be the principal celebrant and homilist at a special Mass. Portions of the Mass will be in Italian and readings from Scripture will be in Italian and read by Mrs. Ornella Sweeney.

Immediately following the Mass children of the Parish, assisted by members of St. John's Holy Name, will process with the St. Anthony's statue from the church to School Street and onto the church grounds. The statue will be on display both days.

Small loaves of bread will be blessed and distributed in honor of St. Anthony. It has been customary to pin donations to the statue and distribute the bread. Devotees of St. Anthony offer special prayers for their own intentions.

REV. DANIEL GRAHAM will be guest celebrant of the Mass honoring St. Anthony Friday, June 9 at 5:30 p.m. at St. John's Church. Fr. Graham, former associate pastor at St. John's was the general chairman of the annual St. Anthony's Festival for 13 years. He is currently parochial vicar at St. Brendan's Church in Dorchester.

The two-day festival which has become one of the most popular religious, social and cultural events of the spring season along the South Shore, will run from 6 to 11 p.m., Friday and from noon to 11 p.m., Saturday.

A wide variety of events, games, booths and special surprises will be offered for all members of the family. A feature of the Festival are the many tempting and tasty foods, pastries and delicacies that are available.

In addition, there will be crowns and music provided for singing and dancing.

A large committee of parishioners has been working for several months in planning this event. Fr. Gary Sullivan, Parochial Vicar, is festival coordinator. Rosemarie Martin and Diane Acorn are program co-chairpersons.

A just-published cookbook entitled "Burnt Offerings" is on sale. A committee headed by Diane Acorn compiled the cookbood based on some 500 favorite or special recipes submitted by St. John's parishioners.

Proceeds from the festival will be used to benefit the building, maintenance and charitable funding programs for St. John's Parish.

Nancy Gerard Receives Day Care Shelter Working Award

Nancy Gerard, an evening shift supervisor at Father Bill's Place, was recently presented the Direct Care Shelter Workers of the Year Award during a ceremony at the World Trade Center in Boston.

Gerard was the nominee from Father Bill's Place, Quincy's homeless shelter on Broad St. One of 10 shelter workers to be recognized, she was in competition with 105 shelters across the state.

The award is sponsored as a cooperative effort between the Massachusetts Shelter Providers Association, the Department of Public Welfare and the Fund for the Homeless.

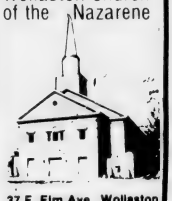
Gerard was nominated by the shelter's guests and staff.

Her nomination stated: "As a mother of five young children, it would be easy to understand if she came to work, did her duties, and left without another thought. But, Nancy arrives early, stays late, picks up extra shifts when needed, and often gives phone consultations with staff from home.

"She is at every training and staff meeting.

"From the client's point of view she is caring and loving, yet very consistent in enforcing the rules. She provides a sense of security because guests know what to expect.

"When having to enforce rules, she is able to disapprove of the behavior, but not the guest. Her sense of humor is second to none. In her spare time, she is out sitting with guests, getting to know them."



Gerard was also nominated for being a "calm supervisor" and organized. "She can handle every problem, enjoys every good part of the job and never quits smiling."

Richard Crespi Candidate For School Committee

Richard P. Crespi of 73 Ruggles St., Quincy, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the Quincy School Committee.

"The reason I am running for the school committee is to be a voice for the betterment of the Quincy educational system. Under Prop 2½, the Quincy educational system had to make severe budget cuts, layoff teachers, reduce or eliminate programs and stoip or reduce school building repairs," Crespi said.

"If elected, I will do all I can to see that the system is one the entire community can be proud of," he said.

Crespi, 46, has sat on various boards, including Pollard School PTO, Point

RICHARD CRESPI

Junior High PTO, City-wide Parents Council, St. Joseph School Board and the Norfolk County Agriculture Advisory Board in Walpole.

A 1960 graduate of Quincy High, he has an associate and bachelor of arts degree in law enforcement from Northeastern University and a master's degree in city affairs from Boston University.

He is married to the former Helen Elias and they have five children: Richard, 22; Deanna, 20; Daniel, 19; Robert, 17 and Joseph, 16.

He served in the U.S. Army from 1960 to 1963.

Crespi has also coached in several youth baseball and basketball organizations. He coached in the Babe Ruth League from 1984 to 1987, Junior Farm League from 1975 to 1982 and the YMCA'a Church League Basketball league from 1983 to 1985.

Kim Meadows Wins Top Journalist Award

Kim R. Meadows, a resident of North quincy and a student at Emerson College was recognized by the Society of Professional Journalists at the Region One Awards Ceremony held recently in New York. The ceremony included colleges from New England, New York and Pennsylvania.

Meadows, a member of Emerson's 1989 graduating class, majored in print journalism. At the SPC Competition, she won first place in the spot-news reporting category.

Vo-Tech Graduates Guests At Surprise Breakfast

What was supposed to be an ordinary cap and gown distribution for seniors at Quincy Vocational-Technical High School last week turned into a festive breakfast for the graduates.

The seniors, who believed they were returning to the school just for their caps and gowns, were served a festive breakfast of ham, eggs, fruit and homefries in their honor.

The menu was prepared and planned by Head Counselor Richard Haines.

The student's last official visit to their high school was colored by the sounds of warmth, laughter and good conversations that accompanied the home-cooked breakfast.

"This is the kind of activity that makes a memory," said Joseph Mazzarella, director of Quincy Vo-Tech.

Planning Board Hearing

The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to hold a public hearing and meeting Wednesday, June 7 beginning at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers and Second Floor Conference Room in City Hall.

In the conference room, hearings were to be held on two zoning changes.

At 7 p.m., the board heard a request for a change in zoning from industry B to open space land located in West Quincy, off Ricciuti Dr., owned by the city.

At 7:10 p.m., a change in zoning from residence C to residence A land located on the westerly side of Willard St. (No. 519 to 591) was to be heard.

In the Council Chambers at 7:30 p.m., the board was to hold a joint hearing with the City Council regarding a planned unit development special permit for one single-story, 54,000 square foot building at 572-618 Southern Artery and 108-128 Field St. by Quincy Group Realty Trust.

The building would include 38,000 feet of retail and commercial space with an accessory recreational building.

After the hearings, the Board was to act on 21 agenda items.

THE NEW HOME of Medical Associates of Quincy in Crown Colony Office Park.

Medical Associates Moves To Crown Colony Office Park

Medical Associates of Quincy, Inc. has moved to 500 Congress St. Quincy, inside the new Crown Colony complex.

It's former address was 21 School St. Quincy Center.

Medical Associates has purchased 10,000 square feet of office space at 500 Congress St. a building which is known as the Crown Colony Medical Office Condominium, to better accommodate its patients.

Founded in 1972 by Dr. Gerald Rosenblatt, M.D. Medical Associates has developed into a multi-specialty and primary care group practice. Six physicians practice within the group, with its seventh and newest member, Barry Miller, M.D. starting his practice in June, 1989. The addition of Dr. Miller to Medical Associates reflects Medical Associates' interest in serving its patients to its fullest capacity.

The Medical Associates physicans are Gerald Rosenblatt, internal medicine and cardiology; Robert Sipzener, internal medicine and gastroenterology; Charles Schwartz, internal medicine and gastroenterology; Kenneth Einstein, internal medicine and pulmonology; Dennis Goldin, internal medicine and arthritis; Carl Brodie, internal medicine and arthritis; and Barry Miller, internal medicine, oncology, and hematology.

In a further effort to provide the best possible care for its patients, Medical Associates has also improved upon its state-of-the-arts equipment. Some of the equipment found at Medical Associates, 500 Congress St. include a modernized laboratory, an X-ray facilities, and a new computer system.

Roger Randall, the office manager of Medical Associates, is enthusiastic about the move to 500 Congress St.

"I look forward to working in the new office," said Randall. "The larger office space, should help to make Medical Associates run more efficiently. Medical Associate will be able to give better patient care as a result."

Most health insurance plans are accepted by Medical Associates. They include Blue Cross/Blue Shield, Bay State Care, Pilgrim Health care, and others.

Medical Associates' major hospital affiliation is with Quincy City Hospital. Its other hospital affiliations are Braintree Hospital, Carney Hospital, Milton Hospital and South Shore Hospital.

BOSTON GAS COMMUNITY Affairs Director Thomas Nutley, left, conducts a workshop initiating the company's new multi-lingual safety program. Boston Gas has made the program available to all community agencies using a multi-media approach in Spanish, Creole (Hatian), Chinese and Vietnamese.

1st American Bank Introduces Lease-To-Buy Low Interest Mortgage Program

1st American Bank for Savings announces the introduction of EQUITRACK, an innovative mortgage program that allows qualified buyers to enter a lease-to-buy arrangement, crediting their monthly rent toward a down payment for the home's purchase.

The program also features a below-market, buydown mortgage.

1st American senior vice president Jim Allardice said the EQUITRACK program is the first of its kind in New England, and opens the Boston area's expensive housing market to buyers with sufficient income who have not been able to accumulate the large down payment required in today's market.

The program is a cooperative venture between 1st American and the developers of seven Greater Boston condominium and single-family home communities including: Mill Creek, a 240-unit luxury high rise condominium community in Chelsea; The Estuary, a 22-unit waterfront condominium community on the Neponset River in Dorchester; Kendrigan Place, a 78-unit development in Quincy; Greystone, a 17-unit condominium building in North Quincy; the Courtyard at Webb Place, a 36-unit garden style community in Mansfield; the Herring Pond subdivision in Plymouth, and the High Knob subdivision in Athol.

"We're very excited about EQUITRACK," says Allardice, "It's a win-win situation for both our customers and the participating developers: more first-time buyers will be able to enter the market, and as a result, housing sales will grow."

As an example of how EQUITRACK works, Allardice said that potential homeowners with a total annual income of $43,000 could purchase a $110,000 condominium by accumulating a down payment through monthly rental payments to the developer. Allardice added that upon acceptance into the program, the buyers lock in a purchase price that would inevitably increase by the time a down payment could be accumulated through savings.

Allardice said that EQUITRACK's initial qualifying rate is adjusted annually until it reaches the initial market rate, when it becomes fixed for the remainder if the 30-year term. Participating developers contribute approximately 3% of the mortgage amount to an escrow account that is used to make up the difference during the adjustment period. "The lower initial mortgage rate allows 1st American to qualify buyers with income levels that would make them ineligible for the loans at the market rate," said Allardice.

For more information in EQUITRACK, interested parties should call 1st American Bank at (617) 282-0922.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Baking soda tackles variety of spring cleaning tasks throughout your home

In your house is a very economical cleaning product—you can find it in the refrigerator, the freezer, the bathroom, possibly the cupboard—but you may not even know it! For less than a dollar, you can clean your house from ceiling to silverware, always leaving your home clean and fresh.

What is it? Give up? Then put on your work clothes, roll up your sleeves and grab a box of ARM & HAMMER® Baking Soda. It's time to get a head start on spring cleaning, and baking soda gets the job done in every room of your house.

Your high traffic kitchen is the household hub, bustling with never-ending activity everyday. Between the cooking, eating and socializing that takes place, there are numerous spills and accumulated dirt that need to be cleaned.

Why not start with your refrigerator? Wash down the walls, wipe out the drawers, and rinse the shelves of the refrigerator with a baking soda solution.

Once you have cleaned the refrigerator, place an open box of baking soda on the back shelf to neutralize odors and prevent taste-transfers. A second open box in the freezer will keep ice cubes and ice cream tasting fresher longer by absorbing stale freezer odors.

Kitchen appliances often require a thorough cleaning to remove buildup accumulated from cooking spills. To clean and deodorize without scratching the surfaces, use a baking soda paste of three parts baking soda to one part water. Wash appliances, rinse with clear water and buff dry.

If the constant tracking back and forth of your kitchen traffic has left black heel marks on the floors or linoleum, sprinkle baking soda onto a damp sponge and rub into the marks. Rinse and buff dry. The baking soda crystals remove the marks, without scratching your floors.

After a winter of using the oven and microwave, it's time for a welcomed switch—the outdoor grill. Before your first cookout, clean the grill to remove any food or grease.

Soak the grill in a solution of four tablespoons of baking soda per quart of water. For stubborn, burnt-on food, sprinkle baking soda on a damp sponge and scour rack lightly.

Another helpful tip for outdoor cooking: Keep a container with baking soda near the grill to extinguish flames in case the fire flares up. Since baking soda is of food grade purity, it won't harm the food on the grill.

Now, you're ready to move on to the bathroom. Everything in the bathroom can benefit from the effective cleaning qualities of baking soda. Give your shower stall, tub, toilet, sink and chrome fixtures a thorough cleaning with a paste made by sprinkling ARM & HAMMER Baking Soda on a damp sponge.

The scratchless abrasivity of baking soda removes dirt and grime while deodorizing bathroom surfaces. For persistent stains, such as mildew or soap residue, sprinkle baking soda on a damp sponge or stiff-bristled brush and gently scrub area. Rinse and buff dry.

As part of this thorough cleaning binge, do not neglect your bathroom medicine cabinet and closet. Discard expired prescriptions and products that are no longer used. Sponge down cabinet shelves and sides with a baking soda solution and buff dry for a finishing touch.

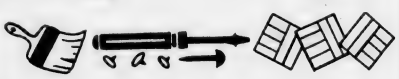
KEEPING UP WITH THE MICRO REVOLUTION, the Window Covering Division of Hunter Douglas offers sophisticated, stylish micro-thin horizontal blinds for added privacy and light control.

Home Fashion Keeps Up With The Micro Revolution

Microchips. Microfilm. Microcards. In today's high tech society, it's not easy to keep up with the micro revolution. But the window coverings industry has done just that by creating a micro blind, with slats half the size of standard one inch mini blinds and high fashion appeal.

The designer of this traditional library chose easy-to-clean micro blinds by the Window Covering Division of Hunter Douglas for their practicality as well as good looks. Closed, they provide excellent light control, added insulation benefits and greater privacy control. Fully opened, micro-thin slats virtually disappear, allowing for increased visibility to the outdoors.



Hunter Douglas offers a complete line of slim, tailored micro blinds in forecast colors to coordinate with tile, carpeting, wallcoverings, paint and other home furnishings.

Here, a rich and sophisticated garnet red was chosen to complement the stenciling trim over the chair rail, red leather chair and red tones in the mahogany desk.

If you've been waiting for spring to give your home a fresh look, start by updating your window treatments in the latest styles—and keep up with the micro revolution.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Lightscape the night away, stylishly

Homeowners in search of new ways to improve their home may hear a new word these days: "Lightscaping."

Simply put, lightscaping means landscaping your yard with install-it-yourself low-voltage lighting.

Low-voltage lighting products extend backyard entertainment hours, personalize yards and improve safety and security.

Low-voltage lights are safer, easier and less expensive to install than regular lighting. There is no risk of shock because low-voltage lights operate on 12 volt direct current instead of the 115 volts used for regular household lighting.

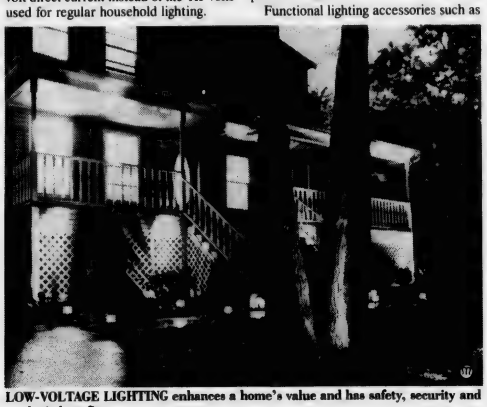
Real estate professionals say that attractive landscaping can add as much as 15 percent to a home's value, and bring as much as a 200 percent return on the investment in plantings.

A wide variety of low-voltage outdoor lighting fixtures and accessories, which are both aesthetic and functional, is available.

Popular lighting fixtures include: Variable-focus floodlights, cylindrical post lights and wooden accent lights. The fixtures can be used to emphasize architectural or landscape details around patios, pools or walks.

Functional lighting accessories such as motion detectors or alarms allow low-voltage lighting systems to function as security systems.

The Toro Company offers an infrared motion detector which plugs directly into most low-voltage lighting systems, turning the lighting on when any motion is detected within a circumscribed area. Also available is an indoor security audio alarm.



"Basic lighting packages of four to 10 fixtures, which include all the necessary materials for installation, are available for $50 to $100," said Tom Swain, marketing manager for The Toro Company's Home Improvement Division.

"And, because low-voltage lighting uses so little household current, the system costs as little as three cents to run for five hours."

Here are a few hints to consider when lightscaping your yard:

- Use temple-shaped accent lights along walkways or sidewalks for safety.
- Consider mushroom-shaped garden lights along the edge of plantings for definition.
- Try uplighting, or shining floodlights up into trees and bushes, to create moods and establish emphasis.
- Define paths and driveways by downlighting with floodlights.
- Try moonlighting, or shining a light down from high in a tree, to create emphasis and to diffuse light over a large area.
- Use stylish, cylindrical post lights around a gazebo or deck for aesthetics and access.

For a free booklet on low-voltage outdoor lighting, write: The Toro Company, 5300 Shoreline Blvd., Mound, MN 55364. SH894199

LOW-VOLTAGE LIGHTING enhances a home's value and has safety, security and aesthetic benefits.

Home improvement checklist

It's sunny outside, the temperature is comfortable and Mother Nature is reminding you that now is the perfect time to prepare your home for the summer months ahead.

The key to accomplishing successful interior and exterior home improvements and lawn care projects is organization.

First make a list

Before you begin, make a list of the projects that you will undertake and a list of the materials and tools you will need for each task.

A little preparation will save you a lot of time and numerous trips to the store.

Here is a sample list of some easy home maintenance projects and a shopping list of supplies and tools you will need to accomplish these tasks.

Home improvement projects
Inside the home

- Add attic insulation;
- Clean carpets and curtains;
- Repaint kitchen;
- Spruce up your bathroom.

Lawn & garden care

- Clean yard of winter debris;
- Prune dead tree limbs;
- Fertilize and seed lawn;
- Water lawn, trees and shrubs.

Outside the home

- Touch up paint outside of home or clean siding;
- Remove, clean and store storm windows;
- Install screens;
- Patch roof;
- Clean gutters of leaves
- Clean air conditioner

Get fancy decks with wood specialty products

The goal for many homeowners building a deck fence or gazebo is to get professional results without paying for professional labor.

This season, pressure-treated specialty wood products such as spindles, lattice panels, fancy fence boards and stair stringers are widely available.

As a result, anyone can get beautifully turned spindles, exactly measured stair stringers and steps, and delicate lattice without having to work a lathe or cut and nail many small pieces.

The newest specialty product designs from Weyerhaeuser LifeWood are good examples of these time-savers.

The turn-of-the-century "Sir Richard" and "Queen Anne" spindles, matching "Queen Anne" handrails and Colonial design newel posts, finials and finial bases now allow homeowners to match the railing on a deck or porch to that of the house, regardless of the period of construction.

In choosing and using pressure-treated wood, remember to buy only a reputable brand name with an American Wood Preserves Bureau stamp to avoid possible shoddy, poorly treated lumber.

Also, never burn pressure-treated wood because burning breaks the bond between the wood cells and the chemical treatment.

For more information on how specialty products can spruce up outdoor structures, call Weyerhaeuser's consumer information line at 1-800-328-4646. SH894195

WEEK OF: June 8

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Adaptability and flexibility are your key characteristics. You're known for your quick wit and your ability to mix with people; most of your relationships, however, are on a fairly casual level. Some travel dreams may come true this year, but planning ahead is most important.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Week has a holiday flavor, thanks perhaps to new friends from faraway places. Shopping for antique items may prove a positive experience. Career demands intensive concentration.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Good week for pooling ideas; together, a small group can come up with a real brainstorm. Organizational skills are sharp; you may be selected for a leadership post.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
A skill that you've been putting off learning can be mastered now with a minimum of effort. The news of a loved one's promotion has a positive effect on you as well.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Excellent week for wrapping up projects and unwrapping presents. Friday-Sunday highlight your social life. A friend admits his/her mistake after the weekend.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Friendship scene is quiet, so use the week for self-improvement--embark on a fitness program, enroll in an academic program, or take on a brand new hobby.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Week sees you in a demanding frame of mind, perhaps expecting too-high standards from your nearest and dearest. Projects started now eventually bring you into the limelight.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Various circumstances lead to a possible promotion at work or in a community role. Older relative benefits from your frank but very loving observations.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
All members of the family benefit from a thorough health review. Avoid shortcuts, especially in diet department. Your small gifts mean much to those you admire.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Your role model may let you down momentarily, but the positive effect is that you realize he/she is human too. Financial planning is accented throughout the week.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Avoid extremes in all areas--diet, travel, work. Creative activities are positively spotlighted and may have a money-making twist. Good week to enjoy places you've only dreamed about.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Your role now is to bring out the best in others and make people feel good about themselves. Opportunity for earning extra cash may open up at this time.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Week sees you making some critical decisions; it may be beneficial to consult older relative. Sarcastic friend may get your goat; you shouldn't suffer in silence.

BORN THIS WEEK

McCauley, Kaufman Honored

324 Graduate At Quincy Junior College

Quincy Junior College graduated 324 students at commencement exercises originally scheduled for Veterans' Memorial Stadium but moved to Quincy Vocational-Technical School gymnasium because of the threat of rain.

Mayor Francis McCauley was the keynote speaker. McCauley spoke on the meantime of education and of the responsibilities of education.

"The true test of education is not the assembly of facts," he said, "because a lot of them are going to pass out of your mind ... it is the process of learning, the process of defining problems, the process of approaching problems, of analyzing problems and solving those problems that is the main ingredient of education, and you've done that - this will carry you throughout your days, not only in your chosen profession, but also in your private life."

McCauley also asked that the graduates take responsibility to give something back to their community.

"Be active in your communities, give something of yourself," he said. "We (Quincy) wouldn't have the city that we do if it weren't for volunteer groups ... so, wherever you go, please give something back, be active, do a little something above and beyond the call of duty. If you do that you will be successful."

McCauley was awarded an honorary degree presented by his daughter.

The College's first Distinguished Alumni Award was presented to Ron Kaufman, Deputy White House Personnel Director and a native of Quincy.

Kaufman, who said that his days at Quincy Junior College were "probably the best days of my life," told the graduates that on the wall of his White House office hangs a certificate from Quincy Junior College. "It tells you that all of you can be there, too," he said.

The graduates:

Associate in Arts Degrees: Mary P. Anderson, Linda E. Capone, Anthony M. Capozzi, Kimberly A. Carle, Dorothy M. Cesario, John J. Coleman, M. Claire Collins, Noreen E. Connolly, Gina M. Curcuru, Deborah A. Davis, Gary F. Donadio, Susan E. Dugan, Priscilla G. Flynn, Virginia M. Ford, Robert A. Lundgren, Patricia M. Sabourin, Kristin E. Sampson, Kimberly A. Shea, Linda M. North Outslugged In Tourney Opener

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy baseball team's season ended last Saturday when it was outslugged by Natick, 12-9, in the first round of the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

The 15th seeded Raiders(12-9) didn't go down without a fight before second-seeded Natick(17-4), just as it didn't go down when it was 3-8 at mid season.

Leo Donovan's North team staged one of the best comebacks in years to win its last nine games of the season to finish at 12-8, win the Suburban League title outright and make the tournament for the first time in 10 years.

"These kids didn't know the word quit and they had a tremendous season," Donovan said. "When we lost our first three league games and has a 3-8 record at mid-season nobody gave us a chance of coming back. But the kids put everything together and achieved two goals, winning the league title and making the tournament."

North showed its fighting spirit against Natick when it trailed, 12-5, after five innings. The Raiders scored four runs in the next three innings and had the tying run at the plate with two outs in the ninth.

It was a perfect matchup between North's Jim Bryan, who had hit two home runs and a double and driven in three runs, and Natick reliever Will Goulart who had hit a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth to keep Natick safely ahead.

Veteran Natick coach John Carroll went to the mound to talk with Goulart. "I told him to throw nothing but breaking stuff," he said. "He(Bryan) was looking for the first fat fastball and he wasn't going to get it."

Goulart (7-2), who has relieved starter Joe Lamb in the fifth to gain the win, got Bryan to pop to shortstop to end the game.

There were six home runs in the game, three by each team. Bryan has two and Jeff Calvert one for North, while Lamb, Goulart and Tom Brown homered for the home team.

Lamb's three-run homer in the first put Erick DeBoer, the Suburban League's top pitcher (6-3) in early trouble, but Calvert hit a two-run blast in the top of the third.

After Natick scored once in the third, it added four in each of the next two frames for a 12-5 lead.

Billy Warren relieved DeBoer in the fifth but he didn't fare any better as he gave up three runs including Goulart's two-run homer with two outs. But Warren settled down and allowed only two hits over the last three innings, retiring the last six batters in order.

"Billy did a fine job," Donovan said. "We just wanted to get a couple of innings out of him, but he did better so we stayed with him."

North out-hit Natick, 14-12, with Bryan, Calvert, Billy MacDougall, George Rozanitis and Tim Baker all having multiple-hit games.

This was a season the kids will remember for some time and, with only two starters, Billy MacDougall and Baker, graduating we have a lot to look forward to next year," said Donovan.

JOHN CRISTIANI of Quincy batted .337 this season for the Suffolk University baseball team. He was the center fielder and also pitched and won two games. A senior majoring in management, Cristiani graduated from Boston College High in 1985.

Zone 6 Legion Season Underway

The Zone 6 American Legion baseball season was scheduled to open last night (Wednesday) with Wollaston hosting Randolph at Adams Field and Morrisette playing at Carter Post in Dorchester.

Quincy opens tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 against Holbrook at Adams Field.

Friday night Morrisette and Wollaston meet at 8:30 at Adams and Quincy plays at Randolph at 6 o'clock. Monday it will be Wollaston vs. Holbrook at 8:30 at Adams, Morrisette at Milton and Quincy at Carter Post at 6. Next Wednesday Morrisette will host Braintree at 8:30 at Adams.

Last season Morrisette finished second to Braintree with a 12-4 record and was eliminated by Milton in two one-run games in the playoffs.

Quincy enjoyed its best season years with a 9-7 mark and made the fourth and last playoff berth. It gave first-place Braintree all it could handle as it last in three playoff games.

Wollaston had an 8-8 record and was in the running for a playoff berth until the final week of the season.

Wollaston, which has done well in pre-season scrimmages, opens with a pitching staff of Chris Higgins and Tom Roberts of Thayer Academy, Dave Hutchings and David Gamsby of North Quincy, Bob Austin and Chad McMahon of Quincy and Sean Cafferty of B.C. High.

The catching duties will be handled by Jim Bryan of North Quincy and Chris Noble and Fred Regan of Quincy.

In the infield Scott Logan of Quincy and John Shea of B.C. High will see action at first base, Higgins, Mike Noonan of Quincy and Keith Oliver of North Quincy will be at second, Bill Bellew of Abp. Williams, Aaron Skomial and Gamsby will see duty at shortstop and Sean Thompson returns at third along with Noonan and McMahon.

Patroling the outfield will be Shea and Regan in left, Rich Keddy of B.C. High, Roberts and Noonan in center and Hutchings and Thompson in right.

In addition to its 18-game Zone 6 schedule, Wollaston will play in the Skip Morrison Tournament in Lynn.

Mike Powers was the hitting star in a 5-4 victory over the Pirates with three RBI. Chris Bregoli was the winning pitcher with six strikeouts. Jose Luis Diaz had two hits for the Pirates.

Kevin Walsh was a complete game winner in a 19-9 win over the Red Sox. Rusty Corner had four hits for the Dodgers, including a n and two doubles. Powers also had two hits. William Armstrong had two hits, a home and triple, for the Red Sox and Mark Kelly had two hits.

Powers was the winning pitcher as the Dodgers topped the Tigers, 18-12. Steve and Jeff Marks and Chris O'Hare starred for the Dodgers and Brian Doyle, Mark Stanton and Billy Walker stood out for the Tigers.

Philip Belmont was the hitting star in a come-from-behind win over the Angels. Pat Colbeare, Andy Mauriello and Jake Flemming also played well.

Jocelyn West, Matt Kane and Matt Tobin had good games for the Angels.

Corner, with relief help from Bregoli, topped the Braves, 10-7. Walsh had two hits for the Dodgers and Scott Cooper had two. For the Braves, Brad Smith had a three-run homer and Tom Daley played well.

The Dodgers handed the Mets their first loss, 10-5, with Corner again getting the win. Cooper had a triple, double and single and Ron Gamel had two hits. Jonathan Brillo also had a hit. John Sullivan homered for the Mets.

Bregoli picked up the win in a 19-12 win over the Orioles. Bregoli had five RBI and Brian Brownell had a grand slam homer. Flemming had two hits. Mike McEvoy and Mike Stentiford played well for the Orioles.

Karen Reister To Attend Rutgers

Karin Reister of North Quincy of North Quincy will attend Rutgers University in the fall where she will play volleyball.

Reister led North Quincy to the state title in 1987 and was named to the Suburban League all-star team as an honorable mention selection. She was named the team's Most Improved Player in 1986 and 1988. This past season the Raiderettes were co-champions of the Suburban League and made the sectional finals.

● Jaehnig League

Bill's Club Winner In Double Overtime

Bill's Club outlasted the Miller A.C., 67-65, in an exciting double overtime game to highlight the second week of the Jaehnig Chiropractic Men's Summer Basketball League.

Jim Tandler intercepted an inbounds pass with seven seconds to play in the second overtime, dribbled the length of the court and scored the winning basket for Bill's(1-1). Tandler scored a game-high 26 points and Dave McGloin had 12 for Bill's. Fred Sundin had 17 points and Bob McNamara 16 for Miller(1-1).

In another thriller, the Greymen (2-0) topped J.B. Heating, 68-66. Ray Baltz and Bruno Giles had 18 points apiece for the Greymen, and Steve Millane had 17. Danny Murphy had a game high of 21 for the undermanned Heating team(1-1) which had to play with only five men. Brian Levitt added 18 points.

Kane's Place (2-0) rolled over Granite Rail(0-2), 77-48, behind 33 points for Mark Millane and 22 for Dean Coletti. Jim Kelly was high for Granite Rail with 12.

In another mismatch Steve Belcastro scored 23, Brian Reale 18 Arturo Russell and Jeff Timberlake 16 each to power the Quincy Nets (1-1) over the Bay State Bombardiers (0-1), 84-45. Rick Boyle had 17 for the Bombardiers.

The Jaehnig Club (2-0) topped Bake's Club(0-2), 76-57, with Marty Connolly scoring 19 points, Chuck Jaehnig 16, Paul Carnell and Mark Jaehnig 11 each and Paul Leonard 10. John O'Shea scored 18 of his game-high 22 points in the second half for Bake's and Dan Grant had 17.

Games are played on Thursday evenings at St. Joseph's gym in Quincy Point and the public is invited.

Goalies Take Spotlight In Youth Soccer League

The goalies stole the spotlight in last weekend's final Quincy Youth Soccer League games.

The results:

Girls Under 10: Local 103, 8, Clean Harbors 0. Karen Sayers scored two goals and Jean Marie Aikens, Maureen Casey, Jessica DiBona, Erin Madden, Colleen Blake and Laura Shea one each. Summer Sports Camps And Instructional Workshops Announced

The Quincy Recreation Department will again sponsor its popular summer sports camps and instructional workshop programs.

New offerings have been added this year to bring the number of camps and workshops to 13, that the depatment supervises on a self-supporting basis.

One new activity is "Arts and Crafts Camp," open to beginner and intermediate skill levels. Instruction is simple projects that may include decorations, arrangements, paintings, ribbon, and lace work that would result in a completed project. This camp is under the direction of Ann Howie, a well known instructor for many area agencies.

Another new activity is "Softball Camp." This program will focus on improvements of each participants existing fundamental skills. Instruction will be provided in all aspects of the game: hitting, fielding, baserunning, and pitching, as well as developing more advanced strategies for offense and defense. This camp is under the Direction of Joanne Ruane, Head Coach of Women's Softball at Regis College.

The third new activity is, "Track, Field, and Distance Camp," this program is a hands on learning environment focusing on the basic fundamentals of sprinting, relay racing, hurdling, distance running, and all field events. This camp is under the direction of Geoff Hennessey, Head Coach of North Quincy High School and the Quincy Track Club.

The camps added to the Recreation Department in 1982 have become increasingly popular each year.

According to Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation, "These camps and workshops have been designed to give Quincy residents a low cost alternative for youngsters who desire specialized instruction without the high cost usually associated with residential camps."

"The week long programs are under the direction of highly qualified coaches and staff from the area, and will feature individual instruction and an approximate ratio of one to ten. The programs are offered on a self-supporting basis, and in previous years, have provided many memoraable recreation experiences without additional tax support."

Registration for all programs will begin Thursday, June 8, and will continue weekdays from 8:30 a.m. -4:30 p.m. at the Recreation Department Office, 100 Southern Artery.

Enrollment is limited and is taken on a first come first serve basis.

Travel Teams Finish On High Note

The Quincy Youth Soccer League's travel teams finished their season on a high note, winning eight, losing three and tying one.

Flower Loft's girls under 16 team defeated Rockland, 4-1, as Tricia Hughes scored two goals and Julia Stewart and Amy Bertrand one each. Tara Miles, Hughes, Stewart and Karen McCabe had assists.

Flower Loft then lost to Weymouth, 6-2, with Hughes and Miles scoring the goals. Miles' was unassisted from a corner kick and Janet Fennelly assisted on the other. Stephanie Suchan and Stewart played well.

Mul's, in its first year as a travel team, also got by Abington, 2-1, on goals by Hogrell and Erin Flaherty. Sarah Satkevich had an assist and Eileen Sherman, Christine Goff and Brenda Linehan had strong games. Mul's finished with a 4-1-4 record.

Commercial Celing's boys under 10 team finished a perfect season (9-0-0) with a pair of shutouts.

Commercial blanked Whitman, 6-0, on goals by John Barron, John Sullivan, Billy Walker, Brian Doyle, Chris Bregoli and Shaun Walsh. Mark Stanton, Brian Herlihy, Doyle and Matt Norton had assists.

Commercial also shut out Hanson, 4-0, with Walker, Stanton, Mark Miller and Ryan Herlihy scoring the goals. Sullivan, Barron, Norton and Bregoli had assists.

American Legion Post 95 got by Abington, 1-0, on John Marinilli's goal. Jarred Downey assisted and Brad Smith and Loken Andrea played well.

L.C. Plumbing's boys under 12 team topped Whitman, 3-1, with Mark Cellucci scoring twice and John LoPriori once. Anthony Andrea and Shawn Hoy had fine games.

Fleming & Langlois was edged by Weymouth, 1-0, despite pressuring and outshooting the winners throughout the game. Eric Wertz, Geoff Meade, Tom Cunio and goalie Tommy Sullivan had excellent games.

Pandick New England topped Easton, 5-0, with Josh Wingate scoring two goals and Dan Donahue, Scott Kelly, Bob Verney and Sean Joyce one each. Scott Starsiak and Shawn Johnson had assists and goalie Tom Meade was outstanding.

Loud Hurls 3-Hitter To Lead Bryan Post

Steven Loud pitched a three-hitter and struck out nine to lead Bryan Post to a 9-4 victory over the firemen in the Quincy Babe Ruth League. Loud has 25 strikeouts in 19 innings.

Bryan's 14-hit attack was led by Tom Nutley with a triple, double and single, Joe Marnikovic's two doubles and single and Rob Kane's three singles. Mark Kelleher tripled and singled, Mike Malvesti two hits, including a double and Paul Murphy singled twice.

Catcher Kelleher and shortstop Kane anchored Bryan defense. Infielders George Wirtz, Bill Morrissey and center fielder Richie Gorman played well and Todd Portesi, Philip Bell, Terry Sheehan, Sean Skahan and Jeff Breslin also contributed to the win.

Tom Courtney, Mark Karlson and Mike Wood had a single each for the Firemen and shortstop Courtney played strong defenes.j

Granite City Electric defeated Morrisette, 5-3, behind the three-hit, 11-strikeout pitching of Eddie Costello, who is now 3-0.

The game was tied at 3-3 after six innings. With two outs in the top of the seventh, Keith Norris walked, Costello singled and walks to Robbie Guarnieri, Brian Jennette and Scott Wysocki forced in the two winning runs.

Vin Anderlionis, Norris, Costello, Guanieri and Andy Veneziano had singles. Also playing well were Danny Burke, Paul Colleary, Justin Ackerman, Mike MacDougall, Jamie White and Kevin Boylen.

Mike Kavanaugh pitched well for Morrisette in his first start, allowing five hits and striking out 11. Shortstop Tom Ridge anchored Morrisette's defense. Third baseman Tom Benner took over as catcher in the late innings and was impressive. Matt Riley and Sean Connelly(2) had hits.

Morrisette manager Bob Peterson used his full bench, playing Justin Silverio, Tony Donahue, Matt Sullivan, Mike Nostrogiacomo, Mike Lombari, Eric Harkins, Mike Burke and Barry Canavan.

After Houghs Neck rallied for five runs in its last time at bat to tie the score 10-10, Granite City won the game, 11-10, with a run in the eighth.

In Houghs Neck's seventh, Dan Beaton walked, Matt Fratolio reached on an error and Mark Walsh, Garrett Butkuss and Jimmy Gatley all singled and all five scored to tie the game before Costello retired the side.

In the eighth Granite City's Brian Jennette, Kevin Boylen and Colletary (intentional) walked and Jennette scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

Costello won his second game in a row, allowing seven hits, walking four and striking out eight. He also had a booming triple to the left field fence at Adams Field and a single.

Houghs Neck's 13-year old Tim Byrne pitched well, allowing only four hits and striking out eight, but he walked 12. He will be a pitching force in the leage for the next three years.

MacDougall, Anderlionis and Costello(2) had Granite City's hits. Guarnieri was solid catching and was robbed on an extra base hit by Houghs Neck center fielder Jimmy Gately.

For HN catcher Mark Gilmore had a double and blocked many pitches. Fratolilo and Walsh had two hits each and Garrett, Butkuss hit the ball hard every time up and had a single. He also sparkled at third base.

Barry's Deli won two games over the weekend and in its latest game rolled over the Elks, 26-10. Dave Raftery was the winning pitcher with help from Mike Kelley and Jeff Craig.

The offense was led by Chris Peck and rookie Danny Duncan, who had five hits each as Barry's collected 24 hits. Danny Kearns and Chris Murphy had three each, Craig, Raftery and Kelley two apiece and Mike connor and Derek Thompson one each. The defense was led by Jeff Tirrell, Dave D'Olympio, Neil Hutchinson and Chris Geary.

For the Elks Tom Bianco and Mike McManus had two hits apiece and Billy Skotol, John Connelly, Michelle Linnane and Scott Koehler had a hit each. Koehler was outstanding behind the plate and Mark Cahill played strong defense.

Barry's also topped Golden Print, 14-7, with Dereck Thompson pitching the entire game. He allowed five hits, struck out seven and walked eight.

Leading Barry's potent attack were Kearns, Kelley and Mike Connor, who had two hits apiece. Connor, Barry's 14-year old catcher, came close to the 408-foot mark twice at Adams Field and had two hits. Murphy and Peck had key hits.

The defense was led by rookies Hutchinson and D'Olympio, made outstanding plays. Also contributing to the win were Geary, Craig, Raftery and Jeff Tirrell.

Kearns, one of Barry's captains, has been outstanding in center field and has hit well. He has been ineligible to pitch so far, as he has been committed to Abp. Williams High and had a fine season. Kearns will make his first pitching appearance Friday at 5:30 against Bryan Post at Merrymount Field.

Seamans To Again Run 'Toughest' Race

Bob Seamans of Quincy will once again be running in the famed Western States 100 Mile Same Day Endurance Run to be held June 24th through the rugged Sierra Nevada Mountain trails in California. Seamans completed the race in 1988 in 29 hours and 36 minutes and hopes to improve on his time this year.

The first thirty miles of this race could be run on snow as great amounts fell during the winter on the higher elevations of the mountains and this increases the possibility of getting lost in the race as the trail isn't visible due to the snow cover.

This race is termed by Outside Magazine as the world's toughest and greatest endurance event.

Once again, Seamans is soliciting pledges for his effort in behalf of the Sunset Point Vacation Camp in Hull, a non-profit summer camp for inner city kids operated by the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston. People interested in pledging Seamans are encouraged to call 523-5165.

Seamans is being sponsored by the South Boston Savings Bank.

BOB SEAMANS

Checks should be made payable to Sunset Point Vacation Camp Run and sent to the camp in Hull, 02045.

Seamans, 60, will be one of the oldest runners in the race and is running the event for the fourth time.

The run covers difficult mountainous terrain and spans great extremes of altitude and temperatures, ranging from 20 degrees at the start to temperatures along the course that exceed 110 degrees in the shade. Much of the trail is narrow and is often uneven, rutted, rocky, muddy, wed, dusty, slippery, or all of them.

Rattlesnakes, bears and other potentially hazardous forms of wildlife inhabit this race trail and have surprised runners in the past. Seamans will be running many miles in the dark of night with only a flashlight to light his way on the mountain trails.

A runner must finish the 100 miles in 30 hours and when race officials see a runner won't finish on time, he is pulled from the race.

Seamans ran 47 miles in 1987 before his water supply ran out in 114 degree heat. In 1986 he ran 57 miles.

Seamans, who was 1980 masters 50-mile champion, has completed in 100 full 26.2 mile marathons and numerous 50-mile races.

It is estimated that the average runner who does complete the 100 miles burns up 32,000 calories and loses 50 pounds of water.

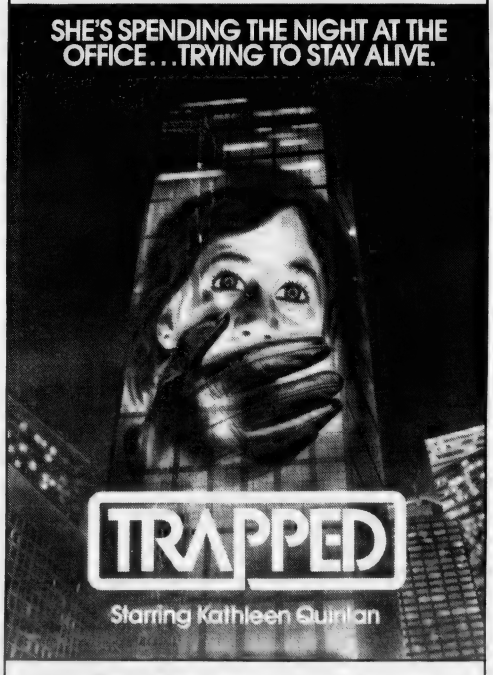
Testing For Swimming Program Registration To Start

Director Barry J. Welch, announces that the Quincy Recreation Department will conduct an advance testing program in preparation for registration for its summer instructional swimming program at Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

Registration for classes will be held later this month, and children are registered according to their ability. This testing program is for persons who are unsure of their child's swimming ability, and who previously have not been enrolled in swim lessons.



The schedule for testing is Friday, June 16, from 5:30 to 8 p.m. The pre-requisite swim tests for boating and sailing will also be at this time.

Pool lessons are open to Quincy residents over the age of six who have a current pool participation card issued by the Quincy Recreation Department. Youngsters 1-5 are eligible for Parent and Tot lessons. Persons desiring lessons at beach locations need not attend testing, as tests will be given by beach instructors at the time of registration.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Department at 773-1380, ext. 204. The normal recreational schedule of swims during testing hours will be cancelled.

Heritage Night June 19 At Adams Shore

Adams Shore Heritage Night will be observed Monday, June 19, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Lecture Room at the Adams Shore Library on Sea St.

In 1996, Adams Shore will celebrate its 100th anniversary. In preparation for this, an 80-page book, "Adams Shore (Post Island), a Community in Profile", will be on display and sold.

State Senator Paul Harold, who grew up in Adams Shore, will present a half-hour slide show of Adams Shore scenes and events.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley is among guests invited to attend, along with State Representative Steven Tobin, Councillor Michael Cheney; H. Hobart Holly, History of the Quincy Historical Society; Warren Watson, Librarian of the Thomas Crane Public Library; Peter Kolson, past president and Syd Queripel, 1988 president of the Adams Shore Community Association.

Lilian T. Austin, director of the Adams Shore Community Center who compiled the history book, will introduce the program and make presentations to those who have assisted in its preparation.

The limited edition of 150 copies contains not only a history of the community but profiles of 25 families who have been longtime residents and active in the area.

There will also be on display Indian artifacts collected in the Adams Shore area by William Duane, along with many old-time photographs, some of which are reproduced in the history book.

The program is open to the public.

HN Center Trip To Red Sox Game June 20

The Houghs Neck Community Center will sponsor a bus trip to Fenway Park on Tuesday June 20 at 6 p.m. for a Red Sox-Texas Rangers game. Fee for bus and ticket is $6, but if paid before June 15, the cost will be $5.

Return time to the Center will be about 11:30 p.m. This is a Youth Group game. Twenty-four youth tickets and six adult chaperone tickets are available. Those interested should call Pat Ridlen at 471-8251 to sign up.

Continental Cablevision Celebrating 25 Years

From its small-town Ohio beginning in 1964 to today's far-flung operation serving more than 2 million subscribers nationwide, Continental Cablevision has embodied the entrepreneurial philosophy of its founders, H.I. Grousbeck and Amos Hostetter Jr.

A little more than 25 years ago, the two Harvard Business School graduates saw the promise of cable television, pulled together $3,000 and formed the company.

With a $300,000 loan from New England Merchants Bank, Hostetter and Grousbeck secured franchises in Tiffin and Fostoria, Ohio, and built Continental's first cable systems. Hands-on managers by choice, the two negotiated franchises, ran the systems, did the marketing and answered the phones.

When Continental expanded, Grousbeck became manager of the company's Illinois operations; Hostetter, the Ohio systems. That division of responsibility reflected a strongly held management philosphy which is the foundation of Continental's success today: decisions affecting local customers and company operations are best made by local managers.

During its first decade Continental grew steadily, benefiting from Hostetter's leadership in Washington in the effort to reduce regulatory barriers to the then infant cable tv industry. His work during that critical period earned Hostetter the Larry Boggs Award, the highest honor bestowed by the National Cable Televison Association. He later became the youngest chairman of the industry's trade organization.

In 1969 Continental moved its corporate headquarters to the Pilot House on Lewis Wharf in Boston. New equity investments fueled the company's expansion to Iowa, Michigan and New Hampshire.

By the early '70s, Continental served 65,000 subscribers; by 1978, 200,000. Astuate strategic planning and a decision to design and construct all its own cable systems allowed the Company to weather a recession and continue growing, while others retrenched.

As Continental entered the '80s, President H.I. Grousbeck left active management to teach at Harvard and later Stanford Business School. Hostetter succeeded him as Chief Executive Officer, and Timothy P. Neher, Michigan Regional Vice President, became Executive Vice President. Since 1984, Neher has served as President, with Hostetter remaining CEO and Chairman.

It has been an eventful and successful last decade:

- 1981 — Dow Jones & Company invested nearly $80 million for a 24 percent interest in Continental, allowing a shift in focus to the suburbs of Boston, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis.
- 1983 — The 82,000 — subscriber Jacksonville, Fla., system was acquired.
- 1984 — Continental built 2,000 miles of cable plant — the equivalent of a new system the size of its original Ohio franchises every 10 business days. It also bought the McClatchy Newspapers cable systems in Northern California.
- 1985 — Continental topped 1 million subscribers, and launched its 1,000-mile St. Paul, Minn., cable system.
- 1986 — The number of subscribers jumped 24 percent, making Continental one of the nation's five largest cable operator.
- 1987 — Continental made its largest acquisition ever in 500,000-subscriber American Cablesystems. The Company also made significant investments in programming, including Turner Broadcasting and the Home Premier Television pay-per-view network.
- 1988 — The American Cablesystems merger was completed, pushing the company's subscriber total to over 2 million. At year end, Amos Hostetter purchased Dow Jones' interest in Continental, insuring management control of Continental's future.

Throughout its history, Continental has focused on the fundamentals — dependable TV pictures, attractive programming and customer service. Its employees' success in these efforts was recognized by Channels magazine in 1986, a first for a cable TV company. Two years later, in a nationwide Cablevision poll of cable executives, Continental was chosen as the most admired cable company.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

It seems a pertinent question to ask these days, "What does the flag mean to you? Is it only a symbol? If so, of what? Our nation's independence? Is it identified only with a ritualistic habit?

What do the colors of red, white and blue mean? Do the numbers of stars mean only a union of separate states? Do the stars mean anything else? What do the red and white stripes represent? Does the color of red symbolize the blood shed by soldiers to gain independence for us? Does it indicate the valor, zeal and fervency of the American Way?

Does the white indicate hope, purity and cleanliness? Does the blue indicate the color of the sky and sea which in turn indicates reverence to God? ... It may mean some of these things to some people. But should it not mean, above everything else, a symbol of American Civilization, Enlightment and Liberty; a reflection of patriotism at its finest?

INVITATION TO BID

Sealed Proposals for Catch Basin Cleaning Services 1989

will be received at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA until 11:00 A.M. prevailing time on June 27, 1989 at which time they will be publicly opened and read.

The Contractor to whom the Contract may be awarded will be required to appear at this office with the surety offered by him and execute the Contract within ten days from the date of the mailing of notice from the Commissioner to the bidder, according to the address given by him that the Contract is ready for signature and in case of his failure or neglect to do so, the Commissioner may, at his option, determine that the bidder had abandoned the Contract and thereupon the certified check or bid bond shall become the property of the City of Quincy.

The Contractor will be required to provide both a performance bond and payment labor and materials bond each for the full Contract price. A certified check or bid bond in the amount of 5% of the base bid shall accompany each bid.

Specifications may be obtained at the Department of Public Works upon deposit of $25.00 for each set which will be refunded provided they are returned in good condition, within 30 days of the bid opening. Bidders requesting specifications mailed to them shall add a separate check for Ten Dollars ($10.00) payable to the City of Quincy to cover the mailing and handling.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids or to accept the bid deemed best for the City.

PRAYER OF APPLICATION TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, who light all roads so that I can attain my goal, you who give me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and who in all instances of my life are with me, I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things and to confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you and even in spite of all material illusion, I wish to be with you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine. Repeat this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the favor will be granted even though it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after favor is granted without mentioning the favor.

Anderson Resigns As DPW Commissioner

Quincy Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson, who was instrumental in the fight against the siting of sewerage treatment plant in Quincy, has resigned effective July 7.

Anderson, who has served as commissioner for more than seven years, notified Mayor Francis McCauley of his resignation Monday. McCauley said Anderson resigned in order to accept a position in the area of environmental concerns in the Midwest.

Deputy Commissioner David Colton will be appointed to succeed Anderson July 8 the mayor said.

The commissioner's salary is $54,858 now and will increase to $58,150 beginning Jan. 1, 1990.

Anderson, who served as acting Public Works commissioner prior to his appointment Feb. 1, 1982, "did an outstanding job", McCauley said.

Among Anderson's accomplishments as commissioner are:

- A sewer user fee plan which has allowed the city to received more than $5 million in federal and state grants for sewer projects in Quincy.
- Reorganization of the Public Works Department by combining the Water, Sewer and Drain units into one division. As a result, the division is moire efficient, the mayor said.
- Controlling utility and fuel costs to the point that they have not "risen much at all" in seven years.

As Quincy's first representative to the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, McCauley said Anderson was "a prime mover" in getting the MWRA to site a new sewerage treatment facility on Deer Island instead of Nut Island or Long Island.

Appointed to the board in 1985, Anderson served for four years until his appointment was up earlier this year. He was replaced by City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie.

Colton has been with the city since September 1982 when he was hired as an administrative assistant in the Public Works Department. He was made deputy commissioner in 1984.

He received his bachelor's degree from Bentley College and his master's degree from University of Massachusetts at Boston.

Council Favors, Mayor Questions Local Hiring Bill

A local job hiring preference bill has the support of eight city councillors but is in jeopardy because Mayor Francis McCauley philosophically disagrees with it.

McCauley said he will review it and make a decision probably by next week.

The mayor vetoed the original version last year. The measure then went back to the Council where it has been discussed three times.

On Tuesday, McCauley said he is philosophically against hiring preference bills and questions the constitutionality of it.

The bill would require most developers to hire one-third of their workers from among Quincy residents and certain developers to pay the prevailing wage.

"I don't think this type of legislation is in the best interest of every citizen in the city. It's a free country and people should be able to work wherever they please," McCauley said.

The council voted 8-1 in favor, with Councillor Timothy Cahill dissenting.

The bill was introduced by Councillors Stephen McGrath and Patricia Toland and Michael Cheney. They and other councillors in support, said the measure is fair and allows Quincy residents to reap some of the benefits of Quincy's building boom.

"Quincy residents should be sharing in the economic boom in the city. They deserve preference when it comes to jobs in the city. They have labored to build this city," Cheney said.

McGrath, who noted that workers from out of state and out of the country have been brought in to work on projects in Quincy, said, "It is only right that people who live here should have first crak at these types of project."

The measure would require developers who need special city approvals to pay the prevailing wage. Presently, developers are required to pay the wage on projects receiving government financing only.

In his opposition, Cahill said he was not against Quincy workers and Quincy residents but fearful the measure would set "a dangerous precedent".

I don't want to see other towns drafting similar legislation because unfortunately, we all can't work in Quincy" and therefore some residents might be shut out from jobs outside the city.

McCauley said he agreed with Cahill. "Naturally, we encourage people to work in Quincy but, of course, not everyone can."

Over 250 Tons Collected

Paper Recycling On Money-Saving Pace

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

After only five weeks, Quincy's new paper recycling program is on a money-saving pace and promises to exceed expectations if more residents participate, according to the program's chairman.

"We're already at a pace where it's a money saver," said Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, chairman of the city's Recycling Committee.

"It's a success already but we can make that success much bigger if more people participate," Chretien added.

Since the program began May 1, more than 250 tons of paper have been collected for a pace of about 3,000 for the year, according to James Binder of Alternative Resources, the city's recycling consulting firm.

About 30 percent, or 8,000 of the city's 24,000 eligible households are participating in the program, Binder said.

If the city maintains a pace of at least 250 tons per month this year, it will pass the break even point, which is 2,700 tons. The city's goal is to save 4,000 tons this year and both Chretien and Binder believe this goal can be reached, even surpassed, if more residents participate.

To reach the 4,000 ton mark, the city should be collecting about 350 tons per month.

If more residents participate, Binder and Chretien said the city's first year recycling newspaper will be a major success.

"If we can get 50, 60 or 70 percent to participate, then we'll be doing better than we are now," Binder said, adding that 30 percent participation is a good starting rate.

"We'd like to get more people into the program. Those who are participating are doing a good job," Binder said.

Chretien added, "Thirty percent is too low. There's no reason why more residents can't participate."

When the program was unveiled, city officials set a goal of $100,000 in savings for the first year. Chretien said a new goal of 65 percent participation which would net $200,000 in savings should be set.

"We anticipated that it would take 65 percent or two thirds participation to meet our goal of $100,000. It now appears that if we reach a 65 percent level of participation, we would save about $200,000.

"That should be our new goal," Chretien said, adding that it is not unrealistic.

He noted that Lexington which has a recycling program including cans, bottles and paper has a participation rate of 80 percent. Furthermore, he said many cities and towns across the country have rates 90 percent or higher.

There are other encouraging signs which suggest the city will exceed its goal.

Chretien said more households are putting paper out everyday and fewer are improperly packaging the paper, suggesting the confusion period will soon end. He noted that there still seems to be some confusion in Quincy Point and asks residents in that area as well as other sections to call the city's Department of Public Works, 773-1380 ext. 210 if they need information on the program, particularly the schedules.

Since it began, officials have been educating residents about the program through public service announcements, flyers and advertisements.

Some of the things residents should be aware of are:

- There are two alternating schedules, A and B, which run every other week.

Paper is collected by Browning Ferris Industries the same day household trash is picked up. For example, if trash is picked up on a Monday, paper will be picked up Monday.

However, paper is not picked up every week like trash--it is collected every other week.

- Paper that is tied or bagged should be separated from rubbish and placed at the curb. Bags must be made of paper--plastic bags are not acceptable since they cannot be recycled.
- Paper will be picked up regardless of the weather. Binder said FBI will collect rain-soaked paper.
- Residents can recycle newspaper, magazines, periodicals, small phonebooks, paperbacks and envelopes without plastic envelopes.
- Cardboard cannot be recycled.

School Officials Respond To Sterling Bus Complaints

By JANE ARENA

Two school officials have responded to an anonymous letter which makes four strong allegations about student behavior on Sterling Middle School buses.

Responding to allegations that students are drinking alcohol and smoking on the buses, Sterling Principal Joseph Long said they are "ridiculous" and unsubstantiated.

As for an accusation of students fighting in front of school buses, Long said he recalled a minor incident in October. But another allegation concerning students slapping bus drivers "in the face" may be based on an actual incident currently under investigation, according to School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci.

The letter was sent to the Quincy Sun but written to "The Quincy Public Schools," It reads:

To Quincy Public Schools:

I would like to call attention to the parents of teen-agers that attend Sterling Jr. High School in Quincy, MA.

My grand-daughter told me the actions that go on amongst students that ride to and from school on school buses.

1. Bus drivers get slapped in the face by students.
2. Smoking on the bus.
3. Drinking beer or liquor on bus.
4. Fighting in the street in front of school buses.

My grand-daughter said this is always being reported to the principal or principals of this school but nothing is done about it. What is wrong with you people, that run this school are you afraid of these punks?

My grand-daughter no longer takes this bus to school I am now driving her to and from school.

Wake-up School Committee. These bus drivers have feelings also and have families waiting for them at home. No animal should take this abuse let along a human being.

A very disgusted grandmother from Quincy

When asked about the letter's contents, Ricci said the first allegation may pertain to "a dispute between drivers and certain parents" over a "recent incident," but added that "it's not as simple as it sounds in the letter."

Ricci said that the dispute is between the driver of a specific bus and a particular student, and involves two separate incidents.

The name of the student could not be revealed, Ricci said, because of a pending investigation.

On June 5 the driver accused the student of "slapping him in the face" Ricci explained, and the student claimed that the driver slapped him first.

Several weeks ago, the same student was suspended from the bus for a period of five days after burning another student in the arm with a cigarette lighter. Ricci said the burning incident was investigated and the student admitted it "and said it was an accident." The five day

No Koch Flag Day Parade

The Koch Club's Annual Flag Day Parade, a Quincy tradition for 35 years, will not be held this year.

According to Thomas Koch, director of the charitable organization, the Club is going through reorganization as the number of children has decreased dramatically.

The Flay Day Parade was initiated in 1953 by the Koch Club under the direction of the late Richard J. Koch, founder of the club.

To commemorate Flag Day this year, Tom Koch presented two five by eight inch flags Wednesday to Mayor Francis McCauley and Raymond Cattaneo, executive director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery.

The flags were presented at the Richard J. Koch Complex, 100 Southern Artery and Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The complex is where the Koch Memorial is located and the stadium is the site where flag raisings have been held over the years on Flag Day.

Plans are underway for a band concert and flag raising ceremony to celebrate Flag Day next year, Koch said.

Squantum Spring Clean-Up Saturday

The Squantum Community Association will conduct its first spring clean-up Saturday, June 17 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The clean-up was originally scheduled for June 10 but was postponed because of rain.

The SCA is looking for volunteers to help clean-up East Squantum St., adjacent causeway and the Hummock and Huckins Ave. area.

Trash bags and pick-up of full trash bags will be provided by the city.

Call Peter Cooper at 471-2153 or Mary Blood at 328-8649 for a ride if necessary.

To become a member of the SCA, send $10 dues($7.50 for seniors) to SCA Membership, 205 Park Ave., Squantum 02171.

Mayoral Candidates Forum On Sun Ch. 26

The Quincy Sun and Channel 26 will present a Mayoral Forum which will be videotaped and shown Monday, June 19 and Wednesday, June 21 at 8 p.m. on Channel 26.

All five candidates are participating. They are Councillors Stephen McGrath and James Sheets, Businessman Peter O'Connell, former mayor Joseph LaRaia and William Jensen.

Candidates will discuss their personal background, city budgets, development, education, public safety, the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, the environment, and reasons why they are qualified to be mayor.

Urban Park Traffic Flow Can Be Resolved Says O'Connell

Responding to negative statements about his proposal for a National Urban Park in Quincy Square, mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell said the strength of a good idea will indeed overcome technical problems.

At a recent City Council meeting, Quincy Traffic Engineers David Kinnecom said the plan would lead to intolerable traffic delays and increase the number of cars on residential streets in Quincy Center.

The plan calls for the creation of a national urban park in Quincy Center, including City Hall, First Parish Church and McIntyre Mall. Cars travelling southbound on Hancock St. would be rerouted around the rear of the church, pening Washington and Temple Sts. to two-way traffic.

Kinnecom, responding to questions from Councillor Stephen McGrath, another mayoral candidate, said the plan as is, would triple the travel time for cars through Quincy Square.

Furthermore, if delays occur, Kinnecom predicted motorists would then likely avoid the square by taking side streets.

I am fearful particularly in the area of people getting backed up as they try to go through the square," McGrath said.

"The idea of a park in the area is commendable, but I think we have to very, very sensitive to the neighborhoods surrounding Quincy Square, McGrath added.

Other Councillors, including Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney criticized the plan.

Cheney, who called the plan impractical, also said O'Connell's suggestion for a parking deck behind City Hall over the MBTA tracks is an idea that has already been discussed by himself and other officials.

O'Connell said he was not surprised and did not expect completely unbiased remarks from his opponents nor their engineer. O'Connell said his concept is an innovative approach to a problem long ignored by city leaders.

"The important thing to me is the quality of life in Quincy and that the park enhances the aesthetic characte of the downtown area.

"It gives the people of Quincy a beautiful history center rather than a sea of asphalt and a chaotic intersection," O'Connell said.

"It's also important that we assist in preserving the First Parish Church, its congregation and the national treasure contained therein. This small parcel symbolized the essence of the historic city of Quincy," he said.

The tombs of the nation's only father-son presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives are located in the basement of the church.

"I appreciate the input from the council and would like to assure the councillors that there are technical solutions to technical problems," O'Connell continued. "It's important in the future that we have our priorities correct and that our future is not in becoming the parking lot for the South Shore.

"There's been enough talk over the years about the downtown and how to save it," O'Connell said.

"It's time for leadership and careful action rathern than rhetoric. Some people see roadblocks.

"I see opportunities," he added.

Board Denies License For Towing And Auto Body Shop

By JANE ARENA

A request from John Palizi for a license for a 24-hour towing business and an auto body shop at 153 Brook Rd. (formerly Omar's) was denied by the License Board Tuesday due to neighbor opposition.

Palizi, who has been operating from the site for a period of two months without a proper license, told the board that no repair work would be done other than body work. He said that this aspect of the business would be done during daytime business hours, and the towing would be in operation 24 hours.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets told the board that many area residents were strongly opposed to the license.

Ernest Aristide of 156 Brook Rd. was present before the board on behalf of himself and neighbors, Vincent and Maria Bettes of 144 Brook Rd.

In a letter read by Aristide, Vincent Bettes said that he is "very much against the addition of any new tenants in the yard on Brook Rd., formerly known as Omar's" due to the fact that currently there seem to be "no established business hours."

In his letter, Bettes said that he has witnessed "noise and activity from early morning until well after midnight on many occasions" from businesses of current tenants.

The letter further states that he has witnessed "sport cars and a white tow truck speeding in and out (of the yard) in the evening hours with little or no concern for safety or noise within the neighborhood."

Palizi, when asked, told the board that he owns a white tow truck.

Aristide and his wife, Margaret, also told the board that they witnessed activity in the area at 10 p.m. Monday and said they "question the type of business" being conducted at this time.

Other neighbor concerns are an increase in an already impacted traffic area.

Paul Flynn of 7 Intervale St., told the board that current traffic is "very heavy" in the area due to BFI garbage trucks. He also noted that there are approximately 12 houses in the area and 30 children. "I just can't see any additional traffic in the area," he said.

Flynn also noted that he lives next door to a nursery school. "I'm not against anything," he said, "but I want to cut down on the traffic in the area.

Sheets told the board that there have been "a number of complaints about current activity in the area."

Board Chairman John Gillis noted that the 24-hour towing business would be "too much for the area."

Police Chief Francis Finn said that an auto body shop would also have an adverse impact on the area," he said. "No way."

The board denied the request and informed Palizi that he must cease any of his business activities currently being operated from the area.

Tom Fabrizio Receives Social Services Award

Tom Fabrizio of Quincy was recently recognized by the Quincy Office of the Department of Social Services and Protestant Social Service Bureau for his "dedication and commitment" to children and families on the South Shore.

Fabrizio, who has been employed by the Department of Social Services in Quincy for more than nine years, was presented an award honoring his outstanding leadership in the field of social services.

The presentation was made during the Department of Social Services and PSSB's 19th annual Recognition Dinner for foster/adoptive families and social workers.

In presenting the award, Kathleen Cowie, supervisor, D.S.S. Quincy Office, said, "Leadership means being out in front helping others to overcome obstacles.

"Mr. Fabrizio has demonstrated this quality and has always been willing to help others in their assignments. Therefore, tonight we would like to present this award to Tom Fabrizio for his leadership qualities."

Fabrizio is a candidate for Ward 4 councillor in Quincy.

Restaurant To Be Monitored During Summer

By JANE ARENA

The License Board said Tuesday that conditions at Wendy's Restaurant, 191-201 Newport Ave., will be monitored throughout the summer and the matter will come back before the board in September if necessary.

The hearing was called by Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretian after he received a letter from Joseph Flaherty of 144 Arlington St., whose home is adjacent to the parking lot at Wendy's.

In his letter, Flaherty complained about the noise of deliveries made between 3 and 5 a.m., the noise of the restaurant's speaker ordering system, and litter on his property.

James Fargen, new manager of Wendy's, told the board that he feels he has solved the problems at the site. He said a new speaker system has been installed which can only be made louder by a maintenance man and not from inside the store.

He also said Wendy's has refused all deliveries outside of regular delivery hours.

The delivery company, located in Pennsylvania, has said, however, that they were issued a "special permit" to deliver in Quincy outside of regular hours, Fargen said, but he noted that the problem had been corrected and no deliveries have been made outside hours since.

Police Chief Francis Finn noted that the company was given the "special permit" for one particular day and that the city does not give out such permits except for specific days.

As for the litter, Fargen told the board that employees are sent outside the store three times a day to clean the area. He said that they also pick up litter from other area businesses, and noted that "99 percent" of it is generated by others.

He showed photos to the board demonstrating that the area is kept clean.

Chretian told the board that Flaherty's letter pertains only to the back of the site.

"Wendy's appears clean," Chretian said, "but this gentleman (Flaherty) lives behind it, the back does not look good."

Chretian also noted that the problems could have been worse under previous managers and said that he hopes the new manager will be better monitor the problems.

"If he (Flaherty) has a legitimate complaint," Fargen said, "we're going to take care of it."

The board will send a letter to Flaherty and will also keep the problem under surveilance for a period of three months, paying more attention to the Arlington Street area.

If necessary the hearing will be continued in September, the board said.

McCauley To Attend Mayor's Conference In S.C.

Mayor Francis McCauley will attend the 57th annual U.S. Conference of Mayors at Charleston, South Carolina, from Friday, June 16 to Wednesday, June 21.

A member of the Community Development, Housing and Economic Development Committee, the mayor will attend committee sessions and workshops during the six-day conference.

The conference will be hosted by Joe Riley, mayor of Charleston, and past president of the conference.

A number of officials in the Bush Administration will address the mayors, including Jack Kemp, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, Samuel Skinner, Transportation Secretary and EPA Administrator William Reilly.

Mayor Arthur Holland of Trenton NJ, the conference president, will preside over the agenda.

More than 200 mayors and several hundred more officials are expected to attend the sessions to be held at Charleston's Omni Hotel.

McCauley is being accompanied by his wife, Sandra. They will return to Quincy late Wednesday afternoon, June 21.

205 Permits For $3 Million In Construction

The Quincy Building Department issued 205 permits for construction costing an estimated of $3,003,173 in May.

Last year, the department issued 167 permits for a cost of $4,548,465 in May.

Eighteen dwelling units were added through new construction and one dwelling unit was added through alteration.

The breakdown is:

- Two permits for one-family dwellings, $275,000.
- One permit for a multi-family dwelling, a 16-unit condominium, $1,170,000.
- One garage permit, $600.
- One hundred and forty-two residential alterations, $893,604.
- Twenty alterations, $522,860.
- Three removals, $9,800.
- Ten signs, $11,500.
- Twenty-six miscellaneous permits, $119,809.

Receipts totaled $48,702.

There was $50 in public safety inspection fees.

Attention Quincy Residents

The Quincy Curbside Paper Recycling Program is now in its 2nd month!

Thanks to all of you who are participating!

Although there was some confusion during startup (we apologize for any missed pickups), participation has been increasing over time.

In May, 250 tons of newspaper were collected from your homes for recycling, instead of being landfilled. Already we're saving taxpayer dollars! However, we can save much more if everyone participates.

Quincy needs YOU to make this program a success.

Join with your neighbors and separate your paper from your trash!

Call 773-1380 (extension 210) with curbside collection schedule questions.

LaRaia: 'Big Undecided Vote'

When it comes to mayoral campaigning Joseph LaRaia has the most experience.

LaRAIA

While Steve McGrath, Peter O'Connell, James Sheets and William Jensen are making their first run for mayor, LaRaia is making his fifth.

So far he has one win and three losses.

But with all that campaign experience, he frankly acknowledges he does not yet have that good a reading on this year's race.

"I can't put a handle on it yet," he says. "I really think there are a lot of undecided voters out there."

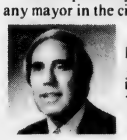
LaRaia has been in some pretty good mayoral fights. A couple of them brawls.

McINTYRE

He was bombed out by James McIntyre in 1965 when the pair ran for the office vacated by long-time mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. McIntyre won by nearly 15,000 votes -- 22,034 to 7,713.

LaRaia says he should have waited before taking on McIntyre who was already a political powerhouse back then.

Well, LaRaia did wait 10 years after that before making another bid.



HANNON

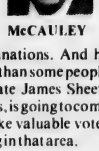
This time--1975--it was a real brawl as LaRaia challenged two-term incumbent Walter Hannon, who was handpicked by McIntyre as his successor.

On election night, the results showed Hannon a 134 vote winner for a third term.

But in a recount, LaRaia emerged the actual winner by 483 votes -- 17,231 to 16,748.

LaRaia probably had the stormiest administration of any mayor in the city's history.

TOBIN



Arthur Tobin, who as City Council president, had been a thorn in LaRaia's side, challenged him in 1977 in what turned out to be another brawl. Tobin ousted LaRaia by 5,050 votes -- 19,096 to 14,046.

LaRaia was pronounced politically dead after that. The experts said he was finished. Period.

But two years later he made a comeback winning a City Council at-large seat by a 187-vote thread. Two years after that (1981) he topped the Council at-large field.

He was a major contender again.

In 1987 he took on incumbent Frank McCauley and came within 474 votes of what would have been one of the city's biggest political upsets.

McCAULEY

How does it look this year?

"I'm out there working and I've been getting some good reaction," he says.

He thinks he has a good shot at landing one of the two mayoral nominations. And he thinks he will do better in West Quincy than some people think. The latter feel mayoral candidate James Sheets who has been Ward 4 councillor 16 years, is going to come out of there strong and by doing so, take valuable votes away from LaRaia who is usually strong in that area.

"I think we are all pretty close right now," LaRaia says. "But I think the field will start opening up a bit in July and we will have a better handle on this year's race."

LaRaia says he has not taken any polls and does not plan to.

He declines to predice who the two winners will be in the Sept. 12 preliminary election; except he believes he will be one of them.

GILLIS

The event raised $15,000 to help fight cancer.

Arthur Foley, Mayor Francis McCauley's administrative aide, was one of those "arrested" that day and he tried to stay out of the slammer by bribing Gillis with three choice cigars.

FOLEY

Gillis accepted the cigars but put Foley behind bars, anyway.

It took $200 to get Foley out. The money was raised by McCauley, executive secretary Peter Kenney and Sandy Rounsville.

But Foley got the last laugh.

"How do you like those cigars, Your Honor," he asked Gillis.

"They're great," said Gillis. "They're the kind I smoke."

"I know," said Foley. "I got them off your desk before I came up here."

NONDEDUCTIBLE IRA'S

As you are all probably aware, the tax laws of 1986 put restrictions and limitations on who can contribute to an IRA account, and also how much. Any individuals covered in an employer's retirement plan have lost the right to take a tax deduction of current and future contributions. But ...

This does not prevent continuing future non-tax-deductible contribution into your account. The advantage of doing this is that accumulations are tax deferred, enabling a compounding interest growth. A disadvantage is that all funds in an IRA account are subjected to the rules of distribution and taxation.

If you are under 59½ and you withdraw some of your IRA funds not only do you have to declare the withdrawal as income, but you receive an extra 10% penalty.

When making your contributions, keep in mind that you can have several different IRA accounts, and you may split your $2,000 into each. These accounts can be stocks, bonds, mutual funds, bank savings or certificates, annuities, etc. Your contributions cannot go into any form of collectibles such as art, coins or stamps.

Suggestions For Using City Parks

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As spring is now upon us, I'd like to make some suggestions to the people who use our City of Quincy parks.

1. Please do not bring any glass items as parks - glass is now broken everywhere.

2. When done using parks, please leave it as is or better yet, in better condition than when you arrived.

3. Parents waiting for children to start or finish their activities, show your children by example - pick up some rubbish/glass.

Suggestions to City of Quincy departments:

1. Provide more rubbish barrels in parks.

2. Recreation Department requests all teams not to bring any glass items into parks.

3. Police Department intensely enforce beverage laws at the parks.

THE MARKET BASKET

A Special Brunch

Father's Day is the day that Dad should get to do whatever he wants, whether it's spending the morning on the golf course or lazing in bed until noon. But it doesn't matter if Dad's worked up his appetite on the links or just reading the Sunday paper, his day will get off to a great start with a surefire "Dad-pleaser": Ham 'n Eggs Brunch Bake.

This hearty dish starts with a simple Bisquick dough as a base. A savory ham and cheese egg mixture on top makes an all-in-one brunch dish that turns ordinary ingredients into an extraordinary meal.

Ham 'n Eggs Brunch Bake

1/2 cup chopped onion
1 Tbsp margarine or butter
1 can (6 3/4 ounces) chunk ham, drained
1 medium tomato, chopped
2 cups Bisquick baking mix
1/2 cup cold water
1 cup shredded Swiss or Cheddar cheese (4 ounces)
1/4 cup milk
2 eggs
1/4 tsp salt
1/4 tsp pepper
1/4 tsp dried dill weed, if desired
2 Tbsps snipped chives

Heat oven to 350°. Lightly grease rectangular pan, 13x9x2 inches, or 12-inch pizza pan. Cook and stir onion and margarine in 10-inch skillet until onion is tender; remove from heat. Stir in ham and tomato. Mix baking mix and water until soft dough forms; beat vigorously 20 strokes. Pat dough in pan with fingers dipped in baking mix, pressing dough 1/2 inch up sides. Spread ham mixture over dough; sprinkle with cheese. Beat milk, eggs, salt, pepper and dill weed with hand beater until foamy; slowly pour over cheese. Sprinkle with chives. Baked uncovered 25 to 30 minutes or until golden brown. Garnish with tomato slices if desired. 6 to 8 servings.

High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): Heat oven to 375°. Use 1/2 cup boiling water to make dough.

Bisquick® is a registered T.M. of General Mills, Inc.

Enjoy an unusual, upscale Father's Day barbecue

Looking for a new twist for your annual Father's Day celebration? Try treating dad—and the rest of the family—to an out-of-the-ordinary barbecue.

Whether his culinary tastes tend toward the traditional or the latest innovation, you can head outdoors to prepare a first-class meal featuring an upscale version of his favorite meat or seafood.

In lieu of hamburgers and hot dogs, opt for top-quality steak or jumbo shrimp.

The food preparations need not be elaborate in order for the outcome to be special—particularly since the charbroiling will add a wonderfully pungent dimension to the final flavor.

If the afternoon is warm enough, you might serve the meal outside, picnic-style. Or, you might prefer a more formal approach. An elegantly laid table, indoors or out, will create a special ambiance for dad's special meal.

The recipes below, culled from a variety of sources, offer a wide range of options appropriate for a Father's Day barbecue.

If he's a meat and potatoes guy, serve up a Barbecued Whole Brisket (recipe below reproduced from Lois Schenck's The Desperate Gourmet, St. Martin's Press), accompanied by potatoes that have been roasted in the hot coals. The preparation here is a breeze; just remember to allow four to six hours cooking time.

BARBECUED WHOLE BRISKET

1 whole beef brisket (8 to 10 pounds)
Salt and pepper
2 cups ketchup
1 tablespoon Pickapeppa or Worchestershire sauce
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 teaspoon liquid smoke
1 teaspoon seasoned salt

1. Rub the meat with salt and pepper, wrap in foil, and cook slowly over charcoal 4 to 6 hours or until done the way you like it.

2. Cook the remaining ingredients in the microwave oven until well blended or bring to a boil on top of the stove and simmer 5 minutes.

3. Pass the sauce with the cooked brisket.

The recipe for Grilled Piquant Chickens, below, is reproduced from James Beard's Menus for Entertaining (Dell). This is a flavorful and succulent alternative to the usual picnic fare of chicken drenched with barbecue sauce.

GRILLED PIQUANT CHICKENS

1 cup ground walnuts
6 shallots, or 1 medium onion, finely chopped
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup chopped parsley
1 teaspoon dry mustard
Tabasco
6 chicken halves
⅔ cup melted butter
1 teaspoon paprika

Blend the nuts, shallots, 4 tablespoons butter, salt, parsley, mustard and ½ teaspoon Tabasco to a smooth paste. Loosen the skin on the chicken breasts, and stuff the paste under the skin. Brush the bone sides of the chicken halves with a mixture of the melted butter, paprika and 3 dashes of Tabasco. Broil, bone side to the fire, for 12 to 14 minutes over medium coals. Turn and brush the skin sides with the mixture, and continue broiling until the chickens are tender. Season with salt and pepper, and serve piping hot.

If the flavors of ethnic cooking appeal to your guest of honor, Indian Chops are sure to please. Reproduced from Fresh Ways with Pork, by the editors of Time-Life Books, the recipe below can be adapted for broiling indoors or out. (If barbecued on a grill, there is no need to sear the chops with a skewer.) One caution: Hot chilies must be handled with care. Try not to touch your face, lips or eyes when working with chilies.

INDIAN CHOPS

SERVES 4

Working time: about 25 minutes
Total time: about 1 day (includes marinating)

4 pork chops (about 4½ to 5 oz. each), trimmed of fat
1 fresh chili pepper or 1 dried chili pepper soaked in water for 30 minutes, seeded and chopped
1 small piece turmeric stem, or ½ tsp. dry mustard
2 garlic cloves
½ tsp. fenugreek seeds (optional)
½ tsp. coriander seeds
½ tsp. cumin seeds
½ tsp. salt
4 tbsp. plain low-fat yogurt

Using a mortar and pestle, pound the chili pepper and the turmeric or mustard powder, the garlic cloves, the fenugreek seeds, if you are using them, the coriander seeds and the cumin seeds, and the salt into a coarse paste. Stir the yogurt into the paste and mix well.

Coat the pork chops with the yogurt mixture, place them in a nonreactive dish, cover with plastic wrap, and let them marinate in the refrigerator for 24 hours.

Preheat the broiler. Remove the chops from the marinade, wipe them with paper towels, and brush off any dry ingredients that are sticking to them. Heat one or two metal skewers over high heat on the stove, and print a crisscross pattern on both sides of each chop by pressing the skewer gently onto the surface.

Broil the chops until cooked through—about six minutes on each side. Set the chops aside in a warm place to rest for five minutes before serving.

GRILLED TOMATOES AND ONIONS

1 small or one ½ large tomato per serving
1 small red onion per serving
Fruity olive oil
Salt and pepper

Prepare a charcoal grill.

Cut tomatoes in half. Cut onions in half across the grain.

Brush cut side with olive oil and sprinkle with a generous amount of salt and pepper. Start cooking the onions before the tomatoes, because the onions will take quite a bit longer. Grill over medium-hot coals until onions are soft and tender. Brush periodically with olive oil. Serve immediately.

Makes 6 to 8 servings. P6897711

A garlic press can be used to pulverize foods too small to put in a blender.

To keep molasses, corn syrup or honey from sticking to a spoon or measuring cup, rinse utensil with hot water before using.

Squantum Pastor Compares Beijing To French Revolution

"In the Face of Such Horror" was the title of the sermon preached Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum by Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor. Dr. Langevin spoke of the Beijing massacre, which he compared to the bloodletting of the French Revolution and the wanton killing at My Lai.

The scripture readings for the morning were selections from Lamentations, Psalm 94:1-15 and Romans 8:31-39. Hymns were accompanied by organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson.

During the service in which the major theme was the terror being faced by the students and workers in China, the church also recognized a student of its own: Barbara Sorensen, who graduated from Quincy Junior College. Her in-laws, Arthur and Virginia Sorensen, and Patti Hurd, chairman of the Board of Christian Education, assisted the pastor in congratulating her before the congregation.

Greeters for the service were Stewart and Mary Scott. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes and the reception for Barbara after the service was hosted by Helen Miller and Drucilla Warnes.

On the previous Sunday, the congregation honored four young people from the church who were about to graduate from North Quincy High School. They are: Andrew Ogilvie, Karen Reister, David Scott and Matthew Sumner.

Those from the church who helped the pastor to congratulate the young people were Alex Ogilvie, Ellen Ogilvie, Ed Reister, Patti Hurd, Bill Scott, Mary Ruth Scott, Bud and Janet Sumner.

Langevin preached on the subject, "Choosing the Job that God has Chosen for You."

Greeters were Beth Harper and her daughter, Amy. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes. The Fellowship Hour after the service, which was a reception for the high school graduates, was hosted by Edna Swanson and Lorraine Josslyn.

Earlier in the morning, the second of a two-week program for teen-agers and adults on the subject of cholesterol was held. The program was sponsored by the Board of Christian Education.

The flea market will be held Saturday, June 17 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the church, 164 Bellevue Rd. The rain date is Saturday, June 24.

Co-chairmen Hazel Mayne, Ruth Swenson and Luther Swenson report that table reservations can still be made by calling 328-4367 or 328-1990. Cost is $12.

This year the flea market will include coffee and doughnuts, a luncheon sidewalk cafe, food tables, jewelry, Squantum T-shirts, children's treasures, books, used office equipment, antiques and more.

Sunday the worship service will begin 10:30 a.m. Child care and nursery will be provided as usual.

China Topic At Houghs Neck Congregational

China immediately prior to the present uprising, will be discussed by Pauline Shaw at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, Sunday, June 18, at the 9:30 a.m. worship.

Mrs. Shaw and her husband, Arthur Shaw, Jr., on a 17-day tour in April of China were in Beijing completing their tour when the student uprising began.

They had talked with officials of the Chinese government, visited government buildings and been "treated royally". When the uprising started, their tour was immediately shunted from Beijing to less dangerous areas. They were in Beijing on April 18, 19 and 20, but were able to return to the United States on April 23.

The Shaws, Great Hill residents for many years, are now winter residents of Florida but have returned for the summer months.

Summer Service Hours At Covenant Congregational

Summer hours begin this Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts. Sunday School has recessed until September and the worship service will start at 10 a.m.

Rev. Gordon Benson, interim pastor will preach about withdrawal. The choir, directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will sign the introit and two anthems.

A nursery is available for children age 5 and under. The attendant will be Lynne Facella. Junior church, for children up to age 12, will be led by Linda Day.

Father's Day will bee observed during the service and fathers will be remembered. Rev. Benson's family will be present.

Vacation Day Camp will be held on four consecutive Wednesday mornings in July and August. The theme this year will be "The Lord is My Shepherd." Related activities, special crafts and a field trip are planned. Volunteers are needed to help.

Rev. Kathleen Graves and her husband, Rev. Kirk Johnson, have accepted the call to be the co-pastors of the church. They will begin their ministry Aug. 1. Rev. George Elia, Conference Superintendent will install them at the worship service on Aug. 6, 1989.

For more information about any of the church's activities, please call the church office at 479-5728.

'Astonishment' Sermon Topic At United First Parish Church

This Sunday the congregation of United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents", will deliver its annual communion service at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister, will deliver a sermon titled "Are You Ready for Astonishment?"

Wendy Greene, Mezzo-Soprano, will sing solo anthems by Dvorak and Ives as guest soloist. Norman Corey, Music Director, will also play organ works by Bach, Cabanilles, and Langlais.

Richard and Ardis Porter, Kay Johnson and Tom Keto will serve the communion, and Mary Valier and Julie Dzengeleski will usher. Ruth Keating will hostess the social hour following the service. The members of the Church will hold a picnic following the social hour. This is the closing service for the church year. Services will resume on Sept. 10.

Historic First Parish Church will celebrate its 350th anniversary this September. The tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and those of their wives, are contained in a crypt within the granite walls of the church.

The church is located at 1306 Hancock St. (opposite City Hall). Visitors are welcome and are invited to attend the social hour. For information call 773-1290.

String Quartet At St. Chrysostom's

A recital by the City of Presidents String Quartet will be presented at St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church Sunday, June 18 at 3 p.m.

Daniel Lee and George Vallatini are violinists; Susan Bill will perform on the viola; and Laurie Israel, the cello. Anne Rothfarb, organist, will be guest artist.

Admission is free to the recital which will include works of Vivaldi, Dvorak, Strauss, Jerome Kern and Ablinoni. A free-will offering will be taken to benefit the Organ Fund.

Jane Reikard Honored As QCA 'Citizen Of Year' For Rent Grievance Work

Jane Reikard, executive secretary to the city's Rent Grievance Board, was recently honored as the Quincy Citizens Association's "Citizen of the Year."

Reikard, who along with her husband was once evicted, was presented the award for her work and commitment on fair housing issues during the association's recent Dinner Dance held at the Adams Heights Mens Club.

QCA President Arthur Chandler presented the award.

Reikard, who has served on the board 12 years, said she was estatic to receive the award but added "the rewards in this job are better than any award I could ever receive."

In her acceptance speech, she traced the history of her position, described the ups and downs as secretary and thanked the people who have supported her over the years.

In particular, she thanked former Mayor Joseph LaRaia for appointing her in 1977 and Mayors Arthur Tobin and Francis McCauley for reappointing her. She also thanked her husband, Lloyd, whom she referred to as her "right arm, rock of gibralter, helpmate and life's partner."

"We have gone through some wonderful times together and we have gone through hell together. We loved each other when we were young and healthy and now that we are old and have many health problems, we still love each other as much as we ever did, and will continue our life together no matter what obstacles we must overcome," Reikard said.

She became interested in rent and housing issues, particularly the eviction law after she and Lloyd were evicted from a "lovely home" one winter during the 1970s.

They were evicted "because we were standing in the way of an inheritance and the settling of an estate that was disputed and in which we were involved," Reikard explained.

"On the day of the eviction, a moving van arrived along with four police cruisers and three deputy sheriffs one of which was a woman. I was told by a friend at the sheriff's office, that if I resisted, the female was going to give me a shot in the arm to "quite me," she recalled.

Since the state eviction law allowed evictions for any reason or no reason, the eviction took place, Reikard noted.

"It was one of the coldest, snowiest days of the years."

After the incident, Reikard decided that, if given the opportunity, she would do something to make the eviction law fairer and more dignified.

JANE REIKARD, executive secretary of the city's Rent Grievance Board, was recently presented the Quincy Citizens Association "Citizen Of The Year" Award by QCA President Arthur Chandler at a dinner at the Admas Heights Men's Club. Reikard has served as executive secretary for more than 10 years.

She admitted eviction is a landlord's right but they must be done legally and with compassion.

"I hope the days of tossing people out and or their belongings will never return again," she said.

During the last eight years, Reikard has made decisions "that made people unhappy and others downright angry."

"I had to step on people's toes and slap some wrists and, of course, my biggest problem, I had to say what I thought.

"It was because of these decisions, I had to pay the price," she said.

During her tenure, her office has been broken into eight times, money was stoen from her office twice, some office equipment was ruined and rocks were thrown through her windows on three different occassions.

"Worst of all, very controversial files were stolen, files that belong to the people and the city. A theft which I resent to this day," Reikard said.

She has also experienced difficult times away from her office. Their car has been stolen twice along with some personal belongings.

"When you fight for justice, you do pay the price."

Despite her setbakcs, Reikard and the Board have upgraded the city and have "chased out the slum lords."

"We are proude of the thousands of cases we have settled over the years. We are proud of the thousands of cases we have settled over the years.

"Our goal is to make good relations between landlord and tenant and to have each side respect the others' rights," she added.

In addition to the QCA, John (Jake) Comer, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, praised Reikard's work.

"I know of no one in this city who has worked more diligently and unselfishly to help the growing number of people in need of affordable housing," Comer said.

"You have impacted on the lives of countless families and individuals by placing them in safe, decent housing and by protecting their human rights with your knowledgeable representation.

"You have done all this in an expert manner, with compassion, and a sense of fairness, giving more of yourself and your time than anyone could expect," he said.

As secretary, Reikard visits tenants and informs them of their rights and explains how they can form a tenants' committee in their building.

She also meets with landlord and explains their rights and eviction processes.

She also mediates disputes, inspects code violations with the building inspector and goes to court each Thursday to watch cases that have come through her office. She also offers legal assistance.

It is not unusual for Reikard to lobby in Boston for fair housing legislature and spend winter nights on the phone trying to get heat for tenants.

Reikard, although grateful for the award, said the true rewards come from helping others.

She recently helped a senior citizen get into senior housing after living in a room where one whole wall was missing for the last eight months. The woman saw Reikard on the street with tears streaming down her cheeks, thanked her for her help.

Street people, as well as the victims from the Sea St. Monroe Rd. and Plover Rd. fires, who she has helped relocate have all become her friends.

In closing, Reikard had sound advice for the candidate running for mayor.

"I hope that whoever wins the mayoral race, there will always be a rent grievance board here. It is needed so badly to maintain decency in the housing field here in Quincy."

William Lee Receives 4-Year Scholarship Award At U-Mass

William Lee, a junior at North Quincy High School, has been awarded the 1990 Chancellor's Award for Academic Excellence at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Lee was selected from over 300 state nominees on the basis of academic achievement.

The award is a scholarship which waives the four years of tuition at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Should he choose to utilize it, the scholarship will be activated in the fall of 1990 upon his enrollment as a college freshman.

10 Bosco Graduates From Quincy Going On To College

Ten Quincy residents, members of the class of 1989 at Don Bosco Technical High School in Boston, have enrolled at colleges or universities for the fall semester.

They are:

Christopher Cameron, Rochester Institute of Technology; Michael Danick, Southern Massachusetts University; Christopher DeNatale, Northeastern University; Brian Mantville, Northeastern University; Robert Hagerty, U-Mass/ Amherst; Michael Leonard, U-Mass/ Amherst; Neil Losordo Bradford College; Christopher McDermott, Merrimack College; David Campbell, Suffolk University; and Robert Ierardi, Wentworth Institute of Technology.

Nancy Mellyn On Dean's List

Nancy E. Mellyn of Quincy has been named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Fitchburg State College.

To be named to the Dean's List a student must attain an average semester grade of 3.2 or better.

Mellyn is majoring in Elementary Education.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Get pool water that's clean, clear with proper filtration

Proper filtration is a key to providing clean and clear pool water, a major concern of all home swimming pool owners. What's more, effective filtration normally reduces the amount of chemicals required for a sanitary pool, according to Manville, producer of AquaCel® DE (diatomite) filter powder.

The filter's main job, says Manville, is to remove dirt and other matter from the water to clarify it. Complete, or nearly so, removal of particulates from the water by filtration permits the chlorine to destroy effectively bacteria, viruses and soluble organic matter.

The two most popular home pool filter types use either DE or sand. Diatomite filters require a "precoat" of DE filter aid on the filter screen. Actual filtration takes place through this precoat, which will be about 1/16 inch thick when you use the correct amount.

Follow the recommendations of the filter manufacturer or those on an AquaCel package regarding the amount of filter powder to use.

New AquaCel packaging, incidentally, makes it easier than ever to have a clean, clear pool. Manville's new 12-lb. Twin Pack is sturdy, moisture-resistant, and easy to handle and store.

It features two individual six-lb. boxes packaged side by side, each with its own pouring spout. (Six lbs. is the amount most commonly used in swimming pool filters.)

In addition to the Twin Pack, AquaCel DE is available in the 10-Pack, which contains 10 one-lb. plastic pouches in a sturdy carton, and 25-lb. heavy gauge plastic bags.

In addition to removing unwanted dirt particles, the diatomite precoat also prevents these same particles from plugging up the filter element cloth or wire cover, thus reducing filter element cleaning operations.

If the filter elements become plugged or clogged, follow the cleaning directions supplied by your filter manufacturer or consult your pool water chemical supplier.

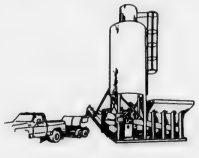
Under typical operating conditions, the filtration cycle is over and it's time to clean the filter when the filter pressure gauge reaches the manufacturer's maximum recommended level. Thorough cleanings will extend the time between cleanings.

The other major types of home filters use beds of sand, or sand and gravel, through which the water flows, leaving dirt particles trapped within the sand. Clean them when the dirt accumulated in the sand bed slows down the flow of water through the filter.

Sand filters are cleaned by backwashing. That is, pool water is forced through the filter in the direction opposite from normal filtering.

EASY TO USE, Manville AquaCel DE filter powder in premeasured one-lb. pouches eliminates the need for messy dispensing with coffee cans, as this pool owner demonstrates.

At times of heavy use—when family and friends fill the pool—owners of DE-filtered pools will hardly notice a change in water clarity, says Manville, but owners with sand filters might.



(One way to check your pool water clarity is to drop a "clarity-test disc," available from Manville, at the deepest point. If the black and red color markings printed on the disc are clearly defined, your pool filtration system is working well.)

A good solution may be to give the sand-filtered pool a rest from swimmers to let the filter catch up with the increased dirt load in the pool. Or, use alum to improve filter efficiency.

If your DE-filtered pool is subject to variable bather loads, Manville advises that 24-hour-a-day filter use with a weekly filter cleaning and change of filter aid may be the most economical.

For more information on Manville AquaCel DE filter powder, write for brochures FA-378 and FA-338 to: Manville Inquiry Department, 1601 23rd Street, Denver, CO 80216. Also write Manville for a clarity test disc (FA-89B). SH89J007

Garden Tips

By Gordon Graham, grower of the world's largest tomato, listed in The Guinness Book of World Records

Getting Your Garden Off To A Fast Start

In gardening, as in so many things in life, a good start is all important. This is especially true in the case of seedlings you start in your home.

The best way I know to give them a good strong start is to apply a good water-soluble plant food once every two or three weeks. Miracle-Gro is the one I like best. Apply it at the same strength you'd use for house plants, that is one teaspoon to a gallon of water. You'll see what a big difference that feeding makes. And when you transplant those seedlings into your garden you'll want to continue feeding, but you'll now use the regular outdoor rate of one tablespoon of plant food to a gallon of water.

Lots of folks want the advantage of an instant garden. They get flats of petunias, marigolds, tomato plants, etc. at their garden store or nursery. Smart gardeners will start these plants off right with a good feeding of the same water soluble plant food when putting them in.

Do the same for any shrubs you put in. And continue feeding throughout the growing season.

Follow this simple feeding schedule and believe me, you'll have a lovely and bountiful garden this season.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Add solar screens now to cut summer cooling costs

Soon, the sun's summer heat will begin pouring through your windows, driving up your cooling costs. But, there's something you can do now that will help save money on cooling bills for years to come.

You can add SunScreen® solar screens to your windows. SunScreens are used in place of regular insect screens, but they do more than just keep out the bugs.

The screens have a unique ribbed-weave design that can block up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare before it reaches your windows. This can mean less work for your air conditioner and lower cooling bills.

The idea behind SunScreens is relatively simple, but the mesh design is so unique that it is protected by a U.S. Patent (No. 4,002,188). The mesh is the result of years of testing and is just enough to stop the sun's heat while still allowing daylight to enter.

And, since the screen is a woven mesh and not a film, it allows gentle breezes to enter when windows are open.

Having SunScreen solar screens on your windows is a lot like sitting under a shade tree on a hot summer day. The screens work exactly like the tree's leaves, except that with the screens in a fixed position outside of your windows, they are shading the window from the sun all day long.

Millions of people saw SunScreens in use for the first time on "The Energy Saving House" at both the 1982 and the 1984 World's Fairs. They've been popular for years in such hot climates as Arizona, Southern California and Texas.

In fact, some state and local building ordinances in these "Sun States" now require shading on the west, east and the south-facing windows on new home construction. SunScreens are also recommended and endorsed by many utility companies in the South and West.

SunScreens are especially useful for greenhouses, skylights, solariums and sunspaces where the heat can be unbearable during hot summer months.

There are many additional benefits in having SunScreens in place too...for example, for improved daytime privacy. Homeowners enjoy leaving drapes or shades open during the day and still having privacy and sun protection. They can see out, but outsiders cannot easily see inside.

Another bonus benefit is protection against fading. Since most of the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays are blocked by the screens, they help reduce the fading of carpets, drapes and furnishings.

And, unlike films or other types of sun control products, solar screens block the sun with the windows open or closed. Of course, they also serve as effective insect screens when the windows are open.

Unlike shade trees, SunScreens are equally as effective in blocking both direct and indirect sun rays. If you have glare problems from water, adjacent buildings, pavement or other shiny objects, you'll appreciate the reduction in glare when SunScreens are in place.

SunScreens can be installed over any type or size of window—even fixed windows or storm windows. If you already have storm windows in place, the addition of SunScreens will help improve the protection they give in both the winter and summer months.

If full heat gain is desirable in some winter months, the screens can be easily removed and stored.

One important point...to be really effective, SunScreens need to cover the entire window area. Many windows, especially storm windows, have half-screens that cover only the lower half of the window.

That's okay for regular insect screens, because you usually only open the lower sash. But for keeping out the sun's heat, you need SunScreens on both the top and bottom windows.

If you have conventional "double-hung" windows with a full-length insect screen, it's easy to replace the insect screening with SunScreen solar screening. You can even re-use the old frames.

SunScreen is available at many leading hardware and home center stores. If they don't have it in stock, they will usually be glad to order it for you from their warehouse and can have it in a few days.

The fabric comes in several colors, so be sure to pick one that looks attractive on your home. The two most popular colors are gray, which looks much like regular insect screening at a distance, and black, which offers the best protection from the sun and the best outward visibility.

Your local dealer will also have the one tool you'll need...a screen roller...

EASY TO INSTALL in place of regular insect screens, SunScreen® solar screens can block up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare.

and easy-to-follow instructions.

If you have half-screens or an unusual installation on a greenhouse or solarium, or if you're "all thumbs," call in an experienced dealer/installer.

To find a dealer in your area, look in the telephone book under "Screens—Door and Window," or "Storm Windows, and Doors." Chances are you'll find a local screen shop that is familiar with SunScreen and can do the job for you.

Most homeowners find that the SunScreens pay for themselves in about three summers, even if custom installed. Of course, a do-it-yourself installation will pay back much sooner.

The screens are woven of long-lasting fiberglass fabric which is virtually maintenance-free and should last for many years.

If you need additional information or if you have trouble in locating a dealer in your area, send a self-addressed and stamped envelope to the manufacturer: Phifer Wire Products, Inc., P.O. Box 1700, Tuscaloosa, AL 35403.

They'll send you a color brochure, a small sample of the material and information on how to locate a dealer in your area. SH893725

Obituaries

Elsie E. Snell, 88

A funeral service for Elsie E. (Nieminen) Snell, 89, of Lake Worth, Fla., formerly of Quinncy, was conducted Tuesday at the Matthew Hannel Funeral Home by the Rev. James Kimmell of Faith Lutheran Church.

A graveside service was held at the family plot in Center Cemetery, Pembroke, Fla.

Mrs. Snell, a member of the Uljas Koitto Temperance Society of Quincy and Pembroke, and a former member of Faith Lutheran Church, died June 4 in Palm Beach Regional Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Snell and her late husband, Victor A. Snell, manager of the former Cooperative Supermarket in West Quincy, became members of the Temperance Society in 1964.

She was a former Sunday School teacher at the P.Y. Veli Workingmen's Association until 1968.

Born in Helsinki, Finland, she came to Quincy with her parents in 1909. She moved to Houston for a short time in 1981 after becoming ill and then moved to the Finnish American Rest Home in Lake Worth.

She attended Willard School in Quincy.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

We publish this thought by an anonymous writer in a sincere hope it stirs sentiment and reawakens memories for families and fathers - everywhere - on Father's Day...

Only a dad, with a tired face, coming home from the daily race - Bringing little of god and fame - to show how well he has played the game - But glad in his heart that his own rejoice - to see him come and to hear his voice... Only a dad, of a brood of four, one of ten million men or more - Plodding along in the daily strife, bearing the whips and scorns of life - With never a whimper of pain or hate, for the sake of those who at home await... Only a dad, neither rich nor proud, merely one of the surging crowd - Toiling, striving, from day to day, facing whatever may come his way - Silent, whenever the harsh condemn, and bearing it all for the love of them... Only a dad, but he gives his all - to smooth the way for his children small - Doing, with courage stern and grim, the deeds that his father did for him - These are the lines that for him I pen... Only a dad, but the best of men...

'Hats Off To Young Readers' At Main Library June 20

Michael Zerphy, a mime, clown and performer of visual stories, will perform at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, on Tuesday, June 20 at 7 p.m. to launch the library's summer reading program called "Hats Off to Young Readers".

Zerphy combines a program of mime, juggling, and audience involvement.

He studied theater at Thomas Jefferson College where he was awarded a Fine Arts scholarship.

He has also studied with Bob Berky's "clownshop", Michael Henry and the Celebration Mime Theatre with Tony Montanaro. He has been a member of the Amherst Mime Theatre and guest artiest with the New England New Vaudeville Show.

Zerphy appeared with the Edinburgh Fringe Festival in Scotland in 1981 and, with his partner, Joe Killian, performed with the "Clown Conspiracy" throughout Europe.

MICHAEL ZERPHY

He has taught at the Boston University Theatre Institute and the New England Theatre Conference, as well as conducting residencies in New York, Michigan and Massachusetts.

Zerphy's performance is recommended for children age 5 and older and for adults.

Young readers may also sign up for the library's summer reading program at the performance.

Star Trek V Lacks In Special Effects But Doesn't Need Them

By JANE ARENA

Star Trek V: The Final Frontier
Directed by William Shatner
Now Playing at Entertainment Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall

One of the most eagerly awaited of the summer's intended block-buster films, "Star Trek V: The Final Frontier. does not disappoint.

At least it doesn't disappoint the fan of the original television series, the serious "trekkie".

Anyone expecting a mega-dose of special effects and a lot of video-game fight sequences may well be disappointed. We don't even get to warp factor five in this film.

What we do get is a magnificent tribute to all of the best elements of the series.

In his directing debut, William Shatner (Captain Kirk) focuses on the characters and the inherent humor of their interactions, and he brings the crew of the Starship Enterprise back to us like old friends.

Shatner magnifies the character traits of the crew, but never overdoes it, only because that is impossible to do with these characters.

It was exactly this corny, cliche quality about the characters which made them so appealing in the series. We always knew what to expect from them.

We counted on the verbal sparring between Spock and 'Bones'; we loved Scotty's constant insistence that the ship might never leave the ground, and, no matter how hokey, we wanted Kirk to moralize at the end of each show, with the music rising up behind him and emotion welling in his eyes.

All of that is here in "Star Trek V." All of that and more.

We also have more than the usual glimpse of the personal relationships between the crew. In the TV series such relationships were always acknowledged, but never explored. Shatner chose to zoom in on them in this film, mainly on the most interesting relationship - between Kirk, Spock and 'Bones,'(who go so far as to refer to each other as 'brothers' in the film).

Even the storyline of "Star Trek V" is more akin to what we remember from the series. It is more mythic in quality and always dealing with the really big philosophic questions: Good vs. Evil, Man vs. Machine, or, in this case, The Meaning of Life.

But, although the components of the plot are as big as that, through its' simplistic telling, the storyline takes a back seat to the characters and their part in the action. We care less about the fact that the crew may meet God, than about what 'Bones' might say to Him. And that's how it should be.

"Star Trek V" may be lacking in the special effects and the dog fights, but that's what "Star Wars" is for,(and that's what was wrong with the first two "Star Trek" films).

If, as the rumors and the title suggest, "Star Trek V: The Final Frontier" is the last installment in the film series, then we have William Shatner to thank for a dignified and fond farewell.

Beam me up, Scotty.

Wollaston Defeats Holbrook

After being rained out of two games last week, the Wollaston Legion Baseball team, which finished at 8-8 and just missed a Zone 6 playoff spot a year ago, finally opened its season Monday night and defeated Holbrook, 6-2, under the lights at Adams Field.

Wollaston was scheduled to meet Morrisette in the makeup of a rained-out game Tuesday, will face Quincy tonight (Thursday) at 8:30 at Adams, will play at Carter Post in Dorchester Friday at 6, will hoost Braintree Monday night at 8:30 at Adams and will play at Milton next Wednesday at 6.

Chris Higgins, who just graduated from Thayer Academy, pitched six-hit ball, struck out 11 and walked three.

Wollaston had only three hits but took advantage of five walks and errors.

Higgins had an RBI single, Jim Bryan had a double and scored a run and Bill Bellew had the only other hit, a single.

Bellew and Mike Noonan had good defensive games for Wollaston.

Milton Morrisette Nemesis

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team finally got its 45th season underway Monday night but opened on a sour note as it lost to its nemesis of the past few years, Milton, 4-2, at Milton.

Morrisette, which finished at 12-4 and second to Braintree in Zone 6 last year, was eliminated by Milton in two one-run games in the zone playoffs.

Morrisette was due to pay a makeup game with Wollaston Tuesday, will play Mass. Truc Friday, Randolph on Sunday and Canto next Wednesday, all games under the lights at 8 o'clock at Adams Field.

Morrisette lost Monday despite out-hitting Milton, 8-2. Two costly errors, two walks and the only two Milton hits spelled the downfall of Morrisette pitcher Erik DeBoer.

DeBoer, the leading pitcher in the Suburban League for North Quincy's League champions, deserved a better fate as he struck out 11, including seven of the last nine batters and walked three.

Morrisette scored a run in the top of the fourth when Jeff Calvert singled and scored on Tony Anderlionis' double. It added its final run in the seventh on a single by Rob McDonald, a bunt single by Billy MacDougall and Dan Ryan's single. It left two stranded as the next two batters went out.

McDonald and Anderlionis had two hits each and Billy MacDougall, Kevin MacDougall, Calvert and DeBoer one apiece.

DeBoer is joined by two North Quincy teammates on the pitching staff, Billy Warren, who had a no-hitter this spring, and Gary Rawdon, Kevin MacDougall, another North Quincy star, will also pitch when not playing in the outfield.

Calvert was one of the top catchers in the Suburban League but will play the infield as Morrisette has two excellent receivers in McDonald and Brian Taylor. Matt Donovan is another fine catcher.

Infielders are George Rozanitis, Robert Cinquegrano, Calvert, Ron Boudreau, Anderlionis and Michael Baylis.

Outfielders are Billy and Kevin MacDougall, Jim Glynn and Ryan.

Bryan Post Racks Up 3 Wins

Bryan VFW Post combined outstanding pitching, solid defense and timely hitting to win three Babe Ruth League games during the past week over Bank of New England Golden Print and Houghs Neck.

Bryan defeated Bank of N.E., 6-1, as Michael Malvesti fired a two-hitter and struck out seven.

Bryan scored a run in the first inning on fine base running by Mark Kelleher and Tom Nutley.

BNE tied the score at 1-1, the score after three innings. In the fourth, Tom Balzano led with a long shot to right-center, but Bryan's Paul Murphy made the play of the game to hold Balzano to a single. Tim Ross doubled but Malvesti bore down to retire the side unscathed.

Bryan broke the game open with four runs in the fifth. Murphy (two hits) led with a long home run, followed by Rob Kane's double, sacrifice flies by Steven Loud and Kelleher, Nutley's booming triple and singles by Malvesti and Joe Marnikovic. Bryan scored its final run in the sixth thanks to some more fine base running by Kane.

Bryan's defense was led by Loud, George Wirtz, Bill Morrissey and catcher Kelleher, who threw out three runners trying to steal.

Eric Kreuz pitched well for Bank of New England.

Bryan topped Golden Print, 9-2, behind the strong pitching of Marnikovic and Kelleher, who combined for a three-hitter and struck out nine. Backup catcher Morrissey and left fielder Todd Portesi played strong defense.

Marnikovic had a double and single, Loud, Kelleher and Nutley who hits each and Malvesti, Kane, Murphy and Terry Sheehan one apiece.

Shortstop Steve Miller, who had a fine two-way game for Golden, had two hits and Dave Reinhart a single.

Bryan defeated Houghs Neck, 4-2, behind Loud's two-hit pitching. He struck out six. He pitched well in the clutch as he out-dueled Matt O'Toole, who pitched well for HN. Third baseman Nutley sparked the Bryan defense.

Bryan scored in the first on some fine base running by Kelleher and Nutley's RBI single. Nutley again came through with an RBI single to make the score 2-0 in the third.

HN rallied to tie at 2-2 on Brian Connolly's key hit in the fourth.

Bryan went ahead, 3-2, in the fifth on Kane's single and added an insurance run in the sixth on Marnikovic's hit. Loud and Wirtz had the remaining hits.

Phil Bell, Rich Gorman, Sean Skahan and Jeff Breslin also contributed to the win.

O'Toole, Connolly and Tim Gately played will for Houghs Neck.

Whitelaw Honored By NACD

Bob "Scotty" Whitelaw, former three-letterman at North Quincy High and a member of North's Football Hall-of-Fame, who is stepping down as commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) this month, received the prestigious James J. Corbett Award recently in Anaheim, Calif.

The award, given by the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics at its 24th annual ceremonies, is given to the person who "through the years typified devotion to intercollegiate athletics and has worked for its betterment."

Whitelaw, who leaves his post June 30 and will be succeeded by Clayton Chapman, said, "I was taken by surprise when I learned I'd be receiving the award. But I'm deeply honored to be considered in the same company as those who have previously received the award. It is an honor I will always cherish."

Under Whitelaw's long tenure, the ECAC has grown into one of the top conferences in the country. It has grown to include 257 colleges and universities, 19 sports, 90 men's and women's championships and more than 20,000 officiating assignments annually.

EDONIDIO LEONEL, right, of Boston, won the St. Anthony's Festival 3.5 Mile Road Race Sunday with a time of 16.29. Moacir Silva, also of Boston, finished second in 16.30. The fourth annual race, sponsored by St. John's Church, was held in conjunction with the Festival. Both runners are members of the Boston Track Club.

Marty Finnegan Suffers Heart Attack

Marty Finnegan, Quincy's coordinator of athletics and a leader in the field of chemical health, suffered a 'moderate' heart attack last week at Assabet Valley High School, just before speaking to the students on chemical health.

Finnegan felt some congestion in his chest just before speaking and was taken to the Marlboro Hospital, where he was in intensive care until Monday.

He is scheduled for a stress test at the hospital Friday.

He was selected as the Quincy Sun's "Citizen of the Year" last year for his work in chemical health. He is the coorinator of Project Impact, and innovative program to help youngsters deal with drugs, alcohol and other problems. He tours throughout New England and New York State on behalf of the program.

A longtime Quincy High coach and athletic coordinator, he was recently inducted into the Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame.

Mooter On State Soccer Team

Derek Mooter of 75 Bennington St., Quincy, has been chosen for the under 15 Massachusetts State soccer team.

Players are selected from the Massachusetts District teams. Derek is a member of the Southeastern District team.

The state team will begin play late this month with a schedule of games against other Northeastern Regional teams and hopefully advance to Eastern and National playoffs.

Mooter's soccer career began at age six in the Quincy Youth Soccer League where he was coached for several years by Bill Flynn. He is a member of the North Quincy High team, coached by Jim McGuire, in the fall, and plays for the Inter-County Soccer Club in the winter and spring. The Inter-County Club recently took first place, for the second year in a row, in a Memorial Day tournament in Massapequa, N.Y.

3-Way Tie For Top Spot

After three weeks of action in the Jaehnig Chiropractic Men's Basketball League, three teams are tied for first place with 3-0 records, defening champion Kane's Place, the Greymen and the Jaehnig Club.

The Greymen used 31 points from Steve Millane and 24 from Bruce Giles to overpower Bill's Club, 90-66. Kevin Lottermilk added 18. For Bill's (1-2) Jim Tandler had 24 points.

Kane's Place topped the Bay State Bombardiers(0-2), 80-58, behind Mark Millane's 30 points. Dean Coletti had 16 and Bill Dacey 15. John Keenan had 17 points for the Bombardiers.

Mike Jaehnig scored all six of his points in the final two minutes to help Jaehnig Club to an 82-79 victory over Miller A.C.(1-2). Jaehnig got off to a 16-2 lead but had to struggle in the second half as Miller rode Mike Cohen's game-high 30 points to take the lead late in the game. Jaehnig got balances scoring as Paul Leonard had 17 points, Mark and Chuck Jaehnig 14 apiece, Mike Kelley 13 and John Timmins 10.

Jeff Timberlake had 19 points and Steve Belcastro and Brian Reale 16 each to lead the Quincy Nets(2-1) to a 72-51 win over Granite Rail. Fred Murray and John Phelan sparked Granite Rail (0-3).

J.B. Heating(2-1) had five players in double figures as it topped Bake's Club, 79-67. John Byers had 17 points, Willie Weeks and Steve Waters 15 each, Don Murphy 14 and Brian Levitt 12. Don Grant scored 22 for Bake's(1-2).

Presidents Women Win WGAM Cup Match

A team of women golfers representing Presidents Golf Course in Quincy recently won the Ninth Cup of the WGAM Spring Cup matches.

Competition was intense with teams from Spring Valley Country Club, Dennis Pines Golf Course, Dedham Country and Polo Club, Cohasset Golf Course and Duxbury Yacht Club in contention.

Five matches were held with the Presidents team winning by seven points. The win was especially sweet as it was the first year the team had taken part in the state-wide event.

A silver trophy to be held for one year will be on display at the course in Quincy.

Members of the team were Capt. Janet Colclough, Sandra Jordan and Michelle Millane of Quincy, Barbara Cascmiro of Milton, Nancy DiCarlo of Dorchester and substitutes Marge Barry, Carol Cahill, Laura Colclough and Susan Martinelli, all of Quincy.

Sterling Wins Track Title

The Sterling Middle School boys and girls' track teams recently won the city championships with both relay teams winning to ensure the victories.

The boys' team won by five points over Atlantic, with Mike Sweeney, Noel DiBona and Sean Connery leading the way.

The girls' competition was extremely close with Sterling defeating Atlantic by just a half point. Melissa Flagg, Nicole Shaughnessy and Nicole Mullen sparked the winners.

Ann Murphy also had a big day for Sterling.

The leading scorer this season for the boys' team was Sweeney with 38 points, follwed by Co-Captains DiBona and Connolly with 33 and 28½ respectively.

Mike Elder had 15¾; Jason Crosby, 13¾; Mike Lalama, 13½; Eric McPartlin, 11; Mike Dern, 9¼; Richie Stone, 7½; John Fraser, 5½; Shawn DeHudson, 3¼; Jason Keith, 2; and Jamie Beauchamp, 1.

Co-Captains Shaughnessey (33½ points) and Flagg(28½) led the girls' scoring.

Mullen had 27; Alyssa Gilma, 17¼; Mary Ellen Leone, 14¾; Colleen Gallagher, 12½; Jennifer Kelley, 11¼; Theresa Johnstone, 10½; Lisa Tarullo, 7¾; Jennifer Santry, 7¼; Vicky Comeau, 7; Kellye Daley, 7; Keli Langille, 3; and Nicole Ferraro, 1.

Ralph Koelsch coached the Sterling teams.

Hershey Track Program June 28

Director Barry Welch announces that the Quincy Recreation Department will sponsor the Hershey National Track and Field Youth Program by hosting a community meet, open to all boys and girls ages 9 to 14.

The local meet will be the first step in a competition which could result in a local athlete advancing to the National Championship in Hershey Park, Pennsylvania. New England champions are awarded an all-expense paid trip by Hershey Chocolate, the National Sponsor.

The program is open to all youngsters ages 9 to 14, and participants do not have to have previous track experience, or be a member of a community track program. There are no entry fees and spikes and starting blocks are not allowed. This event is open to participants from surrounding communities. However, participants must provide the sponsoring agency with written proof of age before they will be allowed to compete.

Registration will be on the day of the meet; the age of the participant will be his/her age as of Dec. 31, 1989. Boys and girls will compete in three categories: 9-10, 11-12, and 13-14. Those youngsters currently 8 years of age, but who will turn 9 years of age before December 31, 1989, may compete in the 9-10 group. Youngsters currently 14 years of age, but who will turn 15 years before December 31, 1989, are not eligible.

The events:

Age 9-10 Boys and Girls: 50 yard Dash, 100 yard Dash, 200 yard Dash, 4 x 100 yard Relay, Standing Long Jump, Softball Throw.

Age 11-12 Boys and Girls: 100 yard Dash, 200 yard Dash, 400 yard Dash, 800 yard Run, 4 x 100 yard Relay, Standing Long Jump, Softball Throw.

Age 13-14 Boys and Girls: Boys and Girls 100 yard Dash, 200 yard Dash, 400 yard Dash, 800 yard Run, 4 x 100 yard Relay, Standing Long Jump, Softball Throw.

Each participant may compete in up to three events, and if three are chosen, one must be a field event.

Welch noted, "The philosophy of this program is to stimulate participation of all eligible children, it is in no way to be contained as an All-Star program. This event is run in cooperation with the National Recreation and Park Association and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sport. I encourage our young residents to take advantage of this excellent program."

For more information, contact the Quincy Recreation Department at 773-1380, extension 204.

Women's Softball All-Star Game Saturday

The Quincy Women's Softball League will hold its annual all-star game this Saturday night at 7 at Collins Field, across from Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Two players will represent each of the 17 teams in the annual game.

The teams are Brannigan's, Fowler House, Hi-Rise, Hofbrau, Joe's Pub, Kane's Place, Liberty Lounge, Luke's, Nostalgia, Washington Tap, Dependable Cleaners, Videotime, Peter B's Painting, Putnam, Realty World, Pokaski and Trainor's.

Farmer's Market Opens Friday

Massachusetts-grown fruits and vegetables will be featured at Quincy Farmers Market which opens Friday for the season. The market will be held at the Hancock Street Parking Lot in Quincy Center across from the Quincy District Court House, Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. until Oct. 27.

Approximately a dozen farmers will be selling their produce at the market, including early tomatoes, the sweetest variety of corn, baked goods, jams, cheese, herbs, flowers and plants and turkey products. For home gardeners, some farmers will be selling composted cow manure in 50 lb. bags.

Anneli Johnson, coordinator of the market, is looking forward to another successful season. "The Farmers' Market turns the asphalt pavement into a garden of flowers and vegetables for city folks to enjoy -- and at the same time meet old friends and make new friends with the farmers and neighbors," Johnson said.

The market will honor Farmers' Market Coupons and Food Stamps.

Among the farmers participating this year is Glen Stillman of Lunenberg. "We are anticipating an exceptional year," Stillman said. "Everything looks good and is on schedule."

More than 70 farmers' markets at sites ranging from Cape Cod to the Berkshires will offer the freshest produce and flowers, most picked within 24 hours.

Farmers' markets offer several advantages. First, by shopping at Farmers' Markets, consumers support local agriculture and, in turn, help to protect dwindling farmland. Farmers' Markets are growing and have played an important role in the modest resurgence of Bay State agriculture.

The selection is another bonus. Consumers can choose just how much they want and get it at reasonable prices without costly packaging.

Traditional Massachusetts crops such as corn, tomatoes and apples are always plentiful at the markets, but shoppers will discover some not-so-traditional items as well. These include leeks, collards, a variety of fresh herbs, and ethnic and gourmet specialties.

In addition to fresh produce, many farmers' markets this year are offering products such as turkey pies, jams and jellies, baked goods, farm fresh eggs and handmade crafts.

Flowers, another summertime favorite, are found in abundance at Farmers' Markets. Right now, one can find a large variety of annuals, perennials, and hanging plants perfect for beautifying any yard.

For anyone considering planting a garden this summer, the local Farmers' Market should be a first stop. You will find a variety of seedlings, such as tomato, cucumber, and peppers, among others, available.

3-Year Term For Building Inspector Backed By MBCIA President

The president of the Massachusetts Building Commissioners and Inspectors Association has notified the chairman of the city's Ordinance Committee that he supports a three-years appointment of present Building Inspector Matt Mulvey.

In a letter dated June 5 to Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the Ordinance Committee, Association President James Starrat said a three-year appointment would "insure a stable, progressive Building Department without changing a cast of characters due to political change."

The job is a Civil Service position but the last competitive examination for it was in 1974.

Since Civil Service has no intention of having an exam in the near future, Mulvey is seeking some job protection.

There is a measure presently before the Ordinance Committee that, if approved, would appoint Mulvey to a three-year term. If it is not approved, Mulvey's term will expire early next year.

The decision to appoint Mulvey to a three-year term could come at the June 19th City Council meeting.

The issue has sparked considerable debate among some city officials and residents, including former mayor Joseph LaRais.

LaRaia has said that before a decision is made, Mulvey's credentials should be reviewed in the interest of public safety and public priority.

In his letter, Starrat state that the opposition aimed at Mulvey stems from political reasons.

"A small amount of correspondence to your committee and a select few letters to the media oppose this appointment. It is blatantly evident that the reasons for those positions are from political opposition during an election year.

"The objection is due to the fact that Mr. Mulvey is a professional, educated and experienced inspector of buildings who administers his department without being influenced by a fluctuating political climate," he wrote.

Approving Mulvey's appointment "will commit the future of Quincy's infrastructure to one of unbiased enforcement of codes, ordinances and public safety, without fear of retaliation election year to election year," Starratt added,

In his defense, Mulvey has said he is "a professional in my field and I know that the laws must be enforced with no preferential treatment to anyone.

"I have always conducted my public career in this fashion. I am fair to everyone, but no one will make this inspector break the rules.

"The citizens of Quincy know this and most support my approach to handling an always difficult job. The days of allowing special treatment to some and not all are gone from the building department" Mulvey said.

People who have been afraid to come forward with long-standing neighborhood problems come to me because they know I will take an objective look, and if I can help legally, I do," he added.

Mulvey is a director in the Massachusetts Building Commissioners and Inspectors Association which represents all commissioners and inspectors statewide. He is active in the Certification Committee of the State Bureau of Building Regulations and Standards.

According to Starratt, the certification process augments Civil Service, which has shown no interest in recent history to examining inspectors of buildings.

Bartons Candy Co. To Close

Bartons Candy Co., 162 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, acquired last week by a Pennsylvania candy maker, will close its 50 employee plant by the end of the year.

Anthony Forgione, president of Boyer Candy Co., said Monday that his firm has offered to relocate the workers at Boyer's plant in Altoona, PA.

The company will retain about a dozen sales and marketing employees either in Wollaston or Boston and will begin manufacturing its feature line of kosher boxed chocolates at a new facility in Altoona.

According to Forgione, Boyer bought Bartons to cash in on the growing demand for chocolate specialties. "I see for the chocolate market what you've seen for the gourmet ice cream market," he said.

Bartons was started more than 50 years ago in Brooklyn, N.Y. by Austrian candy maker Stephen Klein. The company moved from Brooklyn to Charlestown in 1983, where it shared a plant with Schrafft Candy Co., under mutual owner American Safety Razor Co.

After the plant was sold in 1985, Bartons moved to Wollaston.

Boyer, privately owned, brought the company June 6 from Boston investor Richard Miller of Tucker Anthony and R.L. Day, Inc., and Robert and Ernest Freidlander. Forgione did not disclose the purchase price.

Boyer produces Mallo Cups, Boyer Peanut Butter Cups, Smoothies and milk chocolate holiday specialties.

Dumpster Hearing Placed On File

The License Board Tuesday placed on file a hearing concerning the overflow of a dumpster at 33-39 Washington St., and the overflow of a trash compactor at 15 Cottage Ave., both operated by Peter Kelly.

The complaints were issued by the city Health Department.

Kelly, represented by Atty. Thomas Largey, told the board the overflow of the dumpster was due to the Memorial Day long weekend and that the compactor problem was due to the fact that the compactor motor was too small.

He said he has increased the pick-up of trash in both locations to two times per week and has also made an effort to compact trash on Cottage Ave. more frequently. He told the board that he would be willing to get a larger compactor if the problem is not corrected.

He also agreed to increase the trash pick-up to three times per week on holiday weekends if necessary.

"It won't happen again," he said. "I'll watch it."

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said that she would continue to monitor the problem.

School Officials Respond To Sterling Bus Complaints

suspension was served.

The student's parents, however, have appealed the suspension, claiming that the student has a "handicap" which may be construed as a discipline problem by personnel who are not "sensitive to the student's needs," Ricci said. The issue of the handicap (which Ricci declined to disclose because it may serve to identify the student) is being investigated further, he said.

The appeal of the suspension is scheduled to come before the School Committee June 21, Ricci said. The second incident would probably be discussed at that time as well, he added.

According to Ricci, one of the bus drivers has indicated he would not drive the bus with this student on board. A hearing with the drivers was held and they were made aware that only the administration, and not the drivers, have authority to ban a student from the bus. The student in question is currently riding the bus, Ricci said. A hearing with student and parents is scheduled soon, he added.

In response to the problem, a teacher has been assigned to act as monitor on the bus, and, Ricci said, no complaints have been issued since the teacher took the position on June 8. Although all school busses are assigned monitors, Ricci said that a teacher-as-monitor may be better able to handle the situation.

As for the letter itself, Ricci said he feels it is "one-sided."

I m not saying these things didn't happen," he said. "Things have happened. There have been complaints. But this letter is taking the position that the student slapped the driver ... it's not that easy ... there are two sides here. It may be a first-hand account, or based on a first-hand account, but the letter seems to be one-sided."

Responding to the other allegations, in the letter, Sterling Principal Long said that "we've never had reports of smoking on the buses, and we've never had reports of drinking ... and believe me (the drivers) would report it ... that's an absolute lie. It's ridiculous."

Long did, however, recount one incident of fighting which occured on Washington Street in October.

"Some kids were fighting before they got on the bus in the morning," he said. "I don't know of any other complaints than this one."

Long said that school officials "respond to everything we get. You have to investigate everything and we have dealt with all incidents as they come to us from the drivers."

"Yes, there are some problems on the buses," he continued, "as there will be with 43 kids ... these students are excitable adolescents. But all the problems that come to our attention are dealt with as fairly as possible.

"But I would issue an out and out denial of drinking or smoking on the buses," he said, "because nothing has been reported to us."

Hearing Continued On Boston Chicken License Request

Because area residents were not informed of the hearing, the License Board continued for one week a hearing on a request from Harvey Lazerus for a common victualer license to open a Boston Chicken restaurant at 642 Adams St.

Atty. Thomas Largey, representing Lazerus, told the board that the establishment would be a "take home, full meal chicken facility," and emphasized that it would not be a "take out restaurant".

"This is not fast food," he told the board, "but take home prepared food."

The original Boston Chicken restaurant is located in Newtonville, Lazerus said, and noted that the Health Department of Newton has reported had no complaints of violations on the site. Another Boston Chicken establishment recently opened in Porter Square, Cambridge, he said.

All of the food aside from the chicken, which is cooked on premises, is prepared at the company's commissary located on Harvard St. in Brookline, Lazerus said.

Although the individual stores are franchised, Lazarus told the board that the parent company has "stringent rules for the operation and cleanliness of the franchises."

Lazerus said that the Brookline commissary services 15 to 20 franchises and makes deliveries three times a week after 8:30 a.m. The establishment hours, he noted would be from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. with an 8:30 a.m. opening for employees onlyt. He also said that the hours of operation could be altered "down, but not up" if needed.

Atty. Largey told the board that two neighborhood meetings had been held on the matter (one of them on Monday night). He noted that the usual problems with such an establishment are traffic, parking, trash and odors.

Largey told the board that a dity traffic study indicated that Boston Chicken would cause only a one percent increase in traffic of the area, noting that it was based only on traffic specifically going to the restaurant.

"Clearly this is less of a traffic increase than any other comparable use," he said.

Concerning parking, Largey noted that, by law, the establishment must hae 18 parking spaces.

"We have roughly double that amount here," he said.

Largey also said that trash would be taken care op by a "state-of-the-art" compactor which would be sealed against leakage and fenced in. He also noted that due to the nature of the business, because the food is prepared off-site, garbage would be minimal, and because the product would be intended for "take home" and not "take out", other trash would be minimal as well.

Largey also said that odors would be minimal because most of the food would be prepared off-site.

Largey told the board that a bus had been hired for area residents to visit the Newtonville site, but that none of the residents signed up for the tour. He noted that some residents had made the visit on their own and "no complaints" afterward.

Ward Councillors James Sheets and Lawrence Chretian told the board that they had not been informed that the issue was to be before the Board on Tuesday and had not been able to inform the residents of the meeting. Chretian noted that residents had expressed interest in attending the meeting.

Councillor Sheets told the board that community residents had been told they would be notified and requested that the hearing be continued for one week for that purpose.

Board Chairman John Gillis said that in order "to be fair to neighbors," the hearing would be continued June 20.

Parents Council Plans Mayoral Candidates Night

A Mayoral Candidates' Night will be sponsored by the Citywide Parents Council Tuesday, June 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Methods Center.

The council, with representatives from each of the city's public schools, is a parents organization concerned with school issues. It represents the concerns of individual PTO's.

The council has traditionally held a candidates' night each election year where candidates views toward education are examined.

This year, however, interest in the mayor's race is high. There is general and wide-spread feeling among parents that the budget for the city's schools has been inadequate and has, over the years, led to an erosion of quality education in Quincy.

Since Proposition 2½ stripped the School Committee of its fiscal autonomy, control of school funding rests solely in the mayor's office. Parents realize if adequate funding is to become a reality, support from the next mayor is essential.

Key school issues identified by the council which requires additional funding include: no cuts in teaching staff, additional school nurses and adequate repair and maintenance of school buildings.

Parents will be interested to learn of the positions of the candidates on these and other school issues.

The council hopes for a large turnout to reflect the growing and wide-spread concern for adequate school funding.

The public, as well as parents, are encouraged to attend.

Paper Recycling On Money-Saving Pace

(Cont'd from Page 1)

To further educate residents, Chretien is urging residents to help the city distribute flyers and calendars with information about the program.

The calenders, to be colore-coded to help residents understand the alternating A and B schedule, should be printed soon and ready for distribution.

Chretien thanked the residents who are participating in the program and urged others to join in. He noted that recycling saves trees, reduces air and water pollutions, conserves water and energy, reduced the need for landfills and incinerators and saves money.

McGrath Endorsed By 4 Unions

Mayoral candidate Stephen McGrath announces he has received the endorsements of the Sheet Metal Workers Local 17, Plumbers and Gas Fitters Local 12, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 103 and the Pipefitters Local 537.

"I am pleased to receive the endorsements of these unions for my candidacy for mayor of the City of Quincy" said McGrath.

"I am proud of the support I have received from working mean and women and proud of my record in support of labor".

The union endorsements cited McGrath's support of union efforts in the Question 2 fight of last year, as well as his authorship of the Quincy residence ordinance and City Council resolution in support of union construction at the Crown Colony Development.

AS PART OF a recent litter research project sponsored by the MDC at Wollaston Beach, Merrymount School fifth graders, John Leonard, Terrance Roche, and Paul Towne collect and tabulate litter along the beach.

Merrymount Students Find Plastic Biggest Beach Litter Problem

About 46 percent of the more than 7,000 pieces of trash recently collected at Wollaston Beach by fifth grade students at the Merrymount School were plastic items, according to their study.

The students, who were part of the Governor's "Don't Trash Our Future" Anti-Litter program, released their report last week at a press conference at Lynn-Nahant Beach.

The conference, attended by Gov. Michael Dukakis, Secretary of Environmental Affairs John DeVillars and MDC Commissioner Illyas Bhatti, was part of "Don't Trash Our Future" Day.

During the conference, Dukakis presented the first annual Governor's Environmental Youth Award to Kathy Kelly, a teacher at the Merrymount School who coordinated the student study study.

The students collected and analyzed the litter at a section of Wollaston Beach on three dates: April 26 (just before the MDC MetroParks beach clean-up) May 17 and May 25.

Of the 7,095 items collected from less than one acre of beach,

- 3,273 or 46 percent of the pieces were plastic.
- 1,756 or 25 percent were paper.
- 664 or 10 percent were glass.
- 514 or seven percent were wood.
- 302 or four percent were metal.
- 224 of three percent were various styrofoam products.
- 206 or three percent were rubber.
- 146 or two percent were cloth.

Some of the sources of the litter were fast food and beach area restaurants and debris being washed ashore by the tides.

The study shows that plastic seems to be the number one litter problem at Wollaston Beach. Much of the plastic was in the form of plastic straws.

The students said if restaurants would use paper straws like at Sea World, the problem of plastic litter would be lessened. They also agreed if companies used less plastic, the future of the environment would be cleaner.

The state's bottle bill was cited as the reason for a less than expected amount of cans and bottles.

Since recycling helps the environment, the fifth graders said a method should be found to recycle styrofoam products which are harmful to the environment and marine life.

The students were also a bit disappointed at the high amount of paper found.

Marty Finnegan Recuperating At Home

Quincy athletic coordinator Marty Finnegan, who suffered a 'moderate' heart attack two weeks ago just before addressing a group of students at Assabet Valley High School and spent two weeks in Marlboro Hospital, has returned home and will spend the summer recuperating at his home, 165 Quincy Shore Drive, Quincy.

"I feel fine but the doctor told me I have to really take it easy during the summer," Finnegan said. "I guess I'll have to cut down on my travels talking to students on the evils of drugs and alcohol."

Marty, coordinator of Project Impact, an innovative program to help youngsters deal with drugs, alcohol and other problems, was named The Quincy Sun's 'Citizen of the Year' for his work in chemical health.

He was getting ready to address students at Assabet Valley when he complained of some congestion in his chest and was taken to the Marlboro Hospital, where he was kept in intensive care for nearly a week.

Says Measure 'Un-American'

McCauley Again Vetoes Local Hiring Bill

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Touching on patriotic themes, Mayor Francis McCauley has again vetoed a local job hiring preference bill that has been passed twice by the City Council.

In his veto message, McCauley told councillors the "measure is basically un-American in that it restricts the free access of citizens to obtain a job of their own choosing outside of their own communities.

"It is both overly restrictive to employees as well as overly intrusive by the city," he said.

City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie concurred with the mayor.

"As with the earlier order, it is my opinion that a hiring preference of Quincy residents, as provided in this order, would violate the privileges and immunities clause of the United States Constitution," MacRitchie said.

McCauley had vetoed a similar order last October.

After his veto, the Council raised the issue again and amended the order.

The revised measure would require developers to hire Quincy residents on a one-to-three ratio for construction projects costing more than $250,000 which are funded in whole or in part by city funds.

Minorities and women would be given additional hiring preference as provided by federal, state or municipal laws.

The council can override the mayor's veto with a two-thirds vote. Since the order passed the council by an 8-1 margin, it appears the measure stands a good chance of eventually being adopted.

However, since the matter must lay on the table 10 days, the council cannot vote on it at next Monday's special meeting. The council could decide to hold another meeting during the summer and thus act on it before the fall session.

Several councillors, including the drafters of the order, Councillors Stephen McGrath, Patricia Toland and Michael Cheney, have enthusiastically endorsed the measure.

Essentially, they and other supporters said Quincy residents should share in the economic boom and thuse deserve hiring preference.

Some councillors have also said a question on constitutionality should should be left up to the courts, not the mayor.

Besides being "un-American," McCauley said the measure may prove to be unenforceable and could lead to similar ordinances being passed by other cities and towns.

"Attempts at enforcing residency requirements for municipal employees in number of communities has been largely ineffective. In addition, the city lacks the resources to even attempt to enforce these requirements," McCauley said.

"Adoption of this ordinance amendment could lead to the passage of similar laws in other communities. These laws could adversely affect Quincy residents who are employed outside of Quincy," the mayor said.

In a letter to McCCauley, MacRitchie, noted that an attorney who represented the Massachusetts Council of Construction Employers and Building Trades Union in a challenge to the city of Boston's residency preference agrees the order is unconstitutional.

Atty. Paul Kingston said the challenge prevailed at the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court but was struck down by the U.S. Supreme Court.

By a 7-2 vote, the Supreme Court found the residence preference permissible under the commerce clause but left open the question of whether it was in violation of the privileges and immunities clause "which I believe clearly to be the case," Kingston said.

City Council Wants Downtown Business Study

The City Council wants Mayor Francis McCauley to appropriate money for the hiring of a consulting firm which would prepare and conduct a market feasibility study of the business district in Downtown Quincy.

By a unanimous vote, the Council voted for the study. Council President Patricia Toland, who introduced the resolution, said the study "is probably the first step" in revitalizing downtown.

"We need to find out what will be attractive to the downtown and who will be attracted to the downtown. I think it's very important that we find out who will patronize the downtown," she said.

Ward I Councillor Michael Cheney said the study "is a great idea."

Noting there have been many proposals for downtown, Cheney said, "We have to take all the pieces of the puzzle and bring them under one umbrella."

Toland said a market feasibility study is needed since revitalizing downtown is one of the city's highest priorities and has been the subject of much discussion over the last several years.

Discussion on downtown revitalization has touched on various subjects, especially zoning.

Mayor: Pay Taxes Soon As Possible

Noting that there are just seven more business days in fiscal 1989, Mayor Francis McCauley is urging all taxpayers to pay all outstanding real and personal property taxes as well as boat and automobile excise taxes and water bills as soon as possible.

Any new property owner as of Jan. 1, 1988, who did not receive a tax bill should contact the Tax Department at 773-1380 immediately.

The mayor said all municipal payments received on or before June 30 will be credited to fiscal 1989.

McCauley said it is important to the city to finish the year in a strong financial position. Surpluses in the city's Free Cash account will have to be in excess of $6 million, he said.

The City Council recently approved a fiscal 1990 budget of $117,788,340. It goes into effect July 1.

Harold Hopeful Senate Will Veto Dukakis On MWRA Headquarters Site

Senator Paul Harold is hopeful that legislation requiring the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to locate its headquarters at the former General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy will hold up despite a probable veto by the governor.

"It's going to go right down to the wire," Harold said Tuesday.

On Monday, the Senate voted 25-10 in favor of having the MWRA locate its headquarters and 900 workers at the shipyard. Another vote was expected to be taken late Tuesday or Wednesday.

If the measure is passed by the Senate, it would then go to Gov. Michael Dukakis. Dukakis, a staunch supporter of a Roxbury site for the MWRA, is expected to veto the measure.

If vetoed, the bill would return to the House and Senate. Harold said the chances of an override are good since the House and Senate have already passed the bill by more than a two-thirds margin.

The House approved the measure 113-31. The most recent Senate vote was 25-10 and Harold said the margin could be widening in Quincy's favor, such a 26-9.

"I assume that if the votes stay, there will be enough support for an override," Harold said, additing that it could come down to one or two votes.

For the past several weeks, Harold has tried to pursuade fellow senators that the shipyard site is a cheaper and more equitable choice than Parcel 18 in Roxbury.

On the other hand, Dukakis, who supports a Roxbury site as an economic booster, has begun a lobbying effort to sustain his veto. This may be working against the governor, Harold said. "The more they lobby, the more they lose votes," he said.

The battle over the MWRA headquarters appeared to be over last month after the Authority's Board of Directors voted 9-2 to locate in Roxbury. After the vote, Dukakis and Mayor Ray Flynn celebrated by toasting the decision with champagne.

However, the issue was not over in the minds of many Quincy officials, including Harold and the city's three state representatives, Michael Morrissey, Robert Cerasoli and Steve Tobin.

The officials began lobbying other representatives for support of the bill requiring MWRA to locate in Quincy. Now, Harold said, legislators are realizing it would be cheaper to renovate and add to the General Dynamics administration building than to build the headquarters from scratch in Roxbury.

Morrissey, who won a huge majority for the bill in the House, claims the state would pay $29 million to $36 million to renovate and build at the shipyard while a new headquarters in Roxbury would cost $65 million.

MWRA officials say a new building would cost $20 million less than the cost for renovating and expanding the Quincy office site. The Authority bought the shipyard for $49 million in 1987.

Officials are also siding with Quincy because of the fairness issue. They believe Quincy, as home to the MWRA's Boston Harbor cleanup project, should also be home to authority's employees, Harold said.

"The unfairness is striking. Senators are beginning to realize this could be some else's district," Harold said.

He also said the media exposure will help Quincy's cause. "The more people who are aware of us the more support we'll get."

$47,000 Community Education Coordinator Post Put On Hold

The creation of a coordinator of community education at a salary of $47,000 was held up by the City Council Monday after several councillors expressed reservations about the salary and hiring process.

The money, part of the Gateway Cities Program fiscal 1990 budget, was sent back to the Finance Committee.

Mayor Francis McCauley has approved of the position and has picked Arthur Keogh, a dean at Quincy Junior College, to fill it. The mayor, who has been attending a Mayors' Conference in South Carolina, was expected to return to the city Wednesday.

For approximately a half hour, councillors debated the issue.

Anne McLaughlin, executive director of the Gateway Program told the council Keogh would be responsible for "more than just grant writing."

"He would coordinate programs within all existing departments in the city as a way to seek out alternative resources (for the program," she explained.

According to the job description, Keogh would provide grant writing, program management and coordination and develop comprehensive programs for all newcomers to the city in three areas: survival English skills; vocational training and work training programs and citizenship and higher level academic programs.

The job calls for a professional educator familiar with funding sources, city institutions, community organizations, community schools and the community itself.

McLaughlin said Keogh would create an educational program which does not currently exist in any city department by linking all these departments and resources in an effective, economical and practical manner.

Once the structure has been created each component would continue to seek outside funding to support the programs, she said.

Councillors agreed the position is needed but there is still a question on what the starting salary should be and whether it is fair to hire Keogh without taking applications from other interested people.

Councillor Stephen McGrath, who called the $47,000 starting salary "a hefty price" said "It just seems to be it's a lot of money."

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien had similar concerns. "We shouldn't be throwing away money on a brand new position. Why $47,000? Why can't existing city personnel do this job?

"The job description rationale is a good one but until I'm satisfied, I will not vote for it," he said, adding he would like the mayor to discuss it with him and other councillors.

"The salary is greater than many city department heads," Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said. He also said he agrees with the concept but urged that the city take applications to ensure the most qualified person receives the job.

Councillor Timothy Cahill said, "No matter how urgent this issue is, we can't bypass the steps of government. It's not fair to other employees in the city if we give the job to Arthur Keogh.

"No one is saying we don't want a grant writer but we have to be fair. Forty-seven thousand dollars is a lot of money and I think we have to be sensitive to other public officials in the city," Cahill added.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets said they support hiring Keogh.

"This individual is not just a grantwriter. This individual has demonstrated a commitment on (Gateway program) and has worked on an ongoing basis to see to it that programs are established and continued," Cheney said.

"This is an area where an individual must be sensitive to the issue and I think (Keogh) is," he added.

Sheets said it is important to create and fill the position as soon as possible to allow the city to get a jump on applying for federal and state grants.

"I'm fully convinced, if properly done, that this position can generate hundreds of thousands of dollars. I believe it's something we need and the longer we wait, the longer it will be until the grants come in," Sheets said.

The Council unanimously approved $46,500 for five nine-week-cycles of 10 English as a Second Language Classes. There will be five daytime and five evening classes totalling 2,250 hours.

The money represents classes for half a year. Funding for the second half of the year will be appropriated later in the year after grants are awarded or denied.

$146,790 For Street Resurfacing

The City Council appropriated $146,790 to help fund this year's city resurfacing program which could total 55 streets at a total cost of $971,067.

At Monday's council meeting, councillors approved the appropriation which represents the city's share. The remaining cost will be funded by the state and the city's community development block grant.

Streets which are part of this year's resurfacing contract are:

Elm St., Edison St., Scammel St., South St., School St., Whitwell St., Water St., Willet St., Beale St., East Squantum St., Putnam St., Stoughton St., Newton St., Norton Rd., Pontiac Rd., Braintree Rd., Merrymount Ave.

Also, Winthrop St., Phipps St., Victory Ave., Roselin Ave., Reservoir Rd., Wellgate Cir., Intervale St., Station St., Rogers St., Jenness St., Hilltop St., Grogan Ave., Mt. Vernon St., Dayton St., Sampo Pl., Vassall St.

Rice Rd., Flynt St., Channing St., French St., Hollis Ave., Faxon Rd., Vane St., Aberdeen Rd., Maxim Pl., Johnson Avel, Roanoke St., Truro St., Salem St., and Clifton St.

Some streets will be resurfaced the entire length while others have limits.

If state funding is not available, it is possible some streets may not be resurfaced.

New Parking Lease Cut To Three Years

A revised lease agreement for the city's parking areas will be examined for specifics about cleaning and maintenance requirements by the City Council before a final vote at next Monday's special meeting.

At this week's meeting, the Council decided to amend the lease agreement with Metropolitan Parking Systems, Inc., of Boston, from five years to three years, with a two-year option.

Several councillors said they favor the latter arrangement because it makes the parking firm more accountable to the city in terms of cleaning and upkeep.

The vote on the new lease will come four days before the present lease expires. The current lease with Kinney Systems Inc. expires June 30.

The council also voted to give the mayor the authority to exercise the option to renew the lease with the council's approval. Councillors also attached a stipulation requiring Metropolitan to draft a specific schedule for cleaning and security personnel at the city's Ross and Hancock parking areas.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets asked Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom to organize an overview program which would inspect the lots on a weekly basis, "so that (Metropolitan) knows Big Brother is watching."

"We need to maintain a constant oversight program to ensure that Metropolitan does what it's supposed to," he said.

Metropolitan was recommended to the council by Mayor Francis McCauley after a review committee examined competitive proposals from four parking management companies.

According to Downtown and Economic Committee Chairman Timothy Cahill, Metropolitan offered the city the best package in terms of finances and responsiveness to maintenance, cleanliness, service and security.

However, some councillors are wary of being "locked into" another five-year lease because there have been problems with Kinney, particularly in the area of maintenance and cleanliness.

Councillor Stephen McGrath, who has been critical of Kinney over the past five years, said Metropolitan should be required to perform day to day and week to week cleaning.

While discussing the matter, McGrath also said the city should consider running the lots. Noting that Quincy receives a fraction of the lot receipts, he asked, "Are we paying too much money to let an independent party operate the lots?"

As for the length of the contract, several councillors said five years is too long and asked Kinnecom if a two or three year lease is feasible.

He replied that two years is too short since there are always "bugs" that have to be worked out and that the bidding process is lengthy, perhaps as long as one year.

Sweeny Ready To Run?

A long-time familiar name may be back on Quincy's election ballot after a 12-year absence.

Charles Sweeny, who served 20 years as a member of the School Committee is being urged to make a comeback run this year.

Will he?

"Well," he says, "let's say I'm giving it some thought."

SWEENY

Sweeny was first elected to the School Committee in 1955. Polling 13,722 votes to capture third spot behind Paul Duffey (15,455 and Alice Mitchell 14,160).

He was re-elected to two four-year terms in 1959 and 1963.

In 1959 he was third man again with 18,268 votes finishing behind James McCormick (19,174) and Alice Mitchell, (18,676).

In 1963, he took third spot again (17,002) behind McCormick (19,073) and Mitchell (17,340).

But in 1967, Sweeny fell to fourth place and defeat when a newcomer, Ruth Scanlan, blazed across the School Committee field.

McCormick again headed the field with 14,328 votes with Scanlan winning the second seat (12,939) and Mitchell third (11,851). Sweeny's vote was 11,203.

Sweeny came back a winner in 1969. Paul Kelly finished first, (13,671), Sweeny second (11,732) and Frank Anselmo (10,979) third.

Sweeny was re-elected in 1973. John Sullivan was first (12,800), Sweeny second (12,398) and Anselmo (11,972) third.

But in 1977, the women's movement was really moving. Newcomer Mary Collins (16,916) led the field with Joan Picard (14,617) second. Sullivan won the third seat with 14,464. Anselmo was fourth (13,604) and Sweeny (12,736) fifth.

COLLINS

If Sweeny decides to get into this year's race, he would have to be considered a very formidable candidate.

He has batted well in this political league.

□

BUT WHILE Sweeny may be getting into the School Committee race, Sal Giarratani is getting out.

Giarratani, a North Quincy resident and Republican activist, says he has decided to withdraw as a candidate because of family concerns.

GIARRATANI

"My family needs take priority," he said, "and I have decided whatever free time I can muster must be directed toward my family and to my parents.

"Their needs come before any personal ambitions. I cannot hope to be a good elected official unless I can be a good husband, father and son."

And, he adds:

"Someday, I'll run for office, but this just wasn't someday yet."

□

THE RESULTS OF an alleged mayoral candidate poll are being peddled around town. Either the poll is a phony or those who took it need help in their arithmetic.

The poll supposedly shows Steve McGrath first, James Sheets, second (or was it the other way around?) Peter O'Connell third and Joseph LaRaia, fourth.

But the arithmetic doesn't add up.

McGrath reportedly got 38 percent, Sheets 37 (or the other way around), O'Connell 15 and LaRaia, 10.

That adds up to 100 percent.

But where are the undecided?

If you believe this poll -- if indeed there was one -- everyone called knew who they were going to vote for in the Sept. 12 preliminary election.

And, there wasn't one single undecided voter in the lot.

There are indications out there that there is actually a 35 to 40 percent undecided vote at this time.

Post Office Asks Owners To Restrain Their Dogs

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

With the arrival of warmer weather, I, as Acting Manager of the Wollaston Post Office, would like to ask dog owners to help protect letter carriers, utility workers and other citizens from the dangers of dog bites.

Last year, approximately 2,800 of the nation's letter carriers were bitten. Many dog bites cause serious injuries; some victims suffer permanent disfigurement. The cost to both the Postal Service and dog owners who subsequently paid both injury costs and punitive damages in many cases exceeded a total of two million dollars. The common assertion that "My dog does not bite" is not supported by these statistics. Any dog will protect his property if it feels threatened.

Dog owners who do not restrain their pets are risking lawsuits and an interruption of mail delivery. The simple solution to this potential problem is for pet owners to recognize their responsibility to restrain their dogs by a leash, tether or behind a locked fence.

NONDEDUCTIBLE IRA'S

As you are all probably aware, the tax laws of 1986 put restrictions and limitations on who can contribute to an IRA account, and also how much. Any individuals covered in an employer's retirement plan have lost the right to take a tax deduction of current and future contributions. But...

This does not prevent continuing future non-tax-deductible contribution into your account. The advantage of doing this is that accumulations are tax deferred, enabling a compounding interest growth. A disadvantage is that all funds in an IRA account are subjected to the rules of distribution and taxation.

If you are under 59½ and you withdraw some of your IRA funds not only do you have to declare the withdrawal as income, but you receive an extra 10% penalty.

When making your contributions, keep in mind that you can have several different IRA accounts, and you may split your $2,000 into each. These accounts can be stocks, bonds, mutual funds, bank savings or certificates, annuities, etc. Your contributions cannot go into any form of collectibles such as art, coins or stamps.

'Peggy' McGuinness: A Very Special Lady Needs Your Help

By JANE ARENA

To those who know her well, Margaret "Peggy" McGuinness, a 47-year old mother of five from Germantown, is "a very special lady."

A lifelong resident of Quincy, Peggy is known for her generosity to family, friends, neighbors and community.

"She's the type of person who is always there for anyone," says Greg Hanley, a Quincy businessman and a former neighbor of Peggy and her family for 18 years. "She gives more to others than anyone could ever give back to her."

Now though, Peggy is in need, and Hanley is driven to try and help.

In February, Peggy was diagnosed as having terminal cancer. She was told she had only a short time to live.

Hanley, who describes Peggy as "a second mother" to him and his brothers while they grew up, has organized a special benefit dinner-dance to help defray the financial burden for the family.

"We want to help out with the medical expenses and maybe, hopefully, have something left over for the children afterward"

PEGGY McGUINNESS

The benefit will be held in the large hall at the Bryan VFW Post on Broad St., Quincy on Saturday, June 24 (Peggy's birthday), from 8 p.m. to midnight. Tickets will be $15 per person.

The evening will include dinner, dancing, and a special tribute to Peggy from friends and neighbors she has known throughout her life. There will also be several raffles with prizes donated by area businesses and civic organizations.

Hanley has written to many businesses and organizations asking for either monetary contributions or prizes for the raffle. So far, he says, twenty or thirty prizes have been donated.

Hanley has also set up a family trust fund to which open donations may be made.

Peggy is the wife of George McGuinness, an employee of Shore Taxi, and the mother of Kim, 22; Georgie, 20; Jamie, 16; Brendan, 15; and Suzy, 12.

Hanley, who remains friends with the family five years after his family moved to Cape Cod, says that the children are coping with the situation, thanks to Peggy herself.

"It's tough on them," he says, "really tough, but she's not only dealing with this for herself, she's also alleviating some of the stress and pain for them."

And this, Hanley says, is the kind of person Peggy McGuinness has always been.

"If you ever had a problem you could go to her and come back smiling," he says. "She was the one who was there to bring your spirits up."

"She always saw the bright side of things," he said, "and she still does, even now. She's coping with it very well. She is a remarkable lady."

Hanley insists that the benefit will be a happy time rather than sad and he is inviting all of Peggy's friends, neighbors, and former neighbors to share in it.

"We're going to try and make this a happy occasion," he says. There will be some tears shed, I'm sure, but that's not the goal. The idea is that it's a chance to say 'goodbye', just a chance to say 'I love you, Peggy'."

Tickets for the benefit are available at the door and at the rectory of the St. Boniface Church.

To make a contribution to the drawing, businesses and organizations may call Greg Hanley at Screamers Ice Cream, 328-5612.

To make a personal donation to the family trust fund, make checks payable to – "The McGuinness Family Trust Fund," and send them to South Shore Bank. Chestnut St., Quincy 02169, Attention Cynthia Arabasz.

Donations may also be made to the American Cancer Society in Peggy's name.

(Cont'd from Page 1)

Nothing that trash barrels are placed on the sidewalks at Wollaston Beach, they believe they should also be placed on the sand. By doing this, more people could use them.

Prior to releasing their study, the students and Gov. Dukakis joined in singing a song entitled "This Beach is Your Beach."

The song, composed by Merrymount fifth graders, is sung to the tune of "This Land is Your Land. This Land is My Land."

The words are:

As I was walking that ribbon of coastline,

I saw below me a cup of french fries,

I saw beside me a lot of litter,

This beach was made for you and me!

This beach is your beach, this beach is my beach,

from Tony's Clam Box to the Squantum Yacht Club,

from Dunkin Donuts to the Black's Creek Channel,

This Beach was made for you and me!

I've roamed and rambled and I followed by footsteps, to the sparkling water that's now polluted,

and all around me a voice came sounding,

This beach was made for you and me!

This beach is your beach, this beach is my beach,

From Tony's Clam Box to the Squantum Yacht Club,

From Dunkin Donuts to the Black's Creek Channel,

This Beach was made for you and me!

$72,000 Grant Causes Confusion

June 22-28 1938 51 Years Ago

An announcement by State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley that the federal government had allotted $72,000 to Quincy for construction of a Central Fire Station caused some confusion in the city.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin said he had submitted the project for a federal grant months ago but was informed that it had no chance of being approved by the Public Works Administration (PWA).

As a result, he said, the city appropriated $160,000 to build the station, which was already under construction on Quincy Ave. near Elm St.

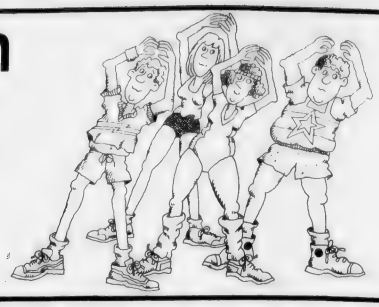
Burgin said he hoped the "pump-priming" money could be used for another project, like a much-needed new nurses home near the City Hospital.

COURT FINDINGS PROTESTED

Quincy Police Chief John J. Avery was named by Registrar Frank A. Goodwin as one of the law enforcement officials who were protesting findings by Judge Gertrude R. Halloran in motor vehicle cases.

"Complaints have been coming to my office to the effect that it is impossible to get a conviction before Mrs. Justice Halloran, no matter how convincing the evidence is," said Goodwin.

The registrar suspended the licenses of eight drivers who had been acquitted by the Quincy District Court judge of several improper driving charges.



"I call them as I see them," was Justice Halloran's response.

THE ACTIVE LIFE

Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

Take Your Time And Travel Light

Make the reservations... pack your clothes...turn off the appliances...put the dog in the kennel...so begins another year's summer vacation.

This last minute rushing will ensure that you need a vacation for sure. How much nicer it would be if you planned everything in advance.

Taking the time to make advance preparations starts your vacation off right and this applies to continuing your weight loss program as well. Here are some dieting tips which can be extremely helpful.

- Set your goal. Yes, you can go away and absolutely maintain your new weight or continue successful weight loss. Remember, you have been successful and you can stay that way.
- Print your goal across the middle of several index cards as a positive statement: I will weight---pounds when I return. Put these cards in highly visible spots where you will see them several times a day, for instance, your make-up mirror and car visor. Put another one in your pocket so each time you touch the card, you will remember.
- Each morning when you get up, stand in front of the mirror and repeat your goal out loud, ten times. Don't feel foolish, feel determined!
- When you are tempted by foods that are not on your diet, touch the goal card in your pocket and repeat your goal to yourself ten times.

Now plan how you'll deal with your meals en route. If you're flying, request a low calorie meal ahead of time. It will be there for you and those around you will ask how you got such a nice, special meal. Even cruise ships offer low calorie meals if informed ahead of time. A cruise doesn't have to become an eating marathon.

If you're traveling by car, take along light, nutritious snacks, such as fresh fruits and vegetables, boiled eggs, and whole wheat crackers. Include good fresh water or the bottled seltzer drinks with no sugar or sodium.

When you stop for meals, order broiled fish and chicken, and always include a salad with vinegar and oil dressing or lo-cal dressing in moderation. Even the fast-food stops now have salad bars with a good selection.

At your destination, continue to plan ahead for your meals each day. At restaurants, tell the waitress you are on a "special diet" or that you must be careful what you eat for your "health's sake." For good service, order exactly what you want the first time. Be sure to include fresh fruit and vegetables each day, and drinks lots of water.

The best part of a vacation is being able to do what you want and being more active. Take long walks, use the pool for swimming as well as sunning, walk the golf course instead of riding, and generally get your exercise in fun ways.

By taking time to plan your vacation and weight-loss strategy, you'll have an enjoyable trip and come back without any "excess baggage."

QUICK APPLICATION of Ace cold therapy relieves the pain and swelling of strains and sprains.

How to treat minor strains and sprains

With the trend toward more participation in sports and other physical activity showing no slowdown, it is only natural that more minor strains and sprains are being reported. Quick treatment often speeds up the healing process and prevents such injuries from becoming severe or recurring problems.

Many physicians recommend a method of treatment identified as the R.I.C.E. Therapy: *R*est, *I*ce, *C*ompression, *E*levation. When initiated immediately following injury, R.I.C.E. treatment can help control inflammation, reduce swelling, relieve pain and speed the healing process after sprains, strains, tendonitis and many other injuries.

- Rest: Do not exercise until pain and swelling have subsided. After several days, you should be able to start moving and exercising the joint, helping to strengthen the muscles and heal the ligaments.
- Ice: Apply cold compresses as soon as possible after the injury occurs. An Ace Reusable Cold Compress is recommended for approximately 30 minutes at a time with 30 minutes between applications.
- Compression: Apply compression with an Ace Elastic Bandage to help reduce swelling: Compression should be used simultaneously with cold compresses.
- Elevation: Elevate the injured part, if possible, to help drain excess fluid from the area.

The key to this treatment is the use of cold. The application of cold reduces the flow of blood and other fluids through that area, and therefore helps to reduce local swelling. In addition, cold also helps to relieve pain in the area by reducing the sensitivity of the local nerve endings. When away from home, the Ace Instant Cold Compress can provide immediate cold therapy without refrigeration.

Heat should never be used when first treating an injury because it increases swelling and tends to immobilize the joint.

After 24 to 48 hours, when swelling has been reduced, alternating heat compresses with the cold compresses will help circulate blood to the injured area, and speed up the healing process.

If pain is severe or persistent, or the area feels extremely tender, see a doctor immediately. There is always the chance that it is a severe strain, sprain or even a fracture. Recurring injuries also should be checked by a physician. HF893298

How to develop a health plan that works for you

Here are some points to keep in mind as you develop a plan for achieving your health goals:

- Start slow. Your body needs time to adjust to the changes you're making. Whatever you decide to do, ease into it.

If you're dieting, don't cut your daily calorie intake drastically. Besides making yourself miserable, you will wreak havoc with your metabolism. Frequent crash dieting actually slows your metabolism, making it very hard for you to lose weight.

- Be flexible. Your health plan is not carved in stone, so don't feel that you must adhere to it rigidly. The key is to make the plan fit into your lifestyle.

You may find, for example, that you simply don't have the time for an hour-long aerobic workout, five days a week, or that it's impossible to diet when you're facing a deadline at work. In such cases, you must adapt your plan, so that you can realistically hope to adhere to it.

- Variety will keep you from getting bored. With so many different sports and activities available, why not vary your routine?
- Don't be discouraged by setbacks. If you miss a workout, or cheat on your diet at a favorite restaurant, or smoke when you said you wouldn't, don't call yourself a failure. This kind of negative thinking will make it much harder for you to achieve your goals.

Figure out why the setback occurred, and try to learn from the experience. But remember, nobody's perfect.

"I recommend Diet Center to all my friends."
Susan Saint James

There are a lot of diets out there, but here's why I think Diet Center's the best.
Lose fat, not muscle. Research shows 92% of the weight lost on the Diet Center program is excess fat, not water or lean body mass.

Eat real food. No expensive prepackaged meals required.
No contracts. You'll stick with Diet Center because it works.
You'll feel the difference

Tips To Help You

Treat Yourself To a Cherry-Banana Shake

Here's a cool idea for a refreshing, innovative beverage. Cherry-Banana Shake combines three favorites, Northwest fresh sweet cherries, ice cream and banana in a luscious drink that's as easy to make as it is appealing.

Cherry-Banana Shake

1-1/2 cups pitted Northwest fresh sweet cherries
1/2 large banana, peeled and sliced
5 large scoops vanilla ice cream
2 whole Northwest fresh sweet cherries with stems

Puree cherries and banana in blender. Add ice cream and blend until smooth. Pour into 2 glasses; garnish each with whole cherry. Serve immediately. Makes 2 servings.

This shake is versatile, too. You can experiment with a variety of ice cream flavors to find your favorite combination.

Shake up your taste buds: Ripe, sweet Northwest fresh cherries combine with fragrant banana and creamy vanilla ice cream in Cherry-Banana Shake.

Northwest fresh sweet cherries, an emblem of summer, are only available from mid-June into early August. For maximum enjoyment, cherries should be stored unwashed in the refrigerator in plastic bags and washed only as they are needed.

They can be a great pick-up for those who want a wholesome snack, as fresh sweet cherries are low in calories and sodium free.

Magnificent chicken marinade

Almost every backyard chef has experimented with barbecue sauces, but few have found a sauce which also makes a snappy marinade. Marinades help tenderize meats and add flavor at the same time.

V8 vegetable juice is a great base for marinades. It's convenient, low in calories and a tasty tenderizer.

In Orange-Honey Chicken, V8 juice is blended together with orange peel, lemon juice and honey to create a delicious marinade and sauce. First marinated and then richly basted in the sauce, the result is a slightly sweet, finger-licking chicken.

ORANGE-HONEY CHICKEN

1 1/2 cups V8 vegetable juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
4 teaspoons honey
1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
2 1/2- to 3-pound broiler-fryer, cut up

1. In 12- by 8-inch baking dish, stir together V8 juice, lemon juice, honey, peel, garlic powder and pepper.

2. Place chicken in marinade, turning to coat. Cover; refrigerate at least 2 hours, turning pieces occasionally.

3. Remove chicken from marinade, reserving marinade. Place chicken on grill; grill 6 inches from heat 35 minutes or until fork-tender, basting chicken with marinade and turning occasionally with tongs.

Makes 6 servings.

THE MARINADE in Orange-Honey Chicken uses vegetable juice to tenderize and flavor the poultry in this superb-tasting dish.

Church News

'Thriving or Surviving?' Covenant Congregational Topic

At the 10 a.m. worship service at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., interim pastor, Rev. Gordon Benson, will preach on "Thriving Or Surviving?"

The choir, directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will sing for the last time until Sept. 9. The Music Committee is responsible for providing music for the summer, although the choir will sing at the installation service on Aug. 6 of the new co-pastors, Rev. Kathy Graves and Rev. Kirk Johnson.

Rev. Benson will preach a children's sermon, after which children will be dismissed for junior church, led by Linda Day. A nursery for children after five and younger is available. The attendant will be Robert Purpura.

During the summer months, a coffee hour in Person Hall will follow the worship service. Volunteers are needed to prepare and serve the coffee.

Vacation Day Camp registrations for both campers and helpers should be returned to the church by July 1. The camp will be held Wednesday mornings, 10 a.m. to noon from July 19 to Aug. 9. The theme this year is "The Lord Is My Shepherd." There will be videos, theme-related activities and crafts and an outing to Drumlin Farm.

The New England Seamen's Mission is looking for volunteers to help crew members of the cruise ship Galileo make phone calls home from the Mission on June 23. Anyone interested in helping should contact the church office.

For more information about any of the church's activities call the church office at 479-5728.

'I Am Sure' Sermon Topic At Bethany

During the summer there is one service at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear STs., Quincy Center.

This Sunday, June 25, Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will deliver the sermon "I Am Sure".

H. Winslow Bettinson will serve as the scripture reader.

The special vocal music will be provided by the father-daughter duet of Archie Sanchez and Sylvia Byorkman, accompanied at the organ by Charles J. Blue, Sr. They will sing "Lead Me Lord, In Thy Righteousness" by Samuel Wesley and J.J. Roberts' composition, "Seek Ye the Lord."

Sunday School is not in session during the summer months, however, care is provided during worship for infants and toddlers.

At 11 a.m., immediately following the service, a fellowship time will be held in the Allen Parlor with light refreshments provided.

Persons from the community and visitors to the area are cordially invited to the worship service and fellowship.

For additional information concerning Bethany's ministries and programs, pleae contact the church office at 479-7300.

'Knowing About Joseph' Squantum First Church Topic

There was a special Father's Day service Sunday at the First Church of Squantum. The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, preached on the subject, "Knowing About Joseph."

Organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson accompanied the congregational singing.

Greeters were Bud and Janet Sumner. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Homes. Delina Dougherty and Dorothy Abbe hosted the Fellowship Hour. During the service Ruth and Luther Swenson and Hazel Mayne were applauded by the congregation for their work as co-chairmen for the Flea Market held all around the church on Saturday.

The Independence Day breakfast and service will be held July 2 and the Squantum Parade on July 4. In September, there will be several events celebrating the 75th anniversary of the church. On Oct. 1, the 25th anniversary of "The Way Up" will be celebrated.

Sunday morning the worship service will begin at 10:30 a.m. Child care and nursery will be provided as usual.

On Oct. 1, "The Way Up" will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a special church service to be held at the First Church of Squantum, a reception after the service and a display of "Way Up" memorabilia.

"The Way Up" is a special youth ministry based at the Squantum church and sponsored by a number of churches on the South Shore to provide chaplaincy services to young people referred by the Quincy Juvenile Court or those in various youth institutions in the area or teenagers in the community who are unrelated to any church.

The names, addresses and phone numbers of persons who, at any time during the past twenty-five years, have been related to the program as members, participants, workers, parents, contributors, or members of the Board of Directors, in order to send them a formal invitation to the event, are requested. Such information can be sent to the Reunion Committee of "The Way Up", 176 Bellevue Rd. in Quincy 02171. Jean Ann Phinney is the Chairman.

There's something new for under the sun

Skylights are among today's most popular architectural features. They brighten any room, allow indoor plants to grow and offer a wonderful view to the outside.

However, once installed, homeowners find that the intense solar rays that stream through a skylight may cause heat buildup and make interiors uncomfortable. The harsh ultraviolet rays of the sun may also fade the carpeting and upholstery.

Until recently, few options existed that protected homes from the sun's severe rays yet still allowed the homeowner to enjoy the beauty of a skylight.

Pleated shades, invented by Verosol USA Inc., offer both a decorative and a functional solution for skylights. The horizontally pleated shades are available in a wide array of fabrics and opacities.

Many fabric pleated shades have an ultra-thin, energy-conserving backing to deflect the sun's rays. This keeps out heat and provides a cooler, more comfortable interior.

In winter, pleated shades are a fashionable insulator and keep heat from escaping through windows. In addition, the energy-efficient fabrics block harmful ultraviolet rays to help prevent fading of interior furnishings.

The natural beauty of skylights is enhanced when decorating with pleated shades. Sheer fabrics allow light to enter while retaining the view to the exterior, although Verosol offers a wide array of fabrics in varying densities.

Smooth shade opening and closing allow the homeowner to control the view to the outside and the amount of light entering a room.

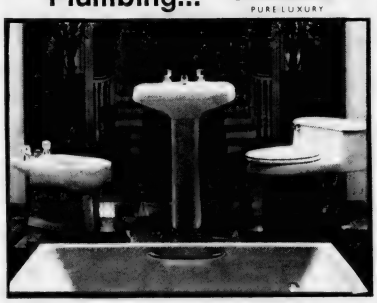
While other window treatments soil easily, pleated shades actually repel dust and dirt, and require little care.

PLEATED SHADES offer a fashionable and functional decorating solution for skylights and other windows. Available in a wide range of easy care fabrics and colors, Verosol® pleated shades keep interiors more comfortable year-round while protecting carpeting and upholstery from the sun's fading rays.

While energy conservation and ease of care are important reasons for selecting pleated shades, their fashion appeals to homeowners decorating skylights and windows of all shapes and sizes.

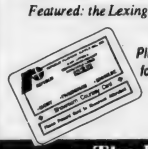
Pleated shades are available in stylish fabrics, colors and patterns that complement any room and decor from cozy country kitchens to Art Deco living rooms and Victorian bedrooms.SH894235

Hot weather alert...



Tips for keeping cool at less cost

With summer officially beginning at 10:57 p.m., June 20, and Dog Days following, July 3 to August 15, it's also time to make sure that air conditioners are used wisely to conserve energy and reduce operating costs.



Consumers should find themselves cooler and more comfortable at lower cost by following tips such as these, recommended by the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI), the trade association representing manufacturers of central air conditioning and heat pump systems:

- Set the thermostat control at the highest comfortable level—each degree raised reduces energy consumption by three to four percent.
- Caulk, weatherstrip and insulate (especially the attic) to close air gaps.
- Plan hot work (washing and drying clothes, baking, cooking) for cooler morning and evening hours.
- Pull drapes and shades over windows facing the sun.
- Keep windows and doors closed when the air conditioning is on.
- Check the air filter, and replace or clean it as warranted, every 30 days during heavy cooling.
- Keep the outside unit free of leaves or other airflow obstructions.
- When leaving the house for more than about four hours, turn the thermostat up to about 82 degrees or so instead of the 78 usually recommended, and keep the house closed to minimize heat buildup.

Ceramic tile that can be used indoors or out

How many times have you shouted, "Don't eat in there, you'll stain the carpet!" or worried about tracking water, mud, road salt or sand onto a hardwood floor?

Now, with a new type of easy care, waterproof unglazed ceramic tile floor, you can relax and never again have to worry about vacuuming or scrubbing stains.

At less cost, and with more color choices than you might expect, VersaTILE® unglazed ceramic tile can improve the appearance of virtually any floor or wall surface outdoors or indoors, in any climate.

VersaTILE® is referred to in tile vocabulary as being "vitreous." This is a term meaning the tile has less than three percent absorption (uncommon for unglazed ceramic tile and a result of special manufacturing techniques).

This tile's unique, extremely low water absorption makes it durable and frostproof, eliminates the need for waxes or waterproofing sealers, allows it to resist staining and makes it easy to clean with just soap and water.

Indoors, it can add a finished, sophisticated look to entryways, kitchens, bathrooms, spas, rec rooms, counter tops and backsplashes, wet bars, family rooms, fireplace hearths, behind and below wood burning stoves, solarium or mud room floors, walls and more.

The thin layer of glass ("glaze") which covers glazed tile can sometimes become slippery when wet and can wear through in time. VersaTILE® is specially fired, however, to ensure solid color throughout the entire ½" thickness of the tile. This provides a surface which will withstand wear and retain its good looks for a lifetime.

The natural long wear and slip-resisting qualities make it ideal for a wide variety of outdoor projects, such as patios, pool areas, steps and walkways, driveways, breezeways and privacy walls.

Concrete slabs, properly leveled and patched, or stable, level plywood subfloors make ideal surfaces for applying VersaTILE® unglazed ceramic tile.

For do-it-yourselfers, literature is offered where you buy VersaTILE® which offers step-by-step tile installation instructions and detailed drawings. All the basics of a complete tile installation are covered as well as some helpful "old pro" tips.

This unglazed tile is offered with several unique extras such as "relieved" or beveled edges which allow even first time do-it-yourselfers to achieve professional looking results.

Two blendable sizes are available: 4"x4"x½" and 8"x8"x½". Contemporary colors (such as light beige, sand, gray and brick) are available to coordinate with popular and traditional color schemes either inside or out.

For free, full color literature on the many exciting applications for USA made VersaTILE®, visit your nearest floorcovering, tile or home improvement store or write to Metropolitan Ceramics, P.O. Box 9240, Canton, OH 44711. SH904490

GIVE A FACE-LIFT to weathered cement slab patios, or tile a sun room or family room floor—it's easier than you think.

THE COMBINATION of fabric verticals and a swag overtreatment works well on the long narrow windows in this traditional romantic bedroom. The Dixie Verticals Division of Hunter Douglas offers the best of fashion and function in their fabric vertical blinds collection.

TREE VALUE

Keep in mind that the trees that are dropping those leaves in your yard are also saving you money. National Wildlife magazine reports that trees may cut cooling costs 50 percent or more by shading a house from sunlight. And, come winter, trees may lower heating bills by as much as 15 percent by deflecting winter gusts.

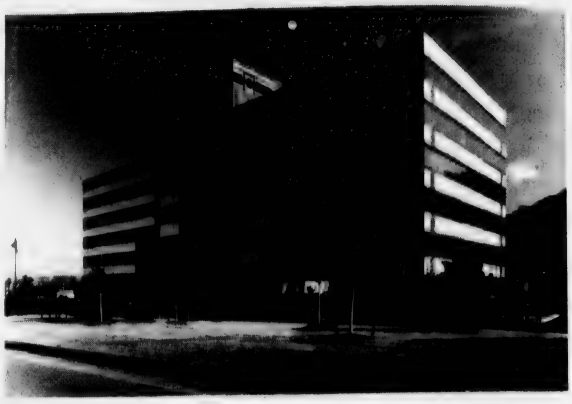
Vazza Moves To Crown Colony Office Park

Vazza Associates, joint venture developer with Edward A. Fish Associates of Crown Colony Office Park in Quincy, has occupied its offices on the second floor of 400 Crown Colony Drive within the Park.

The space will serve as Vazza Associates' new corporate headquarters, moving from Braintree.

"We are excited about our move to Crown Colony," said Rick Vazza, assistant project manager of Crown Colony. "It was important for us to be located within the Park with our partner Edward A. Fish Associates. And it has been reassuring to our tenants to know that we are on-site to take care of their needs."

Vazza Associates, founded in 1965, is a diversified South Shore-based real estate company. Its portfolio includes over three million square feet of first class office and mixed-use developments, suburban office parks and shopping centers.



Crown Colony is a 175-acre master planned office park located seven miles south of Boston at the intersection of Route 93 (Southeast Expressway), Route 128 and Route 3. With the recent lease of 55,000 square feet to Clean Harbors at 1200 Crown Colony Drive, that newly opened building is now 62% leased. 1100 Crown Colony Drive, a 132,000 square foot building situated next to 1200 Crown Colony, is scheduled for delivery in June 1989.

Other companies or firms that have already committed to occupy space in the Park include: Aetna Life Insurance, The Patriot Ledger, Charles F. Murphy Insurance Company, O'Connor & Drew, United States Fidelity & Guarantee, Kennedy & Lehan, Penache Cafe, Bay State Milling, Murphy, Hessey Toomey & Lehane, Amwest Surety, Bromas Associates, Devine & Partners, Medical Claims Associates, Builders Association, and The Quincy Savings Bank. Meredith & Grew serves as exclusive leasing agent for the Park.

The Crown Colony master plan provides for a free-standing day care facility scheduled to begin construction this summer, retail shops, restaurants and cafes, a fitness center, jogging trails and a medical center. The Crown Colony Medical Center at 500 Congress St. has been completed. Directly across from the Park entrance and serviced by shuttle buses is the Quincy Adams MBTA Station with Logan Express bus service leaving regularly.

Other Vazza Associates projects throughout New England include University Office Park in Waltham, 251 Causeway Street, Boston, and the Andover Office Center in Andover.

The master planner of Crown Colony Office Park is Jung/Brannen Inc.

2 Residents Honored By Welch Healthcare

Two Quincy residents were recently honored by Welch Healthcare at the company's annual banquet held at the Braintree Sheraton-Tara.

Mildred Donovan, a student at Quincy Junior College School of Nursing, was one of eight scholarship recipients.

Peter Hannon was among 200 employees recognized for twenty years of service.

Joseph Clancy Attends National Brokers' Communication Conference

Joseph Clancy, co-owner with Jack Tullish of Century 21 Tullish & Clancy in Weymouth and Quincy, attended the recent semi-annual Century 21 National Brokers' Communication Congress in Seattle.

He is one of the broker-members of the NBCC which represents more than 6300 Century 21 franchisees throughout the U.S. This communications forum is unique in the real estate industry.

First-time buyer affordability, state-of-the-art training programs, automation and pending legislation that affects real estate were but a few of the issues discussed at the NBCC, where the brokers were briefed on existing and proposed programs by members of the Century 21 international staff. Following this briefing, the assembly spent a day and a half discussing and giving input on the various programs from the franchisee standpoint.

NBCC representatives will report back to their constituents in the coming weeks, mainly through broker councils, on the results of these meetings.

In recognition of their interdependent relationship and common prupose, to insure that policies and programs of the Century 21 system serve to maintain the position of leadership in the real estate industry, Century 21 franchisees, international and regional management unite to form the Century 21 National Brokers' Communication Congress which meets twice a year – once in Washington D.C.

Broker/franchisee representatives serve on the NBCC as elected representatives of their fellow Century 21 franchisees. They represent the interests and concerns of their constituents and entertain only matters on the floor at the NBCC which serve to advance the best interests of the Century 21 system as a whole.

Century 21 Tullish & Clancy has offices at 1440 Hancock St., Quincy, and 457 Main St., Weymouth. They are among the 370 franchises included in Century 21 of New England, Inc.

Community Action Conducts Property Management Workshop

Quincy Community Action's Housing Services Program recently conducted a Property Management workshop free to area owners.

Guest speaker was Inga Bernstein of Boston Fair Housing, who covered the topics of tenant screening and selection, security deposits and last month's rent, the eviction process, state sanitary codes and general landlord-tenant law. Eighty local property owners were in attendance.

The Executive Office of Communities and Development provided the grant for this workshop. The evening was co-sponsored by Quincy Fair Housing and Milton Fair Housing.

Quincy Community Action's Housing Services Program has landlord and tenant counselors available that can provide information and education, make referrals to assistance agencies and provide mediation to resolve disputes.

For more information call 479-8181.

Tenant Landlord Problems Discussion

A panel discussion on tenant-landlord problems was scheduled to be held Wednesday, June 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy, Quarry St., West Quincy.

The discussion was to include Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the city's Rent Grievance Board.

It was sponsored by the South Shore Rental Association.

THE COUNTER OFFER

QUESTION: I received a written offer to purchase my property. What happens to the original offer if I make a counter offer?

ANSWER: A counter offer is a combination of a rejection of the initial offer and a new offer by the seller. When the seller demands a higher price, more down payment, or different terms, the buyer's original offer is automatically cancelled. In effect, this may burn bridges behind you. If the buyer refuses your counter offer, there is no way you can force him to make good on the original offer because it will have been wiped out with the rejection and counter offer. This is a tricky area of negotiation that calls for expert advice.

THERE ARE IMPORTANT FACTS to know before making a counter offer.

Friday And Saturday

Over $1,000 In Prizes At N. Quincy Sidewalk Sale

The annual North Quincy Sidewalk Sale and Bazaar is set for this Friday and Saturday at Billings Rd. and Hancock St.

Over $1,000 in prizes will be offered in drawings by 40 participating businesses.

Coupons for the prizes appear on Pages 16 and 17 in this issue of The Quincy Sun. They are to be filled out and deposited in containers at respective businesses during the sidewalk sale. Individual drawings will be held at each business and the winners will be notified.

Sponsored by the North Quincy Business and Professional Association, the annual event has become a popular tradition in North Quincy.

Joseph Doran, President of the NQBPA, says he hopes this year's sidewalk sale will be even more successful than previous years.

Among the special features this year are free pony rides for children on Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m., and a free blood pressure clinic provided by Dr. Mark Jaehnig.

"The sidewalk sale gets a lot of people out in the area that don't normaly shop North Quincy," Doran said.

"Hopefully it will be as successful as it has been in the past and people will come out to see what North Quincy has to offer."

Participating merchants and their prizes are:

Accent Upholstery, 70 Billings Rd., four sofa pillows.

Atlas Hardware, 401-403 Hancock St., case of paper towels.

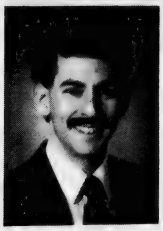
QVNA To Benefit At N.Q. Sidewalk Sale



Visitors to the North Quincy Sidewalk Sale, Friday and Saturday, can help support the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association (QVNA) and get a special treat when they stop by Purdy's Ice Cream Parlor.

Every purchase of a unique flavor called "Orange Nightingale", orange-pineapple ice cream with chocolate chips, will benefit the QVNA's hospice program. Providing home care for the terminally ill, the hospice program is a continuation of medical care as well as a counseling and support network for the patient and his or her family.

If "Orange Nightingale" sounds a little too exotic, vanilla will be available.

Purdy's will accept a flat donation to the QVNA hospice program. The store, located at 68A Billings Rd., North Quincy, is open 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

TEXACO

To Our Valued Customers:

In the next few weeks, you will be noticing some changes here at Hancock Exxon Service Station.

First will be that sometime before the end of June, we will be closing for a four week period. During this time, we will be completely updating our gasoline storage tanks and pumps. This will enable us to service you more efficiently and comply with the new State and Federal Regulations.

Second, there will be a change in the brand of gasoline. As part of a mutual decision between us and Exxon, we will be changing to Texaco.

The reason for us choosing Texaco is basically that it will enable us to supply you with a top quality gasoline from a major company. Texaco has three brands of unleaded and the "Petrox" detergent type additive needed for today's fuel injected cars.

As part of our change to Texaco, we are supplying you with a Texaco credit card application. If you fill this our and return it to us, we will pay all postage and make sure you get a card as soon as possible. When we re-open, we will still be accepting the Exxon credit card for a 30 day period. So if you're late, don't worry, we will still be able to service you!

There will also be some noticeable aesthetic changes to the property. We will be installing a canopy over the pumps to make poor weather service more pleasurable. Also, we will be modernizing the outside of the building to look like the new Texaco 2000 stations.

Although we are making some big changes as far as brand and appearance. The basics will stay the same - courteous service, quality products and keen interest in your motoring needs.

We have been a family run business for almost 44 years with four generations of Masons and "adopted Masons" servicing your motoring needs. Hopefully with your support, we can continue for many more years.

So as we "Let the Tiger Go," and reach for the "Texaco Star," we thank you for years of patronage and hope to see you when we re-open.

Lindsay Eisan Elected Quincy Legion Commander

Lindsay Eisan, Sr., 56, a Korean conflict era U.S. Army veteran, was recently elected the 67th commander of the Quincy Legion Post, the city's original World War I American Legion Post.

Today there are five posts.

Other officers elected are:

Past Commander James Hartford, senior vice commander; Robert Marobella; junior vice commander; Alan Parent, finance officers; Anthony Padula, assistant finance officers; Past State Commander Robert Leo Eng, service officer; Past Commander Anthony Biorro, Americanism officer; Gary Taylor, historian; John Corcoran, judge advocate; and Past Department Vice Commander Warren Demers, assistant judge advocate.

Also Theodore Mysiuk, grave registration officer; and Robert Dalton, Gerald Leibrandt and Frederick Roman, all trustees of Burial Lot.

Members of the Executive Committee are Robert J. Bannister, Robert L. Bannister, Bernard Lucier, Albert Marobella and Edward Sherman.

A joint installation of officers will be held Sunday, July 30 at 2 p.m. with the Quincy Unit 95 Auxiliary at the Quincy Post 95 Memorial Home, 2 Mechanic St., Quincy.

Both Norfolk County Council Installing Teams will perform the ceremonies.

Mrs. Peggy Demers is president-elect of the Quincy Unit 95 Auxiliary.

Robert Harnais Receives Law Degree

Robert Harnais of Quincy was recently awarded a Juris Doctor Degree by the New England School of Law.

He is the son of Heraldo and Elsa Harnais of Quincy.

He plans to take the bar examination for the jurisdiction of Massachusetts. He is employed by the state Department of Revenue as an investigator.

Harnais attended Quincy High School and graduated from the University of Massachusetts/Boston in 1984 before enrolling in the Evening Division at NESL. He is active in the Ward 4 Democratic City Committee and plans to practice law in the Quincy area.

School Committee Candidates Speak Out At Southwest Forum

The first Candidates' Night for the School Committee was sponsored by the Southwest Quincy Community Relations recently at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

More than 50 people attended the forum, including Mayoral Candidate Joseph LaRaia, Ward 4 Candidate Tom Fabrizio and School Committee member Steve Durkin.

Participating candidates were:

Judy Brams, Richard Crespi, Gary Fine, Ron Mariano, John McDuff and Frank Santoro. Santoro was the only incumbent seeking re-election who attended the forum.

All candidates emphasized they would be advocates for students and teachers if elected.

Brams emphasized the need to create multi-cultural programs to meet the educational needs of the growing immigrant population in Quincy. She also said AIDS education should be introduced in a simplified form as early as third grade.

When questioned about the maintenance problem in the schools, Crespi advocated making the city responsible for the maintenance not in the school budget. In the case of a budget crisis, he said he would advocate administrative staff before teaching positions.

Continuing a centralized advanced placement program for academicaly talented middle school students is a priority for Gary Fine. He also supports having advanced placement programs in each middle school to boost school moral.

When asked about budget shortfalls, Fine replied that additional dollars do not solve all problems and that the school committee needs to be creative and cost effective with the budget they are given by the city.

Mariano, a teacher in Quincy for more that 15 years, and now an employee for the state, supports combining all early childhood programs in a central location to conserve resources and eliminate the need for an early childhood coordinator. He would also encourage more publicity of the Quincy school system to bolster the school system's image.

John McDuff, a fiscal conservative, emphasized the importance of reintroducing the "basics" back into the school system. An advocate of long-term planning for building maintenance, he said he would vote to increase the amount of time spent monitoring the physical status of school buildings.

Inadequate health education is a concern of incumbent Frank Santoro. He said year-long health education classes including first aid, sex, drug and alcohol education need to be emphasized.

State support of special education programs is another area that needs to be bolstered, Santoro said.

Although he realizes and supports the needs of special education, Santoro said the programs are too costly for a small city like Quincy to pay for and, therefore, funding should come from the state.

There's a hot new combo on the South Shore that's guaranteed to move you.

We've jazzed up the T Pass Program so you can ask for exactly the pass you need: a Local Bus pass, a Subway pass, or the new Combo or Combo Plus passes.

The new, simpler T Pass Program dropped the old alphabet code (A, B, C, D, E & F passes). Just ask for what you need. Most people on the South Shore will be asking for the Combo or Combo Plus passes.

Here are the four passes most riders will use:

- the Local Bus pass ($18 a month);
- the Subway pass ($27 a month) for all 75 cent stations and stops;
- the Combo pass ($40 a month) for all stations and stops except Quincy Adams and Braintree;
- the Combo Plus pass ($48 a month) for all Combo services plus Quincy Adams and Braintree.

Summer Sizzler.

Save money with the new Saturday and Sunday Summer Sizzler. Every weekend in July and August any T Pass is good everywhere on the T (except ferries). And every Sunday, pass holders can bring a guest along free... to the beach, to the Pops, anywhere!

Buy passes the last four and first four business days of the month at Downtown Crossing, Government Center, and Harvard Stations. Also, the Quincy Center Post Office and the Quincy Station Convenience Store sell passes the last five days of the month. Call 722-3200 for information.

Miss Quincy Bay Pageant To Be Held July 21

The annual Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant will be held Friday, July 21 at 7:15 p.m., at Quincy Center Plaza, and will feature over $1,000 in prizes donated by downtown businesses.

The prizes will be shared by the pageant contestants, with the winner receiving the largest share of the prizes.

The winner will also reign over Quincy Bay Race Week to be held August 2 - 6.

To be eligible for entry, contestants must be at least sixteen years of age, single, and must live on the South Shore.

Entry forms are available from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association office, 1416 Hancock St., at QCBPA member businesses and at South Shore Yacht Clubs.

All entry forms must be accompanied by a photograph and a $35 entry fee, payable to QCBPA, to be used to help defray the costs of the pageant.

All materials must be returned to Pageant Chairman Beth Ann Strenge at the QCBPA Office or to Eileen Cohen at Sweets-n-Things, 1470 Hancock St., no later than Monday, July 13.

The Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant is co-sponsored by the QCBPA and the Quincy Bay Race Week Association.

For further information, call Beth Ann Strenge at 773-3345 or Eileen Cohen at 770-4581.

Scholarships Available For Summer Arts Camp

Beechwood Community Life Center and the Quincy Afterschool Enrichment Program have some scholaships available for a Summer ARts Camp for school age students Kindergarten through grade 5.

The camp will be held in two-week sessions starting Monday, June 26 through September 1 at Beechwood Community Life Center, 275 Fenno St., Quincy. Creative arts experience in music, movement, drama and visual arts will be stressed.

Registration information may be obtained by calling 770-4466 or 471-5712.

'Summer Scene' Registration To Start June 19

Registration for the Quincy Public School's "Summer Scene" summer school program will be held at Quincy High School from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. from June 19 through July 7.

"Summer Scene" is a comprehensive program for elementary, middle and high school students, and offers both enrichment and academic courses.

Enrichment courses include Computer Literacy, Developmental Reading, Speed Reading, Local History Workshop, Sports Camp, and Study Skills.

A full range of academic courses is offered for middle and senior high school students.

"Summer Scene" will be held at North Quincy High School Mondays through Thursdays, from July 10 to August 17.

Enrichmen courses range in cost from $30 to $50 and academic courses are $65 for Quincy residents and $80 for non-Quincy residents. All are welcome to attend.

For further information and a brochure, visit the Summer Scene office at Quincy High School or call 984-8820.

Swimming Cancelled June 23 Through July 4

The Quincy Recreation Department announces all regularly scheduled recreational swimming programs at the Lincoln Hancock Community School will be cancelled from Friday, June 23 through July 4.

The evening schedule of recreational swimming sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department will resume with the summer schedule July 5 at 5 p.m.

Annual maintenance and preparation for the summer programs will be held while the pool is closed. The pool will re-open with a new summer schedule that includes seven days per week of recreational swimming.

WEEK OF: June 22

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're unusually sensitive, a characteristic that works to your advantage as well as your disadvantage. You also like to get your own way. But you're most affectionate, and your charm often saves the day. Pet causes are prominent in the picture this year; you make a significant contribution.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
Public speaking engagement may be part of the current agenda, along with travel for business. On the homefront, members of different generations enjoy reconciliation.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Your plans for a fund-raising or related activity benefit from an authority's expertise. Laid-back family member becomes more serious, thanks to your influence.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Relative surprises you with a combination of thoughtfulness and generosity. On the work scene, supervisor is prone to change his/her mind; it's important you remain unflappable.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
Leadership position comes your way, and it's important that you put your best foot forward. Outstanding week for catching up on your long-overdue correspondence.

GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Family member's announcements may surprise even the most jaded Gemini. Travel is spotlighted--and includes a rare opportunity for meeting people with whom you share ideas and interests.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Relative is calmer and more comfortable in your company. Old ideas work well in familiar as well as new surroundings. Be especially alert to neighborhood goings-on.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
Neighbors may be demanding on your time, and it's best to tactfully nip any problems in the bud. Good week for developing sidelines. Partnership ventures need a thorough review.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Important that you and partner review finances and examine both short-term and long-range plans. If traveling be sure to prepare for often-changing conditions.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
You're known for your good taste and love of beautiful objects, and this week finds you in surroundings that very much appeal to you. A friend's unpredictable routine has you in stitches.

SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Family member is unusually forthright. After your initial shock, you come to appreciate the honesty involved. Small pets are in the week's picture; you may be pooch-sitting.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
Thanks to your influence, a less-than-determined friend becomes more conscientious. Meanwhile, an older acquaintance has an influence on you; you're becoming much more practical.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
An elusive personal goal is suddenly within reach. The job front is favorably spotlighted and the week may see you earning a bonus. Homelife is unusually chaotic.

BORN THIS WEEK

Morrisette Roars Back For 3

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion Baseball Team rebounded from a disappointing opening day loss to Milton to win three games during the past week and improve its record to 3-1 in Zone 6 play.

Morrisette was scheduled to play Canton last night (Wednesday), will meet Quincy Friday night at 8:15 at Adams Feild, will host Braintree Saturday night at 7:30 at Adams, will play at Holbrook Monday night at 8:30 and will be home to Carter Post of Dorchester next Wednesday night at 8:30 at Adams.

Morrisette pounded out 13 hits and combined them with seven walks and three wilk pitches to defeat Wollaston, 11-4.

Gary Rawdon made his first Legion start and got the win as he went 5 1/3 innings, giving up seven hits, striking out five and walking only one before giving way to Kevin MacDougall. MacDougall gave up two hits and a walk and struck out one. Tom Roberts was the starter and loser for Wollaston.

Brian Taylor reached four times for Morrisette on three hits and an error, scored a run and drove in two. Billy MacDougall went 3-for-5, scored three runs and drove in one and Jeff Calvert singled and doubled, drove in two and scored one. Rob Cinquegrano had a double and an RBI and Ron Boudreau, Dan Ryan, Kevin MacDougall and Rawdon had hits.

In the young season's most exciting game, Morrisette handed Mass. Tire of Weymouth its only loss, 2-0, as Morrisette's Erik DeBoer and Mass. Tire's Billy Hartnett, who had outstanding schoolboy seasons, hooked up in a tremendous deal. DeBoer led North Quincy into the Eastern Mass. Tournament and Hartnett led Weymouth South into the tournament. DeBoer, who had lost a two-hit, 11 strikeout effort to Milton due to errors, held Mass. Tire to three hits, again struck out 11 and walked one. Hartnett allowed six hits, struck out two and didn't walk a man as he gave up only two unearned runs.

Morrisette scored both runs with two outs in the first inning.

Tony Anderlionis reached on an error, stole second and moved to third on Calvert's fly to right. With two outs, Rob McDonald singled Anderlionis home, stole second and scored the second run on Taylor's single to center.

That was all the scoring as both pitchers settled down and turned in remarkable performances.

Morrisette defeated Randolph, 7-3, scoring all seven runs in the second inning after Randolph had taken a 1-0 lead in the first. Except for that big inning, Randolph's Chris Romboli matched Kevin MacDougall.

In the big second Morrisette had five hits and put them together with two walks, two erros and a wild pitch. Taylor drove in three runs with a pop fly single to right center with the bases loaded. Ryan also singled home a run and Anderlionis and Kevin MacDougall also had hits.

Randolph scored twice in the seventh. It loaded the bases with no outs and it looked as if MacDougal would get out of the jam when he retired the next two batters on a strikeout and a pop fly. But, an error allowed two runs to score and another single again loaded the bases. MacDougall then struck out the final batter.

MacDougall went all the way, allowing seven hits, striking six and walking only one. All three Randolph runs were unearned.

TONY PALMARIELLO of Quincy was a pitcher for the Suffolk University baseball team and recently completed a fine season. A senior majoring in management, Palmariello graduated from Quincy High in 1985.

Sports

Quincy Off To Slow Start

The Quincy Legion baseball team, following its best season in several years and making the Zone 6 playoffs last year, had seven big holes to fill, but coaches Ed Spring and Dick Laracy were pleased with an excellent turnout and had high hopes for the current season.

But Quincy is off to a slow start with a 1-3 record going into this week's games.

Returning starters are Jim Kearns and Peter McLoughlin , who pitch and play in the outfield, Mike Toland, catcher, and Kevin Daly, both of whom played at B.C. High, Paul McClellan, Mike Connor and Greg Clifford played at Abp. Williams, Quincy's Nick Dragone, who led the hitting last year, is playing second base, North Quincy's Tim Baker is at shortstop after playing for North Quincy High in the Eastern Mass. Tournament, and Chris Beatrice of Quincy High is playing the outfield.

Newcomers include Barry Glynn, backing up Toland behind the plate; Jim Maloney, Don Anderson, Wayne McCully and Steve Waas from North Quincy High, Jim Burns and Steve McGinnis of Quincy High and Jim Gordon of Weymouth Catholic, who pitched a no-hitter this spring.

Quincy's only win was a 17-2 breeze over Carter Post of Dorchester, with McLoughlin pitching the first four innings and Gordon finishing up.

Daly went 5-for-6 with three RBI, Toland had three hits and three RBI and McLellan had three hits. Quincy scored eight runs in the first inning, highlighted by Clifford's two-run triple and an RBI single by Toland.

Quincy lost twice last week, dropping a 4-3 squeaker to Wollaston, which scored two runs in the sixth inning for the win.

McLoughlin pitched a six-hitter for Quincy and Dragone had two hits.

After taking a 3-0 lead, Quincy was routed by Mass Tire of Weymouth, 22-7, as Rob McDonald's grand slam highlighted an 11 run third inning. Mass Tire improved its record to 3-1.

Quincy will face Morrisette Friday night at 8:30 at Adams Field, will host Milton Tuesday night at 8:30 at Adams and will play at Holbrook next Wed. night at 8:30.

Noble, Craig Shine In Shriners Game

Quincy quarterback Chris Noble and North Quincy fullback-defensive back Ryan Craig made fine showings last week in the annual Shriners Schoolboy All-Star football game at Boston College.

Noble started for the winning South team at quarterback and ran the team well while sharing the duties with Joe Lamb of Natick.

Craig, an outstanding runner, saw service on offense only on special teams but he was one of the outstanding defensive players of the game.

The South topped the North for the first time in five years, 21-14, in overtime.

• Jaehnig League

Millane Scores Record 43 Points

Mark Millane scored a league record 43 points to lead Kane's Place to an 84-62 victory over Bill's Club in the Jaehnig Chiropractic Men's Basketball League.

Kane's Place (4-0). whigh remained tied for the league lead, also received 20 points from Dean Coletti and 11 from Joe Russell, T.J. McGill with 27 and Jim Tandler with 16 paced Bill's Club (1-3).

The Greymen also stayed unbeaten (4-0) with a 74-69 win over Miller A.C. Ray Baltz led the Greymen with 27 points, while Scott Higgins had 16 and Kevin Lottermilk 14. Mike Cohen led Miller with 27.

John Timmins had a game-high 17 points to propel the Jaehnig Club (4-0) to a 59-50 decision over the scrappy Granite Rail (0-4). Paul Leonard had 12, Mike Keeley 11 and Chuck Jaehnig 10. Ted Stephenson had 16 and Jim Kelly 12 to lead Granite Rail.

In the best game of the night the Quincy Nets held on for an 80-78 win over never-say-die J.B. Heating. Jeff Timberlake led the way with 26 points for the Nets (3-1), Steve Belcastro scored 22, Kurt MacDonald and Arturo Russell 13 each. Danny Murphy (21), John Byers (19), Brian Devitt (14) and Willie Weeks (12) lead Heating (2-2).

Bake's Club (1-3) scored its first win, 75-70, over the Bay State Bombardiers (0-3). John O'Shea had a game-high 23 points, Ken Goon 17, Dan Baker 14 and Jim Bellafaro 12 for Bake's. Rick Boyle had 17 and Anny Correra 12 for the Bombardiers.

Yanks Unravel Sox 23-6

The Yankees pounded the Red Sox, 23-6, in the Quincy Farm League as they scored six runs in the first, nine in the second and seven in the fourth.

Winning pitcher, Colin Shea, allowed only four hits and had eight strikeouts.

Mark Foster went three-for-three and Adam Goodrich and Chris Curry, Tim Kenerson, Kevin Shaw, Shea, and Mike Clancy all had hits.

Golf Tourney Raises $2,500 For Fr. Bill's Place

The first annual Spillane-Hillier Open Golf Tournament recently held at the Pembroke Country Club raised $5,000, half of which will benefit Quincy's homeless shelter. Father Bill's Place.

The other $2,500 will go toward the American Kidney Fund.

Some 125 South Shore golfers participated in the tournament which was organized by David Spillane, a Quincy attorney and assistant city solicitor, and his cousin, Stanley Hillier of Hanover.

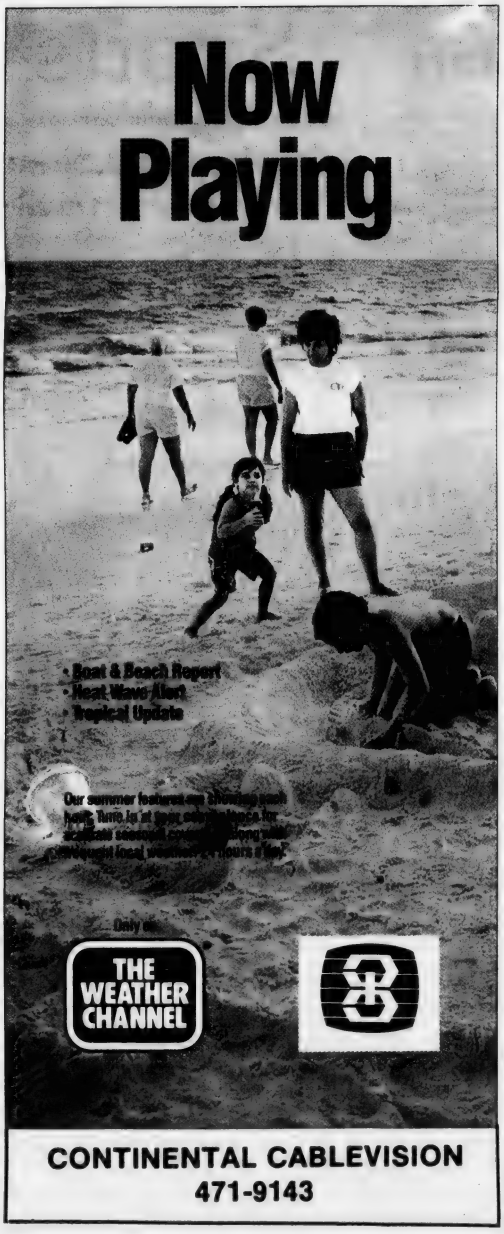
Spillane had run five previous tournaments, but never quite as large as this one. His cousin came to him during the winter with the idea of turning the yearly event into something that could raise a lot of money for charity.

Spillane and Hillier decided to split the proceeds between their two favorite charities: the American Kidney Fund and Father Bill's Place.

The event netted a little more than $5,000, with each charity receiving a check for $2,500.

After the round of golf, participants enjoyed a steamship round dinner at the Country Club, followed by a drawing with more than 300 prizes.

Hillier, a sales representative for a liquor distributor, acquired many gifts from the major liquor manufacturers, as well as gift certificates from area restaurants for the drawing.



There was also a four-foot long cake shaped like a par-three golf hole provided by another cousin, Steve Girard of Girard's Pastry Shop in North Weymouth.

Happily surprised by the success of their first attempt, Spillane and Hillier have already scheduled next year's tournament for June 11.

Among the local sponsors of the event were:

Century 21--Annex Realty; Representative Steve Tobin and Finian's Restaurant.

Suburban Honors For 4 North Girls

The North Quincy girls' ftball team's disappointment at losing its last two games (3-0 to Brockton and 6-5 to Brookline) to end with an 8-10 record was softened when four of its players received Suburban League all-star honors.

Michelle Lynch was selected to the first team at second base. "She was recognized for her willingness to play any position I asked her to," said coach Barbara Webster. "She played all four years for me."

Kristen Drake, who pitched every game for North and also was the league's number five hitter was named to the second team. This marked the fourth year in a row she was selected an all-star, an outstanding achievement.

Sarah Harrington, the league's number four batter, was named to the second team for her play in the outfield. "This was Sarah's first year in the outfield and the coaches were impressed with some of her catches and her strong arm," said Webster.

Paula Tolson received honorable mention for her play at third base.

All four girls were invited to play in the annual all-star game but the game at Newton was rained out.

Webster will lose six players to graduation and will have some big shoes to fill next season.

Playing well this year was Soyan Park, a sophomore, who switched from the outfield to shortstop when Crystal Moffett suffered a knee injury.

"Injuries really hurt us and caused me to move people around", said the North coach.

Moffett was out for two weeks and first-year junior Kerri Gilmore missed two games. "Special thanks go to Cindy Mitton, a freshman, who did a great job catching, a tough task for a freshman to step in and play varsity," said Webster. "We look for good things from her and Shana Cobban, who filled in everywhere we needed her, outfield, third base, you name it."

NFPA Employees To Compete In Hanover Challenge Race

Employees from National Fire Protection Association in Quincy will be among nearly 10,000 business people from more than 600 Greater Boston and New England companies expected to compete in the six annual Boston Manufacturers Hanover Corporate Challenge, Thursday, July 13, at 7 p.m.

The 3.5 mile event starts and finishes at the Boston Common and is also the largest participatory road race in New England with more official entrants than the Boston Marathon.

There were 9,257 runners in last year's Challenge compared to 6,758 in the 1988 Boston Marathon.

Proceeds from the race benefit the New England Athletic Congress (NEAC), a non-profit organization that provides support and information to runners, running clubs, coaches and race directors in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, and Vermont.

The challenge is the NEAC's largest fundraising event. Last year, nearly $20,000 in proceeds was donated.

It is open to full-time employees of corporations, businesses, government, non-profit and financial institutions and all runners must be part of a corporate team.

Entry fee is $7 per runner and the deadline is Friday June 23.

Late entries will be accepted until Thursday, July 6 with a late fee of $9.

For company entry information, contact Kathy Hussey at Conventures, (617) 439-7700.

Letter Carriers MDA Benefit Golf Tourney July 17

The National Association of Letter Carriers, Branch 34, which represents letter carriers in Quincy, is sponsoring a golf tournament July 17 to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The tournament, which will begin at 8:30 a.m. with a shotgun start, will be held at the Easton Country Club in Easton.

The entry fee for each golfer is $70. Holes and tees can be sponsored for $100. Sponsorship includes a sign with the company's name displayed at the sponsored holes or tees, as well as inclusion in a program book, which will be given to all players.

Contributions such as gift certificates, merchandise or services are needed to make the event successful. Donations such as printing will be used to defray the cost of the event, allowing more money to be donated to MDA.

The National Association of Letter Carriers was the first group to nationally support MDA. They have been involved with MDA for more than 35 years and raised millions of dollars to further MDA's efforts against 40 neuromuscular diseases.

Any help will be appreciated by Branch 34. For more information, please call Elena Carroll of the Dedham MDA office at 461-0310.

Bryan Post Stretches Win Streak To 6

Bryan VFW Post defeated Barry's Deli and Morrisette Post by identical 9-2 scores to stretch its winning streak to six games and take the Babe Ruth League's National League lead with a 7-2 record.

Michael Malvesti pitched a strong three-hitter against Barry's and led the offense with three hits, including a triple. Mark Kelleher and Paul Murphy had two hits apiece and Joe Marnikovic doubled. Rob Kane, Philip Bell, Steve Loud, Tom Nutley, George Wirtz and Todd Portesi each singled.

Catcher Kelleher's leadership anchored a solid defense. Wirtz made two spectacular plays at second base and Loud, Kane, Marnikovic and Bill Morrissey also played well. Portesi, Nutley, Murphy, Gerry Sheehan, Rich Gorman and Jeff Breslin also played well in the outfield.

Chris Geary, Chris Peck and Dan Kearns had Barry's hits.

Loud also fired a three-hitter against Morrisette, striking out nine.

Malvesti again paced the attack with three hits, including a long double. Kane also had three hits, stole three bases, scored three runs and played an outstanding game at shortstop. Kelleher, Nutley and Portesi also had hits.

Kelleher had another fine game behind the plate and Portesi made several find plays in left field. Wirtz, Morrissey, Gorman, Bell and Sean Skahan also played well.

For Morrisette, Mike Kavanaugh doubled twice and Nick Mastrogiacomo also had a double.

Barry's came out of the gate strong with seven runs in the first inning. The score remained 7-0 until the third when Barry's added two runs.

Houghs Neck roard back in the top of the fourth, scoring seven runs and cutting the gap to 9-7. Barry's scored four in the bottom of the sixth to win going away.

Mike Conners was the winning pitcher with help from Danny Kearns in the last inning. Conners allowed seven hits, struck out five and walked five.

Conners also helped his own cause with four hits, including two doubles. He had four RBI and scored twice. Kearns came on in the last inning after the first two batters reached safely and struck out two and got the final out on a ground ball.

Chris Murphy, Danny Duncan and Chris Peck had two hits each and Mike Kelley had a key single. Neil Hutchinson was outstanding on defense and Duncan caught a fine game. Dave Raftery, Tom Geary, Chris Geary, Jeff Craig, Jeff Tirrel, Dereck Thompson and Dave D'Olympio stood out on defense.

For HN, Mark Walsh, Garrett Butkuss, Jimmy Gateley, Matt O'Toole, John Foley and Timmy Byrne had hits and Butkuss pitched well. Walsh, Gately and Byrne sparkled on defense.

Barry's also topped Local 1139, 8-5, with Conners pitching an excellent game, allowing five hits, striking out seven but was wilk, walking 10. He also had two hits.

Peck put on a clinic at shortstop, making several difficult plays look easy and also had three hits. Kearns also had a strong defensive game and had three hits. Also making key hits were Raftery, Kelley and Thompson.

Barry's defense again was strong with Chris Geary, Craig, Murphy, Tom Geary and D'Olympio all playing well.

For Local 1139, Scott Dunn pitched well, Pat Gallagher was outstanding at shortstop and Pat Shea and Robbie Fitzpatrick had two of the team's five hits.

Tenney, Schynder Ponkapoag Winners

A 'get acquainted' tournament was recently held by the Ponkapoag Golf Course Ladies' Inner Club.

It was required that players be paired with a member they had not played with in the past.

Edna Tenney and Ginny Van Schynder were the winners of the nine-hole play, followed by Jerry Blakely and Irene Goran.

Winners of the 18-hole event were Nancy Carlton and Mary Lou Burke, followed by Ruth Zaleski and Phyliss Gould.

A nine-hole 'fewest putts' tournament was played and the winners were Anne Bell and Carlotte Dickie, tied at 14, followed by Stephanie Rizza, 16, and Hilda Appel, Carol Perry, Mary Michaels and Sally Barr, all at 17.

Another interesting tournament was a 'Two partners-alternate shot.'

Sue Reycroft and Phyliss Gould were the winners, Debbie Hodges and Rita Rogers were second and Ann Bell and Ruth Zaleski, Mary Michaels and Bonnie Schulkess were tied for third.

Dennis In Good Freshman Season At Massasoit

Jim Dennis of Quincy High and Quincy Legion had an outstanding freshman season for Massasoit Community College baseball team.

Dennis was named all-New England and all-tournament after batting .450 for the season. He was the starting centerfielder and had a 4-2 record pitching.

Last spring he was a Suburban League all-star and a Boston Globe All-Scholastic while starring for Quincy High School which had its best season in many years and went to the third round of the Eastern Mass. tournament.

• Junior Farm League

Dodgers Win 9th Straight

The Dodgers improved their record to 9-0 with two wins during the past week and clinched first place in the Junior Farm League's National League.

The Dodgers defeated the Cubs, 16-7, with Scott Cooper getting the win in his first pitching start. Ron Gamel's grand slam and five RBI paced the offense.

Chris Bregoli had four RBI with a double and a triple, Rusty Corner had three hits and Andy Mauriello had a double.

For the Cubs, Mike Fitzpatrick and Chris Tobin had three hits apiece and Ray Sartre pitched will in relief.

The Dodgers also edged the Indians, 2-1, in eight innings.

Corner and the Indians' Brian Ross hooked up in a classic pitching duel.

The Dodgers scored in the third inning when Jeff Markes walked with the bases loaded. Ross allowed only one hit, a triple by Gamel, in his six innings of work. Corner gave up four hits in 5 1/3 innings.

Ross drove in John Barron with the tying run in the sixth inning.

Bregoli replaced Corner and gave up the hit to Ross, then struck out the last batter with the go-ahead run on third.

The Dodgers threatened in the seventh when Jonathan Brillo, Chris O'Hare and Jeff Marks reached, but the Indians' Matt Norton escaped without a run.

Kevin Walsh walked to start the eighth and Bregoli doubled him to third. Cooper drove in the winning run with an infield hit. Bregoli was the winning pitcher with 2 2/3 innings of scoreless relief.

'Church Of Presidents' Tours Resume July 1

Thanks to the volunteer effort by some 20 Quincy residents including Councillor Timothy Cahill, guided tours at the United First Parish Church in Quincy Square will resume Saturday, July 1.

Cahill, who learned the tours were in jeopardy last month, said "they will definitely" start July 1 and the only question that remains is how frequently they are conducted.

The number of tours and when they are given will depend on how many people volunteer, he said.

Cahill, who operates a restaurant near the "Church of Presidents," is volunteering his time to schedule the tours and make sure the historic building is opened and closed on tour days.

There are enough volunteers to conduct tours four times a day and Cahill said he would like volunteers in order to conduct more tours.

Ideally, there would be tours seven days a week, two shifts per day: from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. Because of Sunday church services, Sunday tours would be conducted 1 to 4 p.m. only.

Cahill emphasized volunteers are still needed to show visitors and tourists the church as well as the crypts of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wives.

"We're looking for people who will be comfortable showing visitors the church and the crypts and relaying information on the Adams Family and the history of Quincy.

"We feel the church is the focal point of Quincy Center and since its near the Quincy MBTA station, a lot of people start there and move on to other historic sites in Quincy," Cahill said.

Volunteers will be asked to perform only one tour per week unless they desire to do more. There are presently 22 volunteers, including parishioners, school teachers and the executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, George Riley.

Cahill said it is important to have enough volunteers. "The more volunteers I have, the easier my job will be. I don't want to burn people out."

Those interested in volunteering for the tours should call Cahill at 770-4928 during the day and 328-6699 at night.

An orientation meeting for volunteers will be held Monday, June 26 at 4 p.m. at the Church. Anyone interested can attend. Those who cannot attend should call Cahill.

Last month, Dorothy Rigley, who had been scheduling the tours the past 14 years, announced she could no longer keep up with the job's demands.

Rigley, who is in her 70's, said she could stay on as a volunteer guide.

After learning this, Cahill contacted Rigley and offered to do the scheduling for her. Cahill said he hopes to continue the tours and eventually find a permanent solution, such as hiring a full-time coordinator and professional tour staff.

In the meantime, Cahill said the tours will be held this summer.

"The tours won't be as organized as the tours at the Adams Mansion but at least we'll let people see the church and get a feel for the church.

"It's the only church where two presidents are buried and we can direct visitors and tourists to other historic sites in the city."

Chutney Owners Halt Drinking Outside Premises

By JANE ARENA

Thomas and Judy Gannon, owners of Chutney's Market, 307 Victory Rd., Marina Bay, told the License Board Tuesday they would no longer allow their patrons to purchase beer and wine in the store and consume it at tales directly outside their premises.

The matter was originally brought before the board May 16 by Quincy Police Liquor Inspector, Sgt. Richard Laracy, who reported that he had witnessed Chutney's customers drinking alcoholic beverages they had purchased there, at tables outside the establishment.

The store holds a retail beer and wine license, which allows them to sell as a package store, but does not hold a pouring license which would allow customers to consume alcohol on premises. The board issued a warning to the store in May.

Thomas Gannon told the board he thought it "unfair" that he was not given an opportunity to appear before the board at the May meeting.

The board noted that all parties are not always notified in a case such as theirs when no direct action was to be taken.

The matter was also before the board in November for a similar violation, at which time Gannon was told he must enforce the no drinking on premises regulation and post signs to that effect.

Gannon said Tuesday that after the hearing in November he had seen the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC) who had told him that "in his opinion, we were not in violation of the law."

Walter Hannon, director of real estate for the area, told the board that he had seen the ABCC on the matter and that they had said the issue was something "for the local board to decide."

But, Mr. Gannon is in a unique situation," he said, "he does sell food and he also sells beer and wine."

"We've been in business for four and a half years," Thomas Gannon told the board, "and for three and a half years we were operating the same way. No one told us not to do it."

"You're trying to operate as though you have a retail liquor license and a pouring license," Gillis said, "and you don't."

Laracy told the board he had observed patrons drinking at the tables outside Chutney's "about a week ago," but did not go into the establishment at the time.

"I didn't want to make a federal case of it," he said. "These people aren't criminals."

Gannon told the board they have placed prominent signs on tables and have told customers verbally, that drinking is not allowed on the premises, since learning of the violation. But, he also noted that boaters often bring their own alcohol from boats and consume it with food bought at Chutney's. The board advised them to tell customers that they are jeopardizing the establishment's license by such actions.

Sergeant Laracy told the board the city does not consider it a violation to consume alcohol on the boardwalk because that area is not considered "public property."

"But it is illegal for them to drink it on Chutney's property," he said, "because the store does not have a license to allow this."

"If it is illegal for customers to drink the alcohol on" their premises, but "legal for them to move away three feet and drink it," Gannon said, "then the law should be changed ... or the law should at least be interpreted differently."

Hannon agreed that the law should be changed in such cases.

Chairman John Gillis noted that the License Board does not have power to change the law or to interpret it differently.

"If we owned a store on Adams St.," Gannon said, "we would not put tables outside ...but the boardwalk (at Marina Bay) is a unique situation and the law should be interpreted differently ... we are not law-breakers or criminals. We thought we were operating in a reasonable way."

The board placed the matter on file and advised Walter Hannon to work with the owners to "totally define the area" of Chutney's by use of a rope or chain around their patio area.

Board Denies License For Boston Chicken

By JANE ARENA

Despite some favorable response from some neighbors and the board's agreement that it is a well-run operation, the city License Board Tuesday denied a request from Boston Chicken for a common victualer license for 642 Adams St.

The denial was due to the strong opposition of many residents of the area on the basis of increased traffic on Adams St. and the vicinity. Seventeen residents appeared before the board in opposition to the license. About five spoke in favor.

Atty. Thomas Largey, representing Harvey Lazarus, a "principal" of Boston Chicken, told the board that an "informal traffic study" had been conducted which proved that the establishment would only increase the traffic in the area by one or two percent, generating about 250 cars per day. He also said that city Traffic Commissioner David Kinnecom had indicated that "it appears our numbers are reasonable and our conclusions are reasonable."

Ward 3 Councillor Thomas Chretien told the board that he interpreted Kinnecom's hand-written comments on the traffic study in a different way.

Chretien told the board that Kinnecom had estimated the 250 cars per day traffic increase to be a "guess", and had also indicated that it may be "low."

McGrath Takes Sludge Issue To Washington

Councillor and mayoral candidate Stephen McGrath recently visited Washington, D.C., and discussed the proposed sludge treatment facility in Quincy Point with two White House officials.

McGrath, accompanied by Leo Kelly, city environmentalist who also serves as McGrath's campaign manager, met with Andrew Card, Deputy Chief of Staff of President Bush last Friday at the White House.

"We discussed our concerns regarding the proposed sludge treatment plant at the Fore River Shipyard and especially the obnoxious effect of composting at the site," McGrath said.

McGrath is opposed to the use of the shipyard for sludge treatment.

"I emphasized that this section of Quincy is in the middle of a residential area and sludge treatment would have a negative impact environmentally on Quincy's neighborhoods, especially composting.

"Andy was extremely interested in the shipyard problem and indicated he heard and understood the concerns of the City of Quincy," McGrath said.

He said Card would contact William Reilly, the EPA administrator, regarding Quincy's concern of the sludge treatment and particularly the composting element.

"In addition and more importantly, Card indicated he wanted Leo and me to feel that there was an open door at the White House for the concerns of the City of Quincy," McGrath said.

He and Kelly also met with William Canary, special assistant to the President for Intergovernmental Affairs, Liaison to the nation's local officials.

"We had a wide-ranging discussion with Mr. Canary on several local issues. We discussed our concern on cuts in the Community Development Block Grant budget and were assured that no sums which fund many community programs and neighborhood centers would be reduced from the budget under the President's proposal which has been sent to the Congress," McGrath said.

"We also had an extensive discussion with the Presidential Assistant regarding our concern on the sludge treatment plant and the negative impact on Quincy.

"Mr. Canary asked for additional information on the composting and pelleting processes which I will be sending to him," McGrath said.

"In addition, Mr. Canary, himself a former local government official, referred us to Suffolk County, New York, for additional information on a sludge treatment plant which developed horrendous odor problems and cautioned us against the same happening in Quincy.

"I believe it is important to Quincy to establish contacts and dialogues on the federal executive level, as we have done on the legislative level with Congressman Brian Donnelly, with whom we have been discussing these issues," he said.

Board Denies Pizza License

By JANE ARENA

Because of strong concerns about parking in the area, the License Board Tuesday denied a request from Michael Hatfield for a take-out only license for Domino's Pizza at 26-28 Billings Rd., North Quincy. Hatfield owns the Domino's at Presidents Plaza.

Atty. Peter Healy, representing Hatfield, told the board that his client had first thought to use an 18-space parking lot behind the proposed site, but that the lot is used by Peter Kelly for Kelly's Pub and Grub.

Healy also told the board that Kelly had written Hatfield a letter stating that spaces in a parking garage he owns across the street from the site could be used for Domino's.

Joseph Doran, President of the North Quicny Business and Professional Association, told the board that he is opposed to the license because the area has a severe parking problem already. He also notes that the lot reserved for Kelly's Pub and Grub is commonly used by many other merchants as well.

"The parking is so bad now," Doran told the board, "that buses can't turn around because of double and triple parking."

Doran said that the NQBPA "would welcome new business in the area," but noted that the nature of Domino's Pizza is not a "draw to North Quincy because it is strictly a telephone business."

Healy told the board that only about seven percent of Domino's business is comprised of people coming into the store. He noted that most of the business is deliveries. He also said that there would be only "five to seven" delivery vehicles.

"Where else can you get a business that generates that few cars?" he asked.

In total, nine people were before the board in opposition to the license, most of them representing North Quincy businesses, and some of those area restaurants.

The board noted that Billings Rd. is a dead-end street and that Holmes St. is one-way. Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said that the traffic pattern in the area is "not conducive to the business."

O'Connell said that delivery drivers would be tempted to drive the wrong way on Holmes St. and to double park delivery vehicles outside the store, both of which would block emergency vehicles and cause a public safety hazard.

"It's a nightmare in there," he said.

Atty. Healy told the board that his client would be willing to have a restriction placed on his license stating that, if his drivers double parked or violated the one-way, the license could be revoked.

The board notes that they had had no problem with the Domino's owned by Hatfield at President's Plaza, but that Billings Rd. is the wrong location. They offered to have the request withdrawn without prejudice, but Healy said he wanted it denied with the reasons stated.

The Board denied the request because of "extreme traffic problems and public safety."

Thomas Delorey Outstanding Graduate At Lowell

Thomas F. DeLorey, 49 Harriet Ave., North Quincy, was chosen the Outstanding Graduate Student in nuclear engineering by the University of Lowell Graduate School.

The award honors leadership, exceptional research, performance and writing abilities, technical skills, academic excellence and commitment to achievement.

DeLorey recently received a master's degree in nuclear engineering at Lowell's commencement exercises.

O'Connell Charges MWRA With Violations On Roxbury Selection

In a continuing effort to force the MWRA to locate its' headquarters at the Quincy Shipyard, Peter O'Connell Tuesday filed a supplemental brief before the Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries which is formally charged with enforcing the Ward Commission statutes against waste, fraud and corruption in public construction contracts.

In the filing, O'Connell asserted that the MWRA, by picking the Parcel 18 site in Boston, violated the spirit and intent of the Ward Commission laws.

"They've made a mockery of the process which was intended to prevent taxpayers from getting ripped off", O'Connell said.

"The means of selection used was an alternative method of procurement which is specifically prohibited by the Ward Commission laws. I'm happy to see the Inspector General's Office joining me in this protest."

"It's also interesting to note that the MWRA's Request for Proposals was originally written in a way different from normal leasing procedures. The lease term prescribed in the RFP was 20 years instead of the normal five years. The lease also mandated an option to purchase which again is far from the norm in these matters.

"The MWRA has committed insult after insult upon the people of Quincy. I will continue to fight the MWRA with every ounce of energy that I possess until they recognize that the headquarters belongs in Quincy. That's the very least they can and must do."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

CHANGE. CHANGE. CHANGE. We have seen a lot of changes in our world over the years. And sometimes the challenge to accept changes is one of the greatest issues affecting society today ... The ability to accept changes can determine to a great extent our behavior and the improvements we make in our lives ... Yet, sometimes, it is difficult to accept changes that do not please us oar that create inconveniences. To many, great changes - political-economical-social - are less worrisome than the small changes. Minor changes affect our daily activities, and could create stress due primarily to our inclination to magnify them.

I like this quotation by Charles F. Kettering ... "So many of us are all the time trying to get our business in such a shape that we don't have to make any change. I don't think that will ever happen. I think one of the greatest difficulties that we experience these days is worry because things are changing. I think as long as you are going to tear the leaves off the calendar, some change falls out. You can either take it as it comes, or you can stack it up and take it some time when you don't want to. You can't keep this change from coming."

Houghs Neck Post 'Adopts' Morton Traffic Island

Houghs Neck Legion Post members have voted to "adopt" the George W. Morton Park at Sea and Bird Sts., a traffic island opposite the Post home.

Members will take over its planning and upkeep as part of Quincy's "Adopt an Island" program.

George W. Morton, a Civil War veteran, was born in Quincy May 2, 1842 and died March 15, 1911. He attended Quincy schools and the Pierce & Wesleyan Academy where, at age 19, in 1861, he enlisted in the Navy as a volunteer paymaster.

He was attached to the U.S. gunboat "R.B.Forbes" in the Dupont expedition at the taking of Port Royal, South Carolina; served on the frigate "Roanoke" during the engagement between the "Monitor" and the "Merrimac" at Hampton Roads, VA and served for three years on the "Hetzel", flagship in the sounds of North Carolina.

At the close of the war, he was assigned to the U.S. "Juniata" and visited ports in Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, St. Helena, Africa, Portugal and Great Britain. He retired from the Navy in 1867.

A pioneer summer resident at Houghs Neck, he owned the yacht "Red Lion", was a charter member of the Quincy Yacht Club, and its Commodore from 1881-1883, and was proprietor of the "Red Lion" Inn on Morton Rd.

He was superintendent of the Manet St. Railway, original street railway between Quincy Square and Houghs Neck. In 1899, Morton was elected to the Quincy City Council and the next year was chairman of its Finance Committee. He was president of Quincy Savings Bank, a director of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, the National Mount Wollaston Bank, a trustee for many years of the Thomas Crane Public Library and a curator of the Quincy Historical Society, who helped preserve the President John Quincy Adams birthplace and its antiques.

City flags were flown at half-mast the day of his funeral, at which present and former ministers of First Parish Church officiated. He was buried in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

House Votes MWRA Headquarters Here

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The push for a Quincy-based MWRA headquarters took another step toward reality Tuesday after the House of Representatives enacted a bill requiring the authority to relocate at the former General Dynamics Shipyard.

By a 116 to 29 vote, the House gave final approval to a bill requiring the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority to relocate its administrative and executive offices at the shipyard in Quincy Point.

The Senate was expected to act on final passage of the bill Wednesday or Thursday. Since the Senate has already passed the bill three times, it could reach Gov. Michael Dukakis' desk by Friday, said Senator Paul Harold (D-Quincy).

Dukakis, who supports a Roxbury location for the Authority's headquarters, is expected to veto the bill.

The MWRA Advisory Board will tour the administrative offices at the shipyard Friday, June 30 at 10 a.m.

Throughout his lobbying, the governor has maintained that the headquarters is vital to the economic recovery of that section of Boston.

With another victory under their belts, Quincy legislators are cautiously optimistic that the governor's veto can be overridden.

"I'm cautiously optimistic. The longer it's been before us, the more votes we've been able to gain," Harold said, noting the most recent roll call vote had a favorable margin of 25-10. He also pointed out that on Monday, the Senate approved the bill by a voice vote, suggesting it has "reached a point where (senators) won't even fight it."

Once the bill reaches Dukakis, the governor will have 10 days to veto it or it becomes law. Since the bill passed the House and Senate by relatively comfortable margins, it appears a two-thirds override vote can be mustered in both legislative branches.

Furthermore, Harold said it is very possible the entire matter will be resolved within the first two weeks of July.

Morrissey, who drafted the bill, said the prospects for a House override "look pretty good but nothing's guaranteed."

"I have a two thirds vote right now," Morrissey said, additing Dukakis will continue his strong lobbying effort.

"I hope this big victory will send a message to the governor," Morrissey continued.

Pointing out that the several MWRA employees recently received pay raises, Morrissey said "A new office is rubbing it right into people's noses.

"(The MWRA) doesn't need a Taj Mahal," he added, referring to the brand new building the Authority's

Authorities Asked To Probe

O'Connell Attacked By Smear Flyer

An anonymous political flyer attacking mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell for the South Shore Chamber of Comerce's stand on the prevailing wage law has been referred to Police Chief Francis Finn and Dist. Atty. William Delahunt for appropriate action.

O'Connell said the flyer contained false information and was distributed over the weekend "in an attempt to smear my good name and character."

He called it "an insult to the intelligence of every voter of this city."

Atty. Thomas Kiley, counsel for O'Connell, said the flyer violated Massachusetts law on two counts:

(1) It contained false statements.

(2) It was not signed as required.

Kiley said the violations carry a penalty of up to six months in jail for each. He also noted that anyone who passes out such a flyer is also liable.

The flyer entitled "Question 2 Alert" apparently was aimed at turning union members and their families against O'Connell in this year's mayoral race.

But ironically, it was not printed in a union shop and contained no union label.

"A union shop would not tolerate this smear," O'Connell said.

The flyer said that the South Shore Chamber of Commerce was a supporter of the repeal of the prevailing wage law and that the Chamber endorsed a "Yes" vote and campaigned for "Yes" votes.

"Who is the South Shore Chamber of Commerce?" it asked.

"One of them is Peter O'Connell."

It then went on to list various offices O'Connell has held in the Chamber and noted:

"If Peter F. O'Connell had the influence to hold all these positions then Peter O'Connell should have been able to influence a 'No' vote but did not.

"We beat them this time, but they will be back. Let's not give the repeal people any more strength.

"Peter too is BAD FOR YOU.

"Vote No On Peter O'Connell."

O'Connell noted that when Question 2 was an issue he was not even a member of the Chamber Board of Directors and had no vote on the Chamber's stand.

He also noted that he is only one of the Chamber's more than 2,000 business and professional members.

The flyers first appeared Saturday, the day of O'Connell's mayoral campaign 'fundraiser' at Fenway Park.

Some 1200 persons attended a cookout at Marina Bay Saturday and then 935 boarded buses to take them to the Red Sox-Minnesota game.

While they were gone, the flyers were placed on windshields of the cars of those who had gone to the baseball game.

Ironically, construction of Marina Bay is covered by a comprehensive union agreement with O'Connell Management.

O'Connell Management has also hired union trades in other projects undertaken by them.

Peter O'Connell released the following statement regarding the distribution of the flyer:

"I am saddened to learn that an anonymous flyer containing false information was distributed over the weekend in an attempt to smear my good name and character.

"I had been cautioned to be aware of this type of dirty politics, but I had hoped that it would not happen. This flyer is an insult to the intelligence of every voter of this city.

I intend to continue my campaign throughout every neighborhood addressing the issues which are of concern to the citizens of this city. I do not intend to dignify the contents of this malicious flyer and I wish to assure my fellow candidates that I will not indulge in this type of campaigning nor will I condone anyone in my organization indulging in any personality attacks.

It is obvious that those individuals involved in this attempted smear have committed a criminal offense by violating the General Laws of the Commonwealth, Chapter 56, Sections 41 and 42. My legal counsel has been directed to notify the office of the District Attorney and the Chief of the Quincy Police to take appropriate action to uphold the law so that these matters should not be allowed to happen to any candidate who seeks public office."

Morrissey Asks MDC Step Up Patrols At Wollaston Beach

In response to "numerous complaints" by constituents Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has contacted M.D.C. Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti requesting that the Metro Police intensify their patrols along Wollaston Beach.

For the first time in many years, the M.D.C. police have not been able to provide walking patrols because of budget shortfall, Morrissey said. "There has been a change for the worse since the patrols have stopped," he said.

Morrissey has requested that the officers on the regular patrol take a more active role in the activity along the beach wall, in addition to traffic enforcement.

"It makes little sense for these people to be deprived of their use of the beach," Morrissey said. "I am a strong supporter of overtime funds and I hope they are restored. However, we should not have to rely only on the overtime police to keep our beaches safe. The officers on regular duty should be able to make periodic sweeps of the beach during their regular shifts."

19-Table Billiard Parlor For Downtown

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board Tuesday gave its approval for "The Shooters Club", a 19-table billiard parlor, to open in the basement level of Quincy Fair Mall on Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The license was granted with several stipulations including no alcohol to be served at the establishment.

Atty. Carl Johnson, representing principals of the billiards parlor, Kevin Ryan and James Pansullo, Jr., both of Quincy, told the board the establishment will be a "new concept" in billiard parlors and that it will "look more like a drawing room than a pool hall."

The establishment will reflect the "new trend" in "upscale billiards parlors," Johnson told the board. Pansullo and Ryan, he said, expect to spend about $135,000 in renovations and tables. The parlor will feature free-standing pool tables, carpeting and brass railings and accents.

Johnson submitted to the board letters signed by the pastors of St. John's Church and St. Ann's Church verifying the high moral standing of Pansullo and Ryan.

Johnson also presented the board with a letter from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) verifying that the association had voted to support the license application providing the following restrictions apply: "No video games be allowed; no alcohol be allowed, including beer and wine; no gambling be allowed; and the operating hours be no greater than 11 a.m. to 12:30 a.m."

The QCBPA also asked that an age restriction of 18 years of age be implemented as opposed to the 17 years of age as proposed.

Johnson told the board that his clients would be willing to comply with the restrictions. Ryan told the board that people under 18 years would not be admitted to the establishment, unless accompanied by a "responsible adult," which they defined as 21 years or older.

Police Sgt. Richard Laracy, who emphasized that he was speaking on behalf of night patrol police officers and not as the city's liquor inspector, told the board he was opposed to the license. "The night patrol supervisors would be opposed to it," he said.

Police Chief Francis Finn also went on record as opposed to the granting of the license. He said he felt it was a " good concept" but was worried about causing further trouble in the area of Quincy Fair Mall. The area has been considered a "hang-out" for youth.

Johnson told the board the entrance to the parlor would be located in the rear, in the parking area, and not on Hancock St., in an effort to discourage people from congregating on Hancock ST.

The board approved the license with all of the stipulations requested by the QCBPA and also stipulated that a police detail be hired.

Johnson said that, depending on the time for renovations, "The Shooters Club" will be open in either August or September.

Cleanliness Top Priority

5-Year Parking Lease Gets Green Light

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Given the authority to enter into a new five-year parking lease by the City Council, Mayor Francis McCauley says cleanliness safeguards are among his top negotiating priorities.

"We all share one concern," he said. "We need to keep the parking areas clean. My administration will monitor the area and insist the lots are kept clean," McCauley said Tuesday.

"I agree with the council that (cleanliness) has been a problem. We're very sensitive to that fact," he added.

On Monday, the City Council voted 7-2 in favor of a five-year lease with Metropolitan Parking Systems, Inc. Councillors who supported a three-year lease with a two-year option were Stephen McGrath and Michael Cheney.

McGrath also voted against allowing McCauley to execute a lease with Metropolitan for the city's three parking areas: Ross parking garage, Ross parking lot and deck and the Hancock parking lot.

McGrath and Cheney said they supported a three-year lease with a two-year option as a way to make Metropolitan more accountable in terms of maintaining and cleaning the lots properly.

"I'm fearful that the city is back where it was five years ago," McGrath said, noting the city's five-year lease with present operator Kinney Systems. McGrath and other councillors have critized Kinney for not cleaning the lots adequately and frequently.

McGrath replied, "I don't believe the start-up cost logic is persuasive. It seems to me we have a lot of loose ends here."

Kinnecom also said that Metropolitan could not offer the city as high a rent with a three-year lease than with a five-year lease.

Metropolitan and three other firms made their bid on the premise the lease would be five years since that was the way it was advertised.

Speaking in support of the five-year lease, Councillor Timothy Cahill said, "I think we're in a position of bargaining strength. Under the five-year lease, the city could terminate the lease if it finds Metropolitan is not running the system under the guidelines."

"I honestly feel that Metropolitan is the best parking company for the city of Quincy," added Cahill, who was amont several city officials and businessmen who inspected lots operated by Metropolitan and the other firms who made bids.

As a reassurance, Kinnecom said he would have an employee from his department inspect the city's lots each week to make sure they are kept in proper order.

In reviewing a lease proposal, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said Metropolitan should be required to mechanically sweep the lots once a week, instead of twice a year as presently arranged with Kinney.

Phelan said a twice-a-year arrangement could result in similar conditions found with Kinney. Other councillors who said they favor frequent mechanical sweeps were James Sheets, Thomas Nutley, Lawrence Chretien and Cheney.

Asked about making frequent mechanical sweeps part of the issue, McCauley said "We will try to build that into the safeguards."

"We're going to try to draft a lease that will protect the city as far as cleanliness goes. We're going to watch it very closely," he said.

The mayor also said that the litter problem would be reduced if people who use the lots or pass through them did not litter.

"Another thing that would help would be citizens who would use the trash barrels and not litter. That would make the city's and Metropolitan's job easier," he said.

McCauley said he was pleased with the Council's approval of Metropolitan.

"I'm pleased. Metropolitan, in terms of money, looks good and they have a good maintenance record," the mayor said, adding that he has learned through Cambridge traffic engineer that the firm does an adequate job keeping the Central Square area clean.

McCauley and City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie will begin negotiations with Metropolitan soon. They mayor said the firm could be operating the lots in about two weeks.

For now the rates will remain 25 cents per hour, $2 per day, McCauley said.

Rates are set by city ordinance.

Tardo Calls MWRA Pay Raises Insulting

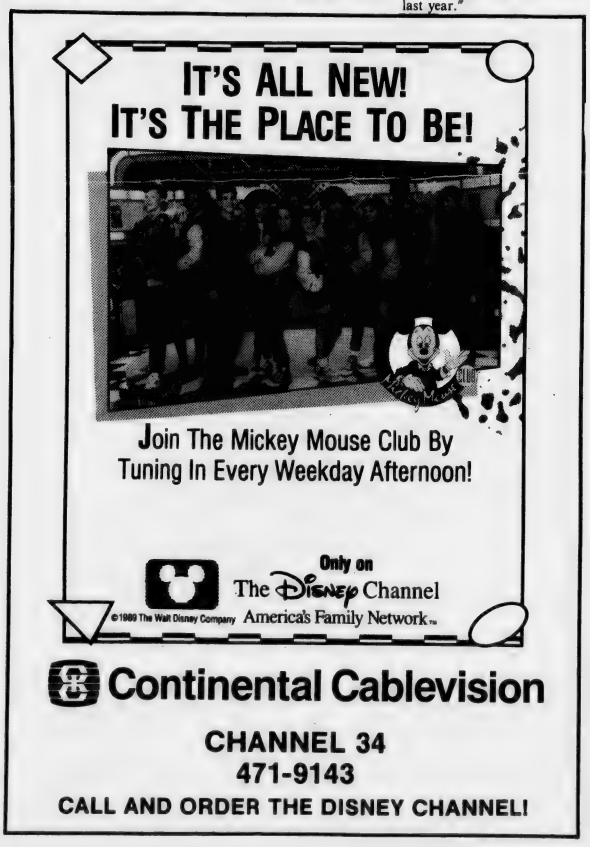
Candidate for City Councillor, Dennis Tardo, says "The proposed Massachusetts Water Resource Authority executive pay raises are an insult to the ratepayers."

More than one million dollars in pay raises to non-union employees are expected to be handed out July 1. MWRA Executive Director Paul Levy stands to receive an eight percent pay hike boosting his salary to $114,912 up from $106,400.

Tardo said, "Paul Levy is so far out of touch with reality that his $8,512 pay raise is greater than the $7,800 salary someone working for minimum wage earns yearly. Paul Levy, a public servant of the people can not seriously believe he and his cronies at the MWRA deserve to make a cash salary in one month greater than some people make all year."

"The answer is to reorganize the MWRA. We must remove the power of control from the Governor. At a time everyone is asking for fiscal accountability, the MWRA is hiking the rates and putting the money in their pockets," Tardo said.

Disagreeing with MWRA spokesman Paul DiNatale, Tardo said "Any employee receiving an eight percent raise amounting to $8,512, when the cost of living goes up 6.7 percent is better off than before. Especially well off are the employees that received the 19 percent pay increases last year."



Basement Level Function Room Approved At Kelly's

Peter Kelly will add a function room in the basement level of Kelly's In The Square Restaurant, 15 Cottage Ave., after the License Board Tuesday granted an extension of his all-alcoholic common victualer license to include the lower level of the building.

The entertainment license will also be extended to the lower level.

The function room, to be used for weddings and private parties will accommodate 140 persons, said Atty. Richard W. Barry, representing Kelly.

Barry also noted that Kelly had been in contact with Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue and the Quincy Fire Department and was aware of city ordinances pertaining to the license extension.

Innholder's, Liquor Licenses Granted For 300-Room Hotel

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday took the next step in the process for building a 300-room hotel at Crown Colony, by granting an Innholder's license and an all-alcoholic license to the Crown Colony Management Corp., c/o Edward A. Fish Association, 400 Crown Colony Dr.

Atty. Dennis Harrington of Quincy was before the board representing Edward A. Fish and Richard Vazar, principals of Fish Association.

Harrington told the board that the project had been granted a variance by the zoning board of appeals for the 10-story hotel at lot 1B and that the landowners have been talking to various hotel corporations during the past few months.

Harrington said that an Innholder's license is needed even before a hotel corporation is chosen because the project is "a big step for investors and we want to make sure the Innholder's license is there." The estimated cost of the project is $25 to 30 million, he said.

Harrington told the board that Fish and Vazar will remain the principals of the project and will continue to own the land, but that they will be joined by a third partner from the management of the hotel corporation.

Another appearance before the license board will be required at that time.

Harrington noted that Mayor Francis McCauley had indicated his support of the project to "various city boards," including the zoning board of appeals.

Because the project has received a variance from the board of appeals, Harrington noted, construction of the hotel must be started within one year.

"Design time" for the project is expected to take one year, he said.

A 300-room hotel is classified as a "medium sized hotel", Harrington said, adding that the Sheraton Tara, with 400 rooms is a "large" hotel.

Harrington said that any design of the facility will "anticipate an addition of a future wing," if needed.

There was no opposition to the granting of the license.

The board granted the license, noting that the action also includes all-alcoholic licenses for bars within the establishment.

$139,929 Transferred To Cover Shortfalls

The City Council Monday approved $139,929 in year end transfers to cover shortfalls in eight city departments for the fiscal year which ends Friday, June 30.

All but $1,429 of the money came from the free cash account.

Commenting on the smal deficit, Mayor McCauley said, "We're not doing too badly," adding that the other accounts have surpluses in them.

The total deficit figure for the city is approximately $273,000 which is less than two-tenths of one percent of the city's $110 million budget for fiscal 1989.

McCauley said he will start preparing the books and send the figures to the state. "We should get our Cherry Sheet sometime during the first two weeks of July," the mayor said.

The Cherry Sheet indicates the amount of aid the state gives cities and towns.

As for a city surplus, McCauley said he should know that figure sometime between Aug. 1 and Aug. 15.

The $139,929 appropriated by the council covered the following shortfalls:

- $70,000 for Police, personal services.
- $5,500, Park and Forestry, personal services.
- $1,429, Mayor, current expenses.
- $16,000, Treasurer, Collector, current expenses.
- $5,000, Police, current expenses.
- $2,000, Sanitary landfill, current expenses.
- $35,000, Workmen's Compensation.
- $5,000, F.I.C.A.

Playground Programs Start July 5

The Quincy Recreation Department will begin the summer playground program Wednesday, July 5.

Each playground will be staffed from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday for seven weeks unless a supervised field trip is conducted.

Recreation Director, Barry Welch, said activities will include baseball, softball, frisbee, tennis, soccer, archerty, arts, crafts, music, drama and dance activities, as well as other organizational games. Many other special activities are included in each weekly schedule.

Specialists will visit playgrounds each week on a schedule to be announced and will give instruction in various recreational activities. Registration for the playground will take place at neighborhood playgrounds on July 5.

Local playgrounds with recreational activities include:

Atlantic, Bishop, Mass Fields, Myles Standish, Squantum, Welcome Young, Wollaston, Baker, Beechwood Knoll, Chapel, Heron Road, LaBreque, Palmer Park, Perkins, Fenno Street, Forbes Hill, Fore River, Pollard, Pond Street, Kincaide, O'Rourke, Shea, Adams, Elm Street, Faxon Park, and Russell Park.

Forefathers Would Not Tolerate Flag Descecration

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The fury and anger over the Supreme Court decision declaring the burning of the American flag as a display of freedom of speech protected by the first amendment is certainly no surprise. I am personally dissatisfied with the Supreme Court decision allowing such irreverent contempt for America.

There are numerous examples of legitimate punishments for expressing ones opinions obnoxiously. I will limit my argument to the unknown number of charges brought against individuals that have freely exercised public opposition to someone's sexuality, color, religion or ethnic background. Simply, the lack of common sense before maliciously offending an individual or group necessitates the need for immediate legislation.

It indeed is necessary to ammend the Constitution of the United States to forbid any deliberate desecretion of the American flag. I believe any proposed legislation should also clearly define proper etiquette for displaying the flag.

I have always been offended by the improper display of Old Glory. Everytime I pass the Squantum Yacht Club on Quincy Shore Drive, I recall the first time I noticed the burgee flying from the highest point of the pole while the American flag flies dipped from the gaff.

Calls to the Squantum Yacht Club have been answered with the reply that other yacht clubs display the colors the same way. Observation proves this to be true, but certainly, not proper.

So, because common sense does not enforce etiquette to show pride in America and the flag that symbolizes our great country, we must legislate and ammend laws. Laws that will not only discourage degeneratism but laws that will clearly define for the, so called, intellectually superior interpretors of the Constitution that our forefathers would not tolerate desecretion of the flag and neither will 'we the people' of today.

NONDEDUCTIBLE IRA'S

As you are all probably aware, the tax laws of 1986 put restrictions and limitations on who can contribute to an IRA account, and also how much. Any individuals covered in an employer's retirement plan have lost the right to take a tax deduction of current and future contributions. But...

This does not prevent continuing future non-tax-deductible contribution into your account. The advantage of doing this is that accumulations are tax deferred, enabling a compounding interest growth. A disadvantage is that all funds in an IRA account are subjected to the rules of distribution and taxation.

If you are under 59½ and you withdraw some of your IRA funds not only do you have to declare the withdrawal as income, but you receive an extra 10% penalty.

When making your contributions, keep in mind that you can have several different IRA accounts, and you may split your $2,000 into each. These accounts can be stocks, bonds, mutual funds, bank savings or certificates, annuities, etc. Your contributions cannot go into any form of collectibles such as art, coins or stamps.

Now That Was A Race!

There will be a preliminary election for School Committee this year but it won't come anywhere near matching the big race of 1971.

This year there will be about eight candidates. In 1971 there were 23 -- probably the biggest School Committee field in the city's 100-year history.

The big magnet that year: three open seats up for grabs.

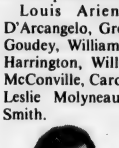
McCORMICK

James McCormick, who had become a perennial powerhouse on the School Committee gave up his seat to run for mayor.

Alice Mitchell, who had served 18 years, decided to retire.

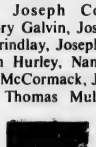
And, young Ruth Scanlan who blazed onto the political scene from out of no-where in 1967 to win a School Committee seat in her first attempt, taking the second spot behind McCormick, decided one four-year term was enough.

SCANLAN



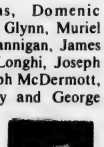
Scanlan, who some thought might some day go on to become Quincy's first woman mayor, somehow, in just four short years had become disenchanted with politics and wanted out. Last report on her was that she was running a farm out of state.

Of the 23 candidates that year, the following six won nominations in the preliminary election:



Christopher Kennedy (5,641), Francis McCauley (5,337), Harold Davis (5,273), Daniel Raymondi (4,673), Leo Hannon (4,409) and Dean Nicastros (3,894).

You might remember some of the other candidates in that preliminary run-off:



Louis Arienti, Joseph Collins, Domenic D'Arcangelo, Gregory Galvin, Joseph Glynn, Muriel Goudey, William Grindlay, Joseph Hannigan, James Harrington, William Hurley, Nancy Longhi, Joseph McConville, Carole McCormack, Joseph McDermott, Leslie Molyneaux, Thomas Mullaney and George Smith.

DAVIS

RAYMONDI

McCAULEY

The three winners in the final election that year were: Davis (16,396), Raymondi (15,678) and McCauley (14,700).

Kennedy, who had topped the preliminary field, dropped to fourth place with 14,349 to be edged out by McCauley by 351 votes in the final.

Hannon (13,322) and Nicastro (12,664) trailed.

It was perhaps the biggest turnover for the School Committee in the city's history. Not just three but four new faces: Davis, Raymondi and McCauley. And Walter Hannon, who was elected mayor and by virtue of that office became chairman of the School Committee.

HANNON

McCormick, who had been a big vote getter as a School Committeeman couldn't keep it rolling as a mayoral candidate. Hannon (11,109) and Joseph Brett (7,338) won the nominations for mayor that year with McCormick third (4,755) and Rita Anderson fourth with 737 votes.

BRETT

In the final mayoral election, Hannon topped Brett 17,966 to 15,373.

That 1971 School Committee election, incidentally, was a crucial one for McCauley.

McCauley was elected Ward 1 Councillor in 1963, edging Leo Hannon by a scant 46 votes. He was re-elected two years later, again topping Hannon but this time by 645 votes.

In 1966 he lost a bid for state representative to Arthur Tobin. In 1967 he made an unsuccessful run for councillor at-large, finishing fourth behind John Quinn, Tobin and George McDonald.

TOBIN

He sat out 1969 and then decided to make a comeback bid via the School Committee in 1971.

He went into that election with two straight defeats.

"If I lost that year," he says, "I probably would never have run again."

But he won and has never lost since.

QUINCY'S BOB SEAMANS had to bow out of the gruelling Western States 100 Mile Same Day Endurance Run through the rugged Sierra Nevada Mountain trails. The dining room table did him in.

SEAMANS

While trying to move the extension in the table, he strained his side and kicked up an old rib skiing injury.

He reluctantly had to withdraw.

"It would have been suicidal to try running that course," he says.

But he hopes to make next year's run.

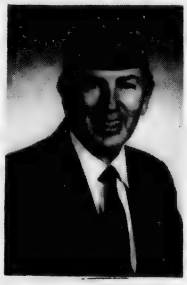
To Seek Constitution Amendment

Veterans Outraged At Supreme Court's Flag Burning Decision

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Distressed and outraged over the recent Supreme Court decision which makes burning the American flag legal under the First Amendment, John "Jake" Comer said he and other veterans are going to try to amend the Constitution.



"It's like the old story" if you don't like the law in this country, the one thing we can do is change the law," said Comer, who served as National Commander of the American Legion last year.

Comer said the present national commander and other veterans "will try to start the process to amend the Constitution'' at the American Legion's National Convention to be held in Baltimore, MD. later this summer.

"Certainly, the greatness of our country is that under ou Constitution somebody would have the right to burn the flag and still be considered a great American.

"That may be so under the Constitution but I certainly will not accept that. The veterans are outraged. The members of the American Legion are outraged and we're going to do something about it," Comer said.

Comer, who as national commander visited the country's 50 states and 18 countries, said the Court's 5-4 decision is not only distressing to veterans but to all "freedom loving Americans."

As a symbol of democracy and freedom, many countries look to the American flag and the United States with a great deal of respect. As such, Americans should also have the upmost regard for the flag, Comer said.

"When you see what's happening in China today, the men and women and the students of China that are begin shot at and killed by the government, what they were fighting for was democracy and the right to have a flag like the United States of America.

"If that individual was in Russia, (he or she) would be doing hard labor in Siberia if they dared burn the flag of the Russian government," Comer said.

Comer also said many people "hide" under the First Amendment, which guarantees freedom of speech.

"The civil liberterians are in great glee today," he said referring to last week's decision.

"We talk about budgets, we talk about unemployment, and day and education but the thing I've always tried to stress is freedom is not free and that flag represents everything that I want and good for our people, our young people, and everything we would hard for every day," he said.

Noting the closeness of the decision, Comer said he is optimistic it will be overturned in the "not too distant future."

"In 48 of our states, the burning of the flag is not only distasteful, but it's against the law.

"Now, the Supreme Court of the land, on a 5-4 decision, a very close decision so I'm sure it will be overturned in the not too distant future when more responsible, conservative individuals that think more about this country will make the possible 6-3 ruling which would make it a positive fact.

"I'm hoping and praying that one day, it's overturned," Comer said.

At Sunday's Quincy Point flag pole dedication, Ward 2 Civic Association President Robert LaFleur said he was "deeply saddened" by the Supreme Court ruling.

"A lot of people from Ward 2 and the (George F. Bryan) VFW Post had worked hard to get this flag and pole put here," LaFluer said, adding the flag has been a symbol to millions of veterans who fought wars in foreign lands.

He also said the price for erecting a new flag pole goes far beyond monetary costs.

"If you look past the money, what did it really cost to put this flag here, I'll tell you. You want to know what the true cost is:

"Ride past Mount Wollaston Cemetery and see the veterans' section; take a trip to Hawaii and see where the (USS) Arizona was sunk.

"Take a ride to Washington, D.C. and look at the Vietnam Memorial; go to Pennsylvania and visit Gettysburg; and just take a short ride into Boston and see Bunker Hill and the (USS) Constitution.

"We can never put a price on this flag because what price is freedom ;" LaFleur said.

Germantown Tot Lot Dedicated Saturday

The new Germantown Tot Lot will be dedicated Saturday to Thelma Rogers as a part of the Harborview Residents' Committee's July 4th celebration.

The ceremony will begin at 10 a.m. with a flag-raising at the community building at 9 Bicknell St., followed by a parade down Yardarm Lane to the new Tot Lot near Palmer Park and opposite 35 Quadrant Circle.

At 10:30 a.m., the Tot Lot, donated by the City of Quincy through CDBG funds, will be dedicated to Mrs. Rogers in recognition of her outstanding advocacy of public housing residents. She is a longtime resident of public housing, an active member and officer of the Mass. Union of Public Housing Tenants, and past Chairperson of the Harborview Residents' Committee.

Easter Seal Toy Program At Library

Young children with disabilities can borrow toys this summer in an Easter Seal program at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Called Lekotek, the program is designed for babies and children up to eight years old.

Youngsters spend up to an hour at the library playing with the toys, while Easter Seal Occupational Therapist Stephanie Beynon shows parents how to use play time to stimulate their children. Together, they select toys for borrowing.

All Lekotek toys are sturdy, colorful and fun to play with. Some are specially designed to respond to a puff or a sip by children who can't use arms or legs.

Families interested in participating in the program can make an appointment by calling Charlene Davis at 1-800-922-8290.

Quincy's Yesterdays

It Rained On Their Parade

June 29-July 5
1950
39 Years Ago

The heaviest rainfall of the year (1.3) inches in 24 hours) fell on Quincy during Fourth of July celebrations, cancelling fireworks displays but otherwise failing to dampen holiday enthusiasm.

Chairman Paul Benzaquin, dressed as "Bushman the Gorilla," led the parade in Merrymount, which featured a 1923 Stanley steamer driven by John Simmons.

The single men defeated the married men, 10-9, at the Adams Shore Community Club festivities and John Reardon, Barbara DelMonica, Jerry Spink and Gordon Faust were judged the four best horribles.

Commander Harold Mason of the Nickerson Legion Post led the parade in the 41st Independence Day observance in Squantum and Danny Shea's barber shop quartet entertained in the evening.

The Montclair Men's Club played host to some 1,200 youngsters during the day and threw a dance and concert for adults in the clubhouse in the evening and everyone went outside to Bishop Field when the rain stopped.

Get Grilling With Alaska Seafood

For the grill of a lifetime, pull out your long-handled tongs, grab your apron and head to the barbecue with Alaska seafood.

Alaska finfish and shellfish are both ideal for outdoor entertaining.

Get Grilling

To barbecue finfish, place seasoned steaks on a hot, well-oiled grill. For dressed fish or fillets, place skin-side down, on a sheet of well-oiled heavy-duty aluminum foil. Grill, allowing about 10 minutes per inch of thickness measured at its thickest part; turn once during cooking. Thoroughly brush fish with oil or basting sauce several times. Cook until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.

It takes only minutes to barbecue Alaska shellfish; be sure to fill the water glasses and be ready to pass the plates when the crab goes on the grill. To barbecue, place crab sections directly on the grill about 5 inches above the hot coals for about 5 minutes or until thoroughly heated.

You may choose to brush the finfish fillets with an herb-butter sauce as they cook over glowing coals; thyme, oregano or basil are popular choices. To avoid trips to the kitchen and cut down on clean-up time, foil-wrap new potatoes or peas with a bit of butter and seasonings. Place vegetables about 5 inches above the coals for 20-30 minutes, turning occasionally.

Move to the Microwave

There's no need to change the menu if wet, windy weather moves your festivities indoors. Simply place 2 (about 6 oz. each) fish steaks or fillets in a microwave-safe baking dish. Cover dish with plastic wrap or waxed paper vented on one corner. Microcook at medium power (50%) 4 to 6 minutes for salmon and black cod, and high power (100%) 2 to 4 minutes for halibut, cod, pollock and rockfish. Drain excess juices. Cover with plastic wrap or waxed paper; let stand 5 minutes. Fish should flake when tested with a fork.

To microcook Alaska crab, place in 10-inch round or 8-inch square microwave-safe dish. When using a 600-700 watt microwave oven, microcook split crab legs at medium power (50%) 3 to 4 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Rotate dish 1/4 turn every minute.

GREAT AMERICAN COOKING IDEAS

Here's The Beef

The days are getting longer, the weather's warming up and it's time to dust off the "barby," as they say in Australia, and start cooking outside.

The season is always a favorite of beef lovers. The aroma of grilled meat is a sure sign that barbecue season is in full swing. "Beef remains the meat of choice for outdoor cooking," says Faye Egan of the Nabisco Brands Consumer Food Center. Egan and her staff have created some sauces for marinating and basting that will be sure to keep meat as popular as ever.

BBQ BEEF ROLLS
Makes 16 appetizer or 4 main dish servings

- 1/2 pound bacon
- 2 cups chopped mushrooms
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 3/4 cup A.1. Steak Sauce
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 12 shredded whole wheat wafers, finely rolled (about 1/2 cup crumbs)
- 16 sandwich steaks (about 1/4-inch thick)
- Cherry tomatoes and parsley sprigs, for garnish

In skillet, over medium heat, cook bacon until crisp. Drain bacon on paper towels; crumble. In 2 tablespoons bacon drippings, cook mushrooms and onion until tender. Stir in 1/2 cup steak sauce, parsley and wafer crumbs. Spoon stuffing mixture onto each sandwich steak. Roll up from short end; secure with toothpick.

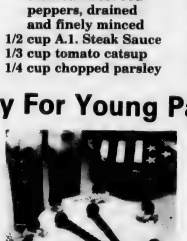
Grill or broil beef rolls 4 inches from heat source for 10 to 15 minutes for rare or until desired doneness, turning and brushing with remaining steak sauce often. Garnish with cherry tomatoes and parsley.

BEEF APPETIZER KABOBS
Makes 4 dozen appetizer or 12 main dish servings

- 1 (4-ounce) jar roasted sweet red peppers, drained and finely minced
- 1/2 cup A.1. Steak Sauce
- 1/3 cup tomato catsup
- 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- 2 teaspoons dried oregano leaves
- 3 pounds beef top round steak, cut into 1-inch cubes
- Parsley sprigs, for garnish

In bowl, blend peppers, steak sauce, catsup, parsley and oregano; set aside.

Thread 3 beef cubes onto small skewers or wooden picks. Place skewers on grill, over medium heat, 4 inches from heat source. Cook 10 to 15 minutes for rare, turning and brushing often with pepper mixture. (Or, broil 5 inches from heat source for 10 to 15 minutes.) Arrange kabobs on serving platter; garnish with parsley.



NOTE: Basting sauce may also be used for beef ribs and beef steak.

A Party For Young Patriots

Those first few days of summer are heaven for a kid. But boredom can soon set in. Here's a fun kitchen project that your child can do with just a little supervision from you.

Maraschino Drum Cake

- 4 cups powdered sugar
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, softened
- 1/3 to 1/2 cup half-and-half or milk
- 2-1/2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1 ounce unsweetened baking chocolate, melted
- 1 baked two-layer (8-in). cake
- 14 peppermint candy sticks
- 1 jar (10 oz.) maraschino cherries, thoroughly drained
- 2 (6-inch) red licorice twists

Combine sugar, butter, half-and-half and vanilla; mix thoroughly or until smooth. Stir chocolate into 3/4 cup mixture. Mix thoroughly and set aside.

Frost top of each layer of cake with white icing and stack; set aside remaining white icing for decorating.

Frost sides of cake with chocolate icing. Cut peppermint sticks to desired length. Angle sticks in zigzag pattern on chocolate icing around sides of cake.

Place reserved white icing in cake decorating bag; pipe icing around top and bottom edges of cake. Where peppermint sticks meet at top and bottom of cake, pipe star shapes and top with maraschino cherries.

Place a maraschino cherry on end of each licorice twist to make drumsticks. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Independence Day Breakfast At Squantum First Church

"In The Grip Of Grace" was the title of the sermon delivered Sunday morning at the First Church of Squantum, delivered by the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor.

Organist Mary Ruth Scott and pianist Janet Williamson accompanied the congregational singing.

Greeters were Bud and Janet Sumner, the ushers Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes, and Evelyn Ahearn and Ruth Swenson hosted the Fellowship Hour.

This Sunday at 9:15 a.m. the annual Independence Day breakfast will be held outside the church. Those who plan to attend are encouraged to wear patriotic colors and a "Fourth-of-July" hat. The worship service will be held inside at 10:30 a.m.

On Tuesday, July 4, members and children of the church will participate in the Independence Day parade in Squantum with a float celebrating the 75th anniversary of the church.

'Thriving Or Surviving?' Series Continues At Covenant

At the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., Rev. Gordon Benson, interim pastor, will continue his sermon series on "Thriving or Surviving?"

Richard Smith, Minister of Music, will play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude. Luisa and Robert Dano will sing.

Rev. Benson will preach a children's sermon, after which children will be dismissed for junior church, led by Linda Day. A nursery for children age five and younger is available. The attendant will be Florence Anderson.

Immediately following the service there will be a coffee hour in Person Hall. The Dano Family will serve.

The Trustee Board will have a meeting on Monday, July 10 at 7:30 p.m. at Don Johnson's home to discuss unfinished business.

Vacation Day Camp will be held on Wednesday mornings, 10 a.m. to noon, from July 19 to Aug. 9. The theme this year will be "The Lord Is My Shepherd." There will be videos, theme-related activities and crafts and an outing to Drumlin Farm.

For more information about any of the church's activities please call the church office at 479-5728.

'Why Commune?' Sermon Topic At Bethany Church

Holy Communion will be celebrated at the 10 a.m. service Sunday, July 2, in the sanctuary of Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach a sermon examining the question "Why Commune?" Lay scripture reader will be Shirley D. Pyne.

Guest soprano soloist will be Lewann Semchenko; Bethany's organist, Charles J. Blue, Sr., will be at the console.

Nursery care will be provided for babies and toddlers. The Sunday School is not in session during the summer months.

The worship service is broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary at 10 o'clock over station WJDA, 1300 kc.

There will be an informal fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor at 11 a.m. immediately following worship.

Individuals and families from the area are most welcome to come and share in the worship and fellowship.

For additional information about Bethany's programs and ministries, please call the church office, 479-7300.

Council On Aging Board Takes Stand On Issues

John Noonan, Chairman of the Quincy Council on Agining reports that the 15-member board discussed several important issues of major concern to senior citizens of Quincy at its June meeting.

Issues discussed on which board action was taken were:

- making desecration of the American flag a federal crime;
- Cutback in city funding for paid security at state subsidized senior citizen housing facilities in Quincy;
- Excessive speeding by motorists in the vicinity of senior citizen housing facilities;
- Undue delays or cancellation of the MBTA Ride pick-up program in transporting disabled elderly and handicapped individuals.

Noonan said the cutback in security funding at senior housing was a step backward in providing for the safety of senior citizens.

Board member John "Jake" Comer, who is also Executive Director of the Quincy Housing Authority, said he had been notified by Mayor Francis McCauley that city funding for security would be terminated within 30 days.

Comer said he had notified the security company providing this service of the city's action.

The Council on Aging board voted unanimously to contact city officials to ascertain whether block grant funding on a ward basis could be provided. The funding would be for state subsidized housing facilities in certain wards.

Noonan reported that many senior citizens had contacted him relative to the recent Supreme Court decision which permits burning of the American flag as being freedom of expression guaranteed by the US Constitution.

Board members also reported their strong opposition to the Supreme Court decision and unanimously supported a resolution submitted by Comer making desecration of the flag a federal crime. According to Comer, 48 states now have state laws making it a crime to desecrate the flag.

He said the American Legion will consider similar resolutions at its 1989 national convention in September. Comer is the immediate past National Commander of the American Legion.

Copies of the Quincy Council on Aging flag resolution will be forwarded by Comer to American Legion headquarters.

Board member Rev. Alicia Corea, pastor of the Houghs Neck Congregation Church, expressed her concerns for the safety of senior citizens in the vicinity of certain senior housing facilities because of excessive speeding by uncaring motorists who fail to observe the 15 mile per hour traffic signs.

It was voted to contact the various city officials to ascertain what can be done to curb speeding motorists in senior housing facility areas.

Executive Director Tom Koch reported that the Council's transportation of the elderly program had been improved considerably with the addition of two new fully-equipped vans. Transporting seniors to hospitals, doctor's offices and other medical needs is a major activity of the Council.

Board member Kathy Webb who also serves on the Governor's Commission on Transportation of the Handicapped reported that handicapped individuals are experiencing undue delays or outright cancellation of scheduled pick-ups under the MBTA's Ride program. She said that these breakdowns in service to the handicapped were occurring in many other cities and communities and not just in the Quincy area.

The council board recommended that the MBTA Ride officials be notified of these breakdowns in providing rides for the handicapped and disabled elderly.

Board member Barry Welch, Director of Quincy Parks and Recreation, reported the seventh annual Senior Olympics sponsored by the city of Quincy, Council on Aging, and Beechwood Community Life Center were most successful. The number of events and participants continues to grow each year, Welch said.

Welch said that the program developed in Quincy at the Happy Acres day camp in Merrymount Park under the supervision of the Quincy Recreation Commission some 26 years ago was the forerunner of the popular Special Olympics programs of today.

Noonan reported on the meeting of South Shore area Councils on Aging which he attended last week at the Cohasset Council headquarters on the problem on severe cutbacks in state and federal funding for programs of the elderly.

Especially hard hit are transportation, nutrition, home health care and town budgets, Noonan reported.

Attending his first meeting of the Quincy Council on Aging was Frank Daly who is replacing William Spencer. Daly is a former Deputy Chief and Captain of the Quincy Fire Department Fire Prevention divison. Daly, who is retired, replaces Spencer who is moving to Florida.

Noonan announced that the November meeting of the Quincy Council on Aging will be held at the new facilities at Quincy Hospital. The Board will meet and then be taken on a tour of the new hospital building and facilities.

Noonan said the meeting had been arranged by Board member Trudy Buckley who is also Chairman of the Hospital Board of Managers.

Special Curriculum In Drugs-Alcohol Area At St. Joseph's School

St. Joseph's School in Quincy Point has established a special curriculum for instruction in the areas of drugs and alcohol.

Published by Caspar in Somerville, the curriculum provides quality instruction for grades kindergarten through 12. Teachers are especially trained by qualified personnel before beginning instruction.

This year, two weeks were given to intensive instruction on all levels so that the children would leave for the summer with some facts. As of September, the program will be a regular part of the school curriculum.

Earlier this month, the students made a public pledge to refrain from the abuse of drugs and the use of alcohol during the summer months. Each child received a pin to wear that reads "Just Say No."

Two-Day 'Fourth' Celebration At Merrymount

The Merrymount Association opens its 65th annual two-day Independence Day celebration on Monday, July 3 at 6 p.m. and concludes July 4th following presentation of awards at the main Merrymount Beach at 2 p.m.

Monday at the Merrymount School at 6 p.m. registration for the annual road race will be accepted by Paul Hussey and Bob Seamans, chairmen. There will be ten divisions with ages 9-13 for boys and girls, through age 40 and over, men and women.

The race, starting at 6:30 p.m., will be from Agawam Rd. to Narragansett Rd., to Norton Rd., and then following the perimeter of Merrymount to the main beach. Association members only are eligible for awards.

A mini-wheels parade is scheduled for 6:15 p.m. At 7:15 p.m. on the main beach, there will be a treasure hunt for ages nine and under; at 7:30, registration for the Marge Gibbons Memorial Scholarship Award of $100, randomly drawn, with Betty Mafera, chairman.

Continuing at the maain beach will be an egg throwing contest; at 8 p.m., a pie eating contest; and at 8:30 p.m., the "Miss Merrymount" contest for girls grades 9 through 12.

July 4th, the day opens at 8:45 a.m. with Junior Olympics at Perkins Field, John Molloy, chairman. Each event will have two races, one for boys and one for girls. These include buddy and wheelbarrow races.

Field events follow at 9:30 a.m.

The annual parade assembly is at 12:30 noon, with the parade starting at 1 p.m. lead by Harry Breen, Lou Mazzini and Simon Tutunjian, marshalls.

The parade will arrive at Merrymount Beach at 1:30 p.m. where there will be a flag-raising ceremony. Greetings will be given by Kevin Madden, Merrymount Association president; the invocation by Rev. James Curtin of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. State and city officials will be introduced and there will be a presentation of awards to winners in the street competition.

'New Freedom Bell' Visits Bernazzani School

The "New Freedom Bell," an exact copy of the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia, recently made a stop at the Charles A. Bernazzani School, formerly the Furnace Brook School, in a tour of public schools of America.

The New Freedom Bell was cast in Whitechapel Foundry, London, in the same pit and mold as the original Liberty Bell, and has toured schools throughout the country for the past two years.

School children had an opportunity to ring the bell before it moved to Philadelphia where it will remain on permanent display.

The bell, and its tour, were sponsored by the Nichiren Shoshu Soka Gakkai of America (NSA), the largest Buddhist lay organization in the country, in recognition of the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

Parade, Flag Raising At Adams Shore

Two "Good Neighbor" citations and a college scholarship will be awarded as part of the July 4th observance at Adams Shore.

The program opens at 9 a.m. with a short parade at O'Hara Circle and a flag-raising by the Houghs Neck American Legion color guard.

Syd Queripel, president of the Adams Shore Community Association, will present "Good Neighbor" awards to Sybil Whyte of 60 Utica St. and William Walsh of Post Island Rd. Both senior citizens, they are being honored for their work with the elderly and the handicapped in the neighborhood.

Deanna Nigro, of Pelican Rd., who will enter Fitchburg State College, will receive the Community Association's scholarship award.

City and State officials have been invited. These include Mayor Francis X. McCauley, State Senator Paul Harold, State Rep. Steven Tobin, and members of the Quincy City Council.

Michael Costa On Dean's List

Michael Costa of 112 Mayflower Rd., North Quincy, has been named to the Dean's List for the Spring semester at Emerson College.

Costa, a member of Emerson's class of 1992, is studying in the Division of Performing Arts.

Husband of the late Isabella P. (Martin) Perkins, he is survived by three sons, Walter G. Perkins of Quincy, Charles L. "Roy" Perkins of Hallowell ME and Donald G. Perkins of Iowa; 11 grandchildren and several great-grandchildren. He was the father of the late Richard Perkins.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy.

Donations may be made to the Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy MA 02169.

Geraldine Miller, 66

A funeral Mass for Geraldine (Hollis) Miller, 66, of Quincy, who worked in the student loan department of BayBank in Dedham, was celebrated Wednesday in St. Agatha'S Church, East Milton.

Mrs. Miller died June 24 at Carney Hospital after a long illness.

She was born and educated in Quincy.

Wife of the late Arnold L. Miller, she is survived by two sons, Stephen A. Miller of Quincy and Robert J. Miller of Weymouth; two daughters, Diane Manning of Quincy and Marilyn J. Findley of Marshfield; her mother, Mary Ann (O'Donnell) Hollis of Quincy; a sister, Marjorie Reeves of ATlanta; two sons-in-law, Robert Manning and James Findley; two daughters in law, Jane Miller and Michelle Miller; 12 grandchildren and a friend, Eleanor Sheehan of Braintree. She was the daughter of the late Alfred Hollis, the only Quincy police officer killed in the line of duty in the 1930's and the sister of the late Dorothy Eddy.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to the Division of Pediatric Hematology, Oncology, Floating Hospital for Children, P.O. Box 14, 750 Washington St., Boston MA 02111, c/o Dr. Lawrence Wolfe.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

As night falls on the Fourth of July in thousands of communities across the nation, a kaleidescope of fireworks will illuminate the darkened skies. The purpose of these events, as we know, is to celebrate the years in which the United States has stood as the bulwark of liberty.

But the liberty we love definitely entails responsibility. What most of the Founding Fathers fought for was a disciplined, moderate, law-respecting freedom ... As the first President of the United States, George Washington's views harmonized with those of the other Founding Fathers. Washington fully realized that liberty could not long survive without prudent limits. Out of his experience he offered a piece of sound advice to his fellow countrymen. "Be Americans," he said. "Let there be no sectionalism, no North, South, East or West. You are all dependent on one another and should be one in union. In one word, be a nation; be Americans and be true to yourselves."

Still under the spell of those dancing fireworks, let us consider the import of those words. Undoubtedly your ideas may differ strongly from your neighbors on certain problems. But let us heed Washington's counsel and seek to heal our differences amicably. As the first President said: "BE AMERICANS."

Stephen E. Hurley, 79
Former State Senate Postmaster

A funeral Mass for Stephen E. Hurley, 79, of Hingham, formerly of Boston and Quincy, retired manager of the R.H. Stearns Store in Boston, will be celebrated today at 10 a.m. at Resurrection Church, Main St.

Mr. Hurley died Sunday at the Queen Anne Nursing Home after a long illness.

He was the postmaster of the State Senate for 10 years before retiring in 1986.

He was an Army veteran of World War II.

Born in Boston, he lived most of his life in Jamaica Plain.

Husband of the late Mary T. (Callahan) Hurley, he is survived by a daughter, MaryAnne Murray of Hingham; and four grandchildren, Ross Hurley, Stephen Hurley, Ryan Murray and Rory Murray, all of Hingham.

Burial was in Mount Calvary Cemetery, Boston.

Jon A. Holmes, 47

A funeral and burial service for Jon A. Holmes, 47, a lifelong Quincy resident and a security guard, was held Tuesday at Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne.

Mr. Holmes died June 21 at Lemuel Shattuck Hospital in Boston after a long illness.

He served in the Navy from 1958 to 1962.

Born in Chelsea, he attended Quincy schools.

He is survived by his former wife, Enid (Cook) Holmes; two sons, Sgt. Gerald A. Holmes, with the Air Force, and Jon T. Holmes of Quincy; and a sister, Elinor Morrill of Weymouth.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Lillian L. Reinhalter, 98

A funeral Mass for Lillian L. (Welch) Reinhalter, 98, of Quincy, will be celebrated at 10 a.m. today (Thursday) at Star of the Sea Church, Squantum. Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs. Reinhalter, a retired licensed practical nurse, died at home Sunday after a long illness.

She received her license as a practical nurse in 1963.

Wife of the late J. Edward Reinhalter, former fire inspector for the city of Quincy, she is survived by a daughter, Marguerite Foye of Squantum; and several nephews and nieces, including Ambrose Reinhalter of Braintree, Margaret Curtis of Scituate and Fort Lauderdale FL and Lois Mahoney of Hanover; four grandchildren, Brian Foye of Kansas City, Kerry Foye of Atlanta GA, Maureen Pineo of Dennis and Kathleen Blackwell of Quincy; and seven great-grandchildren.

Visiting hours were scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home, 326 Copeland St.

Donations may be made to the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, 1120 Hancock St., Quincy 02169.

House Votes MWRA Headquarters Here

managers and directors desire.

Morrissey also said the authority's employees won't experience any hardships such as difficult commutes if they are required to move to Quincy.

"For the money they're being paid, they won't give up their jobs," he said, noting that Executive Director Paul Levy received a pay hike of $8,000 to bring his salary up to $114,000.

As the matter awaits final Senate action Harold is urging area residents, especially Quincy citizens, who support a Quincy-based headquarters to call the governor's office to convey that message.

Quincy legislators want the MWRA to move to Quincy as a way to assure residents that a sludge treatment operation as part of the Boston Harbor cleanup project will be safer and less obtrusive if authority officials have to work at the shipyard site.

"If there is a problem and you're 11 miles away (in Roxbury), you can have reports and experts and everything else, but if you're right there, you can open the window and find out what the problem is," Harold said.

As presently proposed, the 180 tons of sludge would be treated daily at the shipyard.

Morrissey claims the state would pay $29 million to $36 million to renovate and build at the shipyard while a new headquarters would cost $65 million.

Levy, on the other hand, contends moving to Quincy will cost rate payers an additional $20 million.

The battle over the MWRA headquarters appeared to be over in early May after the board voted 9-2 to locate in Roxbury. After the vote, Dukakis and Mayor Raymond Flynn celebrated by toasting the decision with champagne.

Since then, Quincy lawmakers have worked toward requiring the Authority to move to Quincy.

$375,000 For Traffic Improvement Held Back

A $375,000 appropriation for part of a $1.3 million traffic improvement project for Quincy Square was defeated by a 5-4 vote at Monday's City Council meeting.

Supporting the additional money were Councillors Timothy Cahill, Thomas Nutley, Charles Phelan and James Sheets. Those requesting to put the money back into the Finance Committee for further review were Councillors Michael Cheney, Lawrence Chretien, Ted DeCristofaro, Stephen McGrath and Patricia Tolan.

Without the appropriation, the city can still move ahead with $925,000 worth of traffic improvements for downtown. The $375,000 was earmarked for landscaping and other amenities such as repaving.

Improvements are being planned for the area in front of the United First Parish Church and City Hall, as far south as Christmas Island and as far north as Saville Ave.

According to Principal Planner Kevin Shea and Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom, the major part of the project is making the traffic flow on Hancock St. safer for motorists and pedestrians.

The project calls for:

- Keeping the one-way traffic flow on Hancock St. and installing three new traffic signals around the church.
- Pedestrian crosswalks.
- Two continuous lanes on Hancock St. in front of City Hall.
- Widening of sidewalks in front of City Hall and the church.
- Traffic light synchronization.
- Christmas Island being extended and adding land to the church.
- Drainage will be improved.
- More spaces reserved for City Hall business.

Despite the improvements some councillors were wary of the plan because of the elimination of some 20 to 25 parking spaces, especially in the area of City Hall.

SKYLIGHTS ARE A SMART HOME INVESTMENT that can add 100 percent of their cost or more to the resale value of the house within five years, according to Ventarama Skylight Corporation, a leading manufacturer.

Summer Swimming Fun Begins With Sparkling, Clear Pool Water

Spring means the return of warm weather and swimming in the backyard pool. As pool owners get their pools ready for another season of fun, what they find when they roll back the winter cover may not be what they want to see: Dull, stagnant, lifeless water.

Lack of use during the winter may mean leaves or other debris in the pool bottom. Dark mineral stains and streaks may show on pool sides and at the waterline. What may be worse yet is algae, not noticeable in its early stages, but just waiting to spread as the water gets warmer.

Beating the winter pool blues

But there is a solution to the wintertime pool blues, and BioGuard® has it.

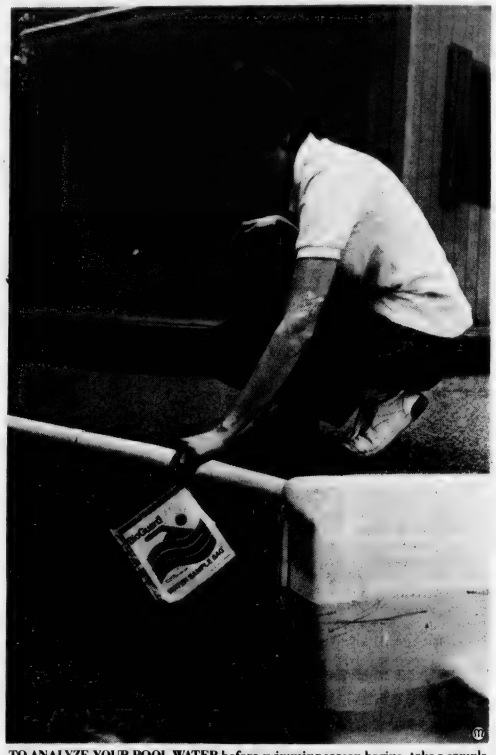
Smart pool owners begin by taking a sample of their pool water to their BioGuard Authorized Pool Dealer for a complete water analysis and personalized prescription for year-round care.

There the pool water is computer analyzed, free of charge. The personal BioGuard computerized water analysis system outlines a schedule of how much and which chemicals need to be added to get the water back into proper balance and ready for summer fun. BioGuard has formulated specific chemical products to solve pool problems and keep water sparkling clean and inviting all season.

Pool owners get helpful information on what to do to bring total alkalinity, pH and calcium hardness of the water into the proper range.

The computer analysis also performs many tests that home kits can't measure, like total dissolved solids, copper/iron content and stabilizer level, all important for the health and enjoyment of the pool.

Customized plan



Since every pool has different needs, BioGuard helps owners determine proper amounts of chlorine for bacterial control and algicides for algae control.

The customized plan also spells out the possible need for stain controllers, scale prevention agents or water clarifiers.

It all begins with that water sample. After the cover has been removed, fill the pool and circulate the water for at least 24 hours. Then, immerse a clean, closed plastic water sample bag (available from BioGuard Authorized dealers, free of charge), about 18 inches below the surface of the pool, away from the returns.

Open the container and collect about a quart of water. BioGuard dealers test the water and prescribe just the chemicals needed, no more.

The plan is easy to read and easy to follow. The result is safe, sparkling water to enjoy all summer long.

TO ANALYZE YOUR POOL WATER before swimming season begins, take a sample by immersing a clean, closed plastic container about 18 inches below the surface of your pool and away from the inlets. Take the sample to your BioGuard Authorized Dealer, who will analyze it while you wait.

Grandma wouldn't recognize today's pantry

It used to be that a pantry was the place in grandmother's house where the jams, jellies and other delectable home-preserved goods were stored along with the non-perishables.

Typically, it was little more than an oversized walk-in closet with hard-to-reach interior shelves and an abundance of wasted space. Anyone not intimately familiar with the pantry's inner recesses and contents was reduced to lengthy searches for items they'd been dispatched to retrieve.

Today's pantry, in marked contrast, takes up significantly less space in a kitchen, stores as much or more than grandmother's did, and offers up its contents readily for inspection.

This transformation is attributable to two factors, according to John Stephenson, vice president of marketing for Yorktowne Cabinets, a leading manufacturer of wood cabinetry for kitchens and baths.

"First, today's home is designed to make better use of space," Stephenson says. "Every square inch counts. Kitchen designers have adapted the traditional pantry in some significant ways to capitalize on this demand.

"Secondly, new concepts in shelving design have made a difference in the construction of the pantry.

"Now, homeowners can adapt incredibly small spaces into pantry areas for extra storage," Stephenson says. "For example, a pull-out rack system works well if you have a long, narrow space available.

"With wider spaces, you can install a deep cabinet with a door of shelves that simply rotates out of the cabinet to reveal another layer of shelving behind.

"All, of course, can be laden with an array of canned goods and staples which can be easily located," Stephenson notes.

Another popular option is to use a lazy Susan system in the pantry itself with adjustable shelving on the inside of the cabinet doors. The lazy Susan puts everything into reach with a flick of the wrist.

Which to choose? That depends on the width of the space available (you'll need 24 inches for the lazy Susan, 18 inches for the pullout rack) and personal preference.

"We find homeowners prefer pantry arrangements that give them the most storage capacity, regardless of the access systems," Stephenson says.

"They also are concerned about the ease of cleaning and organizing, as well as flexible designs with adjustable shelving. We recommend that they visit a qualified kitchen design expert before finalizing their plans."

For more information on the latest in kitchen accessories such as pantries, special storage systems and appliance garages, write to the Yorktowne Design Center, Box 231M, Red Lion, PA 17356.

SH894011

THE KITCHEN DESIGN EXPERTS at Yorktowne Cabinets have adapted the traditional pantry to make better use of space. Here, shelves pull out of the pantry, allowing equal access to all items—even those stored in the back.

DUAL-PURPOSE ACCESSORIES are an innovative way to dress up a child's room. Pillow People decorative pillow/toys and coordinating bedsheets from Springs Performance, a division of Springs Industries, are used to create a "theme" room. Matching window curtains made from the patterned sheets pull the look together.

Key Realty Agent For Crown Colony Medical Office Condo

Boston-based developer HK Properties announces the appointment of Key Realty, of Quincy, asexclusive sales agent for the Crown Colony Medical Office Condominium at 500 Congress St.

Key Realty will represent HK Properties in the sale of the remaining 20,000 square feet of office condominium space available in the three-story, 64,000 square foot building.

In deference to the medical professionals already committed to 85 percent of space in the building, Mike Kenealy of Key Realty said "we will pursue the medical field for the remaining units, but after 45 days we plan to open the building to general office users."

Kenealy plans to look to doctors from Boston hospitals who might be interested in opening satellite offices outside Boston proper. Doctors committed to Crown Colony Medical include Medical Associates of Quincy; Ear, Nose and Throat; Audiology Associates; Central Diagnostics Laboratory; Highland Medical Associates; Quincy Radiology Associates; Heart Care Associates; and several independent practices. In business since 1975, Key Realty specializes in the sale and leasing of commercial property in the Quincy area. The firm of three brokers has sold over $30 million of real estate and leased 130,000 square feet in Quincy in the past three years.

How Much Is A Home Really Worth?

When it comes to buying and selling a home, take a page out of the experts' book and make a close inspection of how it's built and what that means in terms of "ownership" costs and resale or "asset" value. You may be surprised by the results.

According to studies by the National Concrete Masonry Association (NCMA), the comparative asset values of wood or concrete masonry units in a one or two story multifamily development are significantly different.

The primary difference is in the property insurance premiums. Typically, the cost of insuring concrete masonry buildings is one tenth that of wood-frame equivalents. Other elements could include lower maintenance (for example, less painting and fewer repairs), lower heating and cooling costs, and superior durability in severe climatic conditions.

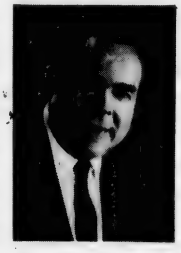
The NCMA maintains that the 10 percent premium attached to building with concrete masonry—usually reflected in the purchase price—is more than compensated for by the savings in ownership costs, and, of course, the superior resale value of the unit.

Woodward Headmaster Going Into Real Estate

For Robert Johnston A Career Change After 31 Years

By JANE ARENA

After 31 very successful years in the same field, not many would consider changing careers.



But Robert Johnston, headmaster at the Woodward School for Girls for the last 10 years, is about to embark on a new career in the real estate business.

Johnston announced his resignation from the school in January, and on July 1 he will start a new job with Flavin and Flavin Real Estate, 1085 Hancock St., virtually across the street.

"It's a bit like walking on 10,000 fathoms of jello," Johnson says, "it's not the best time to go into real estate. But, Ed Flavin told me that there's a direct correlation between what you put into the real estate business and what you get out of it. If that's the case, then I'm not worried."

And, if his track record of his work in the education field is any indication, he does have little to worry about in the real estate business.

Johnston, a 1951 graduate of Quincy High School, graduated from Boston University in 1955 and the B.U. School of Theology in 1958.

ROBERT JOHNSTON

His first teaching position was with the International Training Institute which focuses on teaching businesses how to be helpful to community.

Johnston opened a branch office for the Institute in Fukokoa (near Nagasaki) on the island of Kyu-Shu, Japan. He also conducted seminars for the Institute in other areas of Japan and Korea, as well as the United States, teaching such subjects as management techniques, the role of business in community, and English as a Second Language.

Afterward, Johnson came back to the United States and took a position as Administrative Vice President of the Chandler School in Boston, a two-year program for executive secretaries.

He then served as President of the Leland Powers School of Radio, Television and Theater.

In 1979 he became headmaster of the Woodward School, already familiar with the school because his daughter had attended.

"I knew a lot about the school and what it could do," he says. "I was convinced it was an excellent academic institution."

Under the leadership of Robert Johnston, the school has only improved over the last 10 years.

When Johnston took over as headmaster, the Woodward School had lost its accreditation. Under Johnston, it was accredited in December of 1980 from the Independent Schools branch of the New England Accreditation Association of Schools and Colleges.

Johnston also made a proposal to the City of Quincy which cut city funding of the school by one-fifth annually. The proposal was passed by Mayor Francis McCauley.

Enrolment of the school has also increased since Johnston's been headmaster. Enrolment went up from 88 students in 1979 to 150 students in 1984, figures, he says, which are also due to the addition of a sixth grade class and "demographic reasons."

But the number of new students to be enrolled next year is "about doubled" from last year, he adds.

Major renovations to the school have also been implemented over the last 10 years, totalling $350,000. Included in the renovations are a new chemistry lab, a new computer room, a new cafeteria, and a new heating system. Extensive decorative renovations have also been made.

"The last major renovations to the school were a good 50 years before that," Johnston says, adding that more will be needed in the future.

"The building itself is functionally very poor," he says, "what we do have is good teachers and bright kids."

"Mostly it's the kids that I'll miss the most - not that they don't aggravate you from time to time - but they keep you alive and vibrant."

And, at the Woodward School, he explains, there exists a unique opportunity to get to know the students.

"You don't just have them for four years," Johnston says, "you get to know them over seven years."

The ara of real estate is not new to Johnston either. About five years ago he and his brother, David, principal of the East Somerville Community School, tried their hands at the real estate game in the private sector, renovating and renting properties. Johnston enjoyed it.

He passed the exam for his real estate sales license in April and hopes to get his broker's license next year.

Johnston doesn't see that the education field and the real estate business are all that different from each other.

"My whole life I've been dealing with people," he explains, "and selling them real estate can't be that much different than selling them on an education program."

There is one major difference though, and one he's looking forward to:

"For the last 10 years I've been opening the school at 7 a.m. which means getting up at 5 a.m. Ed Flavin doesn't even open his office until 9!"

IMPORTANCE OF COMPARABLES
QUESTION: I understand the most important task in selling a home is deciding on the right sales price. How do you come up with the best price?
ANSWER: This is not done by looking into a crystal ball or consulting with a guru. The most important factor is the price of comparable sales in your immediate area. These are sales which have already been completed of homes as nearly like yours as possible.
The sales should also be near in time, for five-year-old sales have almost no meaning in today's volatile financial market. Also, the homes should be similar in style, size, and condition as your property—the closer the better.

THE SALES price of your home must be based on comparable sales in your immediate area.

Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive To Be Held July 18

The fifth annual Chris Peter Memorial Blood Drive will be held Tuesday, July 18, from 2 to 8 p.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St., Houghs Neck.

When Charles "Chris" Peter was killed by a drunk driver in 1984, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Peter of 7 Allerton St., decided to sponsor a blood drive on his birthday as a memorial to him.

Through the help and support of many people and organizations, each year's collection has averaged one hundred units of blood at a time when it is difficult to persuade people to donate.

Babysitting will be available for donors with children and refreshments will be served.

More information may be obtained by calling the Peter family at 471-9586.

Gallagher Attended School Committee Candidates Night

Susan Gallagher, a candidate for city councillor at large, was among the 50 people who attended the recent School Committee Candidates' Night at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School sponsored by the Southwest Quincy Community Relations Committee.

She was inadvertently omitted from the story on the Candidates' Night in last week's Sun.

IDFA Meeting

The Quincy Industrial Development Financing Authority was scheduled to meet Wednesday, June 28 at 4 p.m. in the Department of Planning and Community Development Conference Room, Quincy City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

The authority was scheduled to act on a request by One Parkingway Realty Trust to amend various terms of the $5,000,000 City of Quincy Industrial Development Revenue Bond (One Parkingway Realty Trust – 1985 issue).

TEXACO

To Our Valued Customers:

In the next few weeks, you will be noticing some changes here at Hancock Exxon Service Station.

First will be that sometime before the end of June, we will be closing for a four week period. During this time, we will be completely updating our gasoline storage tanks and pumps. This will enable us to service you more efficiently and comply with the new State and Federal Regulations.

Second, there will be a change in the brand of gasoline. As part of a mutual decision between us and Exxon, we will be changing to Texaco.

The reason for us choosing Texaco is basically that it will enable us to supply you with a top quality gasoline from a major company. Texaco has three brands of unleaded and the "Petrox" detergent type additive needed for today's fuel injected cars.

As part of our change to Texaco, we are supplying you with a Texaco credit card application. If you fill this our and return it to us, we will pay all postage and make sure you get a card as soon as possible. When we re-open, we will still be accepting the Exxon credit card for a 30 day period. So if you're late, don't worry, we will still be able to service you!

There will also be some noticeable aesthetic changes to the property. We will be installing a canopy over the pumps to make poor weather service more pleasurable. Also, we will be modernizing the outside of the building to look like the new Texaco 2000 stations.

Although we are making some big changes as far as brand and appearance. The basics will stay the same - courteous service, quality products and keen interest in your motoring needs.

We have been a family run business for almost 44 years with four generations of Masons and "adopted Masons" servicing your motoring needs. Hopefully with your support, we can continue for many more years.

So as we "Let the Tiger Go," and reach for the "Texaco Star," we thank you for years of patronage and hope to see you when we re-open.

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

How best to prepare your car's cooling system for trouble-free summer driving

In today's busy, fast-paced environment, no one wants to be plagued by car troubles. But with the hot summer months ahead, your car may very well be put to the test.

To help you prepare, there are very simple and fast preventive measures you can take to safeguard against vehicular woes. Maintaining your car's cooling system is one of the most important preventive maintenance tasks you can do.

The following tips offered by the makers of Prestone will help you get your car ready for trouble-free summer driving.

YOUR CAR'S COOLING SYSTEM should be flushed and refilled with fresh antifreeze each year to safeguard against engine troubles.

Antifreeze/coolant level

In cooling systems with antifreeze/coolant recovery reservoirs, the radiators should be full of antifreeze. Cars without recovery reservoirs should have an antifreeze level about one inch below the filler neck when the engine is cold.

Just because your coolant is providing ample anti-boil protection does not mean that the antifreeze is in the best working condition.

For example, the rust-inhibitor package may have lost its effectiveness. When the protective chemicals no longer work, rust may accumulate and clogging may occur.

As a rule, the entire cooling system should be flushed and refilled with fresh antifreeze each year to maintain optimum efficiency.

Guaranteed results

The makers of Prestone Advanced Formula Anti Freeze/Coolant have a program that actually guarantees your radiator against any type of coolant-related damage for a period of one year. By flushing and refilling with specified Prestone products, you qualify.

The "Prestone Radiator Guarantee" program is available nationwide to all types of automobiles and light-duty trucks—regardless of year, make or mileage.

Should a cooling system fail, the brand has a network of over 30,000 service centers waiting to repair any radiator damage suffered.

Preventive maintenance is the key to prolonging the life of your car. By following a few simple steps, you can ensure cooling system longevity, performance, and guaranteed protection. SC895162

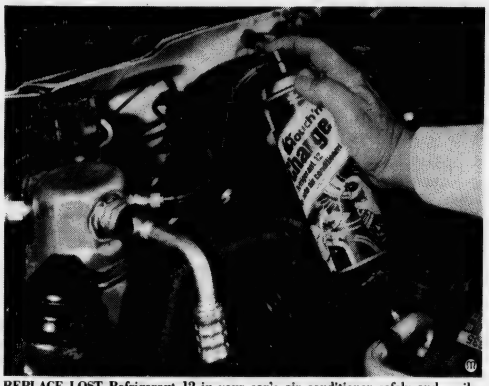
Preparing your car's air conditioner for summer

Is your car ready for summer? You've removed the snow tires and maybe you've given it a good wash and wax to remove winter salt and grime.

Now, you're all set for those hot days to come, when you'll cruise comfortably through town in your air-conditioned car. Right?

Maybe not. You could be in for an unpleasant surprise the first time you turn on your air conditioner this summer.

Many cars, especially older ones, tend to leak Refrigerant 12, the gas which your car's air conditioner requires in order to operate.



If a substantial amount of Refrigerant 12 has leaked out over the course of the winter, your car's air conditioner will only blow out hot air—not exactly what you'll want during the dog days of summer!

In the past, do-it-yourselfers who wanted to replace lost Refrigerant 12 had to buy a can of refrigerant, and a hose and tapping valve, then attach them together.

The apparatus was often difficult to operate. Worse, it was inefficient and wasteful because, once part of the can was used, the rest could not be saved for later.

Luckily for do-it-yourselfers, the introduction of a new product, Touch 'n Charge™, from Convenience Products, Inc., promises to make the process of replacing lost Refrigerant 12 easier and more convenient.

Touch 'n Charge is an all-in-one unit, completely assembled and ready to use. Because it comes with a built-in valve and hose, you don't need to worry about buying these separately, or breaking or losing them. It also eliminates the need to attach the tapping valve and hose to the can—often a somewhat difficult procedure.

REPLACE LOST Refrigerant 12 in your car's air conditioner safely and easily. Touch 'n Charge™ is a new, all-in-one unit which eliminates waste and mess. To use, run your car's engine and turn on the compressor, then screw the hose/actuator fitting onto the air conditioner's low pressure fitting, and depress the actuator. Any leftover Refrigerant 12 can be stored for later use.

The product is easy to use. Just run the car's engine and turn on the compressor. Locate the low pressure side of the air conditioner, and screw the hose/actuator fitting onto the low pressure fitting, then depress the actuator to initiate charging.

Add refrigerant until the air emitted from your car's air conditioner vent is about 40°-50°F. To check the temperature, use a common household thermometer.

Once you've recharged your air conditioner, don't throw away the can, because you can use the remaining Refrigerant 12 at a later date. Simply store the Touch 'n Charge can in a cool, shaded place.

Touch 'n Charge is also a safe and convenient way to replace lost Refrigerant 12 in home window air conditioner units, refrigeration equipment and RV units. SC894983

Wollaston Off To Fast Start

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Wollaston Legion baseball team, which missed the Zone 6 playoffs by a single win last season, is off to its best start in several years and an 11-6 victory over Canton Monday night improved its record to 6-2.

Wollaston will face Morrisette for the second time Friday night at 8:30 at Adams Field, will play at Holbrook Monday night at 8:30 and will meet Quincy next Wednesday night at 8:30 at Adams.

Wollaston handed Canton six unearned runs Monday night but Chris Higgins survived and improved his record to 3-0 as he allowed six hits, struck out 10 and walked only two.

Scott Logan went 2 for 4 and drove in four runs; Bill Bellew and Dave Hutchings went 2 for 3 and Higgins was 2 for 2.

Wollaston pounded Randolph, 9-2, as Hutchings and Tom Roberts combined to pitch a four-hitter.

Higgins and Logan each went 2 for 3 and Fred Regan went 2 for 4 to spark the attack.

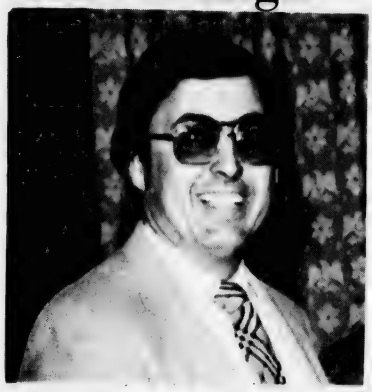
Wollaston also topped Milton, 4-1, with Roberts pitching all the way, giving up three hits and striking out five.

John Shea had a three-run homer in the first inning and Hutchings had a solo homer in the third inning for all the Wollaston runs.

Wollaston was trailing Mass. Truck, 6-3, in a game suspended by fog in the sixth inning. The game will be continued sometime before the zone playoffs.

Buckley Named Head Coach At B.C. High

Quincy's Brian Buckley, head coach at Curry College for the past six years, has been named head basketball coach at Boston College High School, according to athletic director Stephen Hughes.



It will be a homecoming of sorts for Buckley, who assisted Paul Hunter at B.C. High in 1974-76. Buckley went on to become head coach at Quincy Junior College, where his 1983 team won the Greater Boston Small College Conference.

At Curry, Buckley's 1986 team won the Commonwealth Coast Conference and tied a school record for wins in a season with 15.

Buckley was named Conference Coach of the Year in 1983, 1986 and 1988. One of the original founders of the Commonwealth Coast Conference, he was the league's treasurer for the first three seasons.

He takes over at B.C. High with mixed emotions. "I'm going to miss some of the college players I was able to coach," he said.

"Jim Conboy, Pudge Gill, Kevin Moran, Tom Tivnan, Steve Mastrogiacomo and Bill McBirney are just a few of the super athletes I've had the pleasure of watching perform. But B.C. High is a great school with a great tradition and I couldn't pass up the opportunity to coach there."

BRIAN BUCKLEY

Morrisette Rallies For Win Over Holbrook

The Morrisette Legion baseball team fell behind, 5-0, Monday night at Holbrook but rallied to pull out a 7-5 victory and improve its Zone 6 record to 6-2.

Morrisette will face Wollaston, Friday night at 8:30, at Adams Field, will host Milton Monday night at 8:30 at Adams and will play at Braintree next Wednesday night at 7:30.

Holbrook scored a run in the first and added four in the second to take a 5-0 lead over Morrisette Monday night, but Morrisette exploded for seven runs in the third inning and that was all the scoring.

Highlight of the seven-run inning was a bases-loaded triple by Billy MacDougall. Brian Taylor, Rob McDonald and Bob Cinquegrano also had RBI singles.

Gary Rawdon pitched all the way to improve to 2-0 and was strong over the last five innings.

McDonald went 3 for 4 with a double and Bill MacDougall and Jeff Calvert had two hits each.

Last Saturday night, in one of the finest Legion games of the year, Braintree edged Morrisette, 1-0, in a game that was typical of those played by these rivals.

Braintree's Tom Molloy, with relief help from Brian McDevitt, edged Morrisette's Erik DeBoer with the only run being unearned in the first inning.

DeBoer went all the way, allowing four hits, striking out 10 and walking two. The North Quincy High ace has struck out 38 in 23 innings and has pitched much better than his 2-2 record.

Molloy and McDevitt, who held Morrisette to two hits, pitched this spring for Braintree High's state champions.

Last year DeBoer and Braintree's Ted Novio hooked up in a 12-inning scoreless tie and two years ago Morrisette's Larry Taglieri edged Novio, 1-0.

Morrisette threatened in the sixth when Billy MacDougall hit a one-out double and Cinquegrano grounded to short and the throw to third was too late to get MacDougall. But McDevitt got Calvert to pop up and McDonald to ground out. Brian Taylor had Morrisette's only other hit.

Morrisette defeated Quincy, 8-1, as it got off to a five-run lead in the first inning and pounded out 15 singles.

Kevin MacDougall was the complete game winner to improve to 2-0 as he gave up only an unearned run, struck out four and didn't issue a walk.

In the first, Billy MacDougal reached on an error, Mike Baylis walked and Calvert singled to load the bases. McDonald singled home a run, Kevin MacDougall singled in two more, Dan Ryan singled home another and the fifth run scored on Tony Anderlionis' fielder's choice. Quincy pitcher, Peter McLoughlin, then settled down as he struck out seven and walked one.

Morrisette had multiple hit games from Calvert (three), McDonald (three) and Kevin MacDougall, Ryan and Anderlionis (two each). Kevin MacDougall had three RBI and Anderlionis two.

Nick Dragone had two hits and drove in the run for Quincy and Mike Toland, Tim Baker, McLoughlin and Chris Beatrice had one hit each.

Morrisette also edged Canton, 3-2, after trailing, 2-0. Morrisette scored all three runs in the seventh with McDonald's double driving home the tying and winning runs.

Morrisette had only an infield hit off Craig Johnson going into the seventh but Anderlionis looped a single to right, Billy MacDougall walked and Cinquegrano singled home Anderlionis. Johnson gave way to a relief pitcher and Calvert walked to load the bases, setting the stage for McDonald's winning hit.

Rawdon pitched four strong innings, giving up two hits, one earned un, striking out three and not walking a man. He was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fourth and DeBoer finished up and got the win as he gave up a hit, walked one and struck out six.

Timberlake's 33 Points Propel Nets 78-74

In a week that saw four closely contested games and two clubs dropping from the unbeaten ranks, Jeff Timberlake was the outstanding performer in the Jaehnig Chiropractic Men's Basketball League.

The former B.C. High and Boston University backcourt star poured in a game-high 33 points to propel the Quincy Nets to a 78-74 victory over the Jaehnig Club. Brian Reale had 20 points and Rick Stoltz scored six of his 10 points down the stretch as the Nets improved to 4-1. The Jaehnig Club, also 4-1, had 18 points from John Timmons, 17 from Chuck Jaehnig and 12 each from Mike Keeley and Mark Jaehnig.

Bake's Club pulled the upset of the season, tripping up the previously undefeated Greymen, 88-82. Don Grant had a game-high 32 points for Bake's (2-3), while John O'Shea scored 20 and Jim Bellafate 19. Ray Baltz had 27, Steve Millane 19 and Bart Simpson 15 for the Greymen (4-1).

Kane's Place remained unbeaten (5-0) with an 80-72 overtime win over J.B. Heating (2-3). Mark Millane had 29 points, Dean Coletti 17 and Billy Dacey 16. Danny Murphy had 22 and Scott MacKinnon 18 for Heating, while willie Weeks scored 12 of his 14 points to key the second half comeback.

Jim Kelly power Granite Rail to its first win, a 60-58 squeaker over Bill's Club with 21 points. Ted Stevenson had 12 and Tony Falco nine for Granite Rail. Jim Tandler had a game-high 23 for Bill's (1-4), Bill Higgins had 13 and Tony Enfore 12.

Miller A.C. improved to 2-3 with a 66-55 win over the Bay State Bombardiers. Mike Cohen had 23 and Fred Sundin 13 for Miller, while Chris Keenan had 15 and Rick Boyle 10 for the Bombardiers (0-4).

Early Sports Deadline

Because of the Fourth of July falling on next Tuesday, all sports copy must be submitted to the Quincy Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., by noon on Friday, to be assured of insertion in next week's edition.

Carlton Wins Gibney Cup

Nancy Carlton, president of Ponkapoag Golf Course's Ladies' Inner Club, won the Gibney Cup Tournament with a net 71. This is the third time Carlton has won the event.

The tournament is held annually in memory of Clarence Gibney, the first pro at Ponkapoag, a position he held for 22 years. CArlton will receive a beautiful cup at the annual awards dinner in the fall.

Anne Bell scored a hole-in-one recently on the par three 15th hole on course No. 2. She used a No. 4 wood. Her witness and playing partner was Joan Morton.

A year ago, Anne had a hole-in-one on the par-three 11th hole.

Barry's 2-1-1 In Four Games

Due to rainouts, Barry's Deli played four Babe Ruth League games during the past week, winning two, losing one and typing one.

In its latest game Barry's defeated Sons of Italy, 5-2. Danny Kearns pitched a strong game, allowing three hits, striking out two and not walking a man. He also had a single.

Chris Peck and Danny Duncan had two hits each, Duncan's double driving in the game-winner. He had three RBI. David Raftery, Mike Conners, Chris Geary and Chris Murphy also had key hits. Mike Kelly, Neil Hutchinson, Derek Thompson, Jeff Craig, Jeff Tirrell, Dave D'Olympio and Tom Geary all played strong defense.

Ed Rizzitano pitched well for S of I giving up nine hits, striking out five and not walking a batter. He also had a single. Brian Campbell had the other two hits.

Barry's edged Morrisette Post, 6-5, with Raftery and Craig sharing the pitching, allowing seven hits, striking out four and walking three.

Craig had three hits and three RBI, Raftery two hits and an RBI, Chris Murphy three hits, Danny Kearns two and Mike Kelley, Peck, Conners and Thompson one each. Murphy, Kearns, Conners, Craig, Duncan, Tirrell and Peck all played excellent defense.

Barry's and the Firemen played to an 8-8 tie.

Trailing 8-3 in the second inning, Kearns came in to pitch and closed the door while his teammates pecked away at the lead and finally tied it in the last inning on Duncan's bases-loaded single.

Murphy and Kelley had three hits apiece, Craig and Tirrell two each and Kearns, Duncan, Raftery and Conners one each.

Rookie Tirrell was outstanding in right field, throwing out two runners at first on what looked like singles, including the game-ending play. Peck, Thompson, Chris and Tom Geary, Hutchinson and D'Olympio all had fine games as did Kenny Ledwak and Jeff Burrell.

Barry's lost to Granite City Electric, 9-8, in the last inning, despite pulling off a triple play.

With the bases loaded, Keith Norris hit to Craig at third. Craig threw to Duncan at first for the second out and Duncan threw to catcher Conners, who threw back to third and Duncan, backing up the play, tagged Robbie Guarnari out to complete the triple play. Duncan also had an unassisted double play.

Meanwhile, Bryan VFW Post defeated the Elks, 7-6, and Sons of Italy, 9-0, on Steven Loud's pitching and Mark Kelleher's power hitting. Bryan has a 9-2 record and is riding an eight-game win streak, leading the American League.

Against the Elks, Joe Marnikovic, Rob Kane and Loud combined for a three-hitter with 11 strikeouts. Clutch hitting by Tom Nutley and Marnikovic enabled Bryan to rally for the win.

The Elks took a 1-0 lead in the first on Pat Clifford's RBI single. Bryan scored twice in the second on hits by Marnikovic and George Wirtz and took a 4-1 lead in the third on singles by Wirtz, Paul Murphy and Todd Portesi and a long triple by Nutley.

Bryan pushed its lead to 5-1 in the fourth on Loud's triple and Kelleher's single, but the Elks fought back with four in the fourth to tie, 5-5. Four walks and Michael Linnane's single accounted for the runs.

The Elks regained the lead, 6-5, in the fifth on Pat Bryan's RBI single.

Bryan Post scored twice in the seventh to win it. Nutley signled, stole second and, with two outs and two strikes, scored on Marnikovic's double. Marnikovic scored the winner on Murphy's single and an error.

Loud fired a three-hitter in the 9-0 win over Sons of Italy. He struck out nine, running his strikeout total to 51 in 40 innings.

Loud and Kelleher had four hits each, Kelleher hitting two out of Merrymount Park, one for a homer, the other a ground rule double. He later doubled and singled. Michael Malvesti and Marnikovic doubled and singled and Philip Bell had two singles. Kane, Murphy and Bill Morrissey had the other hits. Kelleher, Morrissey, Kane, Wirtz, Marnikovic, Skahan and Bell played fine defense and Terry Sheehah, Rich Gorman and Jeff Breslin also contributed to the win.

John Gladu, Dennis Lawrence and Rizzitano had the S of I hits.

Dodgers Sweep Mets For N.L. Championship

The Dodgers swept both games from the Mets to capture the Junior Farm League's National League championship.

The Dodgers will open the league championship series with either the Indians or Yankess tonight (Thursday) at 6 o'clock. The Indians and Yankees are tied at one win apiece in the American League playoffs.

The Dodgers defeated the Mets, 14-8, in the first game of their playoff series.

The Mets took an early 5-1 lead as Jim Cunio, John Sullivan and Kevin Regan all singled. John Wall drove them all in.

In the Dodgers' second Andy Mauriello, Jake Flemming and Brian Brownell all reached. Jonathan Brillo drove in two runs with a hit and Jeff Marks also drove in a run.

Mike Powers led off the third with a double. Ron Gamel also doubled, Chris Bregoli singled and Scott Cooper doubled to give the Dodgers an 11-5 lead.

The Mets scored three runs on a homer by Adam Delorey, a double by Danny Stock and a single by Wall.

The Dodgers rolled to a 20-2 win in the second game behing the strong pitching of Walsh.

Powers had four hits, including a double and triple, while Cooper had three hits. Brownell had two hits and two RBI and Pat Dolbeare had two RBI. Chris O'Hare, Phil Belmont and Steve Marks all played well.

For the Mets John Sullivan had a home run and two doubles and Kevin Regan, Mike Sullivan and Sean Fitzgerald also had hits. Also playing well were Billy Griffin, Derek McTomny and Matt Flynn.

The Dodgers finished the season with a perfect 10-0 record with a 5-3 win over the Pirates in extra innings.

Walsh started and pitched well for four innings and Corner was the winner in relief. Jose Diaz pitched well for the Pirates.

Meanwhile, the Yankees evened their series with the Indians with a 9-4 victory. Colin Shea was the winning pitcher and had 10 strikeouts.

The key play of the game came in the fifth inning. With the bases loaded Shea got Brian Ross to fly out to Greg Peck who made a spectacular catch to end the inning.

Brian Kalil paced the Yankees with a grand slam homer. Adam Goodrich went 3-for-4 and Mark Foster, Tim Kenerson and Mike Sampson also had hits.

National League All-Stars Breeze

The National League rolled over the Americans, 27-11, in the annual 8-year-old Junior Farm League all-star baseball game.

After taking a 7-4 lead in the first inning, the Nationals exploded for 13 runs in the second for a 20-4 lead. Hitting stars in the big second were Mike Welch and Shawn Manning with RBI singles, Tom Daley and Chris Bregoli with doubles and Jose Diaz with a triple.

Brian Kalil's double drove in two runs for the Americans in the bottom of the second, but six more runs by the Nationals put the game out of reach.

For the National League Daley had two hits and five RBI, Manning two hits and three RBI, Chad Fitzpatrick two hits, Kevin Walsh two hits and three RBI and Bregoli a home run.

For the Americans Paul Markarian and Mike McEvly had hits.

Daley was named the game's Most Valuable Player with Manning runnerup.

The National all-stars were Daley, Paul CArney and Jamie Grossi of the Braves; Keryn Mahoney, Welch and Robert Johnston, Cubs; Walsh, Bregoli and Powers, Dodgers; Manning, Chris Carthas and Fitzpatrick, Giants; Fitzgerald, Matt Hill and Natt Flynn, Mets, and Diaz, Matt Kiesel and Adam Radzevich, Pirates.

The American League stars were Jocelyn West, Matt Tobin and Tim O'Connor, Angels; Markarian, Matt Lebo and Jamie Darample, Indians; McEvly, Nick Cyr and Jim Sullivan, Orioles; Mike Hastings, Pat O'Neill, Chris Duffy and Vin Pivnecy, Red Sox: Brian Doyle, Craig Bigham and Billy Walker, Tigers, and Adam Goodrich, Kevin Shaw and Kalil, Yankees.

Mets Edge White Sox

The Mets scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth to edge the White Sox, 4-3, in the Triple A Baseball League and break a 10-game losing streak.

Robby Churchill was the winning pitcher and struck out four. Terrence Roche started an outstanding double play and Jason Berniers made an excellent catch in center field.

Bernier, Roche and Shawn McTomny had multiple hit games, McTomny having two doubles, Tom Gildea had a double and Bernier drove in the winning run with a triple. Bernier, Roche and Robby Churchill played strong defense.

Also contributing to the win were Sean Ford, Steve Gildea, Mark Belanger, Justin Bernier, Joe Barry, Mike Luddy, Jimmy Hogrell, Brad Currie, Mike Friel, Brian Beaton and Brad Bryan.

They are Timothy J. Collins of 53 Arnold Road, a senior communications major, and Donald J. Riley, of 11 Arnold Rd., a senior History major.

Elks Playing Well Despite 3-13-1 Record

The Quincy Elks' Little League baseball team has been playing excellent ball despite its 3-13-1 record. Ten of its losses were by one run.

"Our best game was played against Boston Gear," said coach Gerry Tirrell. Dane Doherty and John Riley pitched well as the game ended in a 10-10 tie.

Jay Renzi hit a solid double in the sixth inning to tie the score and force extra innings. It was a total team effort as Timmy Kunz, Sean Tirrell, Scott Ryan, John Riley and Matt McSweeney played fine games. Dan Calnan, Robbie Pirelli, Steve Finn and Matt Miller played strong defense.

The play of the game came as Terry Bowman, playing third base, fielded a tough grounder, tagged the runner coming in from second and threw to first for a double play that ended Gear's chance of winning in extra innings.

Track Club Impressive At N.E. Junior Olympics

The Quincy Track Club opened its summer season on a high note with an impressive showing in the New England Junior Olympics at Brown University. Thirty members took part.

In Bantam (9-10) girls Erin Barry placed third in the 400.

In Midget (11-12) girls Tracy Grossi won the shot put and in boys' action Roger Smith won the 800.

In Youth (13-14) events Jennifer Pratt cleared five feet to win the igh jump; Noreen O'Brien took second in the 400; Meghan Barry won the discus and took second in the shot; Kathy Ford took second in the javelin; Mike Kavanaugh won the shot, took second in the discus and third in the 200 hurdles; Steve Southwick placed third in the 200; Jerry Marshall won the 200 hurdles; John DiGiacomo took third in the shot and discus and the 4x800 relay tream of Pratt, O'Brien, Noreen Fewer and Ann Harkins won.

In Young Men's (17-18) Peter Stemniski took third in the discus.

The top three in each event qualified to compete in the Regional Junior Olympics July 6, 7 and 8 at Union College in Schenectady N.Y.

Burgess Plans To Travel With Junior Olympic Wrestling Team

Brian Burgess of 1100 Sea St. is planning on traveling with the Mass. Junior Olympic wrestling team this summer.

Burgess, a junior at Quincy Vo-Tech, was a recent winner of the Grand Points championship sponsored by USA Wrestling, a freelance organization, which awards the wrestler who finishes consistently in the top three of each of the USA Wrestling tournaments.

A one-week camp at WPI precedes a trip to Iowa and efforts are being made to raise money on Brian's behalf for the trip. Donations can be made to the Quincy High Wrestling Team, c/o South Shore Bank, Quincy 02169.

DiCenso's Drum Shop Holds 'Sabian Days'

DiCenso's Drum Shop, 51 Franklin St., recently held its second annual "Sabian Days," two days of drumming workshops and clinics featuring Sabian cymbals and related products. Sabian is run by members of the Zildjian family.

The featured clinician for the event, professional drummer Dom Famularo, presented six clinics in two days and focused on hand and foot technique, posture and breathing for maximum drumming performance.

Participants at the clinics were comprised of DiCenso's patron mailing list of drumming enthusiasts.

Also featured at Sabian Days were representatives of the Sabian Company, including President Bob Zildjian and Director of Artist Relations Andy Zildjian. The two were on hand during the event to advise and inform drummers on Sabian cymbals.

Batman Lives Up To All The Hype

"Batman"
Starring Jack Nicholson and Michael Keaton
Now playing at Entertainment Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall

By JANE ARENA

If you're one of the few who are still waiting for the lines for "Batman" to shrink, rest easy.

This film will likely be in the theaters for a long time. Chances are pretty good too that "Batman" will be one of those rare films to actually make a second theater run before it ends up on video.

They're going to milk this for all its worth. And it's worth a lot. (The revenues from Batman T-shirts alone probably exceeded the cost of making the film sometime back in May! When are we going to see "Batman" cereal?).

But, for all the hype and hysteria, the first word to spring to mind after seeing this film is "awesome." After some sober deliberation, maybe "colossal." It worked: "Batman" lives up to the hype. "Although the idea of camping out overnight for movie tickets is still pretty silly."

As promised, the film has more elements of the comic book series than the television show. Like the comic book, there is an atmosphere of mystery throughout; like the comic book, Batman is truly the "Dark Hero" he is said to be, motivated more by evil itself than by any genuine altruism; like the comic book, Gothom City. while teeming and pulsating, is made to look somehow cardboard, not quite real; and, like the comic book, the characters are one-dimensional caricatures, except for Batman himself, who remains an enigma.

All of this is done through cinematography that is dark, smokey and forboding, a script that plays like a comic strip without the thought bubbles, and casting that is, in a word, pefection.

Although Jack Nicholson gets top billing as The Joker, Michael Keaton, contrary to speculation, has no trouble filling the cape in the role of Batman. Both are equally well cast.

Nicholson definitely steals the show here though. It's as though the director said, "Okay, Jack, here's your role - be as evil as you can and enjoy doing it," and Nicholson took it away.

Finding the perfect balance between spine-chilling evil and downright hilarity, Nicholson's maniacal manner and devious expressions are brilliant. Typecast or not, he is the perfect villain and the perfect clown rolled into one. The part of The Joker was created for Nicholson, or vice versa.

Keaton, with his own blend of subtle humor and boyish charm, gives us a Batman that is, at once, larger than life and very, very human.

Kim Bassinger, as photographer Vicky Vale, does exactly as she's supposed to do: She's beautiful, curious about Batman to the point of endangering herself, and she serves as the love object and the damsel in distress.

"Batman" is full of reasons to see it for a second or even third time. It is thoroughly enjoyable.

Rumor has it that, if "Batman" is as successful as the producers hoped it would be, there will be a sequel made in which Danny DeVito would play the part of The Penguin. You can bet your last Batman button that DeVito is practicing his lines.

QHS Alumni Band Concert Saturday

The Quincy High School Alumni Band will present its second annual Summer Concert Saturday, July 1 at 7 p.m., at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre.

The band, under the direction of George Vallatini, will perform a variety of crowd pleasing, musical selections.

A special feature will be the debut of the vocal trio "George and the Georgettes".

The public is invited to the free concert.

The Alumni Band, which began in 1982, consists of members of the Quincy Public School system who graduated between 1968 and 1986.

In the past, the band's performances have included the annual Quincy Labor Day Telethon at the Quincy Sun, various occasions at Quincy and other South Shore Citizens Centers, the City of Quincy's Bicentennial Celebration, Summerfest concerts and other private functions.

Hancock Pool Closed June 29-July 4

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that all regularly scheduled recreational swimming programs at the Lincoln Hancock Community School will be cancelled from Thursday, June 29, at 9 p.m. through July 4.

The evening schedule of recreational swimming sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department will resume with the summer schedule July 5 at 5 p.m.

Annual maintenance and preparation for the summer programs will be held while the pool is closed. The pool will re-open with a new summer schedule that includes seven days per week of recreational swimming.

'Don't Do Drugs' Music Video Makes It To The Big Screen

By JANE ARENA

Along with the list of major motion pictures released this summer, a film with a local flair--and a very important message for youth--is now appearing on the silver screen.

"Don't Do Drugs," a music video produced by Quincy High School teacher, Patricia Dunne of Braintree and assisted by Karl Schwendeman and starring a cast of Quincy High School students, is currently being shown just before "Indiana Jones: The Last Crusade" at Entertainment Cinemas, Quincy Fair Mall. After two weeks there, the video will tour other Entertainment Cinemas in Stoughton, Scituate, Cambridge and Buzzards Bay through the summer and fall.

The video which has been transformed to movie film for the big screen features an original song, "Don't Do Drugs," written expressly for the project by Peter Calo of the Boston band Thin Ice. The band also performs the song in the video.

Although it's only minutes in length, "Don't Do Drugs" packs a lot of action. But, more importantly, it packs a lot of valuable information for anyone who may be involved with substance abuse, or anyone who wants to help someone who is abusing drugs and alcohol.

"The video doesn't only say 'just say no," explains Dunne, "it actually tells kids where to get the help that's available."

The story line involves a high school girl (Jennifer Richmond) and boy (Steve Osborne) who get in trouble with drug and alcohol abuse. Each, in turn, seeks help from friends, school officials or family members, while the video also shows that professional counseling is available as well.

"The educational part of the video is actually telling kids where to get help and how to get help," Dunne says.

The project began about a year ago after Dunne's 9th grade writing students who finished 10th grade this year, expressed an interest in producing a video especially for high school kids warning them about the dangers of drugs and alcohol.

Taping for the video began at the end of the 1988 school year, and students made a committment to work on the project during their summer vacation. In total, about 20 students appeared in the video and also helped with the technical aspects of the project.

Local interest in the project attracted support from Continental Cablevision and Community Television in Quincy and Milton, who donated equipment and guidance toward the video.

"They were the main support right from the stat of the project," Dunne says.

Additional support was received from none other than the Boston Red Sox, who arranged for an on-field shoot at Fenway Park. Red Sox players Marty Barrett and Jim Rice appear in the video as well as former player Larry Parrish.

Other familiar faces are D.J. Matt Siegel of Radio Station KISS 108 FM and "Coach" Willie Maye from WILD 1090 AM.

National Aerial Advertising donated three small planes (a camera plane, a sky-writing plane and a banner plane) and pilots for the video's grand finale.

"People were just wonderful," Dunne says, "they donated time, services, facilities and talents."

Having a premiered at Entertainment Cinenams at a special Tuesday night performance this week, "Don't Do Drugs," is now generating interest on a larger scale.

Dunne said Monday that the Arts and Entertainment departments at TV Channels 4, 5 and 7 have all received copies of the tape for consideration, and the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs has also viewed the project with interest.

After its tour of the silver screen this summer, the video will be used in the Quincy Public Schools as part of a drug and alcohol education program. Dunne says she will look into the possibility of introducing the video to other school systems in the fall.

"This is so exciting," Dunne said before Tuesday night's premiere. "This is like a major opening night, and yet it's a teacher and some students and a band from Boston."

It is a lot more than that though. "Don't Do Drugs" is a fine example of kids helping kids stay drug-free.

WEEK OF: June 29

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You are ruled by the moon, the sign of home and family. You are known for your intuitive strengths, your tolerance of others, your need for security. Artistic abilities shine over the coming six months; it is in your professional and personal interests to pursue creative activities.

AQUARIUS — January 21 - February 19
You may be branching out--taking on new interests and, especially, new responsibilities. Overdue payment or recognition arrives. Best friends are of the opposite sex.

PISCES — February 20 - March 20
Family ties strengthen, and older relatives especially are taking an interest in your affairs. Whether or not you think your thumb is green, gardening tasks are favorably spotlighted.

ARIES — March 21 - April 20
Good week for following-up on unanswered correspondance, especially where finances are involved. Sense of salesmanship is particularly sharp--a terrific time for selling your skills.

TAURUS — April 21 - May 22
You're more upfront and able to offer constructive criticism in a tactful but effective manner. A new friend shares your special brand of humor; the week is filled with laughter.

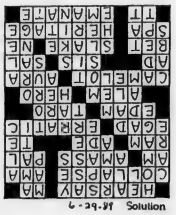
GEMINI — May 23 - June 21
Good week to set down a plan of action; organization is a current strong suit. Job scene offers some lighthearted moments. Be sure you're selling your skills and abilities.

CANCER — June 22 - July 22
Harmony is restored on the homefront, thanks largely to everyone's attempts at compromise. A sense of balance is important at work. Platonic friendship is especially rewarding.

LEO — July 23 - August 22
A new challenge gets this period off to a productive start. This is an important time to keep a log book of everyday happenings. Information arriving now needs careful interpretation.

VIRGO — August 23 - September 22
Nothing ventured, nothing gained--and this is the week to venture. Influential person helps you promote your ideas. Your closest friends now bask in the limelight.

LIBRA — September 23 - October 22
Artistic streak remains prominent, and your talents may help you earn spare cash. The time you spend with ailing friends is particularly important for all involved.



SCORPIO — October 23 - November 21
Some of your offbeat ideas prove the most successful; the week is generally favorable for new approaches. Family reunions are spotlighted--make every effort to avoid confrontations.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22 - December 22
This is a good week for thinking big, especially in the areas of work and community service. On the flip side, a commonsense diet regime may be successfully launched.

CAPRICORN — December 23 - January 20
Business and pleasure blend unusually well this week, thanks to your ability to organize your priorities. Be aware of acquaintances who are just a little too curious.

BORN THIS WEEK
June 29th, producer Robert Evans; 30th, singer Lena Horne; July 1st, actress Karen Black; 2nd actress Cheryl Ladd; 3rd, director Ken Russell; 4th, actress Eva Marie Saint; 5th, showman P. T. Barnum.

Maj. Joseph Manning Completes Command Course

Maj. Joseph P. Manning, son of Irene E. Manning of 20 Exeter St., Wollaston and Edward F. Manning of Howland Park, Hanover, has completed the U.S., Army Command and General Staff College Regular Course at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The 10-month regular course at the Army's senior tactical school produced graduates who are competent military problem solvers. Emphasis was placed on career development for the officer's future duties as a senior commander or staff officer.

His wife, Marianne, is the daughter of Helen Murawski of Stafford Court, Medford, N.J.

Major Manning graduated from Canisius High School, Buffalo, NH in 1968 and received a bachelor's degree from Loyola University, Montreal, Canada in 1972.

TO ST. JUDE, O Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, Great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsmen of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depths of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power, to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return I promise to make your name known and cause to be invoked. Say 3 Our Fathers and 3 Hail Marys and 3 Glorias. Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us, and all who invoke your aid. AMEN. This Prayer has never been known to fail. This prayer is to be said on 9 consecutive days.

Publication promised.

Patricia Toland Candidate For Re-election

PATRICIA TOLAND

Councillor Patricia Toland, who has held an at-large seat for eight years, has announced she is a candidate for re-election.

Her announcement was made this week before friends and supporters at the home of Bette and Dan McElaney of Wollaston.

Toland noted the mounting challenge of managing city government citing increased costs of basic city services and diminishing financial resources.

"Controlling growth and development, maintaining a high level of public safety and a quality educational system, providing more affordable housing, and alleviating our traffic problems are continuing problems requiring our attention," Toland said.

"Further," she said, "is the challenge of revitalizing downtown Quincy, dealing with the intractable MWRA and protecting our environment."

Toland, who has served as council president the past two years, stressed her experience and spoke of the need for continuity on the council pointing out that the two senior members who are mayoral candidates will no longer be part of the nine-member body after December.

"I look forward to serving over the next two years with whomever the new mayor will be and feel that my experience and knowledge gained over the past eight years will help smooth the transition to a new administration."

Prior to her election to the council in 1981, Toland served on the School Committee six years, including one term as its vice chairman.

Liquor Store Placed On 3-Months Probation

After a hearing concerning conditions at Atlas Liquors, 659-665 Adams St. and 49-53 Eddie St., the License Board placed the establishment on probation for a period of three months.

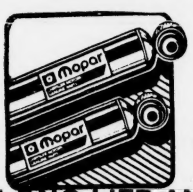
Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien brought complaints to the board's attention after he had received several complaints from area residents. He told the board that "complaints are ranging from landscaping to parking."

Chretian said that the establishment is usually "messy," and that there is litter in the parking lot and the grass is not mowed regularly. He presented the board with photographs to that effect.

Chretian said that, at the present time, the area appears well-kept, but that it is not usually kept clean.

A petition signed by several Eddie St. residents was also presented to the board.

Chretian said another complaint concerned the heavy traffic flow in the area. He told the board he wants to see more of a police detail in the area.



Police Chief Francis Finn noted that Atlas Liquors "has been cooperative" in hiring a police detail on their busiest days.

Maryanne Flaherty, an Adams St. resident, told the board that the establishment only hires a police detail "three or maybe four times a year." She said that a detail should be hired for the Fourth of July, Memorial Day and Labor Day as well.

She also told the board that the parking lot and surrounding area of Atlas Liquors should be cleaned more frequently and that the site is in need of landscaping.
